Information has now been placed under Hon. J. G. Gardiner in the new department of National War Service.

The new post Mr. Gardiner plans to create will, it is understood, be the equivalent to a deputy ministership, whether or not it carries that title.

Canadian Newsmen Must Get Permission To Visit United States

Ottawa, July 16 (CP)—Special permission from Washington in addition to a passport, is required from every Canadian newspaperman entering the United States, an official of the External Affairs Department said today.

Application should be made to the United States consulates a few days in advance of the day on which the newspaperman wishes to leave for the United States. Such application is referred by the consul to Washington, and upon authorization there the applicant is issued a visa, the official said.

Normally, visas issued to Canadian citizens planning a trip to the United States do not require authorization from Washington. Officials at the United States legation here and the External Affairs department said they had no information as to why newspapermen must obtain special permission.

STIFF PENALTIES

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of National War Services, explained the procedure in the House of Commons yesterday as copies of the registration regulations were handed all members. At the same time the Minister tabled a list of registrars and assistant registrars for the various constituencies.

Too much importance had been attached by some people to the definition of a single man as one who was unmarried on July 15, Mr. Gardiner said.

Considered Single

"After all, all that it could possibly mean is that a man is considered single for the purposes of the first list which will be required by the militia department and from which men will be called up for training.

"It will be found later on in the regulations that after a little time has expired, each man who has married will have to report (the marriage) within 30 days and he will then be listed for succeeding calls as a married person."

The general set-up for taking the registration will be just about like election day. Each constituency has a registrar and assistant registrar. Then each polling division has two deputy registrars and any number of voluntary assistant deputy registrars help them. In as many cases as possible rent-free premises will be used.

Exemptions Outlined

Everyone who has a 16th birthday on or before the last day of the registration period will be called upon to register. Only exceptions are cloistered nuns, members of the naval, military and air forces of Canada on active service, and persons confined in mental institutions or penitentiaries or prisons.

Those reaching their 16th birthday after the registration period, those ceasing to belong to any of those groups mentioned above or persons returning to Canada after an absence which included the registration period, must register within 30 days.

The registration is expected to continue for four days, from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. each day, and be completed by the end of August.

The registration process itself consists merely of answering the list of questions on the registration card. These are written down for the registrant. The registrant then signs the card "thereby affirming the truth of the answers there recorded." The Deputy Registrar also signs the card.

Will Visit Sick

If a person is ill or cannot otherwise come to the registration booth, a voluntary assistant deputy registrar may visit that person and complete the registration card in the usual way.

These cards will then be all forwarded to the chief registrar and ultimately to the Dominion statistican in Ottawa. However, duplicates are to be made of all registration cards of single men and widowers without children from 19 to 45 years and these will be classified for military training by a local judge.

While the calling up of classes for such training is a matter for the Defence Department to decide, it is understood single men from 21 up will be called first and that only a few year classes will be accommodated this year.

The duplication now of cards of single men 19 and 20 is merely to avoid having to do that work a year or two years from now as these youths attain their majority.

Everyone will be required to carry at all times the registration certificate obtained when registration is made. That card must be produced for any police officer "upon reasonable demand" and a maximum fine of $20 is provided for failure to carry the card.

In addition, everyone must answer all relevant questions by an officer concerning his or her registration.

Further, if a police officer accosts you and questions you about your registration you must answer truthfully and without evasion otherwise you may be detained.

Supplementary Questions

Questions supplementary to those on the registration card are provided for in another part of the regulations. These, submitted under the direction of the Chief Registrar, may touch the answers on registration card itself or require further information concerning any of the matters mentioned there.

Finally, any person marrying or moving after registering must report that change of status or location within 14 days to the Dominion Statistician, Ottawa.

Failure to register within the registration period will be punishable by a fine not exceeding $200 or imprisonment for not more than three months or both and an additional penalty of $1 per day for each day elapsing between the close of the registration period and registration or trial.

A fine not exceeding $100 is provided for refusing to answer a question on registration and for giving false or misleading answers the penalty is a fine not exceeding $200 or imprisonment for not more than three months or both.

A penalty running to a fine of $200 and or imprisonment for not more than three months is provided for advising any person to refuse or omit to comply with any of the regulations or impeding any person in the performance of duties under the regulations.

To Continue Registrars

Where a person reaches his 16th birthday after the registration period, comes out of an exempted class or comes to Canada after being absent during the registration period he must register at a post office within [illegible] days.

Postmasters are made continuing registrars for persons becoming eligible for registration after the registration period.

Mr. Gardiner told the House the government was anxious to complete the registration as early as possible and it was necessary to complete the organization by Aug. 1.

He thanked members for speedy action in nominating registrars and assistant registrars for their constituencies and announced the appointment of these officials for all but five constituencies.

Under the regulations these officials will appoint deputy registrars in the polling subdivisions and Mr. Gardiner made public a letter or instruction sent to the registrars today by Jules Castonguay, Chief Registrar for Canada.

The registrars are instructed to proceed at once with their appointments and with the securing of registration booths. These are to be obtained rent-free wherever possible and registrars are told arrangements are being made for the free use of all schools.

To Post Notices

The Deputy Registrars, when appointed, are to post notice of the registration as soon as the dates are fixed. They may appoint voluntary assistant deputy registrars to assist them.

All persons are required to attend the registration booths to answer questions put to them by the deputy registrars, the answers to which will be written on registration cards. Where the deputy register knows a person is ill or incapacitated and cannot attend he may send an assistant deputy to complete the registration at such person's home.

Mr. Gardiner has indicated Aug. 19 as a likely date for the start of registration.

TIGHTER BLOCKADE

"His Majesty's Government regard themselves as justified in taking similar action in respect of vessels navigating in the vicinity of the Italian coasts."

As Britain struck out against Italy by sea she hit Germany by air. The Air Ministry announced last night that British fliers had bombed 22 German airdromes in the past 48 hours, crippling jumping off places which might be used for attack against Britain.

Directed Against Airports

The attacks were directed against airports in Belgium, Holland and Germany. British airmen also bombed an aircraft factory at Bremen and oil plants and refineries at Gelsenkirchen, Hamburg and Bremen. Two British planes were said to have been lost.

The Air Ministry said that "fires and explosions resulted and considerable damage was done."

The attacks were believed to have been continued last night and early today. At least 12 German and German-controlled radio stations suddenly went off the air indicating British raids were in progress over a wide area.

Stations known to have gone silent were those at Bremen, Cologne, Munich, Leipzig, Berlin, Breslau, Frankfurt, Saar-Brucken, Vienna, Brussels, Hilversum and Strasbourg.

Meanwhile Germany's campaign of daily air attacks against the British Isles appeared to be nearly at a standstill. Planes were believed to have flown over northeast England late last night, but no bombs were dropped and no gunfire was heard. One raider was reported shot down into the sea in the south east area.

Some Misgivings

Reports were current in London that Britain might seek if possible to bring the Sino-Japanese war to a peaceful conclusion, but they were unconfirmed and aroused some misgivings in certain sections of the press.

The Yorkshire Post and Manchester Guardian suggested wariness in such an attempt. The Post suggested they might be construed in the United States as preparations for a "Far Eastern Munich." The Guardian said that if Japan intends to expand her position in the Far East the first thing she needs to do is liquidate the China incident.

The Admiralty announced British, Allied and neutral merchant ship losses for the week ended July 7 were 22, totalling 114,137 tons and a spokesman, acknowledging they were above the average warned:

"We must expect more violent and more frequent air attacks with the coast of France occupied."

Italian Ship Damaged

The Royal Navy damaged an Italian battleship and a cruiser and destroyed five planes in the pursuit of a heavy Italian squadron in last Tuesday's central Mediterranean battle, the Admiralty announced last night. The cost to Britain was three men.

Its communiqe ampulifying previous accounts, said the Italian forces comprised two battleships, a large number of heavy cruisers and 25 destroyers, all of which fled as soon as they came within extreme range.

The battleships exchanged a few salvos, with the British inflicting one hit. British swordfish planes (torpedo carriers) hit an Italian cruiser, and pursuit planes downed five Fascist fighters.

Then in sight of land, the British squadron stood offshore the rest of the day, waiting in vain for the Italians to come out and fight.

Finally, they returned to their duties as a convoy for ships which "have now arrived at their destination in safety."

It was in this phase, the Admiralty reported, that bomb splinters from "near misses" by Italian planes caused three British casualties.

PANES OF GLASS BROKEN BY HAIL AT SPRINGBROOK

Crops in Vicinity Destroyed and Trees in Village Broken

VERY HIGH WIND

Striking with unabated fury the worst hail storm of many years lowered crops to the land level and shattered hundreds of panes of glass in the village of Springbrook early last evening. Driving in a mile-wide strip, from north to south the storm wrecked farm crops and damaged buildings for a distance of four miles long east and west of Springbrook. So furious was the storm that large banks of hailstones, some as large as walnuts, were still seen in the corners of buildings at a late hour this morning, where the sun had failed to melt them.

Eleven panes of glass were broken at Bateman's store in Springbrook, while other buildings suffered equally as much property damage as the hail stones drove hard in front of a 50-mile gale. Two miles west of the village 36 of 48 panes of glass in the Gospel Hall were broken, leaving shattered glass throughout the building, while at the home of Percy Mumby, 40 panes of glass were destroyed.

Crops Suffered

Crops also suffered from the storm, that broke through the community without warning shortly before 7.00 p.m. last night. Several trees were broken and badly damaged as limbs were shorn off and strewn across the countryside before one of the worst wind and hail storms experienced north of Stirling in many years.

Crops also suffered to a considerable degree as the mile-wide storm strip lowered the crops to land level on the farms of Percy Mumby and Sidney Mason west of Springbrook. Wheat fields and even corn stalks were beaten to the ground by the unabated storm that lasted for several minutes.

In the vicinity of Bonarlaw, some three miles to the north, only a minor rain storm was experienced, the fury of the storm to do most damage being a strip one mile wide and causing damage for a distance of four miles within the vicinity of Springbrook.

PREMIER YONAI'S CABINET RESIGNS

New Government Will be Pledged to Strong Policy in Orient

Tokyo, July 16 (AP)—The cabinet of Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai decided today to resign in a move expected to lead to formation of a new government pledged to a strong policy in the Orient against western powers.

War Minister General Shunroku Hata and Prince Fumimaro Konoye, former Premier, were considered the most likely candidates for the Premiership. Presumably either would head a government dedicated to consolidation of Japan's gains in the Orient.

Yonai, bearing the registrations of all his ministers, prepared to report at once to Emperor Hirohito, who is residing temporarily at a seaside villa about an hour distant from Tokyo, seeking his formal acceptance.

Yonai was scheduled to return to the capital this evening after which his successor was to be chosen.

The chief secretary of the cabinet explained merely, "the War Minister having tendered his resignation, Premier Yonai decided to resign and tender the resignations of his cabinet members to the throne."

Attention centred on Yonai and his Foreign Minister, Hachiro Arita. If either is retained, observers believe, it can be taken as a sign that Japan has no intention of making any formal alliance with Italy and Germany, since these two men were largely responsible for thwarting moves toward a military pact with the axis powers last year.

BRITISH MERCHANT

Norway's losses, tabulated by The Associated Press, have amounted to 66 ships of 146,856 tons, leaving 1,921 ships of 4,686,957 tons.

Of these, Britain today controls and operates an undisclosed number, as she does parts of the fleets of the other countries.

Belgium had 200 ships of 408,418 tons and has lost eight ships of 40,854 tons, leaving 192 ships of 367,564 tons.

Denmark had 705 ships of 1,174,944 tons and lost 30 ships of 65,830 tons, leaving 675 ships of 1,109,114 tons.

Holland had 1,523 ships of 2,969,578 tons and lost 34 ships of 149,793 tons, leaving 1,489 ships of 2,819,785 tons.

France had 1,231 ships of 2,933,933 tons and lost 25 ships of 131,846 tons, leaving 1,206 ships of 2,802,087 tons.

Poland had a much smaller merchant fleet. Two of her biggest ships, the Pilsudski and the Batory, came under British control, but the 14,294-ton Pilsudski was sunk last Nov. 26. The 14,187-ton Batory still is in British hands.

In the 51 months of the last war, the British lost 7,830,765 tons of commercial shipping, including fishing craft. Submarines accounted for nearly 90 per cent.

Nearly 100,000,000 Tons Escorted.

A British Admiralty statement broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation today and heard here by NBC, said the British navy had escorted 100,000,000 gross tons of shipping since the war started.

This, the announcement said, represents a cargo-carrying capacity of about 150,000,000 tons. It reported 47 British and neutral ships were lost while being thus convoyed.

ENEMY MAY SEEK

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise abouet it among their own people that it might be risky to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's chief of state, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast array of small craft for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that these rumors might be merely part of Gayda's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major weakness in the axis striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started, Italy possibly was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting from Ethiopia to France.

They were faced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid replacements. Germany has lost most of her navy. Her apparent plan to use the French navy misfired when the British beat her to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have hoped to beat the blockade by sea. Her attempts now to establish one on the British Isles by air are not working and she is taking a furious drubbing from the Royal Air Force.

Meanwhile she has extended her coastlines thousands of miles and added millions of hungry and disgruntled peoples to territory under her responsibility.

Story from Grenoble, France

Grenoble, France, July 16 (AP)—Le Petit Dauphinois, French provincial paper through which the Petain government has been making its announcements, said today that Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic quarters of Switzerland to have assembled an expeditionary force of 600,000 men and hundreds of ships for the attack on Great Britain.

The ships, according to the newspaper are lying along the coast from Brest, France, to Bergen, Norway.

The paper continued that a planned attack by these forces on the night of July 9-10 was delayed because of a disagreement between Hitler's generals.

The fleet's escort of light gunboats, submarines and fighting planes, to be preceded by minesweepers and waves of bombers were ready when one group of generals headed by Gen. Walther Von Brauchtsch, commander in chief of the German army, protested that it was too dangerous, the paper said.

A modified plan of the attack may be launched Friday night the paper declared.

Says Hitler Delays Attack

The dispatch said that Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the general staff, defended the original plan, but that Hitler nevertheless delayed the attack to consider the objections.

The Van Braustsch group, the dispatch continued, argued that the minesweepers could not clear the lanes well enough for such a fleet and that two-thirds of the force might be lost, leaving 200,000 men to risk destruction.

The Italian command, the paper also said, was reported to be opposed to the plan.

The dispatch concluded with the report that Hitler had decided on a modified Keitel plan which may be launched Friday night if weather permits.

FOUR INJURED NEAR COBOURG

Cobourg, Ont., July 16—(CP) — Four persons were admitted to hospital Monday after a head-on collision between two automobiles on the highway near Grafton.

A car driven by Rev. D. K. Fetterley of Saxonburg, Pa., collided with a machine driven by Bernard Small of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. The clergyman suffered from shock and chest injuries and his wife had a fracture of the kneecap. Small escaped without injury but Sam Kleinman of Sault Ste. Marie was cut about the head and face and Lela Mintz of Sault Ste. Marie suffered from hock. They were driving with Small.

MAY EXTEND TO ONTARIO

Ottawa, July 16—(CP)—Air raid precautionary measures initiated in the eastern provinces last year may soon be extended to Ontario, Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Pensions and National Health advised the House of Commons Monday during consideration of the department estimates.

Representations had been received from Ontaria seeking the same federal assistance granted the Maritimes for air raid precautions and this would probably be granted, the Minister said.

Issue Of Naturalization Certificates Suspended

Ottawa, July 16 (CP)—Issue of naturalization certificates has been suspended pending a consideration of the whole subject, Hon. Pierre Casgrain, Secretary of State, advised the House of Commons Monday.

During consideration of the Minister's estimates Mr. Casgrain said he had not authorized the issue of any certificates since he took office last May, because of the disturbed conditions in Europe. The activities of "fifth columns" in the low countries, and the widespread effect of the war on many countries.

At first the Minister said he had ruled only against issuing certificates to aliens of enemy origin. This was extended to cover aliens from what may be termed war zones but this left such a wide scope that he has suspended all applications.

Applicants who succeed in having their cases pass a judge will be considered after the Minister has studied the whole situation and made his recommendation to his cabinet colleagues.

There was a mistaken impression abroad that when a judge satisfied himself on the fitness of an applicant to become a citizen the certificate was issued automatically, Mr. Casgrain said. The fact was that the Minister had complete discretion.

Mr. Casgrain said he was "not impressed" by protests from people who had been in Canada 25 or 30 years and only since the war decided that they desired to become citizens. There might be some cases in which applications were delayed because of misunderstanding but he did not believe any real hardship would result from delay at this time.

OBITUARY

LATE ADAH HAMILTON

The community was shocked and saddened on Sunday, July 7, by the passing of one of its most respected residents in the person of Adah Hamilton at the age of 55 years, who spent practically all her life in the vicinity. She was of such a kindly heart and noble character that she endeared herself to all who knew her. In religion she was a Baptist and took part in every department of its work when health permitted. For several years she had cared for an ailing mother who preceded her just seven months ago, making a double bereavement for the family who have the sympathy of a host of friends and neighbours. Her passing leaves a place that can never be filled. She was laid to rest in the family plot at Guffin's Cemetery. The service was held in Sidney Baptist Church and a comforting message was given by Mr. Smith, her pastor from First Corinthians 15.

She leaves to mourn beside a sorrowing father, five sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Robert Lake, Mrs. Nelson Stapley, Mrs. Roy Welbourn of Stirling, Mrs. John Wilson of Belleville, Mrs. Herbert Smith of Toronto, Thomas of Foxboro and George at home. Her floral tributes were many and beautiful.

WEIRD CONTEST WON BY DEMPSEY

Old Manassa Mauler Lands Sunday Punch and Wrestler Goes Down

Detroit, July 16—(AP)—In a weird combination of boxing and wrestling billed as a "boxing exhibition," Jack Dempsey added wrestler "Bull" Curry, former Hartford, Conn., policeman and one time boxer of sorts, to his list of fallen foes last night.

The former heavyweight champion knocked out Curry after one minute and five seconds of the second round with a left to the midsection—the only punch he was able to land during four minutes of wild disorder.

During the first round of the scheduled six-round battle neither man landed a punch. At the opening bell Curry ran from his corner and clamped a strangle hold on Dempsey and by the time Referee Sam Hennessy separated the two the round was half over. Then Curry grabbed Dempsey by the feet and they went out of the ring together into the lap of John J. Hettche, Chairman of the Michigan Boxing Commission.

Police and excited spectators helped break up that tangle, but not before the bell sounded ending the round. Curry attempted to put a head lock on Dempsey at the opening of the second, but at that moment Jack let loose with his left and Curry went down for the count.

Dempsey weighed in at 205 pounds. A crowd of 4,509 brought a net gate of $4,983.50, half of which went to Dempsey.

War of Destruction Continues as R.A.F. Bombers Raid German Objectives—Nazi Raiders Bomb English Coast Towns and Three German Machines Shot Down

Rome, July 17—(AP) — Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano remained in Rome today, without further indication as to when or if he will make a trip to Germany to confer with Nazi officials.

London, July 17 (CP).—Rumors of an imminent Italo-German peace offensive as a prelude to the launching of a major armed offensive against Britain percolated through to London from Rome and the Balkan capitals today.

The rumors were related to reports that Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, is visiting Berlin today or tomorrow to work out with Hitler the form of the peace ultimatum.

The fuehrer is described as anxious to lay before the world his pet plan for a new order in erupting Europe. Then, if Britain persisted in continuing the war, she would be charged solely with seeking to balk Hitler's program of "amelioration".

The comment of Nazi newspapers on Prime Minister Churchill's "no terms, no parley" speech on Sunday indicates a failure to comprehend the empire's solidarity of purpose.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Causes of rain! When clouds gather and it seems that an umbrella may be useful certain processes are going on in the atmosphere whereby the air is cooled to the dewpoint and water vapor is condensed into tiny droplets of cloud. So it is "cooling of the atmosphere" that causes rain. This cooling is brought about in at least six ways, but several may be acting at the same time. Air is cooled by: (1) radiating its heat, (2) the land becoming cooled by radiation, and then cooling the air next to it by conduction, (3) warm air blowing over a cooler surface, (4) by air moving from southerly to northerly latitudes, (5) mixing, and (6) by rising which is the most important process of all.

JAPAN EXPECTED TO LOOK TO POLICY OF EXPANSION

YONAI RESIGNS

Tokyo, July 17—(AP)— Prince Fumimaro Konoye, blue-blooded proponent of a totalitarian-like one-party political system for Japan, was ordered by Emperor Hirohito tonight to head a new government.

Under Prince Konoye, Japan is expected to march farther along the road to domestic totalitarianism and foreign expansion. He was called to the imperial palace to receive the Emperor's order.

Prince Konoye was chosen to succeed Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, whose cabinet resigned yesterday, apparently under army pressure for a more nationalistic Japan. The new Premier was expected to form a cabinet quickly.

With selection of the Premier agreed upon, speculation centred chiefly on the Foreign Ministry and upon foreign policy. It was thought Prince Konoye might serve both as Premier and Foreign Minister, as he did in 1937.

Japan was expected to turn to a radically altered foreign policy — one looking to Japanese expansion southward. The Provincial Press editorialized that the Yonai resignation was a natural development from rising public opinion that a

Stamps to be Used to Keep Tab on Payments Unemployment Insurance

Ottawa, July 17 (CP). — Stamps will be used to keep track of unemployment insurance payments, according to the bill for such insurance introduced into the Commons yesterday.

Employers will keep cards or books into which the stamps indicating contributions paid will be pasted. Upon the worker leaving his employment his card or book will become his possession as support for his application for insurance. Penalties are provided for illegal possession of cards or books.

The books will resemble war savings stamp books.

Men Required to Give Military and Farming Experience if Any and Women Farming Experience

Ottawa, July 17—(CP)—Organization is being completed for next month's national registration, the questions to be asked already having been formulated and printed. They will provide the Government with a fund of general information on Canadian residents of 16 years or more.

Special attention is given to male registrants regarding military experience and agricultural background if any. For women too, the questions require complete information on ability to work on farms.

The National War Services Department, under Hon. J. G. Gardiner, made known the list of questions last night, 24 hours after he tabled in the Commons the list of registrars and deputy registrars for all but five of Canada's 243 electoral districts together with the registration regulations.

Petain Gov't May Go To Paris This Weekend, Berliners Say

Berlin, July 17 (AP).—The Petain government probably will move to Paris from Vichy this week-end, informed Germans said today.

Leon Noel, a member of the German-French armistice commission at Wiesbaden, is said to be in Paris for preliminary negotiations with General Kurt von Biresen, German military commander there, following a conference with Marshal Petain in Vichy.

Problems to be solved involve telephone, telegraph and transportation systems and other public facilities.

Naval Auxiliary Vessel, Vandyck, Sunk By Air Attack

London, July 17.—(CP)—The Admiralty announced today the loss of the naval auxiliary vessel Vandyck sunk by air attack off the coast of Norway June 10. It said two officers and five ratings were killed and 29 officers and 132 ratings made prisoners of war.

The Vandyck was a 13,241-ton liner of the Lamport and Holt Line before the war.

The Admiralty statement said:—

"H.M.S. Vandyck (Capt. G. F. W. Wilson R.N.) was sunk by air attack off the coast of Norway on June 10, 1940, when employed as a naval auxiliary.

"Two officers and five ratings were killed, and 29 officers and 132 ratings are prisoners of war.

"Next of kin have all now been informed. The delay in announcing the loss is due to difficulty in obtaining information regarding the prisoners of war for communication to next of kin".

Fewer Than Five Per Cent Earners In Canada Earn Over $2,000 Year

Ottawa, July 17 (CP).—Less than five per cent of the wage earning classes of Canada earn more than $2,000 a year and this was a major factor in fixing that amount as the limit to compulsory insurance in the unemployment insurance bill introduced into the commons yesterday, officials explained today.

The limit in the United States is $3,000 a year. In the United Kingdom it is set at £250, approximately $1,980, according to information here.

French Gov't at Vichy 'Goldfish Bowl' Regime, All Done in Public View

By ROY PORTER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, July 17 (via Berlin)—(AP).—France's new government at Vichy is operating as a "goldfish bowl" regime in which everything is done in public view.

For example, Vice-Premier Pierre Laval has made a habit of handing out communiques personally in the lobby of the Hotel De Parc, where the principal government offices are located.

A corner of the hotel lounge has been reserved for Premier Philippe Petain. There he receives all visitors.

Other ministers of the Petain government, particularly Foreign Minister Paul Baudoin, drift about the lobby talking with politicians, visitors and newspapermen.

An incident which I observed on a recent trip to Vichy emphasized the "goldfish bowl" aspect of the administration.

The night after the national assembly had voted to give Petain power to write a new constitution those of us who were sitting in the lounge observed a commotion in the lobby.

Laval and several others were arguing heatedly. It turned out that copies of new decrees to be published in the official journay were missing.

After a search the documents were found, and Laval, clutching them firmly, hurried out to have them signed by Albert Lebrun, still nominally president.

Ten minutes later Laval returned, still carrying the papers. He stalked across the lounge to Petain's corner. He produced a fountain pen and, while about 100 persons watched, the marshal countersigned the assembly's orders.

Everyone knew then the old constitution had been abrogated.

"On Monday our bombers carried out a successful raid on Moyale, when a number of direct hits were obtained.

"Enemy aircraft yesterday bombed Wapir. No casualties were reported and no damage was caused".

1,644,988 Jap Casualties in War Chinese Declare

Hong Kong, July 17—(AP)—Chinese military headquarters declared today three years of warfare had cost Japan 1,644,988 men killed, wounded or dead as a result of disease. Tokyo recently admitted that 85,800 Japanese had been killed in the war with China and claimed China's losses totalled 3,000,000 men, of whom more than half were said to have been killed in battle.

NIXON TO STUDY INSURANCE PLAN

Is Not Prepared Yet to Say Whether $2,000 Salary Limit is Entirely Satisfactory

Toronto, July 17.—(CP)—Acting Premier Harry Nixon today endorsed the Federal Government's plan for unemployment insurance to include those drawing less than $2,000 a year, but he was not prepared to say whether the $2,000 salary limit was entirely satisfactory until he had studied further details of the plan.

"We have always been strongly in favor of unemployment insurance", Mr. Nixon explained. "At one time we planed to go ahead without Ottawa's assistance, but we then agreed to join in when the government sought an amendment to the British North America Act to provide for the measure".

Hon. Norman Hipel, Minister of Labor, said he had advocated unemployment insurance for over ten years. As to the limit, Mr. Hipel said it was debatable point whether it should go to $3,000 on order to follow a principle of insurance that the strong help the weak

Chicago, July 17 — (AP)— The clamor of "we want Roosevelt now" swept a third term draft movement forward today in a boisterous reply from Democratic National convention delegates to President Roosevelt's message that he had "no wish to be a candidate".

So rapid was its sweep that directors of the campaign to enlist Mr. Roosevelt for another term predicted the convention would get the nomination for him before tonight's session ends.

What the President would do then remained to be seen. But all the chief new deal lieutenants on the scene predicted that he would accept.

One Person Killed in Alexandria Area in One Hour Raid

Alexandria, Egypt, July 17—(AP)—One person was killed and two were injured last night in an Italian air attack on the Alexandria area. The raid, beginning at 10.30 p.m., lasted about one hour.

The casualties were announced in a British naval communique but the extent of damage was not given.

Blockade Brings Nazi Outcry

Berlin, July 17 (CP).—The tightening British blockade brought a new outcry from Germany today as Nazi sources declared that if Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, means what he says about keeping world trade lanes open he must logically condemn the blockade against Germany and Italy.

(Mr. Hull declared yesterday, in comment on the proposed closing of the Burma road by Great Britain—a move that would favor Japan's oriental campaign—that the United States "has a legitimate interest in the keeping open of arteries of commerce in every part of the world.")

The British blockade, the Germans held, is in violation of the principle of freedom of the seas.

Indications Are Progress of Bill Through Senate Will be Slow — Amendment to B.N.A. Act Allows Act to be Introduced Into Parliament

By CARL REINKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 17—(CP) —Unless something "wholly unforeseen" arises, Canada will have in force by the end of the parliamentary session a contributory unemployment insurance act embodying the best features of the British and American schemes.

Backed by the declared intent of the government to have it become law this session, the bill was introduced in the House of Commons last night. It provides for a graded rather than flat system of contributions and benefits. Employers and employees will contribute about equally and the government will add one-fifth of their total, as well as assuming administration costs.

TROOPS USED TO HALT TROUBLE

Disturbance Occurs Outside London, Ont., Refreshment Bar Between Soldiers and Civilians

London, Ont., July 17 (CP). — Troops were brought into action here last night to halt trouble between soldiers and civilians.

A near riot occurred outside a refreshment bar at Dundas and Adelaide streets, in the East London district. Only minor injuries resulted and a number of soldiers were reported placed under military arrest. City police stated the matter was handled by the military authorities and no charges were laid.

When the trouble call reached Queen's Park Camp, a truckload of armed soldiers was rushed to the scene. For more than an hour, the troops in battle dress and trench helmets, and carrying rifles, stood guard over two banks at the intersection and a brewery warehouse. However, no property damage occurred.

Cause of the fight between uniformed men and civilians was not determined. It was the most serious outbreak since soldiers raided the Hollywood Dine and Dance Club several months ago.

Military authorities indicated today that some refreshment bars which have small dance floors are likely to be placed out of bounds to troops.

Boston, July 17.—(AP)—A New York University doctor said today that average consumption of alcohol by the American people might render inadequate the average Amerian diet, which he termed "already dangerously low in the B vitamins".

Declaring that addition of vitamin-free alcohol to an adequate diet furnishes calories that diminish the vitamin-calory ratio necessary to prevent nutritional deficiency disease, Dr. Norman Jolliffe said that ordinary imbibing by this country's "drinking population" could reduce the margin of safety in the B vitamins by as much as 50 per cent.

And this, he said, "is a factor not to be neglected by nutritionists, physicians, or public health authorities".

Writing in the quarterly journal of studies on alcohol, a new publication issued by a national research council on problems of alcohol, Jolliffe asserted:—

"Our dietary, without alcohol calories, already provides such a small margin of safety in the B vitamins that when any of the numerous factors that increase the vitamin requirement of the individual occur clinical avitaminosis (deficiency in vitamins) is likely to develop."

SPAIN SEVERS RELATIONS WITH CHILEAN GOV'T

Sequel to More Than Year of Dispute Following Spanish Civil War

STRAINED RELATIONS

Santiago, Chile, July 17 (AP).—Spain has severed diplomatic relations with Chile after more than a year of dispute stemming from the Spanish civil war.

Relations between Chile's popular front government and the Spanish nationalist government of General Francisco Franco had been strained over Chile's refusal to surrender a group of Spanish republican refu-

A high Chilean official, apprised of the Spanish action last night, said he could scarcely believe the "rude and absurd news" but added the government would "take suitable measures to meet such an unusual and incomprehensible attitude".

(In Madrid, the Spanish foreign ministry declared it broke off relations because the Chilean government had permitted an anti-nationalist campaign which had "reached intolerable limits".

(Exchange Telegraph News Agency reported that Spain accused Chile of helping Spanish Communist elements to escape from Spain and supporting a campaign of insults against Franco's government and the nation.)

A few weeks after Chile recognized the victorious Franco government of Spain, April 5, 1939, Nationalist troops sought custody of seventeen Republican refugees in the Chilean Embassy in Madrid on criminal charges.

Chile declined to recognize the nationalist view that they were criminals and maintained she had the right to grant them political asylum and to take them out of Spain.

Ultimately Franco permitted four of the refugees to proceed to the French border, but thirteen remained in the embassy.

'Mr.', 'Mrs.', 'Miss' Titles Abolished in 3 Baltic States

Riga, Latvia, July 17—(AP) — Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania today abolished "Mr." "Mrs." and "Miss" as titles and decreed that henceforth the term of address for all will be "Citizen." The decrees were another step in the Baltic States' rush toward a Soviet pattern of life. No one is entitled to a title, anyway, said a Latvian announcement.

Great Onslaught If it Comes 'Will Fail'—Sinclair

London, July 17 —(CP)— A "great onslaught" of German forces on Britain by land, sea and air simultaneously may come "within the next month" and if it comes "it will fail," Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair said in a broadcast tonight.

He declared Great Britain is "certain" to have to withstand an air attack "many times greater than any which the enemy has yet launched."

SAVE YOUR WASTE!

Bags, blankets and burlap for bullets. Waste for war material. Metals of all kinds for mechanized equipment. Tinfoil for the "Tommies." In fact all kinds of scrap will be called upon to do its share in the country's war effort.

Don't throw that old suit, mattress, wrapping paper, cartons, in fact any kind of materials that has no further material use, away.

For the cast-off clothing and other materials is being conscripted into the great army of war efforts.

Within the next few weeks the Girl Guide Troops of Belleville will inaugurate a schedule of collections that will cover the entire city. They will call upon householders regardless of creed or nationality in an appeal to salvage all disused materials, metals ,rubber, rags, that in the immediate future will be used in an important war effort.

They ask you to start now and save magazines, boxes, cartons, bags, wrapping paper, all kinds of clean or dirty rags, burlap, twine, carpets, canvas, etc. Metals such as copper, brass, zinc, lead, aluminum, cast iron, stove lids, pieces of stoves, in fact any old iron, steel, and wrought iron, are vital necessities in the drive for increased ingredients for war materials.

Rubber of all descriptions, tinfoil from cigarette packages, tea, chocolate boxes, tooth paste and shaving cream tubes, are also to be enlisted in the brigade of material necessities. Electric light bulbs need not be thrown away. Simply break the class and include the brass collars in the collections.

Tons and tons of this waste is being thrown in city garbage dumps every week. The Thrift Campaign for Salvage Waste has started now and the Girl Guides of Belleville appeal to an ever-generous public to conserve all this material for the country's needs.

There is no cost, or monies asked to be expended. Simply think of the Thrift Campaign when you open that package of cigarettes, tea or chocolates, and place the tinfoil or lead in a container. Don't throw those old clothes or rags away. Save everything. It might be valuable to your country.

But the Girl Guides ask one favor. When packing your salvage waste, try as much as possible to segregate the different articles. That is, put rags, clothing, bags, mattresses or things of a similar nature in one carton. Place your magazines, wrapping paper and materials of this nature in another. It will save a lot of time and labour on the part of others.

Within a few weeks, and the public will be notified in plenty of time, Girl Guides will call at your home and collect whatever you have salvaged. Later they will call on schedule, and there will be no delay.

In other parts of the Dominion, drives for "Victory Bags" have already met with the generous response of citizens. Belleville can and will do likewise.

Start your "Victory Bags" today and save your waste material.

Bags mean bullets. Plenty of them mean planes. And planes means victory for Britain.

Conserve your waste, and help the gallant lads "over there" on land and sea and air, to remove once and for all the Hun menace that is today hammering at Britain's gates.

The Ontario Intelligencer will announce through its columns the date of the first collection, to be undertaken by the gallant little lassies in the famous blue of the Girl Guides of Canada.

CHIMNEY SWIFTS POWER-DIVERS

Birds in Evenings Dart With Lightninglike Speed but in Silence

This business of power-diving may be new to modern warfare and the coined phrase of aviation but actually it's an old habit of the chimney swift and swallow practised in the eventide.

Any evening along about dusk these summer evenings one can see these chimney swifts and swallows diving and twisting in power dives out in the vicinity of the old Corby Distillery plant. Large flocks of these feathered friends can clearly be seen high in the heavens, when suddenly they will dive at lightning-like speed employing their wings in flight to increase their speed towards their ultimate haven, nest and home.

The tranquility and quietness which these graceful birds employ in their power dives are not only more intriguing, but they do not employ the shrieking sirens and the sounds of powerful motors that today have been employed in war-torn Europe by the Nazis.

These chimney swifts or swallows nest in old buildings, long since deserted and hundreds of nests can be found, but only after a perilous search. Just what these birds are employed at all day really does not matter, but strangely enough man never follows their flight so intently until eventide, when these small birds stage their diving moves that have been developed for centuries as a last gesture of the departing day. They seem to dive straight into the side of an abandoned chimney or building and then disappear as if by magic.

EDWARD W. LLOYD DIES IN CHICAGO

Native of Belleville Was Veteran Executive of Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago

Word has just been received of the passing of Edward W. Lloyd after a short illness in his home in Evanston, Illinois. Mr. Lloyd was born in Belleville, on Alexander Street, son of Mr. Lloyd one of the founders of the Walker Foundry Co. Like many other Belleville boys he went to Chicago just prior to the World's Fair and secured employment in the first Edison Electric Light Plant, when electricity was in its infancy and few people recognized its great possibilities. Mr. Lloyd grew up with this company, became Superintendent of power construction, and in 1926 Vice-President of Commonwealth Edison Company of Chicago. He became one of the foremost electrical engineers of the United States. He was elected to the presidency of the Electric Light Association of the U. S. A. He was a member of the Chicago Athletic Association and organizer and first president of the Evanston Golf Club.

Mr. Lloyd was chairman of the electric display which played such a great part of the great Chicago World's Fair of 1933-34, and had the honor of opening this section of the great exhibition.

Mr. Lloyd always retained an interest in Belleville and his old boyhood friends. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Alice Lloyd, and a son, Allen. Funeral services were held in the Fourth Presbyterian Church at Evanston.

Police Blotter

Another bicycle was reported stolen in Belleville yesterday when Stanley Finn, Station Road, informed police he had parked his bike at the upper end of the main street, but upon his return the bicycle was gone.

Chief Kidd added today, that in the majority of such cases reported this season the stolen bicycles had been recovered by the police after being abandoned by joy riders.

P.C. Evans apprehended three local youths in the act of consuming intoxicants at the rear of a downtown business premises shortly after 1.15 a.m. today. The boys' names were obtained and they were permitted to return to their local homes pending further investigations.

Constable Evans also apprehended a member of the R.C.A.F. and took the Flyer into custody after a hectic chase in the police cruiser. The Aircraftsman was found to be in possession of a portion of a bottle of intoxicants, but as he was on leave the Airman was later given into the custody of the R.C.A.F. authorities. A woman was also found wandering about the streets early this morning and after being detained at the police station, Chief Kidd released her this morning after satisfying questioning.

Only three transients sought shelter at the police station last night, the weather being presumably suitable for out-of-doors slumber these fine July nights.

SUMMER SCHOOL, UNITED CHURCH AT OAK LAKE

Prepares Leaders in Youth Training for Work in the Church

FINE RECREATION

Stirling, July 17—Carrying on the great work set in motion several years ago under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte United Church Conference, young people gathered at the famous Oak Lake summer camp and leadership training summer school, which opened on Saturday, July 13th. Held each year under a council of directors appointed by the Bay of Quinte Conference on the excellent United Church property at Oak Lake, this fine camp has become widely known for its value in preparing leaders in youth training throughout the church. In addition to a splendid program of instructive course it offers periods of wholesome recreation which combines a holiday with training. Sunset vesper services and campfire meetings add to the general interest of the outing to which many young people look forward anxiously each year.

The daily programme as outlined below reveals the complete manner in which the project is organized. Apart from the religious standpoint it offers much to the social side of life and Christian young people are given the opportunity of meeting others with interest the same as their own and the general trend is of such constructive nature, that many church officials have termed it "the finest project ever undertaken by the conference; its results cannot adequately be measured but will be felt by every church and young people's group represented after the students return to their homes."

Daily Routine Varied

According to the carefully planned schedule of daily activity, every phase of life is given a chance of development. Before the breakfast gong sounds all registered members enjoy a swim in the cool waters of Oak Lake. An impressive worship period directly after breakfast is conducted by Rev. C. H. Ferguson, President. This is followed by a series of study group meetings on helpful topics and directed by fully qualified leaders. "How to Use the Bible" is the subject dealt with by Rev. Walter Tristram; Rev. Roy Rickard leads in the subject "Teaching as Christ Taught." "Youth Action in Breaking Down Barriers" is the subject of discussion under the leadership of Rev. S. A. Delve. Then follows a period of varied recreation. Morning mission study is directed by Rev. George Affleck. Method study groups are led by Rev. Fulton Vanderburgh, Rev. George Kelly and Rev. Chas. McLellan. Afternoons are spent in rest periods, organized games and swimming. Vesper services and evening campfire meeting with novel programme and impressive sunset worship services are part of the schedule that is completed before lights are dimmed and the camp is quiet for the night.

Such is the daily programme of the health giving young people's camp that features fine Christian fellowship, wholesome recreation, entertaining social programmes and camp council.

Officers for 1940

Officers directing activities for 1940 include Rev. C. H. Ferguson, Bethany, President; Rev. Chas. McLellan, Almonte, Vice-President; Miss Clara Beer, Bethany, Secretary; Miss Thelma Gordon, Grafton, Registrar; Rev. W. J. H. Smyth, Port Perry, Dean; Mrs. F. B. Elliott, Dean of Women; Rev. R. M. Patterson, Omemee, Business Manager; Mrs. J. J. Currie, Cook.

Campers Attend Stirling Church

For the first Sunday in camp the entire membership motored to Stirling to attend the union service held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and conducted by Rev. A. M. Laverty of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling. With the members of the two Stirling congregations united and augmented by some sixty campers, the church was filled to the doors. Mr. G. L. Clute, organist of St. Paul's United Church presided and the organ and a union choir led the congregational singing. Special music included a vocal duet by Wm. Reynolds and Arthur Duncan. A most interesting message was delivered by the minister, who spoke on the subject "Heroic Christ." This was Rev. Laverty's first appearance in St. Andrew's Church since coming to Stirling two weeks ago.

Lakeside Service Enjoyed

A mass open air meeting at Oak Lake under the direction of the executive of the summer school camp was enjoyed in the evening. The service was conducted by Rev. Ferguson assisted by Rev. W. J. H. Smyth and the speaker was Rev. Geo. Affleck, who spoke on the subject "Missionary Need of Today," choosing as his text "As the Father sent Me so send I you." Special music was provided by the Sarles Instrumental Trio of Peterborough and vocal duets by Miss Loretta Macdougall and Orm Benson. A large number of campers and residents from all parts of the district attended the service.

ONTARIO'S DAIRY QUEEN CROWNED AT CHEESE SHOW

Contest Open Only to Wives and Daughters of Cheesemakers and Patrons in Province

VALUABLE AWARDS

Stirling, July 17 (Special) — The Empire Cheese Exhibition, which during the past few years has brought worldwide fame to the City of Belleville as the leading centre of the world's cheese industry will have a feature for its 1940 display, that will be of special interest to the ladies. A beauty contest for the purpose of selecting "The Dairy Queen of Ontario." The capable executive committee of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, who sponsor the Fair have already given Belleville city worldwide publicity in the past efforts. For in the British Isles at the present time the name of Belleville is immediately associated with the Empire's best cheese. Discriminating shoppers in England ask for Belleville cheese because of the fame attached to this great dairy exhibition. Much credit is due the executive committee for their foresight in sponsoring project of advertising value and this Beauty contest is looked upon as one of the biggest things ever undertaken.

Only Open to Cheese Industry

After carefully studying the methods adopted by other cities in the promotion of beauty contests, those in charge feel, that city girls have been given the advantage long enough and decided to stage one that would give the rural beauty a real break. This contest will be open only to the wives and daughters of cheesemakers and cheese factory patrons in the province of Ontario and the winner will be declared the Dairy Queen of Ontario. She will be completely costumed at the expense of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, and receive an all expense trip to the Thirteenth Annual Cheese Makers' Convention held in Belleville Dec. 2, 3, 4, 1940. The winners will receive a cabinet of silver and a wealth of opportunity to capitalize upon her beauty as representing Ontario in further contests.

Entry Blanks Available

Entry blanks for the competition are now available and with them a set of rules and regulations set forth by the committee. The entrants must be 18 years of age or over. Photographs submitted must be taken within three months of the closing date of entry, certified by photographer responsible, and must be a studio of head and shoulder type. If necessary, a personal interview may be called to decide the final award.

So with the fame of the great Empire Cheese and Dairy Exhibition will go the fame of some Ontario beauty to all parts of the world. These facts were revealed by J. Irwin well known executive of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association last night at a meeting of cheesemakers held in the newly erected cheese factory at Stirling, who pictured the project as one of the biggest publicity ventures ever undertaken by the organization.

NEWLY COMPLETED CHEESE FACTORY OPENS OFFICIALLY

Factory Near Stirling Contains Modern Cooling System and All Latest Improvements

BUILDERS PRAISED

Stirling, July 17 — (Special) — Cheesemakers representing three association groups of the Centre Hastings Cheesemakers' Association gathered for a meeting last night held in the newly completed factory on the Frankford road just south of Stirling. The factory, "The Shamrock," operated by Harry McAvoy, was recently rebuilt and its new plant including a modern mechanized cooling room was observed and admired by the visiting cheesemakers. The first building, erected in 1884, was found by the company to be inadequate for modern production and its replacement has recently been completed. Messrs. J. N. West and Morris Rose shared honors as masters of ceremony for the evening and constructive addresses were delivered by Chief Dairy Instructor H. Sandwith of Kingston, Dairy Instructor Owen McAvoy of Madoc District, Dairy Instructor J. Murray of Campbellford and George Pollard, Stirling. Mr. James Irwin, cheese grader of Belleville, also spoke briefly.

H. Sandwith

Mr. H. Sandwith, Chief Dairy Instructor of Eastern Ontario, was the main speaker of the evening. He offered congratulation to the group represented for the excellent organization work and also to the local company for the fine plant they had installed in the splendid new factory. "In all parts of the province there still exists inadequate old factories that are a disgrace to the industry," he declared. "But with each venture such as the one recently completed here they are becoming less in number. With their disappearance there is an increase in the output of higher grade cheese."

Due largely to excellent conditions in weather the achievements of the present season are of the very highest standard from every standpoint and comparative figures of the present season and last year reveal a great reduction in the production of lower grade cheese and an increase in 93's and 94's. This reduction is general and must not be looked upon with too much pride until the more difficult days of the season have passed. But the decrease in undergrade cheese for the first two weeks of July 1940 as compared to 1939 is more than fifty per cent. In 1939 for the first two weeks of July 10,246 boxes of cheese were counted defective throughout the province and in the same period this year there were only 2,100 of that type. But many of these faults could be remedied by the makers for the defects were of the type over which he has definite control. From now on there will be more seasonal defects in flavor and the makers will have a much harder task for the remaining portion of the season, declared the speaker, who also conducted a brief question period at the close of his address.

Value of Packing Discussed

Mr. J. L. Irwin of Belleville, addressed the gathering on the value of packing. "A maker can ruin excellent work in the cheese industry by displaying carelessness in packing the product for shipment and the grader must cut him down," said Mr. Irwin. "With the increased interest of companies in temperature control of cooling rooms, etc., this district will certainly have an increase in the output of 94 score cheese," he stated. At the 1940 exhibition some of the prizes will stay where they are. We are gradually acquiring the facilities to compete with the exhibitors from Western Ontario.

Other Speakers

Other speakers who spoke briefly during the evening were Mr. George Pollard of Stirling and Mr. Finnigan of Marmora. A motion of thanks was extended to Larry McAvoy for the hospitality displayed in calling his fellow cheesemakers to visit his new plant. Luncheon consisting of sandwiches, cake and ice cream was served, climaxing a very instructive evening and an enjoyable social period.

THEATRE NIGHT OVER OBJECTIVE

More Than Million Dollars Will be Shown Raised When All 700 Theatres Report

By The Canadian Press

The Canadian Motion Picture Industry's win-the-war campaign was headed today for a swing over the top in a flutter of war savings stamps.

With many theatres across Canada yet to report, unofficial estimates placed at $650,000 the value of stamps and certificates sold for the special "movie night" performances last Monday.

It is expected that when all the 700 co-operative movie theatres have reported the $1,000,000 objective will be surpassed.

Admission to the theatres called for the purchase of at least two 25-cent stamps which became the property of the patron. Theatre owners and film distributors donated their services and facilities.

Total purchases for the one night are expected to better the figure the Dominion government hoped to pour into the Treasury in a week. Finance Minister Ilsley said at an Ottawa theatre Monday night that since the stamps and certificates were issued five weeks ago, weekly sales had averaged $2,000,000—twice the amount Ottawa expected.

Incomplete returns place Ontario at the top of the movie night list with sales of more than $300,000. Toronto's share was $100,000; Ottawa reported $17,000.

Other provinces reported these incomplete estimates:

Prince Edward Island $750; Nova Scotia $60,000; New Brunswick $28,000; Quebec $60,000; Manitoba 50,000; Saskatchewan $30,000; Alberta $40,000; British Columbia $60,000.

Begin to String Power Cable

The stringing of the balance of the power cable on the new high-tension power line recently erected between Trenton and Kingston was started by hydro employees early this week. The Kingston-Napanee section of the line was completed a few weeks ago but the stringing of the cable on the western end of the had been delayed pending the moving of the employees' camp from the Napanee district into this community.

Existing hydro lines running through the rural district has made it necessary to erect temporary poles with long cross arms where the new power cable will cross the existing lines. These cross arms prevent the cable that is being strung from touching the live primary wires on rural lines and make it unnecessary to cut the power which would inconvenience industrial and domestic users of hydro.

MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY DOES ITS BIT

The power of the motion pictures' appeal was demonstrated in no uncertain manner on Monday night on the occasion of the "one night stand" of Canadian moviedom to aid the sale of war savings stamps. The theatres were crowded, the sale of stamps ran into many thousands upon thousands of dollars across Canada. These are the proofs.

Most important is the fact that the effect of this campaign does not pass in a few hours. It will last as long as war stamps are sold. The motion picture industry has in this helped to make the public war stamp conscious.

The best satisfaction for the theatres which put on the entire program at their own expense with the co-operation of local and stage talent all giving services gratis is that the public demonstrated their complete interest in the war effort of the Dominion to help the Mother Country triumph over the foe.

The motion picture is one of the greatest publicity agencies of all time, the full force of which can be realized only in such a condition as today.

Canada owes a debt to the organization of the motion picture industry and to the tireless managers who have given such a demonstration of interest in the war effort as they have done.

R. A. F. HAS BETTER PILOTS, BETTER MACHINES

"Better pilots and better machines" is the explanation of the amazing results of the Royal Air Force in the view of British and neutral experts says Drew Middleton, Associated Press writer.

Outnumbered by the German force they have performed deeds of daring and won victories which will never be forgotten.

For nearly eleven months this great saga of the deeds of the young British airmen has been in the writing and will go on to the end of the war, with, it is confidently expected, the victories being more and more marked as the increase in British planes will lead to British preponderance in the air.

A great air story has been written by the valiant, stalwart young men of the Royal Air Force, a great brotherhood.

Middleton adds that the British have also had better training. It is all in the way of British thoroughness for nothing but the best in training counts, though the period of training has been cut under war conditions. The training is individual not mass training such as is so marked in the German system. Individual training will go far to account for the supremacy of the British flier.

A UNITED NATION

There is one thing about the British Prime Minister. He does not minimize the risks and possibilities while he tells the truth about the strength of Britain. Only a Churchill could bring to the people that unity and completeness of preparation for the worst the enemy could possibly hurl at them.

Now in spite of the realization of the strength and the relentless character of the foe, he can bring cheer to the British people as they hear this great man of many talents, the man who bears on his shoulders the saving of democracy and liberty in the world, talk calmly as he did on Sunday last.

As Mr. Churchill is a source of strength to the British people, even in knowing that in him rests the power that will crush the upstart Hitler who has mad, destructive ideas in his brain as to society and racialism, so the British people are the source of Churchill's strength — he knows them for he is one of them, he knows what they will do in defence of their home and fireside and under the inspiration of the noblest of ideals, the preservation of the rights of nation and empire and of the people of other nations to freedom of thought, of action, of political life. He knows he can depend on them. They will prove true and that means victory.

And Mr. Churchill also knows the psychology of the Hun, with nazi trickery, unscrupulousness, lack of faith and good will, enmity to freedom. So the Prime Minister will not permit the British people to relax their vigilance if the enemy should fly a new kite and try a new "game" of suspense and waiting on a so-called peace move.

Mr. Churchill came into supreme office in the serious days about the time of the break at Sedan and has passed through the Battle of Flanders and the Battle of France. He has girded his nation and empire for the Battle of Britain in which it will give a noble account of itself. There will be no letup in British guard and care for no matter how long Hitler waits to move against Britain, the Briton will stand ready.

Lady And Parachutist

(New York Times)

German parachute invaders had better be careful. A landing in England involves risks more serious than a hail of lead from British guns. Mrs. Daisy Cardwell, 45-year-old wife of a British farmer, found a Nazi parachutist in her garden the other day, fallen from a disabled plane. She promptly proved that there is a deadlier way of handling these swaggering fellows than firing on them. "I put on my fiercest frown and walked up to the man," said Mrs. Cardwell. "I could see he was terrified. He was green." He was in fact so frightened that he handed Mrs. Cardwell his pistol, and let her march him off to the nearest British troops.

This, we like to think, is the spirit of embattled British Womanhood. King George has just recognized it by awarding a medal to Mrs. Cardwell. We have caught glimpses of that spirit in those terrifying uniforms the British have given their women auxiliaries. We have seen it is the pictures, in those grim expressions they wear when they are drilling for war duties. Now we know that the British have a secret weapon; if one Englishwoman's frown can disarm a parachute trooper, it should make the Nazis beware. What chance will any German invasion have if there are millions of Mrs.

Lawn Care

(Hamilton Spectator)

Experts still argue over what is the best height at which to cut the grass, some preferring a short and frequent mowing, while others are all for "cutting it long" because this prevents burning and makes it easier to keep a lawn green.

To home owners who cut their own grass and spend many hours during the summer lugging a heavy length of hose about the lawn, the question is an important one. Through their own observation, many of them have settled the matter to their satisfaction by agreeing with those experts who prefer the long cut, which is generally admitted to be about one and a quarter inches.

Mowing at shorter lengths is believed to reduce root growth and makes the sod more susceptible to drought during the warmer months It also stimulates the growth of crab-grass and other summer grasses, which start from seed, and helps them to become established thus crowding out the finer grasses which make the lawn. When grass is cut at the ideal height of one and a quarter inches, the ground surface is left well covered and weed seedlings have much less chance of making growth.

Another matter on which opinion differs has to do with lawn clippings. Some persons favour these being caught in a grass-catcher throughout the mowing season; others let them lie where they fall, believing that the clippings serve as a good mulch and act as a feeder. If the cuttings are so thick that they form a mat, then they should not be left on the lawn, as they make for mildew and retard growth, experts say. But after mid-June, by which time the peak period of growth has usually passed removal of the cuttings is seldom necessary.

Mowing of the grass should be often enough to prevent the formation of seed heads, and after the latter part of June once a week or even ten days will usually suffice No harm is likely to come from a more frequent mowing, provided the cut is not too short. Most lawnmowers can be quickly adjusted to any desired height, and once this has been adapted to the best results much time otherwise spent at watering may be saved.

Research Work Should be Encouraged

I learned recently that an acquaintance, a research worker, had been left a legacy by a very wealthy man as a tribute to his patient laboratory work. I do not know the amount, nor do I think my acquaintance was in any real need of the money, but the fact that his work was recognized in this way must be gratifying to him and to all other research workers

When Dr. Bantng was given his knighthood I knew that if his own wishes were to guide him he would have declined the knighthood and prefer to be called by his first name only. As friends congratulated him he told them he hoped they realized that he felt that it was research work that was being honored not Fred Banting.

I often feel that many of us forget these patient workers who aim for a goal that may be many years in the reaching or which may never be reached.

The picture, 'The Magic Bullet' showing the long search by Dr. Erlich for a cure for that terrible scourge, syphilis, well illustrates the persistence and patience of research workers.

Dr. Erlich prepared 605 synthetic arsenic combinations before, at the 606th experiment, he produced Salvarsan, and 308 more before Neo-salvarsan (914) came into being.

When we think of all the discoveries which have been, and are, contributing to the health, happiness, and safety of mankind, it would seem only fair that even more of our wealthy men who leave money for educational institutions should ear mark a certain amount or percentage to be devoted entirely to research work. Especially to research work which has for its object the relief of suffering and the strengthening of man's resistance to disease. It will mean that just as salvarsan conquers syphilis, liver and liver extract controls pernicious anemia and insulin prevents deaths from diabetes, so newer discoveries will come to light which will conquer or control diseases which are at present incurable or beyond control.

New Method Of Wood Preservation

(Canada Lumberman)

There have been many attempts to find a treatment for wood which would render it impervious to the ravages of disease and insects. Painting is the most elementary of these measures, but since it is merely a surface treatment it does not affect the capacity of the wood to absorb moisture, with the result that fungi infections may attack painted woods. The present-day technique now involves the impregnation of the wood by mechanical means with creosote or various salt solutions.

However, there has come to the fore in recent months a new preparation with which to impregnate wood and at the present, it seems to offer considerable promise. Developed by the Boliden Mining Company of Stockholm, Sweden, the new impregnation is composed of certain arsenic compounds which the mining company produce in great quantities as a by-product.

The great problem has been to find a solution which will retain its poisonous effect on bacteria but at the same time, become harmless to human beings when it is once in the wood. It is claimed that this new preparation fulfills these specifications entirely and in a novel manner. In the Swedish process, after the salts have entered the wood a chemical process takes place with the co-operation of certain easily oxidised substances in the wood itself. The final result of this chemical shuffle is the production of zinc arsenate and chromic arsenate which become firmly imbedded in the wood and constitute an effective defense against the attacks of decay or insects, at the same time being harmless to human beings and the higher forms of life.

Arsenic-impregnated timber is said to retain all of its mechanical qualities, and it is interesting to note that the treated wood is much more difficult to ignite than wood in its natural state. The treated wood takes on a pale green-brown color which is strong enough to render painting unnecessary where it is not desired. In regard to cost, the arsenic method compares favorably with methods now in active use and in Scandinavian countries it is being used increasingly for outdoor construction.

For most of the experiments pine has been used which reacts very well. It has been discovered, however, that spruce is very difficult to treat, which means that until further research suggests a method for impregnation of spruce, it will have to remain on the "black list" as far as this particular method is concerned.

Trends In Farming In United States

(New York Times)

Significant changes in farm activity and in food habits in the United States are reflected in the statistics of agricultural output for 1939, published by the Department of Agriculture. These statistics are presented in the form of index numbers for the different important branches of farm production, extending as far back as 1919. Total farm output last year is reported to have been the highest for any year, except 1937, since the World War. During the three years from 1937 to 1939, indeed, production was the highest for any three-year period on record.

More important, however, than the rising trend in total farm output—which is more or less in line with the nation's increasing population—is the difference between the various groups of products. The shift of the American public away from the traditional staples toward a more diversified diet is particularly apparent in the increase of more than 130 per cent in the output of truck crops over the last twenty years. No less significant, if less striking, is the expansion of more than 50 per cent in fruit and vegetable production — especially the citrus fruits—and in both dairy and poultry products. Clearly, the depression, even if it may have retarded, could not prevent a dietary change generally regarded as beneficial.

The production of meat animals, on the contrary, has little more than held its ground during the past two decades; that of the grains is conspicuously less than in 1919, while the trend of cotton production has been generally downward over the past decade or so. It is true that the immediate cause for much of the decline in the last two groups has been the Government's crop restriction program, but this program itself is only the product of lost markets and falling demand, traceable for the most part to declining consumption at home or shrinking export markets. From the point of view of American agriculture as a whole the picture is one of a gradual redirection of national effort from the older and more easily cultivated crops to the much more intensive and specialized farming of the dairyman, truck gardener and fruit grower.

New British Timber Control Board

Canadian Lumberman

The control of timber utilization in the United Kingdom has been placed in the hands of a board of four members. Heretofore, since the beginning of the war the regulation of lumber supplies has been the responsibility of a timber controller operating as an official of the Department of Supply. Under the new arrangement the timber controller becomes a member of the board, which has been designated the Timber Control Board.

The appointment of this board was announced by Herbert Morrison, the British Minister of Supply who stated that he appointed a Timber Control Board "which, subject to the Minister, will be responsible for all questions relating to timber supplies and production."

The chairman of the Board is George Dallas, J. P., and the other members are Major A. I. Harris, the timber controller, and Sir Roy Robinson, chairman of the Forestry Commission. A representative of the Mines Department will be added for the consideration of any questions relating to mining timber.

The secretary of the Board is R. Meiggs, Ministry of Supply, Adelphi, London, W. C. 2, England.

In an explanatory statement by the minister it is stated that the timber problem in time of war falls into three parts. The first is the importation of timber having regard to the necessity of finding new sources of supply in place of Scandinavia and Russia and the difficulties of shipping. The second is the development of increased production in Great Britain itself. The third is the distribution of of timber having regard to the necessity of restricting its use to the most essential purposes.

"The importation of timber," the official notification reads, "is in the hands of the Timber Control. They also administer the control of the distribution and use of timber acting in accordance with the decisions and the allocations of the Government priority organization. The production of home-grown timber has been largely increased both by the home-grown timber merchants and by the Forestry Commission, who are primarily responsibile for the development of our home resources. The output of home-grown softwoods is now at a rate four times as great as before the war. It is vitally necessary, however, greatly to increase still further this output and the importance of doing so has been emphisized by recent events, both in connection with mining timber and with sawn timber. This development raises large problems of organization and of the provision of labor and equipment."

British Spirit Speaks Hurting Our Friends

(New York Times)

The British people have never heard such accents of leadership as Mr. Churchill gave them yesterday. His radio talk had the greatness of great literature, but it was great too in the fighting spirit tha lived and breathed behind every word. It was the voice of a free people, ready to endure every terror for the sake of staying free. It was the finest of all answers to whatever pessimism may prevail, outside Britain, about Britain's prospects in the ordeal that now confronts her. Mr. Churchill did not minimize that ordeal in any way. He knew that at any hour the most frightful assault of modern times might be launched against his people, an assault of tons of bombs from the air, of parachute troops landed on British soil, of masses of ships bringing invaders across the sea But he also knew that a great nation cannot be defeated by guns and tanks and planes alone. It can be broken only as France was broken, by corrosion from within, by a lack of the will to fight and survive The service of Mr. Churchill's speech yesterday was its demonstration, apparent to all who heard it, even in distant continents, that the heart and soul of Britain are sound.

(Windsor Daily Star)

Not the least of the misfortunes of war is the necessity which often arises in a conflict, of doing harm to friendly peoples. Britain is feeling this just now, with the declaration of the extension of the blockade to all of France.

Within that territory are thousands of people who are still friendly to the British cause, who would, given the slightest opportunity, rise to arms again beside the British forces. Some of those people are going to suffer through Britain cutting off supplies of food and other necessities of life.

There is, however, no choice. Germany is in complete domination over France. To allow food to go to anyone in France would just be putting it into the hands of the Nazis, because they would promptly seize it for their own use.

The quicker we can starve Germany into submission, the sooner the war will be over. We should, therefore, let nothing turn us aside from our determination to see that the screws are tightened, and we know, after all, that relaxing the blockade toward France would help the still friendly French people not one whit.

'Time Wasted Over Books'

(Ottawa Journal)

The pleasantly soporific solace that lurks in the lightest literature is available to all who can follow the printed page and make sense of it. For widely differing reasons, the wise find in the reading of books a happy escape from many a personal problem calling for altogether too much thought in its solving. Though the escape may be only temporary, the reader often returns to his own peculiar troubles with a better sense of proportion. Some of the strong minded turn thumbs down on any enjoyment emanating from a library shelf. They have been known to designate time so spent as "wasted," and to hold that it might much better have been devoted to possibly more important but certainly less pleasant uses. In spite of the would-be superior point of view, much contentment has resulted from a frivolous application to romantic novels and well-told detective tales. ness of Nazi frightfulness, little better can be recommended —once the day's work is done—than a safari with a C.I.D. man into great adventure, particularly if the quarry leads a quick chase half around the world and back again.

When thrillers cease to thrill it just means the removal of one delectable dish from the literary menu. Any man, if mentally allergic to history, economics, or poetry, can always sample the biography course. If carefully digested it usually results in slumber. Under any circumstance it is bound to be both pleasing and soothing, even if besprinkled too liberally with a seasoning of the author's own imaginings.

The real booklover is omnivorous. There is a widespread suspicion that a person proudly proclaiming a distaste for reading is, at the kindest valuation, but a tiresome creature whose own presence induces sleepiness.

To the earnest seeker of forgetful-

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The British announcement that ships will navigate within 30 miles of Italian coasts at their own peril is taken to mean the coastal waters have been mined. This action is described as retaliatory for a similar notice from Italy to ships operating near the shores of British territory in the Mediterranean.

The action indicates a further intensification of the war in the Mediterranean area and recalls the fact that the anticipated test of strength between the fleets of the two warring powers has not yet come about. On the occasion last week when important units of the two fleets came in contact the Italians withdrew and avoided a battle.

While little information comes out of the area as to how freely the merchant ships of the two powers are able to move about the sea it is obvious that Great Britain is applying the principles of the blockade to Italian shipping.

The Italians may be able to move their ships across to Africa and back in convoy but with British naval units ranging widely over the Mediterranean their communications with their African territories must be growing more difficult.

The only way the Italians can secure those communications is by battle and so far they have shown no disposition to risk a full dress naval fight.

Ourselves and Others

He was a strapping fifty-year-old American. He stretched luxuriously as he stepped from his three-thousand dollar trailer in the Community Park in Wellington. Behind him smiled the faces of his attractive wife and pretty ten year old daughter.

"So this is part of Canada" he yawned. "Waal, it suits us just fine and I think we'll stay for a while." He was Captain Burr Nichol, of Florida, Pennsylvania, Vancouver, Ottawa, Ohio, and many other points. Asked where his home was, he flashed a set of white teeth in an infectious grin and replied "Well, for 5 1-2 months of the year I live in Florida; I have a home in Butler, Penn.; my factory is in Rovena, Ohio, and the rest of the time I spend in Canada. You figure it out."

Captain Nichol was a member of the United States Secret Service during the last Great War, "but," he grinned, "they gave me a job watching ammunition plants for two years, and it grew a bit monotonous. So I got a transfer and saw some real action."

The conversation veered around to the war. "Every decent-minded American is with Britain," he said. "And you must have heard the sigh of relief and joy that echoed in the U.S.A. when your navy corralled the French fleet at Oran, and captured or sunk them."

"Gosh hang it," he ejaculated, "after all blood is thicker than water and the greater part of the American nation is of British descent. You folks are our own people, and when the time comes, blood ties will tell. Don't worry about the U. S. A. We have a lot of funny politicians who believed that we were immune to all attacks from a European power, but believe me, events of the past few weeks have opened our eyes George Washington, himself, if he were alive, would have acted long before this."

"Sure there was plenty of Nazi propaganda in the U.S.A. regarding Canada," he said. "But they are not fooling the majority of people, especially those who have visited this country of yours before."

"Why, Canada and the U. S. A. are as inseparable as Mutt and Jeff. Pepper and salt; a coat and vest, and Amos and Andy. Those fellows cannot poison any broad-thinking American's mind, and if what I have heard and seen regarding the tourist traffic to Canada, there is little to fear from this source," he said.

His people were born in Scotland, he added. "In fact I have relatives there, I suppose. And it is the same with thousands of other Americans. They realize the British Navy is the safeguard from attack by an European aggressive power, and their heart and souls are with you in this fight."

He rubbed a grey stubble that was beginning to show on his face. "As far as giving British assistance," he began, "It can best be illustrated this way. Suppose you asked me for ten dollars and all I had was $1.60. I would give you that, but you would have to wait until I made the remaining $8.40 before I could give it to you. America will help to the best of her ability, for she realizes now that there is a dangerous threat in Europe of world domination, and Hitler would not stop at the subjugation of Europe and the Balkans. Power breeds the lust for more power, and the Western Hemisphere would hold a strong allure to give starving millions of people, which would be the aftermath of a Hitler victory."

"However," he concluded, "there is nothing to worry about. The Huns can't lick Britain, and the U.S.A. will see to it that they don't, in materials at least, if not in manpower."

FASHION FLASHES

THIS YEAR, as never before, the shops are keeping their summer stocks up-to-date and it's possible now to buy fresh warm-weather fashions. A cool, charming costume is a sheer, long-coated ensemble in brown or green or blue with a tiny white and beige bunny print. Velvet outlines the big square, shirred pockets, velvet collar and edging.

The colors appear in many a frock this year. Red, white and blue is beautiful as well as patriotic. A delightful dinner dress done on casual lines, typical American, is of red crepe dotted in white. Broad blue suede belt.

At home with everything from country evening clothes to sports things is a double-breasted casual coat of alpaca in natural, gold, pink, or blue. Self buttons, sharply notched revers and big saddle pockets with tailored flaps.

Down to the sea wearing a good-looking beach dress of blue, red and white ticking. Deep oval neckline, big pockets and an inset belt that ties in a bow in back.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is She A Gold Digger

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Please give me a little advice. I'm 21 year of age and correspond with a girl of 20. Although I've never had a date with her, I'm in love with her. Her letters are friendly and not a bit mushy.

I also know another girl. She's 17 and tells me she's crazy about me, and she seems so sincere that I can't help believing her. Perhaps I care about her, too. I'm not sure. She tells me she doesn't want anyone but me; could it be the fact that she knows I have a substantial bank account which makes her like me? I'm saving for the day when I may want to marry.

Should I keep on going with this 17-year-old girl until she finds out that I'm not the only man in the world? And if we find out that we really love each other and want to get married, do you think she's too young for me?

Joseph

I don't believe a man can be seriously in love with two girls at the same time, but it's quite probable he may be emotionally thrilled by two or more. The term young people for this is "intrigued."

As you've asked for my advice, here goes. It seems to me the girl who writes you friendly letters is a better prospect than the little 17-year-old who tells you she's "crazy" about you. That's too young for such frank courting of a man, who may find his hands full with a impulsive young lady like that for a life companion. I acquit her, however, of knowing about the bank account, and I hope you'll let it grow even more substantial before you decide to marry.

Stray Pocket Handkerchief Bids To Break Up Home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have three little girls of my own, and have everything I need to make my home happy except my husband's companionship. Naturally he's away attending to his business all day, and he goes out every evening. I got to thinking that maybe he's out with some other woman, especially since a dainty handkerchief, which doesn't belong to me, fell out of his coat pocket the other day.

My friends advise me to leave him, but I'm waiting to hear what you have to say.

Unhappy Wife

Please don't think of robbing your three children of their comfortable chances in life because a handerchief which doesn't belong to you fell out of your husband's pocket. His philandering, if he indulges in such a thing, may go no farther than snitching souvenirs. When King George IV of England died, hundreds of gloves and handkerchiefs, belonging to women, were found among his effects.

There may be nothing the matter with your husband worse than that he's approaching the Silly Age, which middle-aged men are likely to experience even as babies are troublesome when cutting teeth.

Don't discuss your affairs with friends. What would these people do for you if you broke up your comfortable home? Probably offer you a cup of tea or a cocktail, and their kind suggestions would stop there. Keep the home fires burning for your children's sake.

No Job, So He Can't Come Over

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There's a certain young man, one year older than I am, who has been coming to see me. He has confessed that he likes me a great deal, and I feel the same about him. However, he is out of work at present, and says that if he can't take me out at least once a week he won't see me at all. I'm willing to just walk in the park, or stay at home and listen to the radio, and told him so. But he won't give in, and is determined to stop coming over.

I'm sure if he had a job he'd ask me to marry him, and you can imagine my answer. But as it is, what can I do to make him realize that I care for him devotedly?

Beth

There are plenty of men who have this stubborn sort of pride. But, my dear, put yourself in his place. The worst thing about unemployment is not the hardship it entails, but a feeling of degradation that goes with it. Perhaps he won't stop coming after all. Just let him know that he will always be welcome whenever he comes. Invite him to dinner or Sunday night supper occasionally. I hope he has a job before long.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Don't Let Vacation "Relax" Your Manners

Vacation time is relaxation time. And when you relax you will, consciously or unconsciously, reveal your real manners.

If you are a mannerly person, your intutitions will be so sure that everything you do or say will be a manifestation of your fine manners. This is an ideal "conditioning" of your manners to tolerate no difference between the manners you show when you are on vacation and your manners at any other time.

But how very ofter we observe that too many people yield to the easy temptation of "letting down" their manners when they "let down", the tempo of their non-vacation activities. Instead of regarding these precious two weeks as a glorious opportunity to bolster or supplement their manners by contact with new surroundings and with new people, they thoughtlessly throw away this priceless chance for self-development.

At vacation places our attractive qualities are usually appreciated and given full scope, so watch out because our less attractive qualities are revealed in bold relief. So let your attractive qualities come out in the sun and have a fine time. And, on the other hand, keep yourself sensitized to the effect that your less fortunate qualities have on other people. You may deplore the fact that people, and especially "summer people", are critical, but critical they are. Don't give them an opportunity to classify you "ill-bred", "unmannerly", "selfish", "loud", "catty", "crude", or, perhaps worst of all, "common."

I am always interested in observing, in a group of people the ones who have a tendency to lower the general tone of the group, and those few who, by the highly-sensitized quality of their spirit elevate the tone. It is not that people in this latter group are "high-brows," not that they are humorless, not that they are not fun-loving. On the contrary, they usually add to the general enjoyment of the group. When a person of this type joins a group, there comes to the group the stimulating feeling of "here is a pleasant and charming Somebody."

Try to be that kind of person.

Woman's Name First

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. In the salutation of a letter, is it correct to write Dear Charles and Ethel or Dear Ethel and Charles?

2. In the closing of a letter, which is correct,

Sincerely,
Robert and Clara or Clara and Robert
W. W.

1. When two names are used in the salutation, the woman's name is written first: Dear Ethel and Charles.

2. When two names are written in the signature, the woman's is usually written first, even though it is the woman who signs the letter. However, there is leeway about this, and the one signing the letter may sign his or her name last if he or she regards this as more courteous.

COURTESY TIP

When you hand a glass of any beverage (water, iced tea or whatever it is) to a person, the glass always should be placed on a small plate. This is an amenity that is observed by courteous people.

Eating Habits

I doubt if anything provides more problems for the parent of a growing child than food. The hardest of these problems aren't finding the right foods or developing the proper table manners but inducing the child to eat the foods it should. I get numerous letters from mothers who claim they have tried everything but can't make the child eat in accordance with a sensible and necessary diet. They have children who rebel against milk, or salads, or even against all or any vegetables. So the half hour at dinner, or supper, instead of being an enjoyable period, when everyone is happy, it is a period of fretting, fussing and threatening. Often the child wins out and eats what he or she likes, or nothing. The result is that between meals he is hungry, gets himself a makeshift something to eat, spoils his appetite, and lays the foundation for another rebellion at his next meal.

Now, there is always a constant battle of wills between a child and the mother. It is a natural thing, and parents should be careful not to destroy the baby's individualism by dominating him completely. But he must be taught to obey; and a wise mother learns to do this by using plain, common sense.

There is one method of dealing with the child who won't eat his vegetables. That is virtually certain to be 100 per cent effective. I mean the hunger treatment. Now, I know many parents will hold their hands up in horror—"Starve my child? Never."

Of course, before you begin any such heroic treatment, you should have your doctor make a careful check-up to make sure that there is no real reason why the child shouldn't be eating this or that. When you clear up this point, then you can proceed with the hunger treatment, and believe me, it isn't nearly so terrible as it sounds. If you do it promptly, and properly, it won't take long, I can asure you.

This hunger treatment is the only way I know of getting your child to eat what he should at the time he should eat. To carry it out, the mother must steel herself to be indifferent when her child refuses to eat what is served him at the table. She shouldn't fuss over him, threaten, or make promises. If a couple of hour later, he comes coaxing for something to eat, she should explain, calmly and patiently that if he had eaten his meal as he should, he wouldn't be hungry. She musn't give him anything to eat then, but make him wait for the next regular meal. If he has an allowance, it should be withheld temporarily, to insure that he won't use it to buy ice cream, candy or other hunger slackeners. And she must have the cooperation of her husband and other members of the household, to make certain that the offender doesn't get food through them.

She can be certain that the child won't starve himself to death. If she holds firm, she will wear down his finickyness and aversions to food very quickly. And having won the battle, life will be a lot easier for her and the child also.

Men Of Genius Often Slow At School

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Some men of genius were school dullards, Humphrey Davey had the reputation of being an idle boy, with a gift for making verse, but no aptitude for school studies. Composer Wagner was demoted at school because he said he became lazy and slovenly. James Russell Lowell was reprimanded privately and publicaly during his sophomore year at college for general negligence in themes, forensics and recitations, and finally suspended on acount of continued neglect of his college duties.

Oliver Goldsmith's first teacher counted him the dullest boy she had ever taught, and his tutor called him ignorant and stupid. Byron stood at the foot of his class at school. Philosopher Hegel was declared at the university where he studied to be especially deficient in philosophy. Swift was at first refused his degree because

"Very Ordinary"

Wordsworth was disappointing at school. Grant was never above average. W. H. Seward was called "too stupid to learn." Napoleon graduated forty-second in his class. Charles Darwin was singularly incapable of mastering any language. He says when he left school, "I was considered by all my masters and by my father as a very ordinary boy, rather below the common standard in intellect. To my deep mortification, my father once said to me, "You care nothing but shooting, dogs and rat-catching, and you will be a disgrace to yourself and all your family." Thomas Edison was given up by his teacher at school as hopeless.

If these geniuses were students in the best modern school, would they be discovered? Most, I believe, would be, though not all.

Undoubtedly an intelligence test would have discovered marked ability in many of them. Perhaps the biggest service an intelligence test can render is at finding genius ordinarly overlooked. Also the best modern schools offers more opportunity than the school of yore for children to find themselves. Nevertheless, I suppose we still have a long, long way to go to reach the ideal.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Why do you advise against building a tower of blocks and the like for the baby to knock down? Doesn't it give him a lot of fun?

A. It does; but his pleasure is coming from destruction. Induce him to get fun from taking down the tower block by block in such a way as not to let it topple—for self-control, moral education.

BRITISH CAUSE IS RIGHTEOUS SAYS ATHLONE

FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

His Majesty the King is in Daily Touch With Ministers and Spares No Effort to Encourage the Forces, Says Governor - General

Ottawa, July 17 (CP).—"For King and Country" is no mere empty phrase, the Earl of Athlone told the Canadian Club of Ottawa today in a brief luncheon address, his first public speech since taking office as governor-general June 21.

"It does not mean that we are fighting to maintain a dynasty against its rivals or the personal supremacy of a particular Royal house," said his Excellency. "It does not mean that we are fighting to preserve a set of traditions just because they are traditions.

"It does mean that we are fighting to keep intact the keystone arch on which our collective life and our freedom depend, the point around which the nation's sense of a continuing force revolves, the very heart of our national existence. Who will deny that such a cause is a righteous one?"

The Earl expressed his pleasure at addressing "my own fellow citizens" and pointed out a governor-general is greatly restricted in the choice of subjects on which he can speak in public.

His Majesty the King.

"But," he said, "there is one subject on which I think I can speak to you without risk of committing a verbal indiscretion, and that is about our king."

"No one appreciates more than the king himself the seriousness of the situation and the necessity for one and all of his subjects to show that unity of purpose which is and will be required to carry through this righteous fight against Nazi despotism and to exterminate it once and for all time," said the governor-general.

"To this end his Majesty is in daily touch with his ministers and never spares any effort to give encouragement and praise wherever it is due, by constant visits to the three fighting forces, war factories and shipyards.

"This personal constant interest and encouragement from the king himself cannot fail to bring home to the great army of brothers from every continent in the world, that from the king himself to the humblest worker in the factories or shipyards and those laboring on the land, no effort, no fatigue will be spared to bring final success."

The king, added the governor-general, regards himself as much Canada's king as though he lived in Canada.

Canada and the Monarchy.

"The sentiment of Canada towards the monarchy was never so emphatically expressd as during their Majesties' visit last year," said the governor-general. "The memory of that visit has often been a source of comfort to the king and queen in the sombre days that have followed.

"I feel sure that it will also be an inspiration to us in the trials and sorrows that lie ahead of us."

Bombing of Rotterdam Deliberate, Fiendish Assault Says Legation

Washington, July 17 — (AP) — Terming the bombing of Rotterdam the "greatest mass destruction the world has ever seen." The Netherland Legation said in a statement that 30,000 persons were killed in the 7 1-2 minutes the planes were over the city.

Seventy thousand others were maimed and injured, the statement added.

"When Rotterdam was bombed," it continued, "the Dutch army capitulation had already been handed to the German high command. The Germans say the planes were in the air and could not be called back. It is customary for all military planes to be equipped with radio and to be directed in their operations by radio. It cannot be believed that the German air force, so efficient in other respects, was deficient in this.

"The crime against Rotterdam was a deliberate, fiendish assault on unarmed, undefended civilians. The world knows Rotterdam is built on marshy soil and that therefore adequate underground bomb shelters could not be constructed. Of course, the Germans knew this, too."

Toronto, July 17 —(CP)— Pte. Leo Poitras, 38, of Montreal, was charged today with a serious offence and aggravated assault against a Toronto woman July 4. He was arrested at Camp Borden last night and brought to Toronto.

Police said Poitras beat and robbed Caroline West who was found unconscious in the street near her home. She has been in hospital since.

Picton and District

Picton, July 17—The "lick Hitler" night at the Regent Theatre on Monday saw a capacity crowd in attendance and a great many who purchased tickets did not use them. Stamps valued at $550 were sold in advance and it is expected these will start several hundred saving them. In addition to the screen program there was an excellent program on the stage with Rev. J. P. Reycraft officiating.

Miss Mary Forster of Belleville and some of her dance pupils were the hit of the show with smart numbers, which were repeatedly encored. Inez Forster, Madeline Walden, Ruth Hagerman, Mary Lou Pigden, Joyce Cooper gave a military drum dance. The Highland Fling was done by Mary Bongard, Valeries Fleming and five-year-old Donna Fleming. A bit of Irish pep by three colleens, Helen Cooper, Doreen McKinnon and Emily Mae McCullough scored a hit. Especially lovely was the soft shoe dance by Inez Forster, Ruth Hagerman, Mary Lou Pigden, Joyce Cooper and Madeline Walden who wore "Gone With the Wind" frocks. Arline and Dorothy Dickie gave a pretty parasol ballet and Madeline Walsh gave a solo number.

Clare Newman and William Cavers entertained with feats of magic including the "Magic Bar" and card tricks. Picton Band gave selections and led in community singing. "There'll Always be an England" was sung by Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Dow, Florence Barber and Fred Walden and Miss Barber and Rev. J. B. Creeggan were heard in solos. Short patriotic talks were given by Mayor Nesbitt McKibbon and Judge E. H. McLean.

Thanks was expressed to Mr. and Mrs. George Cook for their co-operation in giving the theatre, to Miss Forster and pupils and other artists.

Celebrates Birthday

Wednesday, July 17 marks the 90th birthday of E. P. Stanton, well-known resident of the town. He is spending the day quietly, working in the fine garden which he cares for himself. He still enjoys good health and retains the use of all his faculties. Of United Empire Loyalist descent, he was born at East Lake and resided there and on a farm on the Wellington road before coming to Picton. His wife predeceased him.

Appointment of Harry W. Brown, Principal of the Wellington Consolidated School as inspector of public schools in North Bay district was announced yesterday. He will begin his new duties in the near future. Their departure from the village will be a matter of regret as both Mr. and Mrs. Brown have been active in community affairs and the social life. Mr. Brown has served as Secretary-Treasurer of the Wellington War Committee since its inception.

Mrs. Alex Lipson entertained at a birthday party for her daughter, Barbara, with fourteen little girls as guests. Joyce Cooper of Belleville was among those present and gave a dance. The birthday dinner included a cake with seven candles.

Dr. C. H. Leavens, Capt. W. C. Hicks, Sgt. Thomas Creighton and Cpl. Leslie Shannon arrived home from England this week. They state that Britain is wonderfully prepared for any invasion and that the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment boys are in good health and good spirits.

Miss Irene Scott is holidaying with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sparkes, Aurora.

Mrs. D. J. Shannon, Toronto, is a guest of her son, Cpl. Monte Shannon and Mrs. Shannon.

Mrs. W. H. Morton of Vancouver is a guest of her grandmother, Mrs. M. Ostrom, and will remain in the east for some time.

Germany Facing Serious Shortage Lubricating Oils

London, July 17—(CP)—A British oil expert has expressed the opinion that Germany is facing a serious shortage of lubricating oils necessary for her aircraft and other war machines according to the British Broadcasting Corporation.

The expert was one of fifty British subjects who arrived in Istanbul after their expulsion from Rumania. He said that Germany may have enough petrol for the time being, but lubricating oil is the weak point in all her war supplies.

SUGGEST JOINT PROTECTIVE FLOTILLA

Havana, July 17—(AP)— Carlos Hevia, former provisional President of Cuba, in a letter directed to President Roosevelt, yesterday suggested "formation, as soon as possible, of a joint patrol flotilla consisting of the naval forces of all the American republics" as a defence measure for the western hemisphere.

Annenberg's Petition For Probation Denied

Annenberg is under sentence to serve three years in prison for violation of the income tax laws.

The court also denied a motion for a six weeks extension of Annenberg's stay of execution, submitted Monday by the Philadelphia publisher's chief counsel, Weymouth Kirkland.

Judge Wilkerson sentenced Annenberg July 1 on a plea of guilty to evasion of $1,217,296 taxes on his 1936 income. At that time he granted a stay until July 22, next Monday.

Kirkland's plea for extension of the stay, should probation be denied, was on the ground Annenberg needed to have two operations performed before going to prison.

Judge Wilkerson said today, however, that his denial order meant Annenberg would have to surrender next Monday to begin the prison sentence.

NEW COMPLEXION ON NEGOTIATIONS OVER BURMA ROAD

Resignation of Japanese Gov't. May Cause Britain to Reconsider Decision

HALIFAX SILENT

(By Guy Rheades Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Resignation of the Japanese government and appointment of a new Premier from the ranks of the totalitarian-inclined military clique may have put a new complexion on negotiations between Britain and Japan for closing of the Burma road to China, it was indicated today.

Previous reports of the negotiations suggested that Britain might be willing to close the ancient caravan route to munitions and war supply traffic provided some prospect existed of bringing peace to the Far East.

The new Premier, Prince Konoye, long has been an advocate of Jananese expansion at the expense of foreign interests in the Orient, aims not shared by the navy group which the retiring Premier, Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, representd.

Tokyo, in the midst of forming a one-party administration, announced an agreement had been signed and gave its own version of the terms. In London, however, foreign Minister Viscount Halifax declined to make a statement in reply to questions, although he said he might have one tomorrow.

May Have Made Mistake

If Japan sought through an agreement halting shipments to China over the Burma road lifeline, and through Hong Kong, to rush the China "incident" to close and then proceed to new aggressive action it is possible she made a mistake today through over-eagerness.

Britain would hardly asquiesce in such a move which might well have as its objects asquisition of French Indo-China and The Netherlands East Indies. The United States, too, has definite interests in this region and already has let it be known that it wishes no upset of the East Indies status quo.

Japan, it is recalled voiced a similar view concerning former Allied territory in that region and Germany expressed itself as not interested. However, the maintenance of a status quo among totalitarian powers in the past has been shown to depend largely on who proposes to upset it.

QUINTS DONATE AN AMBULANCE

Proposed That Vehicle Carry Some Distinctive Insignia but Decision Not Made

North Bay, Ont., July 17—(CP)— The Dionne quintuplets are donating an ambulance to the Canadian Red Cross, it was announced today by Keith Munro, Quints business manager. It has been proposed that the ambulance carry some distinctive insignia, marking it as a donation from the Quints, but this has not yet been decided.

Decision to aid the Red Cross was decided at a meeting of the Board of Guardians attended by Oliva Dionne, father of the girls; Judge J. A. Valin, chairman of the guardians; and Percy D. Wilson of Toronto, official guardian for Toronto. Order of the vehicle will be placed immediately, Mr. Munro said.

War effort of the Quints in addition to donation of $1,750 for the ambulance includes $1,000 Red Cross donation, use of their photographs in Red Cross uniforms for the $5,000,000 fund drive and purchase of $2.500 in war savings certificates. Their Royal Presentation gowns were also displayed at a fashion show in New York held for benefit of Allied soldiers.

Plan Proposed to Make Beaches Self-Supporting Summer Resort

Association Appeals to Public for Funds to Carry Out Project

APPEAL URGENT

A group of laughing children on a sunlit beach. In the water youngsters and grownups disport themselves in the clean warm waters of the bay. In the background in lush green grassy plots, groups of people enjoy picnic lunches. The sound of music emanates from an attractive building nearby in which joyous youth dance to melodic rhythms. On the clean white sand crowds of people enjoy the brilliant summer sunshine tempered with the cooling breezes from the blue stretches of the Bay of Quinte. A refreshment booth conveniently placed does a land-office business.

Looming in the background, their colors enhancing the natural shades of grass and trees are parked tourist trailers, their occupants enjoying a welcome pause from the endless vacation trek. In another expanse of gleaming sand is an organization gathering, a Sunday School picnic perhaps, or a fraternal society. Over all there is an aura of enjoyment. It is the summer gathering place of Belleville and its outlying communities, tourists and visitors.

All this is not the mental wanderings of an imaginative newspaperman but what the Quinte Beaches will actually look like if present plans of the Beaches Association materialize.

Campaign For Funds

For that body, at a special meeting held recently decided to campaign for funds that will transform the present drab appearance of the beach into an attractive self-supporting summer holiday resort.

Their efforts during the past few years have met with little success, and it is only through the initiative of the president and members of the assocation, that the beach has reached its present state. Organizations have been lackadaisical in backing the project. Individuals have supported the scheme but in a moral sense only. Funds have been scarce and much of the expense put on the beaches to date has been borne by members of the association.

However, they have not been blind to the necessity of the beaches to the population of Belleville, especially the children. Their efforts this year have met with little co-operation from organizations and individuals that could support the project, and despairing of any assistance from these sources, members of the organization have decided to appeal to the general public for funds which will be used to place the beaches on a self-supporting basis.

Trees and shrubbery will be replaced and planted. A recreation building will be erected where the youth of the community can enjoy dancing if they wish. A well-stocked refreshment booth will be built where all picnic and other necessities will be available. Bath houses will be placed in convenient places. Swimming and diving apparatus will be installed. Facilities for family and organization picnics will be available. In fact everything possible make the Belleville Beaches an attractive summer swimming and lounging spot will be done.

Leave Money at Ontario Intelligencer

But all this will take money. The Association is appealing to the public for funds and donations, no matter how large or small, with which to inaugurate the transformation. When completed, the Beaches, it is expected will be self-supporting. Names of donors should be given to President Reg. Moncrieff, of the Beaches Association, or actual monies can be left in the business offices of the Ontario Intelligencer.

"I would like to remind the general public," President Moncrieff said today, "that the beaches now are in good condition and are available for picnics. They are the property of the public and can and should be used without the formality of calling members of the association. They are absolutely free, and we want the public to avail itself of the opportunity to use them."

The appeal is urgent, and with the receipt of funds, work on the newly proposed scheme will be started immediately. Help the children of Belleville and district to enjoy their summer sports in a clean healthy spot. Send in your contribution now.

DIAMOND MERCHANTS AWARDED $2,200

London, July 17.— (AP)—Triefus Brothers, London diamond merchants, were awarded damages of £500 (about $2,200) today against Harry Winston, New York diamond dealer, on the charge of breach of contract in a deal to buy the 726-carat "Getulio Vargas" diamond.

On July 9 Triefus Brothers asked an injunction to restain Winston from disposing of the diamond and demanded an accounting of any profits derived by Winston through purchase of the stone originally valued at about $480,000.

The attorney for the plaintiffs, Sir Patrick Hastings, contended that Triefus Brothers and Winston were to buy the stone jointly, "but Winston bought it himself".

BOMBS ARE DROPPED

London, July 17 —(CP)— An aerial battle took place over a southeast district this afternoon. A number of machines were engaged and bombs were dropped.

A woman was killed and two persons injured in the bombing.

A baby was feared buried in the ruins of the house in which the woman was killed.

Resuscitation Methods Should Be Continued For Four Hours

Resuscitation methods should be continued for at least four hours or until rigor mortis has set in according to a summer health bulletin just issued by the Health League of Canada.

Many lives might have been saved had rescuers worked on supposedly-drowned persons for another hour or two, officials of the League stated.

Simple methods of artificial respiration follow: The person to be treated should be laid on the ground at full length and face downward, with arms extended in front of the head. Then the operator should kneel across the body with one knee on each side of the unconscious individual. He should place the palms of his hands on the small of the patients back just below the lowest ribs and leaning forward bring the weight of his body to bear to press the ribs upward, thus helping to force out any water from the lungs. This pressure should be released gradually, and the operation repeated about 13 or 14 times to the minute, rhythmically and regularly.

Half a dozen or more people should be available to take turns in resuscitation. "Don't give up too soon", the Health League advises.

Before one begins artificial respiration one must be certain there is no obstruction of any kind in the air passage. The obstruction may be due to a foreign object, or to laryngeal spasm. Remember artificial respiration is useless unless it results in the actual passage of air in and out of the larynx. Always make sure that this has been established. A doctor can advise best as to this.

2 Killed, 6 Injured As Auto Falls Over 150-Foot Promontory

Ste. Marthe, Que., July 17—(CP) —Two persons were killed and six others injured when an automobile fell over a 150-foot promontory near this Gaspe County town last night.

Mrs J. B. Croussette, 37, and her 17-year-old daughter, Estelle, both of nearby Mechins, were killed when the car's brake failed to hold, and the machine fell to the foot of the cliff.

SHIP AND CARGO SEIZED

Ottawa, July 17—(CP)—The Italian freighter Capo Noli and its cargo have been seized by officers of a prize court at a Canadian port, it was reported unofficially last night. The Capo Noli was captured by a unit of the Canadian navy in the St. Lawrence River the day Italy entered the war. Cargo of the ship, which the crew attempted to scuttle, consisted of about 35,000 bushels of wheat and a large quantity of asbestos.

ALL MINERS CALLED

Blackpool, England, July 17—(C. P. Cable)—A call for the arming of all miners to meet a possible invasion was sounded today at the annual conference of the Mine Workers' Federation.

"If the enemy comes it is not much use throwing my hat at him," said W. J. Sadler, South Wales delegate, in moving the resolution. "If we are armed and disciplined, we can stand up to any aggressor."

FIREMAN DIES FROM INJURIES

Conrad Smelser Victim of Accident Which Took Place Near Lindsay

Lindsay, Ont., July 17—(CP) — Conrad Smelser, fireman on Canadian National Railways passenger local No. 93, derailed near here on Saturday, died in Ross Memorial Hospital early today from injuries received in the mishap.

Believed earlier to be on the road to recovery, Smelser took a turn for the worse on Monday and grew weaker throughout the day.

He was taken to hospital after spending an hour and a half jammed between the frame and the boiler of the overturned locomotive at the crossing on No. 7 highway, a mile east of Omemee. He suffered burns and scalds, rescuers said after he had been extricated by means of an acetylene torch. The engine was derailed after striking an oil truck.

Smelser's home is in New Toronto.

Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson announced later an inquest will be held here on July 25. Mr. Anderson said no criminal charge has been laid against Phil Harford driver of the oil truck involved in the wreck.

T. L. Church Asks What Classes Exempt

Ottawa, July 17—(CP)— T. L. Church (Con. Toronto-Broadview) gave notice in today's house votes and proceedings that he will ask the government to state what classes of persons are exempt from military service, and to clarify the meaning of "home defence."

The Toronto member wants to know what percentage of Canada's population are exempt from military duty (a) under the Militia Act (b) from overseas service, (c) home defence duties. He will ask if "home defence" includes defence of Canada "outside three miles of Canada's territorial waters or defence of French islands in the St. Lawrence, or defence of Iceland, Greenland or the West Indies."

Bren Gun Plant At Full Capacity

Ottawa, July 17—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe said in a statement today that the first Bren guns were produced in Canada in April and for many weeks guns have been produced at a rate substantially above that originally planned."

Under the original contract between the government and The John Inglis Company of Toronto, production of Bren guns was planned for about next September.

In order to speed production, the plant is operating seven days a week on a three shift a day basis.

For many weeks the output of guns, complete with bipods, has been substantially in excess of that originally scheduled, the Minister said.

Shortly, the bipod parts will also be manufactured in Canada. In the meantime, the bipod components come from England.

RUNS OUT OF ROAST BEEF

London, July 17 (CP)— War thrust its heavy hand into the nerve-centre of beef-eating Britain last night—Simpson's in the Strand ran out of roast beef.

For the first time since its establishment 112 years ago the restaurant confessed its inability to serve its speciality.

The headwaiter sadly explained that, despite Simpson's prestige, authorities had refused to allow an extra ration.

Long Hours Of Labor Begin To Take Toll In Britain

Labor Minister Bevin Says 250,000 Women Could be Placed Immediately

WORK 17 HRS. A DAY

By D. E. BIRRITT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 17—(CP Cable) — Long hours of labor are beginning to take their toll among enthusiastic young workers seeking to solidify the Nation's industrial front, Labor Minister Ernest Bevin warned women members of parliament at a luncheon today.

The Minister told how some employees had been working 17 or 18 hours daily and added "all evidence goes to show that we carried on these hours too long and production is on a decline rather than increasing."

Women must be enrolled for industry in far greater numbers, he said, explaining how he could place 250,000 properly trained women in jobs almost immediately.

The country should realize the "financial capital loss it is suffering in this war owing to neglect and allowing to rot so many skilled men and women in the last 15 years." He declared "it must never occur again."

Another thing that people should realize, Mr. Bevin said, is that no Labor Minister could make up "except by devious methods the dilution and loss the nation has sustained." He pledged that his department would "do its best and try to utilize the services of both men and women to the utmost extent."

Wage Earners Throughout Canada Number 2,780,000

Ottawa, July 17—(CP)—Approximately 2,100,000 wage earners throughout the Dominion, or about 19 per cent of the population, would contribute to the proposed unemployment insurance plan, it was estimated here today.

The estimate of those gainfully employed is 2,780,000 but it is pointed out that about 680,000 of these belong to classes such as farmers and fishermen excluded from the provisions of the proposed act.

The figure of 4,680,000 mentioned in the Commons yesterday by Labor Minister McLarty as being the number around which the legislation "would throw its cloak of protection in some measure" includes dependents of workers.

EXPRESSES GRAVE CONCERN

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 17—(AP)—Official sources said today Bulgaria had expressed "grave concern" to the Rumanian government over reports of new "oppressive measures" against Bulgarians in South Dobruja, a part of Rumania, including arrests and confiscation of property.

K-NINES SWEEP INTO LEADERSHIP OF SOFTBALL LOOP

Paced by Margaret Orr's Hitting the K-Nines Defeat Mets by 23-11 Count

MANY HIGHLIGHTS

Base-Running of Wilma Clarke and Fielding of Helen Belnap Feature Contest

Paced by the powerful war club of Margaret Orr which accounted for two homers, a triple and a brace of singles, "Stub" Barrett's hard fighting "K-Nines" swept into the leadership of the Ladies' Softball League last night when they defeated the Mets by a 23-11 score.

The pastime was a merry hitting affair with the winners touching Jean Muir, Met hurler, for a total of 23 safeties while the offerings of Mary Lichfold, opposing pitcher, were nicked for fifteen hits all told. The K-Nines, however were much stronger defensively, and this fact coupled with some timely clouting, swept them into a lead which they never relinquished.

The Mets raced into an early lead and were in front by a 5-3 count in the third inning. The ultimate winners, however, finally got their batting eyes and for the rest of the pastime got in some fancy clouting that saw all kinds of hits flying over the Armouries pasture. They broke out in a hitting rash in the lucky seventh that netted them eleven runs from seven smacks, aided and abetted by some costly Met errors.

Margaret Orr's bludgeon sent the ball over the centre field railing twice in succession for home runs, with Helen (Massassaga) Thompson's triple and Belnap's double helping the cause. Every member of the winning team batted and hit in this inning.

The Mets were held scoreless by Mary Lickfold's fine pitching and the defensive work of her team, until the seventh, when four consecutive hits sent two runners across the plate. Alexander's home run in the ninth paved the way for another brace of runs. Wilma Clark, K-Nines diminutive right-fielder, starred with some fine base-running while the fielding o Belnap at third was another highlight.

Hall, with five hits led the Met's hit parade and she was followed closely by Muir with four, and Cook and Bankier with three each.

Score by innings:

K-Nines	012 1411 112—23	21	5
Mets	203 000 222—11	15	7

The teams:

K-Nines: Clark rf; Richardson ss; Belnap 3rd; Orr cf., Thompson Helen c; Thompson H. 1b; Corneal lf; Connell 2b; Adams 2b; Lickfold pitcher.

"Absurd", Gene commented on reports he was contemplating such a bout.

NEWARK BEARS FAIL TO GAIN GROUND ON WINGS

Rochester Maintains 6½ Game Lead Over Bruins but Are Worrying

LEAFS DEFEATED

Seven-Hit Hurling by Kemp Wicker Wins Over Toronto by 8-1 Count

(By The Associated Press)

Rochester Red Wings are 6 1-2 games ahead of the second-place Newark Bears in the International League standings today, but camera city fans don't think that margin any too great for comfort, considering the speed at which the Bears have been travelling lately. Bruins have won 11 of their last 15 games, and are getting as good a brand of pitching as the league leaders.

Last night Hank Borowy took care of the pitching chores for the Bears and limited Jersey City Giants to five singles to win his seventh game of the year 8-0. It was his second shutout. Bruins clubbed Hy Vandenberg, Harold Feldman and Alta Cohen for 11 safeties. The Bruins failed to gain ground on the first-place Red Wings who won 2-0 from Buffalo.

Mike Ryba allowed only three hits in shutting out the Bisons to become the first International League hurler to win 13 games. Ryba didn't walk a man and fanned five to defeat Earl Cook, whose own performance limited the Red Wings to six blows.

Montreal Royals strengthened their hold on third place by turning back Toronto Maple Leafs 8-1, while the fourth-place Baltimore Orioles were losing 2-1 to Syracuse.

Royals backed up Kemp Wicker's seven-hit elbowing with a 10-hit barrage on a trio of leaf pitchers, and were aided by five Toronto errors, good for four unearned runs.

Once Hid Churchill And Helped Him To Escape Boers

Johannesburg, South Africa, July 16—(CP Reuters)—John George Howard, 87, who hid Winston Churchill in a mine pit for three days in 1899 after Britain's Prime Minister, then a newspaperman, escaped from a prisoners' camp in the Boer War, died today. He helped Churchill flee by train to Portuguese territory, concealed in bales of wool.

Only Contenders In Either Loop That Did Themselves Any Good Were The Clubs That Were Idle

Soundest Combination in the Big Show Appears to be Cincinnati Reds

DODGERS FOLDING

St. Louis Cards Score Sixth Straight Win and May Cause Plenty of Trouble

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's fast becoming apparent that there isn't a standout ball club in either major league this year and the pennants are liable to be awarded by default.

The only contenders in either circuit that did themselves any good yesterday were the ones that were idle.

The soundest combination in the big show seems to be Cincinnati Reds, who can repeat their National League championship if they don't drop dead. Even the Reds are not irresistible and the rain in Cincinnati yesterday didn't do them any harm.

The Brooklyn Dodgers folded up in front of Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 and increased Cincinnati's first-place margin to 3 1-2 games. Brooklyn held a 3-0 lead until the last half of the sixth when three doubles and a single by Bob Elliott chased Tex Carleton and tied the score. The Pirates fashioned two more runs around a triple by Elliott in the eighth.

In the American League the only first-division club that didn't bite the dirt was Boston, whose Red Sox had an idle day.

Cleveland lost its third straight and the series to the weird Washington Senator, who made four errors and still couldn't give the game back to the Indians. Washington scored seven times in the sixth inning when Joe Dobson and Johnny Allen walked four men and Buddy Myer and Sam West each drove in two runs with singles while the bases were loaded.

Kicked Away Chance

Detroit Tigers had a chance to regain the lead, but kicked it away as they have so many other times by bowing to the last place Philadelphia Athletics 3-1.

Fred Hutchinson, the $75,000 pitching wonder of the Tigers, made his first start since returning from the minors and rendered a six-hitter, striking out six and walking none. But three of the hits coupled with one of two errors by Pinky Higgins gave the A's two runs in the third. Sam Chapman added a homer in the eighth.

Johnny Rigney stopped the world champion New York Yankees again on six hits as Chicago White Sox plastered Marius Russo for an even dozen and the ball game, 5-1.

But New York Giants, so-called contenders and third-place fixtures in the National League, again showed up everybody in the futility department by getting shutout 2-0 in Chicago.

The only bright spot on the baseball map continued to be St. Louis, where the Cardinals beat Boston Bees 4-3 for their sixth consecutive victory. Boston made 12 hits off Clyde Shoun to nine for the Cards, but the latter sum included two home runs by Enos (Country) Slaughter and the 24th of the season for Johnny Mize.

ARMSTRONG STILL STRONG FAVORITE TO WHIP JENKINS

New York, July 17.— (AP)—Lew Jenkins, the little Texan with the murderous punch, receives his great testing tonight when he fights Henry Armstrong, the welterweight champion, at the Polo Grounds.

It is just a year since Jenkins made his first appearance in New York. An unbroken string of triumphs behind him, he enters the ring tonight as the lightweight champion of the world, possibly to prove that he is one of the greatest little scrappers there ever has been.

If Jenkins does beat Armstrong tonight, then he's really good, fellows. For Armstrong, even though he might be a year or so past his very best, still is an awful lot of fighting man.

Armstrong looks the better bet and the bookmakers still have him a substantial favorite. It's difficult to picture a skinny, rawboned boy like Jenkins absorbing Henry's body punishment for 12 rounds. Still, the Texan has that punch, and Armstrong never has been hard to hit.

Armstrong will have a few pounds weight advantage, though not enough really to matter. The title of neither is at stake. Without risking more than a few lumps, each of them is assured of a handsome purse, for Promoter Mike Jacobs expects the gate to total around $160,000 granted clear weather.

Yesterday's Stars

Enos Slaughter, Cardinals—Hit two home runs in 4-3 decision over Bees.

Buddy Myers and Sam West, Senators—Their singles with bases loaded each scored two runs toward victory over Indians.

SHELL 'OILERS' DEFEAT R.C.A.F. IN SMART GAME

Johnny Bawden Limits Opposition to Five Hits and One Run to Coast Home With 6-1 Victory

COLE HOMERS

Walker, Hurling for Flyers, Nicked for Six Hits and Replaced in Eighth by Farrar

Local boys enlisted with the 34th Battery will benefit to the extent of $20 for the purchase of sports equipment as the result of the exhibition softball game played at Coleman Flats last evening between the Shell Oilers and the Trenton R.C.A.F. "Flyers" softball team with the local mushballers winning 6-1. This amount was realized as the result of collection taken at the game and also through the efforts of several local lads, who gave unselfishly of their time in selling tickets for the game through the business section of the city yesterday and the fine results obtained show the fine spirit of local ball fans when subscribing for a worthy cause.

For five innings the game at the Flats last evening was as tidy a pitchers' duel as has been waged here in some time with Bawden, for the "Oilers" and Walker for the Airforce, being real stingy with the bingles to turn the batters back in order after the first inning.

The Airforce scored once in the first canto as the result of a walk to Casey who rode home on Gibson's timely single, accounting for the sole counter the "Flyers" were able to push across during the entire nine innings. In their half of the first, the "Oilers" scored twice to go one ahead as Ronsky was safe on an error and rode home on Cole's mammoth four base clout, the only homer of the game.

Couldn't Hit in Pinches

The inability of the Airforce lads to hit, when hits meant runs cost them the game as in the last three innings they got runners aboard only to allow them to die on the base paths as succeeding batters were whiffed by Bawden as he turned on the steam. Starting the sixth, the "Oilers" began a concerted barrage upon the slants of Walker and in the seventh drove him to cover with a two-run scoring splurge. Farrar pitched for the losers during the last innings and was nicked for one run as Cole got a life on an error.

In limiting the Airforce lads to one lone run Bawden was nicked for five safeties and walked two, while he struck out ten, getting the side on strikes in the second and eighth. Walker was nicked for seven bingles, while he struck out four and failed to issue a single walk.

Lineups:

Airforce—Legris ss; Casey, 3b; Snape 2b; Gibson c; Stevenson 1b; Caswell rf; Reeves cf; Caton lf; Walker and Farrar p.

"Oilers"—Henn 2b; Ronsky 3b; Cole 1b; Bawden p; Sero ss; Murray lf; Reynolds rf; Rowbotham c and Schrieder cf.

"Oilers"	200 001 21x—6	7	0

SARAZEN'S CREW EASILY DEFEATED

Must Win Six of Eight Single Matches to Defeat Ryder Cup Team

Detroit, July 17 (AP)—Fiery Gene Sarazen, on the spot with his team of challengers, faced the uncomfortable prospect today of having to swallow a boast that his chosen stars could whip the Ryder Cup team.

It will take some miracle of golf for the Connecticut gentleman-farmer to avert such a fate. His handpicked squad trailed Walter Hagen's crew, 3-1, after yesterday's rounds.

All the challengers had to do to save face in this battle for charity and supremacy was to get hot today and win six of the eight singles matches. Even Sarazen admitted this wasn't an easy task.

"Sure, I was disappointed," was his comment as his team lost three of the four Scotch foursomes over the difficult Oakland Hills course, "but we are stronger in the singles."

To strengthen his team he inserted himself and Lawson Little, new national open champion, into the line-up, replacing Tommy Armour of Chicago and Jimmy Thomson of Chicoppee, Mass., victims of an 8 and 7 trimming yesterday at the hands of Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., and Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester, Conn.

Little, unable to play in the opening matches, had his work cut out for him, however. He faced Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., who teamed with Paul Runyan of White Plains, N.Y., to whip Craig Wood of New York and Billy Burke of Cleveland two up.

Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., and and Dick Metz of Chicago got the jump at the start on young Ed Oliver of Hornell, N.Y., and Lighthorse Harry Cooper, Chicago veteran, and won, 5 and 4. Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, fellow Texans, carded a one-up victory over Ralph Guldahl, ex-open king and Slamin' Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

CALLING 'EM
Between the Lines
with Ken J. Colling

Kingston sport scribe Bill Walshe says there is a crying need for major sports interest facing the Limestone City to break the monotony of present-day routine life. With the abandonment of senior intercollegiate rugby for the duration of the war, there will be little major sport for Queens or Kingston this fall or winter. It is unfortunate for Kingstonians, relative to the decision of the intercollegiate moguls, but in the matter of their hockey decline the Limestone City sporting public has no person to blame except themselves. For the past few years Wally Elmer is the only Kingstonian to take an interest in the fostering of O.H.A. hockey in Kingston, the Limestone City mentors thinking more of their pre-season Van Horne Memorial loop than the continuance of provincial hockey. More recently Mr. Walshe suggested the Kingston baseball set-up would be better advised to lean towards the Ottawa Valley towns than to return to the O.B.A. Surely by now Mr. Walshe should realize that the Ottawa Valley baseball heads around Perth, Smiths Falls and Renfrew want no part of Kingston diamond activities.

Now, however, Scribe Walshe has visions (and we hope they materialize) of a senior O.H.A. team for Kingston next winter. Naturally with the new international border regulations now in effect between Canada and the U.S.A., innumerable hockey players, amateur as well as semi-professional, will not be permitted entrance into the U.S.A., although we hope the National Hockey League will be permitted to operate as usual. As Scribe Walshe points out, however, if the U.S.A. amateur and minor hockey leagues are forced out of business this winter it should prove a boom to Canadian hockey, the place where these players learned the game originally. Bill Walshe cites such Kingston players as Ken Partis, Paddy Patterson and Joey Catlin, all of whom could be used along with some of the classier Queens seniors to give Kingston a strong senior team in the O.H.A. next winter, all of which may be wishful thinking on Scribe Bill's part, but with the border restrictions being tightened stronger each day, there are strong possibilities of strong hockey being played throughout Canada in general next winter. Usually during times of war amateur and professional pucksters are permitted to mingle without question.

Even in Peterboro' they are contemplating additional hockey strength as the result of international border restrictions by the immigration authorities of both countries. Young Walt Gerow is in Peterboro' but hopes to try out with the Rangers. Then there would be Bill Calladine, Ned Viteralli and other former Petes, who have performed in U.S.A. amateur hockey circles for the past few years, available for a strong senior team in the Liftlock City. The border regulations would in no way assist Belleville's hockey set-up which, judging from last winter's ice activities, means that our strongest puck-chasing set-up locally may be the city juvenile league, plus a junior "B" sextette. It is not expected the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" will be represented in the intermediate "A" circles next winter under the present conditions.

Bill Garden, manager of the Picton Dominions, called us today to say that his team had beaten the Uptown Juniors 5-4 last Friday, instead of the score being 6-5 as was announced by the Juniors upon their return. Skipper Garden points out the Uptowns scored at least one run during the completion of a Picton doubleplay, which would make up the difference in the scoring. It is doubtful if anything will ever be done regarding the incident, as the local City League play-offs are slated to open here next week. In the meantime tonight's Shell "Oiler" at Picton game is to be played at the Sandbanks in connection with the Picton Chamber of Commerce picnic, while Friday night may see the termination of the league in order to arrange play-off dates, which may have to be changed until Tuesdays and Thursdays owing to home guard parades and drills.

Do you remember when Jimmy Wilde, one of the greatest "little men" the fistic profession has known, outpointed Pal Moore in a furious 20-round bout at London 21 years ago today to retain flyweight supremacy. The Welshman overcame a big lead with a great two-fisted display in late rounds to gain the unanimous verdict.

Heralded as the best intermediate softball team in Eastern Ontario, the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" found the sledding pretty tough against Johnny Bawden in last night's war charity tussle over at the Flats. The "Oilers" beat the "Airmen" 6-1 as Bawden limited the Gibson-Legris-Stevenson nine to five bingles. Something less than $20.00 was realized for the Belleville boys now enlisted with the 34th Battery in Kingston. The money will be spent for sports equipment. Along the same lines the Simpson girls of the Toronto Sunnyside League will play the R.C.A.F. a war charity game at Bayside Park in Trenton on Thursday night. The Simpson girls play a fast game of softball, if you're interested.

SPORT SPICE—Today we find Stub Barrett's K-Nines leading the local girls' softball loop as the result of beating the Metros 23 to 11 last night. . . . There was plenty of club-swinging as the K-Nines pounded out 21 hits and the Mets got 15, making a total of 36 hits for 34 runs. . . . With the announcement that the Lake Shore "Blue Devils" would not operate next winter, the Hamilton "Tigers" are beginning to roar once. . . . Don't be at all surprised if a number of the Allan Cup champions finally wind up in the Ambitious City. Already Lex Cook, the Trenton-born playing-coach of the Blue Devils, has been visiting in Hamilton, and not altogether on a vacation either. . . Jack Dempsey won again, Jack hit Wrestler "Bull" Curry and Curry hit the canvas. . . . Art Cole says now that the warm weather is with us (?) his hitting eye has returned. . . . He proved it by getting a couple of extra base knocks last night.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Cisco Kid And the Lady"

The latest adventures of O. Henry's lovable outlaw of the Old Southwest will come to the screen at the Capitol next, when 20th Century-Fox's "The Cisco Kid And the Lady" presents Cesar Romero and the new Cisco. Marjorie Weaver and Virginia Field supply the romantic interest to this most romantic of all American outlaws and plenty of excitement, action and laughs are promised.

"Tom Boy"

The added attraction brings to the Capitol screen a bashful country boy and a battling big city girl, Marcia Mae Jones and Jackie Moran team up to lick a gang of dangerous crooks. Thrills and laughs that tug at your heartstrings—in this swell story of youth.

To complete the big double feature attraction is the first chapter of the new adventure serial "Buck Rogers," the Baer-Galento fight pictures and Universal news of the world.

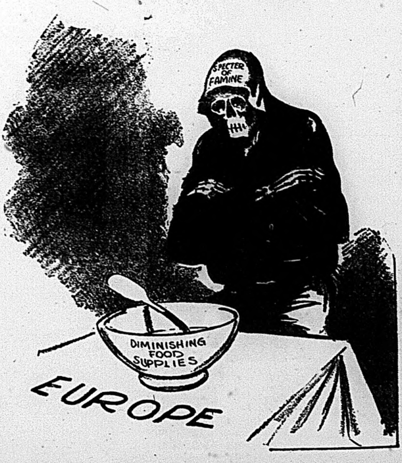
A British bomber wings its way over a blazing enemy tanker in the English channel as Great Britain, in reprisal for raids upon her own merchant marine, lashes out against enemy shipping. Picture passed by British censor and cabled from London to New York.

Caramba! It's the Cisco Kid, O. Henry's renowned smiling desperado, in "The Cisco Kid and the Lady," showing next at the Capitol. On the same program, "Tomboy," star ring Marcia Mae Jones and Jackie Moran.

"CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD"



CECIL M. HART, FORMERMANAGER, CANADIENS, DIES

Twice Pilot of the Hockey Team That Won Stanley Cup Was 46 Years Old

INSURANCE BROKER

Took Great Delight in Organizing Amateur Hockey and Baseball Clubs

Montreal, July 17 (CP)—One of the strongest links with the flying Montreal Canadiens of a decade ago was severed today with the death of Cecil M. Hart, former manager of the National Hockey League in its most colorful season. He was 46 years old.

Twice pilot of the team in Stanley-Cup victories, Mr. Hart died at his home last night after an illness of three months.

The name of Hart is synonymous with those of the greatest of the Montreal Canadiens' many great stars. On the eight Habitants' teams that he piloted into playoff rounds were such stars as the late Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat, Pit Lepine, Georges Hainsworth and the Mantha brothers, Sylvio and Georges.

Twice, in the seasons of 1929-30 and 1930-31, he led teams that included those players to hockey's highest award—the Stanley Cup. In every one of the other six full seasons Hart held the reigns, the Canadiens entered the playoff round but in the ninth, 1939, the collapse of his team led to his being relieved of the manager's post midway through the season.

Jules Dugal, who worked with Hart as business manager of Canadiens said: "The passing of Cecil Hart is a great loss to sports. I always found Cecil to be one of the finest of sportsmen when we worked together with the Canadien hockey club."

Others were as sincere in their tributes. Eager to express their sorrow and pay a brief compliment to the career and personality of a "great sportsman" were Frank M. Calder, President of the N.H.L. who was a friend of Cecil's for more than 35 years, Cooper Smeaton, former N.H.L. official, and numerous other officials with whom Hart was connected both in hockey and in other branches of sport.

An insurance broker in the business world, Hart had little time for business if a sporting event were beckoning. In addition to professional hockey, he took delight in organizing amateur hockey and baseball clubs on which he sometimes took part as a player. He was the son of the late Dr. David A. Hart, who is commemorated annually in the N.H.L. by a trophy awarded annually to the player judged the most valuable to his team.

PROGRESS EXTREMELY GOOD

Washington, July 17—(AP) — Working at a $40,000,000-a-day clip, the United States National Defence Commission has placed army and navy orders totalling $1,661,891,494 in the last 40 days.

President Roosevelt, releasing the first detailed reports of the commission's accomplishments to date, praised the record compiled and told his press conference yesterday that the progress was extremely good.

LAKE SHORE TEAM DISBANDS FOR DURATION OF WAR

Blue Devils Captured Allan Cup Last Year and Have Been a Power in Hockey for Years

BUNCH OF STARS

Kirkland Lake May Keep the Blue Devils Together in the North Country

Kirkland Lake, Ont., July 17 — (CP)—Lake Shore Blue Devils, the north country marvels who streaked across the 1939-40 amateur hockey picture to the Canadian senior championship, have been disbanded for the duration of the war.

Announcement the Lake Shore Mines, sponsors of the Devils, will not enter a team in organized hockey during the remainder of the war was made last night by the team manager C. C. (Doc) Ames.

Blue Devils are leaving behind an impressive record and the disbanding throws on the market a bunch of stars whose services will be in demand in many parts of the Dominion. Hamilton and the Maritime Provinces are mentioned as likely spots for some of them.

Lex Cook, the playing-coach who paced the Devils to the Alan Cup last season already has been in communication with George Welfenbach, manager of Hamiton's entry in the senior Ontario Hockey Association last winter. Cook is vacationing with Welfenbach in Hamilton.

Joe Brown is out in Edmonton, too, and it is understood he and several other players have received offers from other teams. The names of Johnny McCreedy and Dick Kowcinak, two Winnipeg boys, Blink Bellinger of Hamilton and Doug Boston of Toronto also have been mentioned as Hamilton prospects. If they do not hook up in Hamilton it is said they possibly may head east to bolster Sydney Millionaires, eastern Canadian semi-finalists last season.

There is a move afoot here to keep the Devils together as a Kirkland Lake team.

TRACK AND FIELD STARS ARE READY

Ontario Championship Meet Being Staged in Toronto Today

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—A host of track and field stars famous throughout Ontario lined up today for the Ontario track and field championship here. The total entry list includes 135 who will battle for honors in the 14 events.

Senior pole vault champion Jack Pinn of Toronto will stack up against real opposition in Frank Lewarne, Canadian junior champion, Don Grant, former Dominion junior champion, both of Toronto, and Sonny Frid of Hamilton, former Dominion titleholder.

In the broad jump, two Negro stars, Sammy Richardson, St. Catharines, Canadian record-holder and Ollie Holland, Hamilton, will gun for the title held by Wallace Brown of Toronto. Holland, who once won the event in the British Empire games, will be trying the comeback trail.

FORMER BELLEVILLE YOUTH CELEBRATES NUPTIAL RITES

He was enamoured of a beautiful local girl. Unhappily, she had no use for such a dull, uninspiring mate—and told him so. Among other things, she said that he just didn't shine.

One day, gazing moodily at his boots, where his heart was, he suddenly leapt up shouting "Eureka" and dashed out to the nearest store. That evening, he was round at the young lady's house with a dozen roses and a shine in his eyes that rivalled the shine on his shoes he'd acquired with Nugget Shoe Polish. The rest, of course, was plain sailing. Let this be a shining example to all young men in love.—Adv.

JAPAN EXPECTED

new and stronger foreign policy was necessary.

'Peace Offensive' Expected

(In Chungking a spokesman for the Chinese regime of General Chiang Kai-Shek said he expected a Konoye cabinet would launch a "peace offensive' on the Asiatic continent.)

One of the chief reasons given for Admiral Yonai's fall was his government's failure to satisfy expansionists who demanded that Japan take full advantage of the "golden" situation created by the defeat of France and The Netherlands, both of whom have rich colonies in the Far East.

Yonai was attacked, too, for excessive "liberalism" and for not working closely enough with Italy and Germany.

Yakichiro Suma, Foreign Office spokesman, indicated in a press interview the British-Japanese negotiations over closing of the Burma route for war supplies to China might hit a snag in the change in ministries. Continuation of the negotiations, he said, would depend upon whether the new government found further instructions from London "satisfactory".

Give heed to that extra jacket when packing for a vacation. It will come in more useful than you think. A sensible model is of light worsted plaided in red, beige and brown. Hip-length with big buttoned pockets at the bustline.

Go to bed and be cool and comfy. A delightful summer nightie is of cool dimity in white with red or royal blue dots under a full-length coat that is white-dotted to match the blue or red dots of the gown.

FAILED TO RETURN, FOUND ON BEACH

Robert MacDonald, Aged Point Anne Resident, Found Dead from Heart Attack

After he had failed to return to his home for dinner on Tuesday, the body of Mr. Robert MacDonald of Point Anne was discovered by a searching party, lying a short distance from his boathouse on the shore of the Bay of Quinte at Point Anne early yesterday afternoon.

Mr. MacDonald had left his home around nine o'clock on Tuesday morning, intending to go to his boathouse to cut up a log for firewood but apparently had been stricken before he reached his destination and was not discovered until early afternoon when a searching party was formed by Mrs. MacDonald who had become alarmed over his absence at the dinner table.

Mr. MacDonald was in his 79th year and had lived all his life in the Point Anne district, being a stonecutter by trade and also popularly known as a fisherman in Bay of Quinte waters.

Coroner Dr. G. S. Cronk was called to the scene but decided that no inquest was necessary.

PORT OF TOBRUK RAIDED IN NIGHT

Two British Aircraft Collide in Midair as They Dive to Attack Target

Cairo, Egypt, July 17 (AP). — Royal Air Force planes again raided the Italian Libya port of Tobruk during the night, a communique announced today.

The text of the statement follows:

"Another night raid was carried out on Tobruk, many bombs falling in the target area. Dense clouds of smoke were seen as a result.

"Sidi Barrani, in the western desert (of Egypt), was raided yesterday by a large formation of Italian '79' bombers. There were no casualties. Damage was negligible.

"Valuable reconnaissance flights were carried out over various areas of Libya.

"Asmara airdrome buildings were raided yesterday. Several direct hits were registered by high explosive bombs.

"Unfortunately, in diving to attack through a cloud, two of our aircraft collided. One crashed to the ground but the other, although damaged, was brought back safely.

Italian Craft Shot Down.

"Italian aircraft attempting to raid Curmuc, the Sudan was brought down with rifle fire and crashed in flames.

"A large formation of CR42's was engaged over Malta by two R.A.F. fighters. One Italian aircraft was shot down, diving to the ground. One of our fighters crashed on landing.

"Reports from Rome and other enemy sources make grossly exaggerated claims that since Italy entered the war many British aircraft have been shot down at Malta. The fighter which crashed yesterday was the first R.A.F. casualty there in five weeks of fighting.

"Repeatedly two or three British fighters have gone into action against Italian formations up to 20 strong.

"Although greatly outnumbered, R.A.F. fighters accounted for ten enemy aircraft definitely shot down and seven more probably never returned to their bases owing to heavy damage inflicted upon them."

9 MEN KILLED IN BLAST ON SWEDISH WARSHIP

Stockholm, July 17—(AP)— Nine men were killed by a boiler explosion aboard "one of the bigger ships" of the Swedish fleet during manoeuvres at sea, the Admiralty announced today. It gave no further details.

PROVIDES GRADED

A certain degree of security will be provided under the act for 2,100,000 wage-earners by 1941, labor officials estimate.

Contributions next year will be about $67,200,000, of which employers and workers will contribute about $28,000,000 each and the government $11,200,000. Administration will cost about $5,250,00..

The bill climaxes a generation of agitation and an attempt in 1935 to enact such legislation which was ruled out by the Privy Council. With the British North America Act appropriately amended now for the purpose, this bill's constitutional path is clear.

B.N.A. Act Amended

The amendment to the B.N.A. Act, rushed through the British Commons and Lords at the request of both houses of the Canadian parliament, gave clear jurisdiction in the Unemployment Insurance field to the Dominion government. All provinces agreed to this step.

Whether the Bill becomes effective law within the next few weeks depends on whether it is referred to a special committee in the Commons or Senate and how prolonged proceedings there are. Indications have already been given that its progress through the Senate may be slow even if the Commons approves its provisions with despatch.

In introducing the resolution preliminary to the Bill, Labor Minister McLarty held the present a notably appropriate time for the setting up of such an insurance scheme. For its successful operation, a substantial fund had to be established during good times and more people were employed in Canada on July 1 last than at any time in the nation's history, he said.

Conservative Leader Hanson read a submission from the Canadian Chamber of Commerce asking that consideration of the Bill be put off until "adequate time" is allowed for consideration.

He said at least the Bill should be sent to a committee where industry and labor would be given an opportunity to make representations.

Urged Public Hearings

A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) sat on committees studying the matter through the sessions of 1928 and 1929 and from then until 1934 he urged it in private member resolutions six times. But yesterday he urged public hearings before a committee or postponement until next year.

The resolution was adopted early at the evening sitting and the House turned to consideration of resolutions in the budget covering the 10 per cent war exchange tax on imports.

This brought an outburst of Western indignation that this tax has been applied to implements of production, particularly farm production, and a non-party request that such implements be exempt.

Walter Tucker (Lib. Rosthern) roundly criticized the government for placing what he claimed was an additional burden on agriculture because he was certain Canadian manufacturers would take advantage of the tax to raise prices and no existing agency of the government could prevet it.

Mr. Tucker said if a supporter of the government could not register his views on such a subject and have his views considered parliament had lost its meaning. Agriculture was prepared to do its share and would take on additional burdens but not while others were able to benefit it from their suffering.

J. A. Ross (Con. Souris) Rene Jutras (Lib. Provencher), and D. A. McNiven (Lib. Regina) endorsed Mr. Tucker's arguments to a large degree and joined in his plea for exemption of farm implements from tax. No progress was made.

Applies to All Under $2,000 Pay

The Unemployment Insurance scheme will apply to everyone employed "under contract of service or apprenticeship", except those earning more than $2,000 a year or employed in specifically excepted occupations such as agriculture, fishing, lumbering, sea or air transportation, domestic service.

In contrast to the 1935 Bill, which provides a flat rate of contribution and benefit, the present bill is intended to protect the normal standard of living of the wage-earner. Contributions and benefits are divided accordingly into seven wage groups.

Workers contributions range from 12 cents a week for those earning $5.40 to $7.49 to $7.49 to 35 cents a week for those earning between $26 and $38.50 a week. Employers contribute 21 to 27 cents a week over the same scale.

Benefits After 30 Weeks

Benefits are to be paid after 30 weeks of 180 days' contributions within a two-year period. Benefits range from $4.08 for the lowest wage group listed to $12.24 for the highest group. Where there is a dependent the benefit in the lowest group is $4.80 and in the highest $14.40.

The formula on which benefit payments are made relates the benefit period directly to the employment record of the insured person, instead of paying benefits for a limited period like 13 weeks, as stipulated in the 1935 Bill.

This Bill states that a worker may draw one payment for every five contributions made in the previous five years, less one payment for every three benefit payments received in the previous three years. Involved as this sounds, it is designed to protect the fund from bad risks and persistent claims from casual and seasonal workers.

May Provoke Argument

A point expected to provoke some argument is the disqualification from benefits of a person who loses work "due to misconduct or a labor dispute in which he is directly involved."

However, at another point, the Act states that this will not apply where a person is discharged because he belongs to a union of workers. (Discharge of employees for union activities was made a criminal offence a year ago.)

Others disqualified from benefits are those unwilling to accept suitable employment, receiving an old age pension, being an inmate of a public institution or earning less than 90 cents a full day.

The whole machinery will be run by a three-man commission, the chairman appointed for ten years and the other two for five. One will be named "after consultation with" workers representatives ' and the other after consultation with employers' representatives.

Advisory Committee

The commission will have the assistance of an advisory committee which will report to the Government on the state of the Unemployment Insurance Fund as of the end of each calendar year. If this committee thinks the fund is likely to be insufficient to discharge its liabilities or more than sufficient for that purchase, it may recommend appropriate changes in the Act itself regarding rates and conditions.

A system of courts of referees is also provided for in the bill. These courts, presided over by an appointee of the commission, would include representatives of workers and employers.

Penalties Provided

Employers or employees failing to comply with the Act generally are liable to a maximum penalty of $250 or three months in jail.

Creation of a Dominion Employment Service, long mooted, is also provided under the commission. Regional divisions would be established and each regional office would be a clearing house for employment information and applications from the employment offices in the division, to bring employers and workers together over a wider area. Loans for transportation would be provided in certain circumstances for workers.

A national employment committee, representative of industry and labor, would advise and assist the commission in this phase of its work. Similar local committees would be appointed.

QUESTIONS

Jules Castonguay, Chief Electoral Officer for Canada and recently named Chief Registrar for National Registration also sent out his instructions to registrars indicating procedure to be followed for the three-day registration period about the middle of August.

15 Questions

There are 15 questions for both men and women. Men must answer three more questions and the women four more.

With stiff penalties provided for failure to answer, registrants must report nationality, military service if any, conjugal status, dependents, age, health, occupation, education, antecedents, unemployment, connection with farm life, if any, number of languages commanded.

The questions, many of them broken into sub-questions, are printed on the inside of a folded white card, one for men and another for women.

Under occupations, for instance, one section asks "What work can you do well?" or if a person is skilled in occupations or the professions specific information concerning the type of work must be given.

Under the defence services questions men must say whether they have served in any of the services. If so, when, where, with what unit and rank. If retired the reasons must be given and if rjected for service in the present war the reason and the place rejected must be shown.

Men must say whether they were brought up on a farm, until what age, whether they worked on a farm and how long and where, whether they can handle horses, drive a tractor, use farm machinery, milk a cow or do other farm work.

If there is any other particular occupation they wish to be specially trained in the government wants to know.

Women must state their experience in general, truck, fruit, poultry and dairy farming and business establishments, whether they can handle horses, drive motor trucks, automobiles, tractors, use farm machinery, milk cows or do plain cooking and indicate practical experience possessed but not described in answers to other questions.

Women must indicate if, in the event of national crisis, they could change their present occupation for another where they might return home daily or work away from home altogether.

Pay For Registrars

Mr. Castonguay said registrars in the various electoral districts will receive $6 a day for every day employed and assistants $5 a day. Deputy registrars will receive $3 a day for each day of registration. Others engaged in the work will be asked to do so voluntarily. Premises used also will be sought on a voluntary basis.

In polling divisions whether it is expected there will be more than 100 registrations two deputy registrars should be appointed, Mr. Castonguay said.

In selecting accommodation he suggested many persons would desire that only registration officials be within hearing distance when questions are answered and he called on the registrars to see that such proper accommodation is provided.

CIANO TO MEET

British minds and achieve a division of opinion.

Coincidental with the peace rumors is the rebirth of the continent of vague suggestions that Hitler does not want to smash Britain. Rather, it is said, he envisages it as a necessary buffer between the new Europe modelled on the German plan and the rest of the world.

Discussing such talk, the Daily Telegraph comments that it "must be assumed, however, that the reduction of Britain to impotency by one method or another figures in the immediate German program."

Armada Anniversary Friday

The Daily Mail pointed out that Friday—July 19—will be the anniversary of Britain's victory over the Spanish armada in 1588.

The press declared Prime Minister Winston Churchill had served notice in his broadcast last Sunday night that Britain "will tolerate no parley."

"Peace offensive" reports were interpreted variously by the British as intended to create a division of opinion between Britain and the United States, as reflecting an Italian desire to avoid a long struggle and as a German attempt to throw the British off guard before starting an offensive in force.

British and German warplanes fought over the English coast again yesterday and last night the sound of anti-aircraft fire over northeast England indicated the presence of more hostile planes.

The British reported three German bombers were shot down yesterday following attacks in which "some houses were wrecked bu the only casualties were a few persons injured" along the northeast coast of Scotland.

Britain's Mediterranean fortress of Gibraltar was raided four times yesterday by bombing planes. The extent of damage was not reported.

Italian bombers made a moonlight raid last night on the British eastern Mediterranean fleet at Alexandria, Egypt, but failed to hit any warships, Alexandria reports said.

Public Concern Negative

Public concern over the "peace offensive" reports, emanating from Grenoble where they appeared as dispatches from the Vichy correspondent of the Rightist and apparently semi-official newspaper, Le Petit Dauphinois, remained negative.

The forecast of an invasion attempt Friday did not seem to worry anyone much and there was a tendency to say: "That's Hitler's problem, not ours."

Britons busied themselves adding further strength to their defence, drilling themselves to withstand possible attacks by parachutists or by landing parties from the sea. Otherwise life continued much as it has during wartime.

Londoners Not Bothered Over Hitler

Berlin's threat that the Prime Minister's promise to defend London made it an open town subject to destruction did not bother Londoners because they have always expected that in time Hitler's forces would try to destroy their city if they could reach it. The fact that they have not been bombed in the capital yet they attributed merely to a disinclination of the German high command to see Berlin bombed in retaliation.

Enemy aircraft were reported sighted off the coast this morning and later heavy explosions were heard in the vicinity of one southeastern coast town.

TRADE PROSPECTS SEEM FAVORABLE

War Has Dislocated Much of Canada's Trade — Grain Shipments Curtailed

Ottawa, July 17—(CP)— Canada's general trade prospects for the present year appear favorable, a Trade and Commerce Department official indicated today, despite the British blockade of practically all continental Europe which has dislocated much of the Dominion's export traffic and caused serious curtailment of grain shipments.

Exports for 1940 might exceed $1,100,000,000, compared with about $926,000,000 last fiscal year, it was unofficially estimated.

With Canada augmenting her trade with an increasing stream of war supplies for Great Britain, total exports of all kinds for the five months ended May 31 were $437,316,000, compared with $327,167,000 in the same period of 1939. Imports were $405,396,000, compared with $257,370,000.

Pre-War Conditions

Prior to the outbreak of war, the Dominion maintained favorable trade connections with Europe, selling $76,100,000 worth of goods there in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1939, and buying only $38,400,000.

Virtually cut off since occupation of European countries by Nazi Germany is 8.2 per cent of Canada's total exports of $926,900,000 and 5.8 per cent of her total imports of $658,200,000.

Cutting off of these markets is highly important to Canadian trade, but does not constitute an overwhelming problem, it was said. In normal times, nearly 80 per cent of Canadian trade is done with the United Kingdom and the United States, and since the outbreak of war this percentage has risen to slightly more than 80 per cent.

Grain And Metals

Bulk of Canadian exports to continental Europe in peace times was grain and metals, the department official explained. Most metal exports have simply been diverted to Great Britain.

Officials see little indication at present, however, that Canada will be able to find grain markets to take the place of Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Switzerland and the Netherlands. Board of Grain Commissioners figures giving final destination of grain exports during the first 10 months of the 1939-40 crop year show that normally about 20 per cent of Canada's grain export went to these countries.

Europe's Pre-War Purchases

During this period continental Europe bought 21 per cent of Canada's wheat exports of 135,343,000 bushels; 60 per cent of durum wheat exports of 6,431,000 bushels; 19 per cent of oats exports of 4,551,633 bushels; 51 per cent of barley exports of 10,049,375 bushels; more than 95 per cent of rye exports of 2,674,606 bushels and all buckwheat exports of 252,114 bushels.

Principal importers of Canadian wheat and wheat flour were Belgium, taking 4.66 per cent of Canada's total exports; Denmark 1.66 per cent; Netherlands 5.64 per cent; Norway 3.89 per cent and Switzerland 2.38 per cent.

Normal markets lost to Canada for the duration of the war are indicated by exports for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1939. Main buyers of Canadian exports in order of importance, with Canadian imports bracketed: Germany $17,796,000 ($10,117,000); Belgium $9,952,000 ($6,211,000); Netherlands $9,903,000 ($3,535,000); France $8,777,000 ($5,950,000); Norway $7,664,000 ($729,000); Sweden $5,859,000 ($2,003,000); Czecho Slovakia $2,878,000 ($1,951,000); Italy $1,789,000 ($2,481,000); Denmark $1,673,000 ($176,000); Poland and Danzig $1,078,000 ($230,000); Switzerland $774,000 ($3,001,000) and Finland $463,000 ($77,000).

Pleads Guilty to Charges

Pleading guilty to charges of assaulting Constable Paul Lozo, Trenton, doing wilful damage to property and creating a disturbance Fred Azzis was remanded for sentence for one month, by Magistrate E. J. Butler here yesterday.

The magistrate allowed Azzis to go on his own bail so that he could make an effort to enlist with the Canadian Navy. The accused man applied for enlistment shortly after war broke out but so far has not been taken on the strength. Efforts will be made by prominent citizens in this town to have Azzis taken into the Navy.

Stanley Bolger, Windsor, was fined $7.00 and $2.50 costs in police court yesterday, when he pleaded guilty to speeding. Seventeen violators of the parking bylaw were hailed into court and fined one dollar and costs.

Millers Bros. in Second Place

Defeating the Benedict Proctors 12 to 5, last night, the Miller Bros. moved into sole possession of second place in the Trenton Softball League.

The Millers broke into the scoring column in the first frame with two runs, added three more in the third when Anderson clipped out a homer with two on bases. From that time on the Millers were never seriously threatened by their opponents. The Benedicts scored a single run in the second frame and two runs in the seven and eighth.

Coughlin on the mound for the Millers hurled snappy ball, allowing only 7 hits to his opponents. Free, doing the mound duties for the Benedicts, allowed 12 hits.

Anderson with a homer and a single and Niddery with three singles were the best at bat for the winners, while Bingham with two singles led the Benedicts. The lineup:

Student at Trenton

Word was received here this morning that Dr. D. Curry, former Trenton boy, lost his life while sailing on a lake in New York State yesterday. He was well-known here although he had practiced in New York since graduation.

The late Dr. Curry was a student of the Trenton High School and enlisted in the last war, while attending school. After serving in the war, he returned to Trenton to complete his High School education. Graduating, he attended McGill University, where he obtained his degree in medicine and went to the states to practice.

SHINING WINDOWS

by Kathleen Norris

INSTALMENT 9.

"I didn't know your grandfather had a ranch, dad," Dora said.

"Oh, yes, a fine farm, in New Jersey. Yes, I lived there all through my boyhood put myself through two years of Princeton and finished up at Stanford. Yes; we had a nice old place there at Morristown."

"If the rain would hold up I'd see if I could get a woman in to clean this whole place thoroughly," Sally Ballard said when the hot food had begun to have its inevitably pacifying effect.

"That's the first thing we must do, if we're to stay here at all. A man to clean the yard and a good woman—two women—in here to wash everything from top to bottom!"

"I don't know why we should hunt up some woman to clean this place," William Ballard said reflectively.

"William, look at it! And it may be weeks before we get your legacy."

"Well, but here we are, Sally, six able-bodied men and women. Why should we send out for another able bodied man and woman? I believe we could make a pretty good stab at getting this kitchen into shape tomorrow. Tomorrow's Thursday — the funeral isn't until Friday. We could go at it in the morning. There won't be anything complicated about it, just straight-ahead cleaning."

There was another example of strong self-control on the part of the other Ballards when the next morning, after breakfast, the man of the house said briskly, "Well, come on, now, everyone, and let's see what we can do with this kitchen."

Joyce presently was washing the inside of the windows Dodo crawled about the baseboard, wiping from it the grime of years. Their father worked busily at the sink; whatever the cleaner he used, it had a miraculous effect.

Finally the whole family had backed itself out of the room and the first sunshine that the Ballards had seen at La Perdita was shining bright and hot on all the drying cleanliness.

"Sunshine! Mother, come out! But don't step on our floor!" Joyce called in the brilliance and warmth of it under the oaks. The yard was a hopeless disorder of rubbish and pools, but the meadows rising beyond the barn were a sea of bright green; roofs sparkled and shone with raindrops, and larks, pouring out their heart-breaking notes, went whirling upward against a blue sky. The mountains rising just behind the ranch toward the west were deep ultramarine, but all the eastern world was bathed in light, and the village, in its smother of rounded oaks and tall eucalyptuses, looked like a newly varnished toy.

"Oh, this is really lovely," Mrs. Ballard had to concede. "Somehow I felt that we never were going to be done with the rain. Oh, this is nice!"

"I always thought farmers lived simple uneventful lives," Ben said.

"Getting eggs, milking, feeding stock, washing things, washing the things you wash the things with, carrying out ashes, carrying in wood, filling lamps, cooking! It's a swell life!"

"You get the flavor of it," his father said hearteningly.

"Oh, that isn't twelve striking in the kitchen!" Joyce said.

"Just twelve," her father said ruefully.

"Isn't it the strangest thing that you no sooner do anything," the girl said, "than it's a mealtime and you have to get out the butter and cut bread! Come on, Lissy!"

The kitchen was dry, it looked an entirely different place. The stove had been cleaned of ashes, brushed of soot, blackened. The floor showed something of the boards' original pine pine. Through the window panes the sunshine flooded brilliantly.

"Your mother and I will have to drive into San Francisco about five," William Ballard said. "We'll stay at some hotel and be down as soon as we can. The funeral's at nine tomorrow."

"Lucky you don't have to go in the rain."

"No; I think the rain's over. They say it was bad for the cherry crop."

"You sound like a real farmer."

"I feel like a real farmer."

"Some day, no matter what Cousin Laura left us, we'll buy you a little place like this, dad, and let you play with it!" Sally told him generously. She was nervous; Joyce knew she was thinking of the legacy.

"This place, except for the house perhaps, is all right," he said. "We could get a living off it even without the prune crop."

"Well, that's something. There are a good many men and women in this state who'd be glad of that."

"But this," Sally said quickly, "this isn't living!"

"Food and warmth and shelter."

The sun was gone when she and their father climbed into the car.

"We'll come back with news," Sally Ballard said in an undertone to her oldest daughter as they started.

The brother, the three sisters, stood watching them out of sight.

They all went in together. The night outside was closing in black and chilly, but the kitchen was warm and clean and still faintly, pleasanty scented with ammonia and wet wood.

"Now I can't wait to get at the closet and the other rooms!" Joyce said. Lissy sighed.

"The thing I miss," Dodo said when they were at supper, "is having some one like Edna go in and out of your room and put things away. If I drop a sock on the floor now, there it lies until I pick it up. It seems so funny!"

"The old man gets a great kick out of milking and cleaning and all the rest of it; he's been through the mill since the business went on the rocks," Ben said. "All right; that's his lookout. But I'd go straight out of my mind if I stayed here long!"

Two kerosene lamps were burning gallantly in the kitchen now, but after the dishes were finished and the place in order,, the girls wearily decided against a rubber of bridge, against any effort whatsoever, and carried one lamp into their bedroom for an early finish to the long day. It seemed to Joyce that they had been on the ranch for weeks, for months, yet this was only their third night there. Tired, dirty, yet she was beginning to feel at home, to feel smoewhat equal to the demands of cooking, eating, sleeping, that had so overwhelmed them all yesterday.

A second morning dawned through a thick fog; it was ten o'clock before the sun burst out. During breakfast they talked of Cousin Laura and the will; after breakfast some one suggested that they walk up past the barns to the canyons that forked into the hill to the north and southwest, and get a more comprehensive view of their domain. Joyce got herself into riding breeches, belted on an old leather coat, stepped out into the yard to see a car parked by the oak, and a tall boy beaming at her. Paul!

She whispered his name was instantly in his arms. They had only a moment together before the others came out.

"I thought you were going to Portland with your father!"

"He's not going until Saturday. I set my alarm for six and came straight down! Joy, how are you, darling, and did you miss me?"

"Miss you?" she said. Tall, lovely, laughing in her boyish clothes, she stood holding to his arms with both hands. "You darling, to come and find us!" she said. And she poured out to him the desperate, funny story of the week.

"I wish I'd been here for it!" Paul said jealously. "Your father milking the cows and you going for eggs! And your mother, how does she stand it?"

"Mother doesn't like it, but of course she's awfully decent," Joyce said somewhat hesitatingly. "I think the more dad likes it, the less she does," she added ingenuously. "She and Lissy act as if it were only for a few days, much less weeks, but dad is talking about getting tomato plants and putting late corn in."

Paul surveyed the forlorn high boxlike house, the shabby disorderly yard, and shook his head.

"You couldn't stay here. It's—well, it's all right, but even after you got it all into shape and the tomatoes were growing and all that, what would you have? Nothing! Listen, let's clear the yard before your father gets back! I have to get in on this!"

"You will not!" said Ben issuing from the kitchen to shake hands with Paul, and overhearing the last remark.

"Nix, we're going to clean this yard!" Paul insisted. "Come on, it'll be lots more sport than just walking!"

"Oh, let's not clean anything else," Lissy said languidly as she joined them. "Hello, Paul, it was cute of you to find us!"

But Paul commenced work. He had seized the protruding wet corner of some black rough material embedded deep in packed earth; it might have been oilcloth or linoleum or canvas. As he tugged it free the accumulated rubbish on top of it rolled and slid in every direction.

"Whoever was here last simply went native," he said. "Where can we have a bonfire, Ben?"

"I wonder we didn't think of doing this to surprise dad," Dodo said.

Joyce was in wild spirits and as the work and the warmth of the bonfire flushed her face and curled her hair she looked her loveliest; a brown-eyed gipsy in an old white sweater with the trimmest of riding breeches on the slimmest of legs. Paul's presence made all the difference between stagnation and full pulsing glorious life.

Characteristically he had brought a huge bag of food with him. Sausages, cake, cheese. This was Paul, Joyce thought; he never forgot anything!

"I didn't know how you were fixed up here," he apologized as the girls exclaimed appreciatively over the augmented larder. "I knew it was the last jumping-off place."

They carried their plates and chairs to the immaculate yard and feasted in a sort of circle with the steps for a table.

The freshly turned earth was raked neatly now; there was not a rusted can nor an old rope or plank or bit of broken machinery in sight. The fire smoldered sleepily; the sun had already turned to a lighter brown the neat ridges made by the rake. The Ballards could not sufficiently admire the work of their hands.

"We must be strangely dumb," Joyce presently observed. "There was nothing to cleaning this yard but work, and we've been talking ever since we got here about whom we could get to clean the yard for us! I suppose we could paint the house or put in a bathroom if we made up our mind to it."

Unreasonable Increases In Lumber Prices Will Be Dealt With

Ottawa, July 17 (CP)—An attempt will be made to deal with any unreasonable increases in lumber prices, H. R. McMillan, timber controller of the Munitions and Supply Department, announced today at a press conference.

"Any price increase, in my opinion, is contrary to the public interest" he said, "and my intention is to resist it. If any contractors contemplating government work or engaged in such work should encounter noticeable increases over those of June, 1940, and they will report them specifically to this department an attempt will be made to deal with such increases."

Mr. McMillan said that lumber was a large ingredient in the government's building program. Stocks in Canada were adequate and production was adequate. Naturally stocks might be reduced.

The impression might be created that there was a scarcity and an undesirable price rise might start, fed by imagination and gossip.

Prices in June, 1940, were up from five to eight per cent over those of last year—accounted for to some extent by increases in cost of labor and materials.

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Gladdis and Harvey came over to play bridge after supper, and Harvey and pop started to talk about the income tax and how it was going to get worse instead of better, and Gladdis said, O, money money money, is that all there is in the world?

That's all there is in the banks, pop said, and ma said, Money isn't everything, at least it isn't to me. If I had all the money of my fondest dreams, the only luxuries I'd ask for would be 2 servants in the house, one to cook and take care of downstairs and the other to wait on table and act as upstairs maid. Just 2 servants and 3 or 4 shelves constantly full of hats so that I'd never be faced with the embarrassing question of whether people remembered this or that hat from the last time they saw me, she said.

I assure you I wouldn't ask much more if I was a multy millionairess, Gladdis said. All I'd ask would be 2 cars so I could have one for my very own with perhaps a man to drive it who could make himself useful in innumberable other ways so he wouldn't be such a luxury really. Just that and enough shoes to match every conceivable shades of stockings she said, and Harvey said, My own demands would be laughably modest if I had unlimited resources, just a simple back and front entrance to my office, one leading to a plain tennis court and the other to an unobstrusive swimming pool.

I'd be just as easily sattisfied, pop said. Whether it was millions or billions all I'd ask would be to start each day right by being awakened in the morning by a bevy of about 20 singing maidens, all as good as they were beautiful and with enough nollege of the world to be shocked at the site of a man in his pidjammers, he said.

Being the start of bridge.

J. P. Bickell, Canadian mining executive, is reported en route to England where he will be associated with Lord Beaverbrook in the wartime speedup of airplane production.

Two Suggestions For Applicants To The Air Force

Ottawa — Applicants for enlistment in the Royal Canadian Air Force can avoid waste time and personal inconvenience by carrying out two suggestions made today by R.C.A.F. headquarters officers.

All prospective recruits living at some distance from the nearest of the 19 R.C.A.F. recruiting centres should first write to the commanding officer of the recruiting centre to arrange an appointment.

The second suggestion was that when the applicant keeps the appointment he should bring with him all the necessary documents for the completion of his application. Essential for such a purpose are a birth certificate, a marriage certificate if the applicant is married, evidence of education, two letters of reference from reputable citizens or employers, a discharge certificate if the applicant has served with His Majesty's armed forces at any time, and what other personal papers the applicant considers may advance his chances for enlistment.

War Office Will Investigate Charge Refugees Aboard Ship

London, July 17—(CP Cable) — Charges that anti-Nazi and anti-Fascist refugees were put on board the liner Arandora Star with Nazis and Fascists were made in the House of Commons Tues. The ship was torpedoed by a German submarine July 3 while on its way to Canada with the internees, with a loss of 968 lives.

Anthony Eden, War Minister, said his department understood that the liner carried only category "A" aliens and did not include any refugees.

George Strauss, Labor, asked Mr. Eden if he was aware that "some men who had been sentenced to terms of imprisonment by the Nazis and had been beaten by the Nazis and had been accepted in this country by the Czech Refugee Committee" were on board.

Col. Josiah Wedgwood, Independent, insisted that men in categories A, B and C were on the ship.

Mr. Eden said the War Office would make further inquiries into the matter.

2 More Naval Drafts Arrive In England

Ottawa, July 17 (CP)—Arrival in England for training in Royal Navy establishments of two more drafts of 25 officers from the Royal Canadian naval volunteer reserve, was announced Tuesday at naval service headquarters here. Personnel of other drafts already has been selected and will proceed overseas in the near future.

Plans have been completed to enroll 150 more men as ratings who will be sent to England for training. 'NO WISH TO BE

Commerce Secretary Harry Hopkins said he had "feeling and assurance" that "when the President is nominated he will accept".

For 25 minutes, the delegates let loose a bedlam of shouting and marching last night when Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky mentioned the President's name during his speech accepting the permanent chairmanship of the convention.

And then, when he finally read the message from the White House they brought to the big stadium a 50-minute tumult.

"I and other close friends of the President have long known that he has no wish to be a candidate again", Barkley said.

"We know ,too, that in no way whatsoever has he exerted any influence in the selection of delegates or upon the opinions of delegates to this convention.

Announces Facts

"Tonight, at the specific request and authorization of the President, I am making this simple fact clear to this convention.

"The President has never had and has not today any desire or purpose to continue in the office of President, to be a candidate for that office, or to be nominated by the convention or that office.

"He wishes in all earnestness and sincerity to make it clear that all of the delegates to this convention are free to vote for any candidate."

All the pent-up emotions that had been held back through two days of routine and oratory burst forth as Barkley finished.

"We want Roosevelt," the delegates yelled.

"Florida wants Roosevelt."

"Georgia wants Roosevelt."

"Illinois wants Roosevelt."

"New Jersey wants Roosevelt."

And so they went until it began to look as if the convention's regular procedure might be swept aside and the nomination thrust upon Mr. Roosevelt at once.

But Barkley, who after delivering the long awaited message had been alternately kissing state standards, autographing the cardboard placards and acting as a cheer leader through the big microphones, stepped in and restored order.

Platform Is Ready

Senator Robert Byrnes of South Carolina, floor leader for the Roosevelt forces, announced that the Resolutions Committee had finished its squabbles over what the platform should contain and that the document could be adopted at this afternoon's session.

"Tomorrow night we can meet to finish the job for which you came here — of drafting President Roosevelt," he said, and the delegates began whooping again.

All the thorny spots in the foreign policy section of the platform were said to have been planed away thus eliminating the likelihood of any floor fight and giving assurance of easy adoption.

The foreign plank was described as satisfactory to those seeking a strong anti-war stand. Senator Burton Wheeler of Montana, for example, called the undisclosed statement "a very good plank." He recently had threatened to leave the Democratic party if it became a "war party."

Barkley's speech last night termed Wendell Willkie, the Republican residential nominee, a "political chameleon" because he left Democratic ranks two years ago, and said the Republican platform was "written in mud with the feet of a weasel."

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, July 17

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

STRESS and storm, with problems and perplexities dominate on this day according to the lunar and mutual aspects. There may be delays and disappointments, with much concern pertaining to finances. Much wrangling about contracts writings or legal documents is presaged although the major element of anxiety may be found in domestic, social or emotional disturbances.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which is discretion and complacency may turn woe and regret into gratification and harmony, this especially in the private life, social, domestic and romantic. In such relations there is sign of delays, disappointments and obstacles, with uncertainty and discord about money matters.

A child born on this day may be disposed to impetuosity and outbursts of temperament, although not malicious and unkindly. However, it may keep the household on tenterhooks, unless disciplined in early youth.

For Thursday, July 18

SURPRISING opportunities for progress and prosperity await the industrious, faithful and persistent on this day judging by very benefic aspects of major planets. Hard work, steadfastness and stability of character are sure to reap where they have sown, and with bounty, generosity and good will from those in position.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of splendid prospects for prosperity and progress, suddenly arising and probably uprooting. Such rewards come in appreciation of sound merit and stability of character and purpose.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Alias The Deacon"

The merriest screen comedy in months, Bob Burns in "Alias The Deacon" with such other notable favorites as Mischa Auer, Dennis O'Keefe, Peggy Moran, Ed. Brophy and Guinn (big-boy) Williams, is the next attraction coming to the screen of the McCarthy theatre. John Wayne in an action-loaded western "Telegraph Trail" is the co-feature hit on the same program, with "Alias The Deacon" and two excellent short subjects "Screen Snapshots" and an amusing cartoon entitled "Park Your Baby."

"Women in War"

Featuring Elsie Janis, Wendy Barrie and Patric Knowles, the exciting and dramatic screen production "Women in War" is still the feature presentation at the McCarthy theatre and if you have not as yet enjoyed its superb entertainment we recommend it as one of the ones in the top group which you "must see" the balance of the current program at the McCarthy theatre is also outstanding and includes Andy Pandy cartoon in technicolor.

AT THE BELLE

Two Girls on Broadway"

Tops in entertainment and fast-moving action, the film introduces a new dance team to audiences in the persons of Lana Turner and George Murphy. This is a happy teaming. Their romantic scenes are delightful and their dance numbers sensational.

All in all, "Two Girls on Broadway" is ideal entertainment for the entire family. Excellent performances are turned in by all three of the featured players, including Joan Blondell in addition to the team already mentioned. Miss Blondell departs from her more familiar comedy characterizations for the role of Molly Mahoney, elder sister of Lana Turner, who faces heartbreak in her sacrifice of romance so that her kid sister might have a chance at love and happiness.

Director S. Sylvan Simon has inserted the song and dance numbers of the plot without halting the fast pace of the story. Such songs as "My Wonderful One Let's Dance" and "Broadway's Still Broadway" are bound to be whistled and hummed by moviegoers for many weeks to come.

"Calling Philo Vance"

Surprise mystery thrillers have long been movie favorites. And when it's an S.S. Van Dine yarn, that means tops in this type of story. The artistry of Van Dine has been recognized since he first conjured the whimsical, complex, super-detective Philo Vance. And his special technique of building clue on clue through to the denouement is as entertaining as the fictional Vance, himself.

To date there have been a number of Philo Vances in pictures. First was William Powell, then Warren William, Basil Rathbone and Edmund Lowe. Now comes a new Philo from Hollywood in the person of Jame Stephenson. The film, "Calling Philo Vance," which is announced as the companion feature, stars the British actor with Margot Stevenson, promising young actress Warner's imported from Broadway. Also cast are such talented featured players as Henry O'Neill, Edward Brophy, Sheila Bromely and Ralph Forbes.

The clever plot, though fictional, is one that might have been taken from current newspaper headlines. It involves the intrigue and adventure in international espionage, revolving around an airplane manufacturer whose super-bomber is coveted by three nations.

Basil Sydney and Lydia Sherwood are the romantic interest in Edgar Wallace's "Four Just Men," now at the Belle with Ellen Drew and Robert Paige in "Women Without Names."

MINE WORKERS SUSTAIN CHAMBERLAIN

Blackpool, July 17 (CP)—A resolution demanding the retirement of Neville Chamberlain and his Conservative colleagues from the government was defeated by the British Mine Workers Federation today. The war vote was 430,000 to 161,000.

Ottawa, July 17.—(CP)—Recently a number of highly-qualified United States pilots have joined the Royal Canadian Air Force, an Air Ministry source said here.

These fliers have outstanding flying experience and many have more than 1,000 flying hours in all types of modern aircraft, it was stated. They passed the stiff physical tests of the R.C.A.F. and met all requirements.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Britain Agrees to Japan's Request to Stop War Supplies Reaching China

Prime Minister Churchill Explains Suspension of Transport is for Three Months' Period—Transit Prohibited Through Hong Kong

BRITISH RELATIONS

Britain Prepared to Offer Her Collaboration and Contribution to Attainment of Aims of Both China and Japan, but Mr. Churchill Declares 'It Must be Clear That if They Are to be Attained it Must be by Process of Peace and Conciliation and Not by War or Threat of War'

London, July 18—(CP)— Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that Britain has agreed to Japan's request to stop war materials and "certain other goods" reaching China via Hong Kong and the Burma Road.

He said the government of Burma agreed to the suspension for three months of the transport of ammunition, gasoline, trucks and railway material and that the same categories would be prohibited from transit through Hong Kong, where he said the export of arms and ammunition has been prohibited since January, 1939.

Mr. Churchill added that Britain was not unmindful of her obligations to China but was bound to have regard to the present world situation and "the dominant fact that we ourselves are engaged in a life and death struggle."

British Relations

"We have persistently asserted our desire to see assured to China a free and independent future and we have as frequently expressed our desire to improve our relations with Japan," he said.

"To achieve these objectives two things were essential— time and a relief of tension. On the one hand it was clear that the tension was rapidly growing owing to the Japanese complaints about the passage of war material by the Burma Route. On the other, to agree to the permanent closure of the route

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Ocean influence Temperatures over the oceans are controlled mostly by the currents, and these are largely set in motion by the prevailing winds. The trade winds blowing toward the equator from the northeast and southeast converge and form a great equatorial westerly current. Near the continents this current diverges to the north and to the south, and on the eastern side of North America forms the Gulf Stream. This stream spreads out over the North Atlantic Ocean and its warming influence is felt over most of Europe and even over western Asia.

PREMIER HEPBURN READY FOR WORK

Returns to Queens Park Following Illness of Six Weeks

Toronto, July 18 (CP)—Bronzed and appearing fit for resumption of his duties, Premier Mitchell Hepburn returned to his office today following an illness of nearly six weeks. The Premier reported himself ready for work and will not take a further holiday, as reported, in northern Ontario.

"I'm here to stay," the Premier declared.

Immediately upon his arrival he went into conference with Chester Walters, Controller of finance, to obtain a first hand report on the province's finances, and what may be expected from revenues due to increased federal taxation and war conditions generally. Later, the Premier presided over a cabinet meeting.

Discussing mooted changes in the cabinet, the Premier scouted these reports with: "I'm not contemplating any changes." Later he qualified this statement slightly my saying he was "not denying or affirming the report."

While reports have also indicated the Premier might hold by-elections in five vacant seats in the province, Mr. Hepburn declared the present is no time to hold these.

"I don't think the people are anxious to have by-elections at the present [illegible]der war conditions," Mr. He[illegible]plished. "There's lots of [illegible]," he added, "at least before the next session of the legislature."

EVACUATION OF CHILDREN CALLED 'UNWARRANTED'

Prime Minister Churchill Says He Does Not Believe Military Situation Requires it

ISLAND WELL DEFENDED

Any Further Emigration That May be Possible Will be Taken to Restore Balance Between Classes

London, July 18 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that an exodus of children to the dominions and the United Stateh is unwarranted and that he did not believe the military situation required it.

Mr. Churchill said the proposed exodus is not physically possible, and that what offers of homes overseas are accepted will be shared fairly by rich and poor.

"I must frankly admit that the full bearings of this question were not appreciated by the British government at the time it first was raised," he said.

"It was not foreseen that the mild countenance given to this plan would lead to a movement of such dimensions, and that a crop of alarmist and depressing rumors would follow at its tail, detrimental to the interests of national defence.

"I take full responsibility for the steps originally taken, and I ask for the indulgence of the House on account of the many difficulties through which we have been passing."

Henry A. Wallace May be Roosevelt's Running Mate

Chicago, July 18 (AP)—Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, was reported today to have President Roosevelt's favor for the Vice-Presidential nomination on the 1940 Democratic ticket.

This word circulated after the special committee named to notify President Roosevelt of his own renomination had been in telephone communication with the White House.

The President's convention leaders were reported to have assured Mr. Roosevelt that they had already received sufficient pledges of support to bring about the nomination of his choice for his running mate.

Unanimous Reports Of Good Times in Canada by Tourists

New York, July 18—(CP)— The World-Telegram today made reference to a "whispered campaign of distortion" in an editorial pointing out that "regardless of the war, Canada remains one of the major attractions for American vacationists."

"Whole groups of Americans have received warnings that their compatriots have had unpleasant experiences in Canada because of the war," the editorial said, describing these warnings as the result of the campaign of distortion.

"From those who have been there/(in Canada) this season we've heard practically unanimous reports of good times as usual," the newspaper said.

French Outpost In Indo-China Seeks for Clue Concerning Future

By CHARLES H. KLINE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hanoi, French Indo-China, July 18—(AP)—A virtual orphan of the war on the other side of the world, this sprawling, anchor-shaped French oriental outpost is anxiously eyeing four world capitals for a clue to the future.

Japan first because she has manifest her interest in concrete form by sending a fleet into the surrounding China Sea waters to keep close watch on what's going on.

The Japanese explained their move officially as insurance against further Chinese use of this major supply line. Observers see the ultimate possibility of a Japanese protectorate over Indo-China as well as The Netherlands East Indies. Both would fit into Japan's aims for a "new order" in East Asia.

London's position is second only to Tokyo's because of Indo-China's close proximity to the Straits Settlements, with the Singapore naval base at their southern tip. Any change in the status of this French possession would affect these British holdings.

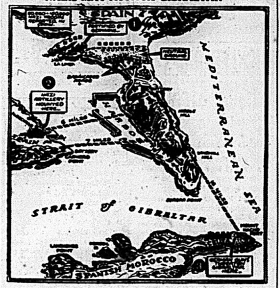
NAZIS MAY ATTACK GIBRALTAR



This map shows how the Axis powers are reported to be preparing to assault Gibraltar, the mighty fortress that guards the entrance to the Mediterranean. Spain's entrance into the war is reported hinging on Italy's success in the Mediterranean.

Franco Wants Gibraltar And Seeks Expansion In Africa, He Declares

Claims He Has 2,000,000 Men in Army Ready to Back Up His Mission Which He Says is to Fulfill Will of Queen Isabella — Fortress is Very Heavily Fortified

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

General Francisco Franco, phalangist ruler of Spain, today dipped an oar tentatively into the war picture by asserting that it was his mission to fulfill the will of Queen Isabella and restore Gibraltar to Spain.

Franco asserted he had an army of 2,000,000 ready to back up what he considered Spain's aspirations, which include expansion in Africa and the conservation of national unity.

The little general who has aped the axis rulers since his seizure of power after a bitter civil war in which they helped him with men, arms and aircraft, apparently feels he can show his gratitude by exercising a bit of nuisance value.

Spain long ago was reported to have placed big guns at Algeciras, across the bay from "Gib" and on the North African coast, across the straits. The guns at the time were said to have been supplied by Germany, but the British government refused to be drawn by questions on the subject.

Capture of the 1,396-foot high "rock" would undoubtedly be of considerable assistance to the axis partners in the Mediterranean where Italy's navy appears helpless in the face of the British Mediterranean fleet, but the operation would be a considerable one.

Captured By British-Dutch, 1704.

Gibraltar, virtually a city inside a great rock, was captured by a joint British-Netherlands force in 1704. The Spaniards, last time they tried to take it, besieged it without success for three years and seven months, from 1779 to 1783.

Undoubtedly a modern siege would inflict more damage than the former Spanish attempt, if only because of the greater weight and the greater striking power of modern artillery. British authorities showed they placed credence in Spanish gestures by telling persons useless in a military sense to leave as soon as possible.

Franco has been reported preparing for action against Britain for several days. One of his gestures, it was said, would be sequestration of the Rio Tintos copper mines, among the world's richest, which are owned by British capital.

Besieged Company Slips Thru Italian Lines Safely

Company of King's African Rifles Held Fort of Moyale for Three Weeks

WATER RUNS OUT

London, July 18 (CP)—Withdrawal by night of a battered, thirsty company of the King's African Rifles through Italian lines about Moyale, British Kenya, after being besieged for three weeks was described in military circles today.

They made their way to the safety of a reinforcement column Sunday night.

The British troops held on to Moyale, a colorful oasis with buildings of red clay on the edge of the Ethiopian desert, from June 28 until July 14 despite heavy Italian shelling. Two attacks, supported by artillery, were turned back on June 28 and July 5.

But by July 11 the beleaguered garrison faced a new danger—lack of water. Wells ran low.

The rescuers took their position on a ridge where their weapons covered the fort. Though the fort is a strong one, it is dominated by several hillside points in Italian territory. Dense bush enabled Italian forces to move easily to concealed positions.

On the night of July 14, after a day of sporadic fighting, the besieged company, travelling light, slipped through Italian lines and gained the safety of the British position.

Ministers Asked By Churchill to 'Sleep at Offices'

Those "Whose Duties Are Intimately Connected With Conduct of War" Are Those to Whom He Refers

London, July 18 (CP).—Prime Minister Churchill has asked all ministers "whose duties are intimately connected with the conduct of the war" to sleep at their offices.

"The reasons for this are sufficiently obvious," said Mr. Churchill in the House of Commons today.

Commons Told Britain is Open to Any U. S. Offer to Send Ships for Evacuee Children

London, July 18—(CP)—Britain, wrestling with a new Japanese threat to interests in the Orient, today faced also an avowed threat by Spain to attempt to retake Gibraltar, rock fortress which has been British since the days of Isabella, sponsor of Columbus' discovery of America.

Meanwhile Nazi airmen slashed today at England, Wales, Scotland and British shipping in the English Channel but reports indicated they all missed vital targets.

Over the channel six dive bombers attacked ships. An eyewitness to the encounter said it was apparent none of the ships was hit, while one of the raiders was believed shot down by fighter planes or anti-aircraft fire from the vessels.

WILLKIE TO MAKE 2-TERM TRADITION A MAJOR ISSUE

Republican Candidate Believes Voters Will Repudiate Roosevelt for Seeking Third Term if He Stands

STATEMENT ISSUED

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 18 —(AP) — Wendell L. Willkie is ready to make "the sanctity of our two-term tradition" a major issue in his fight for the Presidency against President Roosevelt.

The Republican nominee was sitting in the Old Central City Opera House last night when he received word that Mr. Roosevelt had been nominated for a third term on the first ballot—as Willkie frequently had predicted.

"It's fine," Willkie said to several who shook hands with him.

He issued this prepared statement:—

"I am greatly gratified. It ought to be a great campaign.

"We will have presented to the voters of the country the issues which have been created by the new deal, advocated for the new deal by the author and ablest advocate of that philosophy and the directing force of the New Deal practices.

"In addition, the American voters will have their first opportunity to pass upon the question of a third term.

"Other presidents have aspired to a third term but that issue heretofore as been determined in the negative by political conventions. This election the voters themselves will have the opportunity to pass upon the doctrine of the indispensibility of one man and the sanctity of our two-term tradition. . . . "

London, July 18—(CP)— The Transport Ministry today banned private purchases of automobiles, effective Saturday, to divert vehicles now in stock to Britain's export markets.

Toronto, July 18 (CP)—Some men, 80 years of age, demanded guns to defend their homes in Britain, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacMillan said today after reaching their former home here from the island of Guernsey. They left the tiny island four days before it was occupied by the Germans.

With them they brought a message from the Canadian high commissioner in London, Vincent Massey:

"Remember us to all our Canadian friends and tell them we who are left are facing up to the great task which lies ahead. It is a task which is fierce but which will ultimately end in a victory for our just cause."

Mr. MacMillan added that the British people is even more indomitable than press reports indicate. "Their spirit is that everyone wants to be armed so they can take a shot at the Germans as they come up the street."

Chicago, July 18—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt was renominated for President early today by a Democratic national convention which, with a thunderous disregard for precedent, flung aside the 144-year-old two-term tradition.

Ignoring the President's message that he had no "desire or purpose" to be a candidate, the delegates gave him 946 13-30 votes on a first ballot roll call to a collective 148 11:15 for four other candidates.

Each of the others quickly removed himself from the field, and the nomination was made unanimous.

TUNIS, HENDRY ARE ACQUITTED

Magistrate Finds Nothing in Pamphlets to Justify Conviction Under Bylaw

Toronto, July 18—(CP)— Harry Tunis and William Hendry, Labor Union members of Toronto, were acquitted by Magistrate W. E. McIlveen today of charges of issuing pamphlets "deemed to cause unrest in the community." The court was unable to find anything in the pamphlets, said to be issued by the Socialist Labor Party, to justify a conviction under the anti-pamphlet distribution by-law of suburban New Toronto.

(C. H. Millard, Secretary for Canada of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and Labor member of the recently-established National Labor Supply Council, said in Toronto yesterday he would test validity of the by-law by distributing pamphlets in New Toronto today

(He' said the pamphlets distributed by Tunis and Hendry contained recommendations of a federal order-in-council of June 19 that in the interests of war-time production industrial employees "should be free to organize in trade union, free from any control by employers or their agents.")

SENATOR TO BOLT PARTY

Washington, July 18—(AP)—Senator Edward R. Burke, Nebraska Democrat, announced here today that he would bolt Democratic Party ranks and support Wendell L. Willkie, Republican, for the United States Presidency.

Senator Burke, frequent critic of the present administration and outspoken opponent of the third term, was defeated in the Nebraska Democratic primary in his renomination effort by Governor R. L. Cochran.

Halton Officials For Registration Serve Without Pay

Milton, Ont., July 18—(CP)—National registration will be carried out in Halton County without costing a penny, officials were informed yesterday. Hugh Cleaver, Liberal Member of Parliament for Halton, announced that L. R. Dale of Georgetown, County Liberal Association President, had offered his free services as registrar and had been accepted.

Amos Mason, President of the Halton Conservatives, will act as Deputy Registrar, also without remuneration.

"This arrangement," Mr. Cleaver said, "will not only furnish a lead in economy but will also be the best guarantee of non-partiality and assure the highest degree of cooperation."

BODY WEIGHTED DOWN WITH ROCKS

Hugh B. Kenyon, 20 Charged With Murder of Girl Who is Alleged to Have Refused to Marry Him

Groton, Conn., July 18 (AP).—The body of Rita Wheaton, 18, of Westerly, R.I., weighted down with heavy rocks, was found in a swift running stream about five miles east of here today and state police Lt. Arthur T. Whitmarsh said Hugh B. Kenyon, 20, of Pawcatuck had been charged with murder in connection with her death.

Kenyon, who was arrested after police had been called by a Pawcatuck priest, admitted, Whitmarsh said, that he bludgeoned the girl with a blackjack after she refused his pleas to marry him and dragged her 42 feet from his parked automobile to the brook.

Whitmarsh quoted the youth as saying Miss Wheaton declined his proposal of marriage because she was needed at home to help support several younger brothers and sisters.

The three rocks found on Miss Wheaton's body, Whitmarsh said, weighed 74, 62 and 55 pounds.

Police said Kenyon told him that after he left the girl in the brook he drove to Hope Valley, R.I., seeking his brother, but was unable to find him. He then returned to Westerly where he told his story to a friend who advised him to go to a priest in Pawcatuck, just over the state line from Westerly.

Constable Stanton Greene was called by the priest and Kenyon took him to the scene. Greene then summoned state police.

Announce Monthly Air-Raid Casualties Says Premier Churchill

London, July 18—(CP)— Future air raid casualties will be announced monthly in the House of Commons and the press, Prime Minister Churchill said today.

All civilian casualties will be listed at local centres as soon as ascertained, he told the House of Commons, but individual or aggregate publication in the press will be forbidden.

YOUTH HOOKS FIRST 'LUNGE OF HIS CAREER

When that tug came on the fishing line of thirteen-year-old Robert Lucy, 136 Victoria Avenue, while he was "foolin' around" with a fishing line in the Moira River between Foxboro and O'Brien's Bridge yesterday, he little dreamed that he had hooked his first musky of his youthful fishing career.

The finny beauty proved to be a 9 1-4-pound lunge, which gave the youngster the battle and thrill of his life. For upwards of an hour the battle raged with the youthful fisherman gradually gaining the edge. Finally the fish was hauled into the boat while a boyish heart beat rapidly with pride.

Victor Morris, an uncle of Lucy, stated that he had several "strikes" during the trip, while the proverbial "big one" was hooked and got away in the conventional manner.

DISTRICT GRAINS NOW FULL-HEADED

Fields of Hastings County wheat rolling in undulating waves herald the best crop of this grain to be harvested here in many years, according to Agricultural Department officials here.

The grain is full-headed while straw is of better than usual length.

The wheat, however, has reached the stage now where weather conditions, outside of heavy hail and rainstorms can do little additional damage. Farmers of this district anticipate a near-record yield.

JANITOR AT "Y" BURNING REFUSE

A cloud of black smoke rolling from the chimney of the Y.M.C.A. sent the fire reels rolling in a hurry-up call during the noon hour today as a passing pedestrian envisioned the building in flames and turned in the alarm. Investigation by firemen, however, proved that the janitor had started the furnace to burn some refuse which resulted in the black smoke emitting from the chimney and which led to the belief that the building was afire.

Miss Jean Kelleher Sells Foto for $80

A smiling young lady walked out of the Capitol Theatre last night, safe in the knowledge that next Wednesday night she will receive a cheque for $80.00 for her photograph from the theatre management.

She was Miss Jean Kelleher, 106 Dundas Street, and fortunately for the attractive young lady, she was present in the audience when Manager Tommy Mascaro announced her name.

But for all that, the management of the theatre voiced disappointment when the name of Mr. A. Dutton, 243 Station Street was selected, and the owner failed to respond. Had Mr. Dutton been present, he would have been selected to sell his photograph for the sum of $200.00.

C. D. S. Staff Enjoys Picnic at Cedardale

About sixty members of the staff of the Canadian Department Store and their friends enjoyed a delightful outing yesterday afternoon at Cedardale. The ideal weather and pleasant surroundings contributed greatly to the splendid success of the picnic. After arrival at the resort the visitors engaged in a game of softball the score remaining a mystery but the enthusiasm was unquestioned. Swimming was a favorite afternoon pastime after which an appetizing picnic supper was served.

A program of games was a highlight of the outing, all entering the competitions with keen rivalry. The shoe kicking race for married ladies was won by Mrs. Mott and the obstacle race for married men was won by Mr. F. Correll, first, Mr. H. E. McBurney, second, and Mr. Hector Poste, consolation. The race for girls sixteen and over was won by Anna Greatrix and the boys' obstacle race by Douglas Mott. The children's spot race was won by Allan McBurney, first and Shirley Mott, second. Adding to the amusement of the contests were the marshmallow eating race won by Pat Blaker and the wheelbarrow race with Herb Correll and Edith Looker carrying off the honors.

HUCKLEBERRIES REMAIN STEADY

Increased Quantity on Market Sells for Twenty Cents a Quart

Thursday morning's market took on a decided blue tinge as huckleberries in increased quantities were offered for sale. Prices remained steady at 20c per quart, however, with vendors reporting brisk sales at this figure. Isolated cases of strawberries still continued to be displayed with vendors asking 25c for two boxes, while gooseberries retailed at 10c and three boxes for 25c. Raspberries were 25c the box.

Red currants were selling at two boxes for 25c while English black currants commanded 25c per quart box. Montmorency cherries were offered on the market for the first time this season, selling for 50c the six-quart basket or 10c the box, while Early Richmond cherries sold for the same price.

Potatoes declined further in price with good quality "spuds" selling at a new low of $1.25 per bushel or at 35c the peck. Peas also suffered a further decline, selling for 25c the quart, while a large display of early vegetables were to be had at the usual price of 5c the bunch.

Netherlands Freighter Sails For Montreal

Sandusky, O., July 18 (AP)—The Netherlands freighter Prins Willem II, tied up here since June 9 because of a sailors' dispute, sailed last night for Montreal with a crew augmented by Canadians.

Capt. Christian A. Van Der Eyck nosed the 2,500-ton vessel into Lake Erie after the Canadians arrived to replace 12 crewmen now held in Detroit for possible deportation to a Netherlands possession. Eight of the original crew sailed.

Counsel for the sailors attached the vessel in an effort to obtain $1,900 in wages claimed due. Van Der Eyck termed the wage dispute a pretext to prevent sailing for Canada or fear of internment.

Accused of mutiny and sabotage by the Captain, the crew was jailed here but eight sailors called the dispute a "misunderstanding" and rejoined the ship. Immigration officials took the others to Detroit.

The sabotage fears faded after inspectors of the Nieun Amsterdam passenger line found the ship's engines in running order. The attachments were dropped following word from invaded Netherlands that families of the crew had received their share of wages as provided for in contracts with the Oranje Line, original owner of the freighter.

Police Blotter

City police are in posession of a bicycle, bearing Belleville bicycle licence number 1076, the bike having been found abandoned near 76 Alexander Street last night.

Not a single arrest was necessary in the city during the past 24 hours, while the cell block remained empty last night, there being no transients seeking covered sleeping quarters now that the heavens provide such a favorable canopy for out-of-doors sleeping.

It never rains but what it pours in police activities, the local police are convinced. Last night not a single rear door or window was found insecure, as the officers made their patrol rounds.

POLICE COURT

A short session of County Police Court was heard by Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. at the Court House today when four of the six cases listed for trial had been settled prior to the opening of the proceedings.

A. T. Turnbull Napanee trucker, was assessed $10.00 and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of overloading his truck, contrary to section 35-1 of the H.T.A.

Curtiss Bradshaw, also of Napanee, paid $2.00 and costs after admitting driving a motor vehicle without first having obtained a permit, contrary to section 73-1 of the H.T.A. Both above charges were preferred by Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch.

Jack Thorne, paid $5.00 and $9.50 costs after pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving, while a second charge of reckless driving with withdrawn. Provincial Constable D. Adair preferred the charges after investigating an accident north of Belleville, in which Thorne was implicated some weeks ago.

A charge of failure to pay wages, preferred by Harry Burley against Malcolm Bird, Sidney, was dismissed by His Worship after evidence had been taken.

Burley claimed he was employed as a farmhand by Bird at $25.00 per month, but had left this employment after working two weeks. He claimed $8.19 wages.

Charles A. Payne K.C., local barrister, represented Bird and showed in open court that Burley had received equivalent to $10.37 for his service during that period, this figure being admitted by the complainant. His Worship promptly dismissed the charge. W. S. Lane, Picton barrister, was Acting Crown Attorney during the morning's proceedings.

A second charge of assault preferred by Mrs. Bird against Malcolm Bird was enlarged until August 1st., when the complainant failed to appear to testify against her husband today.

"Mr. Bird would like to have this matter cleared up, and I would suggest Mrs. Bird be issued a summons into court", suggested Mr. Payne and his suggestion was agreed upon by Mr. Lane.

Haying Suffers As Couples Decide On Quick Marriage

Toronto, July 18 (CP).—Haying and marriage don't mix—one or the other is bound to suffer—and in Saturday's case, according to Hon. Harry C. Nixon, St. George farmer, Acting Premier and Provincial Secretary, the haying suffered.

Six times was Mr. Nixon called in from the hayfield and barns to answer long distance telephone pleas for special marriage dispensation and lifting of the bar which prevents persons in Ontario getting married until three days after they have secured their licenses.

"They just took the notion to get married on Saturday," said the Provincial Secretary. Some, ostensibly, wanted to get under the wire and prolong the time until they would be liable for military service. Others, well, they just "took the notion". Mr. Nixon did not reveal his ruling in the cases.

Pair Recaptured After Escape From Patrol Wagon

Windsor, Ont., July 18 (CP).—Roy Menard, 26, and Edmund Hebert, 23, were recaptured early today on a farm in nearby Colchester district, less than 24 hours after they escaped from a police patrol wagon while being taken to Essex County jail.

The pair were held under remand, having pleaded guilty to charges of receiving stolen goods last January. Their trial had been twice delayed, first when Hebert was critically wounded by a bullet from a policeman's gun at the time the pair were arrested and again when both men jumped bail.

The pair, shackled with four other prisoners to a bar at the back of the patrol wagon, managed to get loose and escaped when the vehicle stopped at a street intersection yesterday.

30 DAYS ADDITIONAL

Greenock, Scotland, July 18 —(CP)—The Judge didn't appreciate the manner in which William Bennet, merchant seaman, expressed his gratitude for a 30-day sentence for disobeying orders. Flinging his arm out in the Nazi salute Bennet shouted:

"Thank you, sir; Heil Hitler!"

"Thirty days additional," said the judge.

One Raider Believed Downed

Canada's Greatness Is Theme Of Talk By J. O. Herity

Bay of Quinte W. I. Members Guests of Quinte Branch at Interesting Meeting

The July metting was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Grills. Mrs. Connors, president, held a short memorial service for Mrs. H. Brown a deceased member of the Institute whose charming ways and ever willing help will be greatly missed. The Ode was sung and every one sang very heartily "Rule Britannia."

The Bay of Quinte Institute members were guests for the afternoon and Mrs. Connors, President of Quinte Institute, extended a very hearty welcome, also to the guest speaker Mr. J. O. Herity of Belleville, who in answer paid a tribute to the women who are carrying on such good work in churches and comunities.

Community singing of "O Canada" followed. Mrs. Haight sang very feelingly a patriotic solo. Miss Lulu Mitchell favored with an accordion solo.

Mr. Herity then gave a very instructive talk on Canada with its 1000 miles of river, 1000 miles of glorious lake, 1000 miles of prairie. Canadians do not realize the importance of their heritage and should thank God for a land free of strife and a home free for every man.

Canada is destined to become a great manufacturing centre with its wealth of minerals, gold, silver, zinc, lead, copper and other valuable metals. According to her population Canada is the 4th greater export country.

Mr. Herity spoke of the loyalty of our men and soldiers to the Motherland. If there was ever a time when faith and patience are needed it is now. [illegible] man, woman, and child can [illegible] his bit to help maintain this great democracy.

Mrs. Connors thanked Mr. Herity for his talk. Mr. Herity is always ready with a wealth of information on any subject to help in any way and at any time he is asked to do so.

Mrs. C. Clapp then favored with a guitar selection. Isabel Atkins gave a reading.

Mrs. Lazier and Mrs. Cameron, Belleville, spoke a few words and thanked the Neighbors' Aid for their cooperation in the Red Cross work. They also left containers and recipes for jam to be made for overseas shipment. Mrs. Ketcheson, President of the Bay of Quinte Institute thanked the Quinte Institute for their kind invitation. Women are filling a very important part in this land and are just awaking to the fact that they are Canadians and as such have a duty to perform which no other can do.

Mrs. Connors gave a very instructive and amusing paper on birds and their habits; there are many lessons one could learn from feathered friends if one would but take time in this busy life to enjoy some of the joys of nature and would be wiser and happier for time well spent.

The meeting closed by singing God Save the King. Grace was sung after which Mrs. Grills and her conveners served a very dainty lunch.

FIRE DESTROYS LUMBER MILL

Building at Allan's Mills Catches Fire When Sawdust Pile Lighted by Spark

Allan's Mills (Special)—A lumber mill owned by Mr. Vance, situated on the property of Mr. Ed. Huff, approximately two miles east of Allan's Mills, was completely destroy by fire on Wednesday afternoon when a spark from the boiler ignited the sawdust pile with the fire gaining considerable headway before mill hands discovered the flames.

Mr. Vance, who does custom sawing throughout Eastern Ontario was engaged in sawing lumber for Mr. A. Hadley of Stirling when the fire occurred. Besides the mill, which was completely destroyed, a small amount of lumber was also destroyed. This is the second time within the past few years that Mr. Vance has had his saw mill destroyed by fire.

Department of Justice at Washington Makes Statement

Washington, July 18—(AP)—The Justice Department said that United States citizens in Great Britain need not fear loss of citizenship by enlisting in the Royal Air Force, as long as they do not take an oath of citizenship to a foreign power.

This statement was made in commenting on information from London that "great numbers" of Americans seeking to enlist in foreign armies was forbidden only when some portion of the action occurred within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States.

This means, it was said, that no one may enlist or recruit others for foreign military service while either is in the United States nor may anyone provide transportation or encourage another to leave the United States for the purpose of enlisting abroad.

U.S. Fliers and R.C.A.F.

Ottawa, July 18—(CP)—An announcement is expected soon of steps taken to further facilitate the entry of United States trained fliers and morse operators into the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Early in the war United States citizens who wished to join Canada's air force were confronted with the obstacle of having to take the oath of allegiance which automatically would have lost them their United States citizenship. Recently Air Minister Power stated this situation had been remedied but did not disclose the procedure.

Despatches from London this week indicated the desire to enlist United States citizens who are trained airmen or morse operations for the Royal Air Force as well as the R.C.A.F. and it is expected the announcement will be in this connection.

Excellent Fishing Is Enjoyed By Visitors At Stoco Lake

THEATRE NIGHT HELD

Tweed—Excellent fishing in Stoco Lake is reported during the past week or so. A number of lunge are being caught, mostly small ones under ten pounds. The largest, weighing fifteen pounds, was taken by an American camper at Kanata Beach. A local fisherman hooked a huge lunge which carried away a plug and piece of line, leaping clear of the water in making its escape. Several fishermen who were fishing in the vicinity claimed it was the largest fish they ever saw, estimating its length at five feet and its weight at more than fifty pounds.

Miss Edith M. Taylor, who for the past six years has been teaching at Hillier in Prince Edward County, has been engaged to fill the vacancy on Tweed Consolidated School staff, resulting from the resignation of Miss Mabel Gunning.

The heavy rain of Monday night failed to affect the attendance at Victoria Theatre which was filled to its utmost capacity by an enthusiastic audience, guests of Mr. Stan Quinn, proprietor, through the purchase of War Savings Stamps. There were no large purchasers of Stamps by individual purchasers, but the sum of two hundred dollars was contributed to Canada's war effort.

Before the showing of the feature "The Doctor Takes a Wife", Dr. W. A. Paul, who acted as chairman, welcomed the audience on behalf of the proprietor, Mr. Stan Quinn who was out of town. A short program was given, consisting of short addresses and community singing conducted by Mr. S. H. Connor, with Miss Lois Richardson as accompanist. Among the songs sung with more than usual feeling were "Rule Britannia" and "There'll Always be an England."

Reeve C. H. Kerr congratulated the Motion Picture Industry of Canada on their generous gesture which will result in a very large sum of money being raised to help in the purchase of equipment to further Canada's war effort to stamp out Hitler.

Dr. W. A. Paul suggested to the audience that they can individually and collectively aid in winning the war by the purchase of War Savings Stamps, by resolving not to repeat rumours which in most cases have their origin in Italy or Germany or in countries controlled by Germany, and by fortifying our souls. This is a weapon whose strength Hitler cannot estimate. In the end strength of character and moral reserve will carry the British Commonwealth to victory.

Thanks was extended to all those who had contributed in any way to the success of Theatre Night in Tweed.

Reports from various sections of the province that a perfectly-formed capital letter "B" has been seen on oat leaves can be verified by Mr. Geo. Palmetier, a farmer living in Hungerford Township, west of Tweed who has found that nearly every leaf bears the letter which many see as representing Britain. Mr. Palmatier has also discovered a perfectly-formed capital "V" on barley leaves. There are those who see in this sign victory for Britain in the present conflict.

Mr. T. E. Moffat, B.A., will act as Superintendent of Tweed United Church Sunday School during the next two Sundays during the absence of the Superintendent, Mr. A. W. McGuire.

Little damage resulted locally from the heavy downpour on Monday night, although some grain was flattened in the fields and farmers have been forced to suspend haying operations for a few days. The rain was most welcome following an extended dry spell and will prove very beneficial to field crops.

Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Morrison and John will leave on Friday for their holidays. During Mr. Morrison's absence, Rev. Merritt Price of Actinolite will occupy the pulpit in Tweed United Church.

Mr. Esll Salisbury of Berkeley, California, and Mrs. B. C. Salisbury of Plainfield visited the latter's daughter Mrs. S. H. Connor on Sunday.

WOMEN'S SERVICE IN THE WAR

The women of the Motherland have demonstrated their loyalty in a manner which has proven that the women of this age are the peers of any in history as patriots.' The heroic work of the ambulance drivers will never be forgotten. The work of the army nurses cannot be adequately described in all its nobility and self-sacrifice. At home the women are filling the places of men and carrying on the work of industry to bolster up the defences which they are confident will turn back the foe and lead to victory. Great new tasks have been assumed by the girls and women and when the full history of the war is told, the heroic womanhood of this time will find its eulogy not only in words but in the gratitude of civilization for what they have done to maintain the faith and the courage of the race in the hour of trial.

'FEAR AS SUPPORT OF CIVIL POLITY'

The New York Times has found in Plutarch's Lives in the Loeb Classical Library fine translation something which reads with interest today in a world where the nazi German has tried to terrify. Here is what Plutarch, the Greek, wrote over 18 centuries ago, "Now the Lacedaemonians have temples of Death, Laughter and that sort of thing, as well as of Fear. And they pay honors to Fear, not as they do to the powers which they try to avert because they think them baleful, but because they believe that fear is the chief support of their civil polity."

The Times remarks that the Lacedaemonians, otherwise known as Spartans, successfully used the "civil polity" of fear thus described by Plutarch—for how long? About ten years. The Times goes on, "After that they held their own, more or less, by selling out to the Persians, and by other forms of trickery. Within a generation they had sunk so low that they scared nobody.

"The remains of their temple of Fear may still exist. They would interest no one save as a monument to human folly, for they would contain no art, no grace, no imagination. Today we have other Temples of Fear. We have fear used as "civil polity."' But before giving way to terror, let us tighten our belts and read Plutarch. It is old stuff."

The Germans have deliberately tried to terrorize the world. The nazis first used the terrible Gestapo for that purpose on the German people themselves until the Gestapo became a nightmare to the individual, family and society. They have tried to use the same weapon of fear against the neutral world and against the Allied forces. They have attached sirens, that scream, to their dive bombers to add to the horror of the din so as to terrify by noise as well as by explosion. They have used their diabolical methods and acts to frighten. They have tried to stampede whole peoples into flight by propaganda and insidious spreading of false news. That is one of their weapons.

But as the New York Times says, "fear" is old stuff.

THE BURMA ROAD

The Burma Road, which has figured much in the news of late, is a highway which might have been conceived by a Hollywood director and executed by the Pharaohs of ancient Egypt, says a Canadian Press article.

It follows the ancient "silk trail" traversed by Marco Polo in the 13th Century. It is a vital part of the 2,000-mile-long trade route from Burma's seaport of Rangoon to the Yangtse River, connecting the Burmese railhead at Lashio with Kunming (formerly called Yunnanfu), the capital of Yunnan Province.

Work on the most difficult of the great new road, between the Burma border and Kunming, was not started until the fall of 1937, when military exigencies caused the British authorities to cut a freight route to British Asia to ship products to regions cut off by the Japanese occupation of Pacific ports.

The Hollywood setting is provided by sparsely settled regions of snow-capped mountains and rice-bordered lakes, tropical jungles of bamboo and teakwood and forests of towering evergreens where bands of gibbons scream in the shadows and strange birds chatter and sing.

The suggestion of ancient methods of road construction is inescapable. Most of the construction was done by hand by thousands of men, women and children with only a few crude tools.

Sometimes for a steamroller they used cylindrical boulders pulled by water buffalo. On long stretches they used large flat stones as paving.

Across a rough upland region, the builders carried on, crossing high mountain ranges as well as the great gorges of the turbulent Salween, the Mekong and numerous other streams.

There were untold difficulties, but the work went on until heavy trucks were soon sharing the trail with the heavily laden oxen and their antique carts.

DOWAGER COUNTESS OF MINTO PASSES

Canadians mourn the passing of the Dowager Countess of Minto, whose husband, the fourth Earl of Minto, was Governor-General of Canada about 40 years ago. News of her death in England has reached Canada and recalls the days when she was so prominent a figure in the life of the Dominion. Her husband was for long associated with Canada, as military secretary to Lord Lansdowne, Governor-General in 1883-85. He was also chief of staff to the Canadian Government forces in the North-west Rebellion. The Earl of Minto earlier in life served in the Turkish army and with the British army in the Afghan war in 1879. He was private secretary to Lord Roberts in Cape Colony and served in the Egyptian campaign.

The Governors - General and their wives have helped to mould this Dominion to play its part in world affairs for the maintenance of freedom. To these representatives who out of their vast experience in the service of the Country and the Empire and to the women who have reigned in Rideau Hall Canada owes much. They have left their indelible impression on the course of Canadian history, character and ideals. It has been a good schooling for this nation to have been brought into close touch with those who represent the ideals of Britain and democracy as it has been developed under the British constitution.

Children First

(New York Times)

Every American parent ought to be able to imagine the torturing anxiety of British fathers and mothers, who cannot be sure from day to day that Nazi planes will not bomb their children in homes or schools, or machine-gun them in the streets. He ought also to be able to picture the fate of Belgian, Dutch and French children, many hundreds of whom are refugees in England. A few of these threatened youngsters have already been brought to this country. With no modification of our existing laws we can take in more than 6,000 a month. Good homes and kindly care are available.

The chief obstacle is lack of available transportation. England cannot spare convoys, nor can she be certain that the Nazis would have more mercy for a British ship loaded with children than for one loaded with munitions. But the United States does have ships, some of them legally entitled to enter combat zones, under the Red Cross ensign, to carry doctors, nurses, medical supplies and other means "for the relief of human suffering."

It has other ships, many of them idle. There could not be a better use for them than to bring to the United States British and other refugee children in the order of their greatest need—and this would mean primarily those of the poorest parents in the menaced areas. Unless the Nazis go utterly mad the voyage would be a safe one, for the ships would carry, day and night, unmistakable evidence of their neutral nature and peaceable mission. Our Neutrality Act was never intended to forbid such errands of mercy. It should be so amended as explicitly to permit them. If Congress hesitates to make this change, we had better cancel our fine words of sympathy and hereafter be silent.

Lincoln On Population

(New York Times)

Abraham Lincoln was deeply interested in population trends and gave a good deal of thought to the generations that would come after him. It was his effort to solve the problem of slavery that carried him into a line of speculation which he pursued, not very accurately, up to the year 1930.

In 1862 Lincoln sent a message to Congress proposing gradual emancipation of the slaves through government financing. He urged a constitutional amendment by which each State agreeing to abandon slavery would be paid for its freed Negroes in United States bonds. He had estimated that by 1900 the 37,000,000 population of the country should have risen to 100,000,000, and that the increasing wealth of the nation would then have absorbed the last vestiges of slave labor by gradual compensation.

Actually, the population of the United States in 1900 was only about 76,000,000. But Lincoln went on to estimate the increase of population for the next thirty years, that is, until ten years ago. Here he fell into even greater error. For 1930 he offered a figure of 251,680,914 as a maximum, with 217,186,000 as a minimum. Of course, Lincoln was only reflecting the optimistic statisticians of his own time. They expected to see half of Europe come to the United States. Certainly, if he had tried to peer ten years farther into the future he would never have guessed that human slavery would be spreading all over Europe.

Learn French

(Montreal Star)

The importance of knowing both languages in a bilingual country should be obvious, yet the majority of Canadians of both French and English descent seldom take the trouble to learn more of each other's language than can be learned in the elementary schools. Some efforts have been made to overcome this apathy—Ontario is sending its teachers of French to Quebec to perfect themselves in the language, and the Protestant schools here are revising curricula to improve the teaching of French. On the other side, French schools are devoting more time to English.

An excellent opportunity for adults to learn French has been provided for a number of years by the McGill French Summer School. Not so many opportunities have been open to children, but one was offered last year by Jean-de-Brebeuf College in Montreal and is being continued this year. Boys from the ages of ten to fourteen are invited to take a course at Brebeuf in an entirely French environment. The teachers are French, but are completely bilingual, and the classes are conducted entirely in French with the purpose of teaching the student not only to speak the language fluently but to write it well. English boys who have taken the course now speak French well. In the interests of national harmony and the future welfare of Canada, a far greater number of English children should be encouraged to take these courses.

BUSINESS

When we separate the word Business into its component letters — B-u-s-i-n-e-s-s—we find that "U" and "I" are in it. In fact, if "U" and "I" were not in Business it would not be Business. Therefore, if Business is to remain Business "U" and "I" must keep in it. Further, we discover that "U" comes before "I" in Business and that "I" is silent—it is to be seen, not heard. Also the "U" has the sound of "I", which indicates that it is an amalgamation of the interests of "U" and "I", and, when they are properly amalgamated Business becomes harmonious and altogether profitable.— Schenectady Works News.

Collies Lead Blind

The native British collie dog is taking the place of the Alsatian as a trained guide for blind people in Britain.

It has been found that the collie is more easily trained to the work, and is also more reliable and friendly in disposition. The collie comes chiefly from Scotland and Wales.

Although Alsatians are valuable as guides, they suffer from the disadvantage that only specially chosen animals can be used. About 70 or even 80 per cent. of those which undergo preliminary training are eventually found to be unsuitable, and only the females are reliable enough to be entrusted with the task of serving the blind.

The average cost of training a dog for this work is about $300. This is usually very much more than blind people are able to pay; but so grateful are they for possessing an "animal guide" that they often insist on paying what they can afford.

The dogs are trained, not only to steer a way for the blind person through people on the pavement and round lamp-posts and other obstacles, but to negotiate their way through traffic when the blind man wants to cross the road.

More Buying At Home

(Niagara Falls Review)

An interesting result of the requirements for Canadians to have passports to enter the United States is that it has meant considerably more business to local merchants, some "running as high as a thirty per cent. increase last week." That means that many local people are buying certain goods on this side instead of across the line, and that is all to the good. Local merchants should do their bit by making sure they are stocked up in the kind of goods people have been buying across the river and, thus confirm new trading habits of local people.

This is a time when patriotic Canadians should do as much of their buying as possible right at home, making money available for the conduct of the war. It may be that local people who have been buying across the river will discover they can do as well here and buy at home among their own people.

Preventing Attacks of Asthma

I have spoken before about the value of keeping a food diary when attacks of hives, eczema, and upsets of stomach and intestines occur. By referring to this diary the individual reads that on definite days he ate a certain food or foods and it was on these days that the symptoms occurred.

Many attacks of asthma can be traced to coming in contact with furs, feathers, pollen of plants, and other substances, and also to foods eaten. In the same manner—keeping a diary of the days doings—may help find the cause of the asthmatic attacks.

In speaking of the several "tricks" physicians should use when taking the history of an asthmatic patient D. Francis M. Rackemann, Massachusetts General hospital in Medical Clinics of North America, Boston says:

"The first "trick" is to use dates. The date may be the most important fact about the onset of the first asthmatic attack. How long did it last and when did it end? When came the second attack and what has happened since then? One must try to explain not only why the attack began but why it ended also. Was there a change of residence, was there any infection present at the time, an operation or even a treatment with a good temporary result? To ask for the date will help the patient to recall the details".

The second "trick" is to account for "all" the time. If the asthma has been present for five or ten years and there was an interval of time when attacks did not occur the reason for this freedom from attacks should be sought.

This practical advice from Dr. Rackemann should be of help to both physician and patient. By keeping a diary of his doings and whereabouts, the reason for the beginning of the attacks and likewise the reason for the stopping of the attacks may be learned. Even if a diary had not been kept it is likely that the patient will remember the date of his first attack.

In former days asthma was considered only from the treatment standpoint but now, as we know that a great many attacks are due to foods, surroundings, air pollution emotional disturbances, and some also to nose and throat defects, many former victims are kept free of attacks because of this knowledge.

Bird Banding Value

Bird banding in North America during the past two decades has solved many mysteries of bird life. The placing of official, numbered metal bands on tens of thousands of birds yearly throughout Canada and the United States has yielded much information which could not be obtained in any other manner, as once a bird is banded it assumes an individuality which makes possible the tracing of its migration routes and the recording of its life history.

This important work is carried on in full co-operation between the national parks bureau of the department of mines and resources, Ottawa and the United States bureau of biological survey, Washington, D. C. The actual banding of the birds is carried out by voluntary workers at their own expense and in their own time, and by their efforts these banders are contributing to the conservation of a wild life asset which as an aid to agriculture and an object of sport is worth millions of dollars annually. In Canada the general practice is to grant permits only to those using official bands.

Private citizens can co-operate by reporting full particulars of any banded birds which come to their attention to the national parks bureau, Ottawa, where the Canadian records are kept. Such reports may be mailed postage free if marked O.H.M.S., and any person making a return is advised as to the kind of bird and when, where and by whom it was banded. The information collected as a result of bird banding is used to great advantage by conservationists and ornithologists in the administration and framing of bird protection laws to conserve and perpetuate the various species. From coast to coast in Canada more than 200 bird-banding stations are in operation, and since 1923 approximately 350,000 birds have been banded and more than 25,000 recovery records have been obtained.

Canadians' Corps To Be Financed, Officered And Manned By Canada

Corps Will be Formed Around 1st Overseas Division Now in England

McNAUGHTON TO BE O.C.

By FRANK FLAHERTY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 18—(CP)—An army corps, officered, manned, financed and supplied entirely from Canada came a step closer to realization when Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton was placed in command of a corps formed around the 1st Overseas Division.

While the corps will at first include British troops, they will be replaced by Canadian troops as and when more Canadians are ready for service and sent to the United Kingdom.

To start with however, the corps will be built around the 1st overseas division and the ancillary troops which were sent to Great Britain in anticipation of the formation of the Canadian Corps.

An army corps consists normally of two to four divisions. The Canadian Corps in the first Great War consisted of four divisions from August, 1916 to the end of the war.

3 Divisions For Corps

It is expected General McNaughton's corps will consist of three divisions and that eventually the 2nd Division, now partly in Canada and partly overseas, and the 3rd Division, in process of training in Canada, will comprise it.

Organization of the 1st Division has been complete for months, organization of the 2nd Division is well advanced and while the units comprising the 3rd Division have been recruited no divisional headquarters has yet been established.

Selection of General McNaughton to command the new corps is not only a step towards the goal of a Canadian Corps but a recognition of his abilities as demonstrated to the British High Command during the six months in which he commanded the 1st Division in England.

May See Action Soon

If the expected German attack on England comes this summer the Corps will see action under the scholarly Canadian scientist and commander before its personnel becomes wholly Canadian.

Selection of Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, a Victoria Cross holder, with long service in the permanent force, as commander of the 1st division in place of General McNaughton, puts two divisions under the command of ex-private soldiers.

Maj.-Gen. Victor W. Odlum who commands the 2nd division is the other ex-private. He has not yet seen his troops assembled in one place and probably will not until they all arrive in Great Britain to join the Corps. Some units of the division have proceeded overseas and others are still in training in Canada.

General Pearkes enlisted as a private at the start of the last war and ended by commanding a battalion. General Odlum's first service was in the Boer War in which he served as a private and at the end of the last war he commanded a brigade.

Both Generals command troops who have been in uniform for nine months as the two divisions were authorised on the outbreak of war. The 1st division, however, has received advanced training in large formations at Aldershot, Eng. The 2nd has not yet been concentrated as a division but the artillery and engineers are all together in camp and the infantry have had camp training since May in brigade formations.

Officers in Command

Brig. J. C. Stewart of Esquimalt, B.C., an experienced permanent force officer, commands 1st divisional artillery under General Pearkes and Lt.-Col. C. S. L. Hertzberg of Toronto, a militia officer with experience in the first Great War and civilian engineering experience since, commands 1st divisional engineers.

The 1st infantry brigade in the 1st division is under the command of Brig. A. A. Smith of Winona, Ont., the 2nd under Brig. A. E. Potts of Saskatoon who stepped up from command of the Saskatoon Light Infantry to succeed General Pearkes on the latter's promotion, and the 3rd by Brig. C. B. Price of Montreal.

The 2nd divisional artillery under General Odlum is commanded by Brig. R. A. Fraser of Montreal and 2nd divisional engineers by Lt.-Col. J. P. McKenzie of Toronto. Infantry brigade commanders for the 2nd division have not yet been announced.

General Crerar Returns

The clearing house for administration of Canadian troops in England is Canadian military headquarters in London, now under the direction of Brig. J. P. Montague of Winnipeg who recently succeeded Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar. General Crerar is returning to Ottawa to take up the new position of Vice-Chief of the General Staff.

These changes and progress in the organization of the Canadian Active Service Force will necessitate a number of other appointments to senior posts in the near future. A commander for the Saskatoon Light Infantry must be chosen to succeed Brig. Potts.

The commanders for 2nd division infantry brigades must be selected. A commander for the 3rd division must be selected together with the divisional headquarters staff and commanders for brigades and services.

No announcement has yet been made about General McNaughton's staff at headquarters of his army corps.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Rumors of peace proposals drifting out from the German and Italian capitals can have no influence in shaping Great Britain's course of action towards the enemies.

The stories may be another manifestation of the war of nerves, designed to create divisions of opinion in Great Britain on certain urgent defensive measures.

On the other hand, they may reflect the truth and spring from a disinclination on the part of the totalitarian states to attack Great Britain now. The plans of Hitler and Mussolini may embrace a gradual reduction of British power throughout the world while the so-called new order on the European continent is being established.

The two, however, can scarcely exist long side by side. A Hitler-dominated Europe and a free Britain can reach no compromise. There can be little doubt the German leaders are aware of this.

Consequently any delay which takes place in the delivery of the threatened knock-out blow at Great Britain doubtless springs only from doubts about its immediate effectiveness.

British Empire Trade In South Africa Greatly Increased

London, July 18—(CP)—Against Nazi claims that German operations are hampering Empire trade, the South African Minister of Railways and Harbors Wednesday quoted figures to show that tonnage handled in South African ports has increased under every heading since the war started, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported.

"This great flow of shipping around the coast of South Africa is proof that Germany is deluding herself when she says she is hampering the empire's trade," the minister said. "As far as we can see from this end Germanys blockade of the commonwealth is nothing but a futile and pitiable lie intended to boost her morale."

W. C. T. U. Seeks Total Prohibition For Duration Of War

A delightful parlor and lawn meeting was held by the Belleville W.C.T.U. at the pleasant home of Mrs. Fred Cook, William Street. Musical numbers were given by Miss Lavoie and Miss Cook, and Miss Hogle contributed humorous readings. Miss Rosamond Duff, Toronto, Provincial Field Secretary on her way to Consecon Y.W.C.T.U. Camp brought greetings, and spoke of the present urgent need of conservation of food stuffs and the fact that in Canada the Empire's greatest source of food supply, we destroy in one year, 375,000,000 pounds of food in the manufacture of intoxicants.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted that "Whereas Our Empire is now facing the greatest crisis in its history, that the fate of our civilization is dependent upon the outcome of this struggle; and that the utmost of efficiency is necessary for the prosecution of the conflict, and that—wheras the use of alcholic beverages impairs such complete efficiency, diverts to wasteful and injurious purposes foodstuffs imperative to the sustenance of human life, and lowers the moral and physical stamina of our soldiers, we do humbly petition our government to enact immediately, total prohibition for the duration of the war".

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Drinks Because He's Bashful

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 20 years of age and care very much for a young man who always takes several drinks before he goes anywhere; he claims he must drink to get up his nerve. Very often he takes too much and then I feel so humiliated. He comes over and says that he won't have anything at all that evening and I find he has had more than he can stand.

When he sees that I am angry he pleads with me to forgive him and caring so much for him, I do so. But next time it's as bad as ever. I'm considering dropping this young man. What do you think?

Doubtful

What do you think looks worse—a bashful young man who is a little nervous and self-conscious, or one who has the flagrant assurance which comes from drinking too much?

Watch your step carefully and go slowly in this love affair. If a man won't become sober before marriage he seldom succeeds in overcoming this fault afterwards. This young man breaks promises and you're unhappy when he's been drinking. Don't you think my dear, that you're going in for a millstone around your neck?

Wants Proper Introduction

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very much interested in a charming young lady to whom I've never been introduced. I spoke to her over the telephone the other day and tried to make a date, but she said she would meet me only on condition I bring along a certain boy who is a mutual friend of ours, to affect a proper introduction. Do you think she is justified in insisting that I bring along this other boy?

Jack

A girl is always justified in laying down the conditions under which she is willing to meet a stranger. This young lady evidently is very particular and I admire her for it. By all means take along the mutual friend and get the introduction over with in the proper manner.

He Never Takes Her Out

Dear Miss Fairfax

I'm 18 years of age and going "steady" with a young man of 24 for over a year. He says he loves me and I think a great deal of him. But the trouble is he expects to sit around the house every time he comes to see me.

The only places he has ever taken me have been three movies and three or four dances. Some evenings we go for a ride in his car. Now, I wouldn't insist that he take me out every time he comes over, but don't you think a boy should take out his girl at least once a month? That would be enough for me.

If he were out of work and could not afford to take me I wouldn't mind one bit. But he's a college graduate and has a good profession. He doesn't want me to go out with anyone else. Do you think I should continue to stay in?

J. G.

Who wouldn't get bored sitting home these hot summer evenings? As the young man has a good profession it can't be lack of money that's making him so house-bound unless he's inclined to be a bit close.

Perhaps he doesn't realize how it bores you to stay at home all the time. You might try him with "It's a beautiful evening; wouldn't you like to go somewhere?"

Another girl who had your experience told me she "yawned the parlor pet out". After ten or fifteen minutes she began to stifle yawns which finally become contagious and he'd begin to yawn. In sheer defense he'd ask her to go somewhere. But please girls, don't try this on a young man if he's unemployed.

Rouge And Powder For The Knees

By HELEN FOLLETT

Of all things! What will the cosmeticians think of next? Now we must make up our knees. Well, that's not a bad idea. Knees aren't any great shakes when considered as beauty assets. They'll stand a little attention.

Girls who belong to the barelegged cult, who spend hours on the beach, will have something new to play with. The knee-make container is designed like a purse, has a compartment for cash-coin-spending-change, hanky or what have you. It holds a jar of cream. The surface of the leg hinges must be kept smooth as satin; goodness knows most knees need lubricating since they are grey and rough-shoddy.

Rouge, Too

The cream is frictioned in until it disappears after which a cosmetic that is closely related to a foundation preparation is applied, spread on in a thin film. But that's not all, Geraldine. Rouge is the final flourish. Included also in this interesting collection are beauty spots—little black moons and stars.

If you take your outdoor sports seriously, wear short swing skirts and short socks, you'll feel that everything has been done to make your appearance top-notchy. Your knees will be in form.

Corset designers are doing their utmost to produce the "endless waistline" effect. Which is pretty funny to us, considering that late last winter there was all that hubbub about the waspish nip in.

The idea is to make the torso cylindrical which makes the waist look slender. If the torso is flat front and back, has width, the human equator looks larger than its actual measurement.

WANTS TO CHANGE NAME

Hartford, Conn., July 18—(AP)—A 35-year-old native of Greece applied to the Federal Court for naturalization and at the same time asked permission to take a new name. He wants to change to Peter Reader from Panagiotis Chatzianananagnostou.

$1,440. ESTIMATED FIRE LOSS

Toronto, July 18—(CP)—Damage of $1,440 was caused by a fire in a one-storey converted garage here yesterday. The blaze spread to three other frame structures before being checked.

ACNE

Acne seems to be an infection of adolescence, although it sometimes does make an appearance before that time. The great majority of sufferers are at the age of puberty when they break out in the eruption of pus-producing pimples on the face and neck that we know as acne.

The disease attacks both healthy and frail children boys and girls alike. At times it seems to have a preference for the more athletic types. The disease is definitely connected with the development of sex, because older people do not have it, nor do undersexed individuals.

We think that heredity plays a part in acne, for some families number amongst their characteristics an oily skin and these are the ones most often attacked by acne. I myself have treated girls or boys for the trouble and then, years later, I've treated their children for the same thing.

The actual cause of acne is obscure, as I have said here before. Some researches believe it due to an upsetting of the glandular system, others think bacteria are responsible and still others blame it on some food to which the victim is allergic.

Treating acne is an experimental business. What will clear up the complaint in one person, won't budge another. No one treatment will clear up every case. Glandular substances have been used extensively and show limited success. They seem for instance, to alleviate the disfigurement of the face, but don't appear to remove the underlying cause. When treatment is discontinued, they break out again. These glandular treatments must be carried out with great care lest they create an abnormality in some other part of the system.

X-rays appears to have the same effect on acne as do the glandular treatments. By that, I mean with either X-rays or gland preparations, there is a limited improvement in the boy, or girl. But treatment by both X-rays and glandular preparations give no better result than when only one is tried. They simply duplicate each other's work.

Diet adjustments may bring improvement, but this is a treatment that must be studied carefully by your doctor. If the patient is strong and robust it is often well to cut down on the use of dairy products, chocolate, fried foods, nuts, duck and goose. These products contain a fat radicle definitely connected with outbreaks of acne. However, the removal of these foods from the diet of a frail, or undernourished person may be dangerous. Hence the need for having the doctor's supervision in such treatment. Condiments and spices of all kinds should be discontinued by anyone suffering from acne.

It is this fact that food seems to have something to with acne that has lead some doctors to think that it is a form of food allergy.

Pimple pills are still being sold as cures for acne. Most of these are actually harmfull and should be avoided. In almost all cases they contain iodine, and that is one substance the acne patient is particularly advised to avoid. Even minute quantities in iodised table salt may be harmful.

Bowels should be kept open by diet, not harmful laxatives. Vitamin B, which can be obtained in tablet form, is helpful. So is vitamin D, from sunshine or cod liver oil. Cleansing creams with an oil or fatty base shouldn't be used. Common sulphur soap or a mild mercurial soap is advisable when washing.

Remember, if your doctor doesn't cure you with the first try, don't get discouraged. Don't lose faith in him for no treatment is effective in every case of acne. The most general beneficial treatment is X-rays, but whatever your doctor tries, stay with him. It won't take him very long to hit on the treatment that will relieve your acne.

SHANNONVILLE W. A.

The ladies of the W.A. of Shannonville United Church served a lovely dinner at the home of the President, Mrs. Sam Elliott on Tuesday, July 9th, 53 enjoying the well served meal, proceeds of which were over thirteen dollars. Two quilts and one throw kept the ladies busy and a short meeting was held in the afternoon which opened in the usual way. The 67 Psalm was read by Mrs. Elliott and Rev. Mr. Sterling led in prayer. The National Anthem was sung.

Mrs. Stanley MacDonald expressed thanks for the card she received from the W.A. also thanked all who sent cards or called while she was ill. Mrs Saul MacFarlane also thanked the W.A. for the cards she received when she was sick. It was decided to divide the proceeds of the dinner and quilts between the Red Cross and the Salvation Army. A vote of thanks was given the hostess for so kindly opening her home for the dinner. Quilting and sewing was done outside and the day was much enjoyed.

INSTALMENT 10.

"The first thing I'm going to ask the old man to do with Cousin Laura's money," Ben said, "is to stake me to six months in New York. After that I'll look out for myself. I'll go round on a Panama boat—it doesn't cost any more and it's lots of fun—work into some line there—newspaper or magazine—and then after a few years I'll be able to help."

"If Annette goes to Paris I'm going with her," Lissy said.

"Some of us will have to stay with dad and mother," Dodo offered hesitantly.

"You and I will," Joyce said.

"You will until I come back for you next year," Paul amended it, when he and she were alone in the kitchen an hour later. The girls and Ben had helped with cleaning up after the meal, but then had tactfully vanished.

"Does it seem funny to you that it's actually hit us?" the boy asked. "I mean that in a little more than a year we'll be married?"

"It's the one thing that has carried me through, Paul," she told him seriously. "It makes it all so easy. When they praise me I feel so ashamed," Joyce went on with her cheeks reddening, "because it's all due to you. I'm playing a part here; it's nothing for me to be—well, good," she added, laughing at the childish word, "because I keep thinking of you and of what a wonderful wife I want to be to you! I want every man who knows you to envy you!"

"They'll envy me all right."

"Ah, but you'll never know. "I've liked girls before; I've had cases. But you're my mother and my sister and my pal and my sweetheart all in one."

They talked of the future and Joyce felt that she would not change places with any girl in the world.

"You see, when I'm twenty-five, Joy, I come into some money. My grandfather died when I was seven, and it's been accumulating. We'll go to Europe on our honeymoon. We'll stay three months or so and then we'll come back and get settled. Let's never do things the way other people do, Joy. Let's be freaks, and do freaky things, and not care what they think!"

Lissy and Dodo came back from a walk. It was late afternoon now, for they had not lunched until three, and Paul had to go. Joy walked out to the car with him and stood in the windy twilight lingering for a last word.

"Listen, Joy, I forgot! My stepmother wants you to come up and visit us before I go. I'll come down for you. We're moving into the Keavey place in Hillsborough and she told me last night that she hoped my girl would come up for a week-end." And after he was gone Joyce remembered that as the most wonderful thing that had happened all day. His father and his stepmother were going to recognize the seriousness of her relationship to Paul; it would be a tacit acknowledgment of their engagement, this visit! Her heart was singing as she went back into the kitchen.

Dark had scarcely fallen when the elder Ballards arrived, and the girls' mother so wealy that she could hardly walk into the house. It had been a terrific day, their father reported. The roads had been heavy, the bumpy little car a tiresome vehicle in which to travel. Immediately after the obsequies Treadwell, the lawyer, had asked them to remain for reading of the will. The Bannister cousins were there from Seattle and they had to take a boat late that afternoon.

Sally Ballard sat at the kitchen table, looking tired, white, bright-eyed. Her husband satisfied his children only with a brief remark to the effect that it was good to be home and that he thought he would get his milking done.

"You ought to be dead on your feet, Will!" the wife said in affectionate concern, and Joyce knew from her tone that the news was good.

"Cousin Laura died worth more than a quarter of a million," Sally answered. "She left several legacies, she left ridiculous provision for her cats, and of course she left precious Susie a fortune. A woman like that, that she paid twenty dollars a month when she hired her! Makes you mad! And then there's the inheritance tax, it seems it's outrageous if you're not a direct heir—"

"Sure, sure," Ben said listening, as they all were, intently. "Go on!"

"It's so good to get here into this warm kitchen," his mother said irrelevantly, "and dinner smells so good! The rest is ours."

She added the last phrase simply.

"Whee—" Ben said in a whisper.

"After what we've been through," his mother said, her eyes watering. "it seems like an answer to prayer! We've certainly had a fiery trial and you've all met it like—well, I was saying to dad today, like aristocrats. It doesn't mean 'ninety-nine' again; that's sold, and I've learned my lesson anyway. But it does mean a comfortable little place and that Dodo and Joyce can lead the life of normal girls in society. If Lissy still wants to go to Europe after—"

"Did dad seem excited, mother?"

"About the legacy? Well, yes and no. He's been very quiet. The Bannisters got ten thousand apiece they seemed more excited than Dad was. Susie got fifty thousand. Then Treadwell said that everything else was dad's."

"What'd dad say"

"As I say, he was very quiet. His eyes filled with tears and he said once or twice, 'Very generous!' "

"We're lucky!" Ben said seriously. "Gosh, what an escape! I thought we might be stuck here far a couple of years. He'd like me to go back to school, I suppost. But I'd rather strike out for myself, now that we've made the break."

Somehow the trend of the conversation changed as Joyce and her father came in. Mrs. Ballard explained that she had stopped in San Jose for broilers; no need to scimp now! Dodo and Joyce began to cook them under her direction.

"New potatoes!" William Ballard said taking his place at the table. He looked tired; his manner was unusually quiet.

"Our own!" Joyce said. "We haven't told you half our adventures. Paul came, and we cleaned the yard, and we discovered a whole row of darling little new potatoes."

They were all talking at once; gay for the first time in that stiff gay kitchen. Nothing was said of the legacy during dinner; they were waiting for their father to mention it. But he seemed tired, subdued, and spoke hardly at all. The meal went on cheerfully to the point of Joyce's first rice pudding.

"I want to talk to all of you," William Ballard said suddenly when that was eaten. "I may as well say it now. I've been thinking of this since Laura died—not debating it, I have no choice, but wondering how I'd put it to you."

"Your mother will have told you—I told Joyce up in the barn—that Cousin Laura left me a lot of money.

"A few years ago," he want on after a brief pause, "my business began to go on the rocks. It had been a good business; a few inventions of mine that I had patented in the beginning gave it a good start, I suppose; porbably it has been running down ever since without my knowing it. I don't know. I'm not a business man.

"I had stockholders, quite a few of them. They were not rich men; most of them the draughtsmen and chemists I'd employed. Fifteen, eighteen years ago I gave some of them a chance to buy in. They were like a family to me in a way.

"Three years ago we began to slide,—profits went down, salaries were cut. These fellows took it all standing; they owned a part of the business; they understood. But when it came to going into a receiver's hands, turning the whole thing over to the bank ,it hit them hard.

"They were all decent about it. They knew how I felt, I suppose. But it meant that they lost their homes; they went to look for work again when they were no longer young."

"That's been a common story of late," Mrs. Ballard said defensively.

"Yes, I know it has. But it's meant that I humiliated myself asking favors of luckier men who very quietly didn't grant them; it means I've worried, explained, apologised myself sick. It's years since I've had the whole thing balanced and honest, and have been able to sleep at night!"

"You're too conscientious, dad," Joyce suggested.

"I said all this happened a month ago," he went on, not hearing her. "It's been gathering of course for years; I belonged to clubs, but I knew it was ruined. We've not lived within our income—within any sort of income, for years. I'm not blaming you, Sally; we're in this together! I kept feeling that I'd hit it lucky again somehow, pay up the bills and start fresh without even letting any one of you know how thin the ice had been. Sometimes at night I'd try to warn your mother, ask her if we could cut down. But it was always the wrong time, wasn't it, Sally? Lissy was having a little dinner dance; she wanted your mother and me and her sisters to get out of the house—just didn't want us there; we had to spend ten dollars somewhere for dinner. Dodo promised some fund a hundred, in school. All she wanted, all any of you wanted from us was money." William Ballard paused; he was finding it hard to take his family into his confidence.

The Stars Say

For Friday, July 19

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

ANOTHER DAY of spectacular events, with unprecedented progress which may result in a complete turnabout face from old ideas and traditions, with eyes turned front to define new adventures and experiences, radical and far reaching. Originality, advanced ideals possibly of startling nature or of exalted vision may be expected to project to high levels of achievement with the element of romance not slighted. In such major operations however, there is need for discretion as there are hints of fraud, duplicity, irregularity.

Those whose birthday it is are at the brink of a year of excellent progress and prosperity which may demand a radical and far-reaching turn in the affairs, with new ideas fresh scenes and high aspiration. There may be strokes of remarkable creative genius, with extraordinary adventure and possibly romance in the forefront.

A child born on this day may have such creative genius and originality, with trends toward the ever-changing new and novel. It's progressive traits and talents may invite perfidy and opposition and from high places.

You Must Eat To Be Beautiful

Disregard for a few simple health laws may make a complexion go greenery yallery or take on a grey appearance. The skin is sympathetic, feels bad and looks worse, if anything is out of kilter with the human machine.

Malnutrition and loss of sleep produce pallor. No roses blooming in them thar cheeks. Girls who live on nothing a day because they have no appetites can not expect to live up with the beauties of this troubled world. Late hours are wrinkle producers, and don't think that just because you aren't forty you won't get them. Premature wrinkles are nearly always the result of ill health or lack of proper nourishment and rest.

Be a Lazy Lass

Active, highly energized women fancy they can't wear out but they do. A little relaxation, hours of delightful laziness, will nip off the record of the years. These ladies tear down and don't build up; so what can they expect, the dear sillies?

The tired woman doesn't get places. Fatigue makes her inefficient. Her work goes slowly, her nervous system caterwauls, eyes are dull, complexion likewise. It's senseless not to take care of oneself. And while cosmetics are our great little friends, don't forget that they must be backed up by vitality and splendid health if they are to do the work for which they were compounded.

If you discover that a corn has appeared upon your foot investigate the inside of your shoe. There may be a crease in the lining. Or the shoe presses on that particular spot. The flesh banks up to protect itself. You can have the corn removed but if you wear the same shoe, it will stay right with you to torment you with twinges.

Change your shoes several times a day, if it is convenient. That practice will rest footies that need extra attention this season of the year. Bathe them daily, dust with a foot powder, sprinkle the powder inside your shoes. Foot pains extend way up to your face and carve wrinkles in it.

PLAINFIELD W. M. S.

The regular June meeting of Plainfield W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Hodgen and was opened by the president Mrs. H. McCreary. The worship period was taken by Mrs. S. Hazard. A solo was given by Miss Nellie Hodgen. The Scripture readings on stewardship were given by several of the ladies.. Mrs. Wallace Simmons read the Scripture reading. Mrs. S. Hazard gave a paper on Christian Stewardship, "The Body is the Temple of God". Solo by Mrs. Harry Harrison and a reading "What Do I Owe" by Mrs. C. Marshall were greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. E. Emmerson group leader then took charge of the meeting.

A reading "God's Miracles" by Mrs. Hall and a duet by Mrs. H. McCreary and Mrs. Harry Harrison followed. Mrs. Emerson gave a very interesting paper on the chapter from the study book "Higher Christian Education in India". Short readings from the Missionary Monthly were given by Miss Hazel Chapman, Mrs. C. Marshall, Mrs. N. Hale Jr. and Mrs. C. Hall.

Mr. Harrison gave a splendid report of her work in the Mission Band. It was decided to send the Missionary Apron around again.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction. Twenty-one were present and the offering was $2.70.

When Parents And Teachers Get Together

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

"Dear Doctor Myers: As chairman of the grade school, I am appealing to you for ideas and suggestions for a constructive program for this school year. Up to this time the parent and teacher meetings in our school have been largely of the entertaining variety. Our committee feels that the program should be more worthwhile and constructive."

My reply: First, limit the regular program to one hour. Ask a doctor to take one evening, telling how to prevent communicable disease and what to do till the doctor comes. Ask a dentist to talk on how you and your children may have and keep good teeth. Ask a merchant to tell of his problems with children who come to his store and offer suggestions for solving such. Ask your school superintendent, principal or a teacher to tell what the school expects of the home; and a parent to tell what the home expects of the school.

Strict Time Limit

One speaker a night is enough. He should not speak more than thirty minutes. Hold him strictly to the time limits. Have him answer questions. Limit the music or other entertainment to about eight or ten minutes.

Since you have a large Hungarian group, induce some Hungarian father to tell of some of the customs of his native country. On the same evening you might have some Hungarian children put on a brief folk dance in Hungarian costume. Such would create a fine feeling and make the Hungarian children and parents feel more worthwhile.

Some skilful person might give a review of a good book for parents on child guidance or family relationships. There might, indeed, be two such reviews as an evening program. I shall be glad to suggest books for this purpose.

Then there could be an evening of improvised skits such as:

A. A dinner scene in which there is tension, bedlam, radio on, etc.

B. Followed by another dinner scene that is wholesome.

C. A bad bedtime scene, followed by a good bed time scene.

Practically every program should have something to do with improving parenthood, promoting child health, child guidance and protection, or fostering closer home-school cooperation.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Would you punish a child for an accident, like dropping a glass or breaking a vase?

A. No; but if he were playing with such things or dangerously near them, I would command him to quit the play. Then if he continued, he would be punished immediately, whether anything were broken or not.

Q. Would you advise reading from the Bible to children under eight or ten at home?

A. I would do so urgently. No better English to be found anywhere, nor better stories.

Cleveland Indians Regain Lead In American Loop As Tigers Drop Pair To Boston Red Sox

Yankees Defeat Bobby Feller in Thirteen Frames by 4-3 Count

REDS WIN

Cincinnati Squeezes Past Boston Bees 4-3 With Derringer Hurling 12th Win

(By Judson Bailey)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cleveland Indians have lost four consecutive games and regained the American League lead, all in one mysterious motion.

It took 13 innings for Cleveland to crumble beneath New York Yankees yesterday, 4-3, and for 10 innings in the middle Bob Feller and Monte Pearson matched two-hit pitching.

Unfortunately, the show was not as smooth as this sounds. Feller loaded the bases in the first inning with a single and two walks. Sammy Hale booted a grounder to let in one run, and Feller pitched another across. Then, in the second, Feller let a return throw from the catcher roll off his glove and out to short while a runner scored from third.

Pearson made mistakes, too. He fed a home run ball to Jeff Heath in the second and in the sixth gave another "gopher" to Hal Trosky with a man on base. When nobody else could break up the game, Bill Dickey singled the winning run across in the 13th.

Tigers Drop Two to Boston

Meanwhile, Detroit dipped 8-3 and 8-5 before a capacity crowd of 32,400 fans at Boston and lost Buck Newson with a broken thumb on his pitching hand. The big right-hander who has won 13 straight will be out 10 days to a month.

The Tigers got three runs in the first inning and no more in the first game as Jack Wilson and Fritz Ostermueller combined in a five-hit pitching performance. The Red Sockers cracked open a tie score with five runs in the seventh.

Bobby Doerr sent Boston out in front in the nightcap with a "grand slam" homer in the first inning, and the Tigers never were able to do anything about it after that.

Senators Create Havoc

Washington Senators continued to create havoc by whipping Chicago White Sox, 5-2, with the help of five Chisox errors. Four of them were by Eric McNair, tying a modern record for third baseman.

Cincinnati Reds squeezed past Boston Bees, 4-3, to maintain their margin at the front of the National League. It was the 12th triumph for Paul Derringer, who allowed eight hits.

Luke Hamlin got hot again and pitched Brooklyn Dodgers to a 2-1 verdict over Chicago Cubs. He allowed only three singles. The six-game winning streak of St. Louis Cardinals came apart against the five-hit hurling of Hugh Mulcahy as the Phillies' star obtained a 3-0 shutout.

ROCHESTER WINGS WIN 3-2 VICTORY ON TIMELY BITS

Only Obtained Two in Pastime but Team Made Them Count

TORONTO SPLITS

Leafs Lose First to Royals but Come Back in 11 Innings to Take Nightcap

(By the Associated Press)

Rochester Red Wings, out in front in the international league by seven games don't have to depend on "breaks" for their victories, but like every team of championship calibre, they're able to take advantage of every opportunity.

Last night, the Wings demonstrated the knack of turning defeat into victory by edging out the Buffalo Bisons, 3-2, on two timely hits—their only two of the game—and a Buffalo miscue.

The Wings were held hitless by Hal White until two were out in the eighth. Then Mueller walked, Myers batted for pitcher Hank Gornicki and singled to left for the first safety. He went to third when Lillard followed with the second single, and scored ahead of Lillard as Dan Carnevale, Buffalo shortstop, threw wild over first baseman Scarella's head. Johnny Berly retired the Bisons in order in the ninth to give Gornicki his 13th victory of the year.

Bisons Now Seventh

The defeat dropped Bisons into seventh place behind the Syracuse Chiefs, who also capitalized on an error to defeat Baltimore Orioles, 6-4. Chiefs collected 12 hits off Orlin Collier and Ken Trinkle in winning their third straight game.

Montreal Royals lost a good chance to gain ground on the idle Newark Bears by splitting a double header with Toronto, winning the first, 4-2, and losing the second 5-4 in 11 innings. Newark's game with Jersey City was moved up to be played at a later date.

Bill Crouch outpitched Les McCrabb in the opener at Toronto, holding the Leafs to three hits. His mates collected nine, including a home run by Gus Suhr, good for three of their runs.

Vallie Eaves gained the verdict over Steve Rachunok, in the second encounter, when Bob Latshaw opened the 11th with a single, took second on a sacrifice and scored on Mickey DeJonghe's single. Rachunok retired 18 Leafs in order up to the 11th after Toronto had nicked him for four runs in the first.

JENKINS SLUMPS SENSELESS AFTER TERRIFIC BEATING

Henry Armstrong Wins Non-Title Bout When Jenkins Fails to Answer Seventh Round

DOWN SIX TIMES

Jenkins Won First Three Rounds With Armstrong Scarcely Laying a Glove on Him

(By Gayle Talbot Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, July 18 (AP)— Henry Armstrong isn't the fighting machine he was a year or two ago, but he still is plenty good.

The beating hammering Henry gave lightweight champion Lew Jenkins in a nontitle bout last night was a masterpiece in brutality. Every move of his brown body was calculated to lead to the climax between the sixth and seventh rounds, when Jenkins slumped senseless from his stool.

Few of the 23,000 spectators realized what a terrible going-over the slender Texan had received. Some were surprised when he collapsed and referee Arthur Donovan lifted Armstrong's glove.

For the first three rounds, Armstrong scarcely laid a glove on his tense, savagely-punching opponent. But for the next three rounds he was poison and Jenkins' doom clearly was sealed from the first terrific left hook that caught him on his sharp chin and bumped him to the floor.

Down Six Times

Jenkins was down six times: Once in the fourth, twice in the fifth and three more times in the sixth. The third time he went down in the sixth he wasn't hit, but simply fell from a right he aimed at Armstrong and missed.

When the round ended he stood backed against the ropes, a pitiful expression on his bloodied features, his eyes black. He was led to his corner and placed on his stool, but after a moment he tried to rise and, instead, went to his knees.

As for those opening rounds, frankly, Armstrong's admirers were not so sure themselves. For nine minutes of fighting, Henry simply contented himself with bobbing and weaving and clinching and generally getting Jenkins' goat. The first round, in fact, was nearly ended before Armstrong sank his first real blow into Jenkins' wasp waist.

Jenkins, meantime, was swatting Armstrong all over the joint, laying his rights and lefts on the negro's chin and winning the three rounds by wide margins.

SARAZEN CALLS FOR A REMATCH OF GOLFS' GREATS

Challengers of Ryder Cup Team Only Beaten 7-5 in Two Days of Play

GAME NETS $16,000

Detroit, July 18. —(AP)— Gene Sarazen, the little fellow with the big swing, called for a rematch today between his challengers and America's Ryder Cup Golf team.

"I'm not ready to admit defeat," was Sarazen's comment after his handpicked squad lost to the cuppers, 7 to 5, in a two-day benefit match which ended yesterday.

"After all", he declared, "the issue was decided by only one match and a bit of luck here and there along the way would have changed the outcome. I'll get together a team next year that will win."

That the event which netted the Red Cross war relief fund an estimated $16,000, might be repeated was indicated by Tom Walsh, president of the Professional Golfers' Association.

"If Great Britain's golfers are unable to play a Ryder match next year I am certain a contest between the boys and a team picked by Sarazen would be welcomed by the public".

Sarazen's challengers almost kept the issue in doubt by dividing the eight singles matches after dropping three of the four Scotch foursomes the previous day.

Sarazen fell an easy mark to Henry Picard the P.G.A. champion 8 and 7.

Others of the Ryder team to hang up victories were Ralph Guldahl, Horton Smith and Dick Metz.

Guldahl put out Craig Wood, 2 and 1, while Smith took the measure of Lawson Little, the new National open king, 4 and 3. Metz trounced Jimmy Demaret, the game's leading money winner this year, 5 and 4.

Burke, winner of the 1931 open played subpar golf to defeat Byron Nelson, 1939 open title holder, 4 and 2, while Hogan downed Slammin' Sammy Snead, 2 and 1. Cooper won the final hole to whip Vic Ghezzi, 1 up, and Oliver put out Jimmy Hines, 8 and 7.

ARMSTRONG AND JENKINS REALLY PUNCH

HENRY ARMSTRONG

LEW JENKINS

In one of the most torrid boxing bouts of the year "Hammerin' Hank" Armstrong punched Lew Jenkins into submission at the Polo Grounds last night. A disappointing crowd of some 20,000 saw the scrap and saw Armstrong absorb Jenkins' Sunday punch and then unleash a devastating attack that terminated with Jenkins falling off the stool at the opening of the 7th round. Armstrong (shown left) was the winner by a T.K.O.

Kiwanis Kids Did Not Spare The Hickory

Those sluggin' Kiwanis Kids do not spare the hickory. and more especially when their softball opponents commence to press. This was clearly demonstrated at the Service Club loop game played at the Collegiate last night, when the Follwell - Logan - Fox aggregation scored eleven runs in a seventh inning rally to beat the Kinsmen 29 to 21.

Truly it was a case of experience triumphing over trusting youth, as the Marvel-Roe-Hurley nine had pushed ten runs across the fourth base in a sixth inning rally and were chuckling within their own realm, when the Kiwanis Kids unleashed their torrid attack, that left the youthful Kinsmen bewildered and beaten.

The Kinsmen rushed relief pitching strength into the breach, but without avail, as Fisher, Hurley, Knott and even Newt Wilbur ascended the mound in a futile effort to stop the league champions in their onrush. Follwell shared the pitching honors for the winners with his brother Teddie. Lusty hitting featured the game, as the score indicates.

The lineups:

Kiwanis—Tebworth, T. Follwell, Logan, J. Follwell, Wilkes, Baldwin, Grant, Fox and F. Follwell.

Kinsmen—Fisher, Wilbur, Hurley, Roe, Harvey, Knott, Garbutt, Marvell and Asselstine.

Score by innings:

Kiwanis ...... 4 1 5 1 2 1 11 4—29
Kinsmen ..... 0 2 1 2 0 10 2 4—21

Umpires—Yarrow and Hammett.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, July 18 (AP)—Harry Danning himself couldn't have done a better job of catching than Lew Jenkins did in the Giants ball park last night....And the pitching by Henry Armstrong wasn't so bad.... These last three rounds, he looked like a combination of Bobby Feller and Lefty Gomez....Wild but effective....And they said Henry wasn't the Armstrong of old .... Maybe he wasn't but we didn't hear Texas Lew hollering for a return bout soon as he reached his dressing room.

Broadway and points west: The Broadway Borscht Belt will sprout a Dude ranch....A guy who owns a couple of hotels is soon to open a rootin'-tootin' place for the cowhands from Lindy's....Night harness racing starts soon out on Long Island, and the promoters are figgerin' on some fancy gates. They argue the big city is plumb full of country folks who ain't seen a good trottin' race since the county fair, back home....Dixie Walker of the Dodgers is to have a "day" a week from Sunday, with a testimonial dinner and all the fixins that night.

Today's guest star.

Tom Meany, New York "PM": "Jenkins still has his biggest fight on his hands—trying to convince Mrs. Jenkins that there is an excuse for giving Hymie Caplin a part of last night's purse."

Paul Derringer, Reds: Won 12th game of season by scattering eight hits against Bees.

WEST END "Y" OF TORONTO WINS 8 ONTARIO TITLES

Track and Field Meet at Varsity Stadium Provides Strong Competition

TWO SCORE DOUBLES

Larry O'Connor and George Downing Each Score Brace of Victories

Toronto, July 18. —(CP)—Toronto West End Y.M.C.A., guiding star in track and field activities here, has reaped the reward of the seed it sowed to foster interest in the cinder paths.

This year the West End branch of the "Y" undertook to sponsor the Ontario track and field championships and last night at Varsity Stadium athletes running under their colors captured eight provincial titles. The Hamilton Olympic Club and the Toronto police force shared equally the other six crowns.

Two West End runners, Larry O'Connor and George Downing, took first place in two events to score the only double victories and divide individual honors. O'Connor, holder of the Dominion record for the 110-metre high hurdles, won the 110-metre high hurdles and 440-yards events. Downing captured the 100 and 220-yards events.

O'Connor flew over the hurdles in 15.2 for an easy win over his club mate Doug Armstrong. The Canadian hurdle record holder covered the 440 in 51.3 and was followed by Alan Everett of the Hamilton Olympic Club. Pete Taylor of West End, 1940 Ontario Junior 100 220-yards champion, and Elliott Gooch of the Hamilton Olympic Club finished second and third, respectively, to Downing in the 100 and 220-yard races. Downing was timed in 10.2 in the Century dash and 24 seconds in the longer distance.

Not far behind O'Connor and Downing for individual honors came Sammy Richardson, negro star who holds the Canadian running broad jump record with a mark of 24 feet, 11 inches. Richardson, formerly of Toronto but now of St. Catharines, won with a jump of 22 feet, 11 inches, a 1-2 inch farther than the second place winner, Wallace Brown of West End. Richardson leaped under the colors of West End.

Hamilton Olympic Club's entries won first place in the 880 in 2:01 over Jack Laing of Toronto and Bill Morrison of Hamilton. Frid won the pole vault with a leap of 12 feet after a long duel with Don Grant, Toronto, former Canadian Junior champion and James Attfield of the Toronto police, last year's winner.

Quinte Tennis Club Breaks Even With Trenton Netsters

Still undefeated in a scheduled Trent Valley Tennis League tournament for the current year, the Quinte Tennis Club were forced to accept a draw in six scheduled league matches played on their home courts yesterday, when they divided their series at three games each with the strong Trenton Tennis club. The visiting Trenton nettsters won a mixed doubles, the ladies twosome and one set of men's doubles, while the local league-leading Quinte nettsters won the men's singles, one set of mixed doubles and a men's twosome event.

In winning three of the six matches scheduled the Quinte Tennis Club remained dominating the Trent Valley League standing, having won 19 of their 24 matches played this season.

The results of yesterday's matches were:

Men's Singles: H. Kerr (Quinte) defeated J. Brooks (Trenton) 6-2, 5-7 and 6-1.

Mixed Doubles: G. Ayteo and J. Cruji (Quinte) lost to J. White and Peg Johnson (Trenton) 6-4, and 8-6.

2. Mixed Doubles: G. Barclay and Muriel Wardner (Quinte) defeated H. Gray and H. Franclik (Trenton) 4-5, 6-1 and 6-3.

Ladies' Doubles: A. Cruji and E. Young (Quinte) lost to G. Blache and P. Blache (Trenton) 6-1 and 6-0.

1. Men's Doubles: Barnett and Bucker (Quinte) won over Lesperance and Ackerman (Trenton) 8-6 and 6-3.

2. Men's Doubles: Wilkes and Wickerson (Quinte) lost to Jones and Flett (Trenton) 6-0 and 6-1.

Some tall golfing is being seen at the Bay of Quinte Country Club these balmy days. The Jewellers Cup, Tip Top Trophy and club championships are all in progress (not on the same greens simultaneously, however) and some splendid scores have been turned in according to Games Chairman Dick Payne. The semi-finalists in the Jewellers' Trophy, a mixed doubles tourney, are Mrs. E. Porter and C. B. Spalding versus Mrs. O. H. Scott and A. P. Allen, while the other half of the series brings together Joyce Porritt and Dave Payne versus Mrs. A. P. Allen and Teddy Orr. The ultimate winners will meet in the finals. Yesterday the Tip Top tournament opened at the Country Club and it will continue over the week-end, as this matched play is for 36 holes and the top-flight 16 players will also qualify for the club handicap championships, as well as complete the Tip Top tourney. Up at the Belleville Golf Club they are preparing for the club championships, which will be played next month.

"Some softball chatter" — The money collected from the Flyer-Oilers war charity softball game was sufficient to purchase the following softball equipment—catcher's mitt and mask, first-base mitt, four balls and three bats, all of which are on display in Moore and Bonter's window. The goods will be delivered, in person by the Oilers, to the Belleville boys now with the 34th Battery and who will be home on week-end leave Friday or Saturday. No doubt the Belleville contingent will appreciate the Oilers' effort. . . . With the City Softball schedule completed on Monday, the local "mushbawlers" will convene over the week end to arrange city and O.A.S.A. play-off dates. . . . As a number of the boys with both Corbys A.C. and the Oilers are now signed up with the Argyll Light Infantry, (N.P.A.M.) plans to play all play-down games on nights when drilling is not in force will be one of the chief problems to face the executive. After all war efforts precede any mere sporting activity, although the latter is admitted to be essential in its place.

In the girls' softball set-up, General Chairman Ted Schwab announced today that the league would extend its schedule to give each team home and home games with all others. Tonight's originally scheduled game at the Armouries has been replaced by a Zeller versus Metros, game and although the newly proposed schedule may impose hardships on some teams, it was the consensus of opinion that with four teams assured of subsequent play-off berths, no particular hardships will be endured for the next fortnight. With national registration soon to come into effect the local softball groups are preparing for any emergency. As for the lassies' loop, they hope to be able to continue at the Armouries for a few weeks, but Monday night's game at the Flats will have to be abandoned owing to military training. With this in mind the City Softball executive could commence their play-offs next Tuesday night, as Monday and Friday nights are out for softball for the duration of the war.

If interested in just how hard Max Baer hit Tony Galento in their recent fiasco, the fight pictures are showing at the Capitol Theatre for the remainder of the week. After all it may be the last time one can see "the big bad" Baer on the winning end, because all Uncle Mike Jacobs is looking for now is a site for the Baer-Louis fight, Chicago pressmen having spurned the bout for the Windy City. However, no matter how you look at it Max knows that it probably will be rough going for him, but there's money in it, and that's something Maximilian would give anything to get in large quantities.

As for his chance in such a bout, Max summed it up fairly when he said after pounding the corpulent Galento out of the picture:

"I have a punch—and I might land it."

He might, too. But if he misses, he isn't going to be angry. Just terribly, terribly hurt.

Do you remember when Joe DiMaggio cracked out three hits—one a ninth-inning home run with the bases loaded — to pace New York Yankees to a 5-1 victory over Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians' pitching prodigy, three years ago today. Feller allowed seven hits and struck out seven but couldn't stop the Yanks' hard-hitting outfielder.

The Shell "Oilers" completed their schedule in the City Softball loop by beating Picton 10 to 8 at the Sandbanks last evening. The "Oilers" have one postponed game with Picton, which in all probability will remain unplayed. Coach Bawden's nine completed their schedule, only losing two out of 11 games played, which is a splendid percentage in any man's ball loop. Now the "Oilers" await the league play-offs.

Sometimes too much ballyhoo will spoil a good thing, and apparently that is what happened in the Armstrong-Jenkins scrap—the boys beat the drums too loudly. Less than 20,000 saw Jenkins really smack Armstrong in the early rounds, but the colored lad absorbed Lew's Sunday punches, sustained a badly cut eye and then really let out. In the sixth Armstrong was hitting Jenkins with both hands at once, so fast were his punches travelling. Jenkins couldn't respond for the seventh and the fans at the Polo Grounds left satisfied they had seen more ring action than witnessed in a dozen heavyweight bouts. Remember, however, Jenkins got to Armstrong, who although the winner, showed that he is apparently slowing up despite his ability to take it.

SPORT SPICE — The sporting world regretted the passing of Cecil Hart, that dynamic personage who led the colorful Montreal Les Canadiens to great hockey heights as "The Flying Frenchmen." . . . Detroit Tigers received a severe blow yesterday when Buck Newsom sustained a fractured right thumb while fielding a dribbler down the first base line. . . . History repeated itself as the Yankees beat Bob Feller 4-3 yesterday, as a previous paragraph today indicates. Both the Indians and Tigers lost yesterday as the Yanks and Boston won to make a real American League race, while it's a two-horse race in the National. Gene Tunney says he has no intents of returning to the ring for a scrap with Jack Dempsey, which sounds like good logic no matter what seat you're perched in.

Spanish Government Is Called 'Usurper' By Chilean Government

Santiago, Chile, July 18—(AP)—Chile termed the Spanish Nationalist Government "usurpers" in a reply today to Spain's breaking of diplomatic relations and declared the reasons given for the action "represent undue meddling in the internal policy of Chile."

(In Madrid, the Spanish Government said Tuesday it broke off relations because Chile was "protecting and aiding red elements who fled from Spain" and that Spanish protests met with "only hostile evasions.")

Chile's note, handed to Spanish Charge D'Affaires Federico Olivan, disclosed that Madrid's communication called the Chilean popular front government an "anarchical regime."

THOUSAND OF BEES ATTACK FIREMEN

Oshkosh, Wis., July 18—(AP)—With a little cooperation, the Oshkosh fire department might have saved Henry Berholtz' barn. Angered by the blaze, thousands of bees attacked the entire fire department. Unprepared for the onslaught, the firemen withdrew and the barn burned.

FRENCH OUTPOSTS

the application of Monroe Doctrine principles in disposing of possessions of conquered nations and Hull proclaimed Washington's urgent desire for maintenance of the status quo in the entire Pacific.

Just what part the Vichy government of Marshal Philippe Petain will play in the final disposition of Indo-China is a question on which no one here will hazard a guess.

Recent Developments

Here are the highlights of recent developments:

Governor-General Darmee Catroux, appointee of French Premier Daladier, continues to exercise full powers while his nominal successor, Admiral Jean Decoux, appointee of Petain, has avoided assumption of office for reasons best known to himself.

A special Japanese commission sent here to enforce the ban on supplies moving to China has busied itself with the expansion of Japanese influence, particularly in vital economic fields.

The tentative British-French understanding of June 28 for preservation of their Far Eastern status quo has been clouded.

Despite the Hull and Roosevelt pronouncements, there have been expressions of disappointment and resentment against the United States. One burning question of the moment is the American attitude toward thawing frozen credits; another is whether the United States will release aircraft separately to Indo-China.

Mission Bound For Washington

An Indo-China mission is bound for Washington by plane to try to get the answer to both questions.

The conclusion of a trade agreement with Japan, providing for 70 per cent of trade by barter, may offset to a small degree the severe blow dealt by the sealing of the supply line to China.

Its 274,385 square miles are populated by 21,652,000 persons, including about 43,000 Europeans.

Under French influence since 1787, Indo-China is hoping for the best out of the uncertainty clouding the future.

JAW FRACTURED BY HORSE KICK

Robert McGibbon, Turriff, Severely Injured When Kicked in Face by Horse

Bancroft, Ont., (Special)—Fourteen-year-old Robert McGibbon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McGibbon of Turriff, ten miles east of this village, was rushed to Toronto General Hospital Wednesday morning suffering with a painful compound fracture of the jaw, incurred when a horse suddenly lashed out and kicked the youngster in the face.

The injured boy had set out to catch the horse which was grazing in a pasture field on the farm of his father in company with a chum Alex. Stewart. Warned by Stewart "that if you go too close you will frighten the animal," young McGibbon approached the animal when it suddenly squealed, whirled in a circle and lashed out with both hind legs.

The boy had no time to avoid the flying hoofs which struck him squarely in the face.

Dr. S. S. Lamb rushed to the scene of the accident and after preliminary treatment ordered the injured boy to the Toronto General Hospital. McGibbon's jaw was fractured in two places and his condition at the time was regarded as serious.

Princesses Give Aluminumware From Miniature House

London, July 18—(CP) — Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose contributed today to the nation-wide collection of aluminum for warplane construction.

Their contribution: A set of kitchen ware from the miniature house the Welsh nation gave them in 1932.

Pots and pans from the royal kitchens were given by the King and Queen.

THYROID GLAND INJURED

Toronto, July 18—(CP)— Nora Law of Toronto was taken to hospital here last night with an injured thyroid gland. According to police she was participating in a "wheelbarrow race" at a picnic, when she stumbled and her partner accidentally stepped on her neck, injuring the gland.

68-YEAR-OLD VETERAN DIES

Vancouver, July 18—(CP)—W. K. Bunting, 68-year-old veteran of the first Great War and son of the late W. K. Bunting, proprietor of the old Toronto Mail, died here Wednesday after a long illness. At one time an extensive writer for eastern newspapers, he came here three months ago after living in Victoria since 1925. A graduate of Upper Canada College, Toronto, he enlisted as a private, winning his commission later. He lost a leg and was invalided home.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Alias The Deacon"

Bob Burns has brought his bazooka back to the screen in the new Universal comedy, "Alias the Deacon," now playing at the McCarthy theatre.

Besides playing the bazooka, Burns relates new stories about his famous kinfolk back in Van Buren, Ark., and altoghther presents the homely, humorous character that has made him unique among comedians.

Mischa Auer fills an important comedy role, and the strong supporting cast includes Dennis O'Keefe, Peggy Moran, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, Spencer Charters, Bennie Bartlett, Thurston Hall, Jack Carson, Virginia Brissac, Geo. Moran and others.

"Alias the Deacon" was directed by the veteran Christy Cabanne from a screenplay by Nat Perrin and Charles Grayson and is the screen version of the famous Broadway stage play of the same name.

The story, said to be perfectly suited to Bob Burns' personality, deals with a kindly card sharp who uses his wits and skill to aid worthy but unfortunate friends. The role calls for Burns to masquerade as a deacon while performing his "good deeds."

John Wayne

The popular outdoor star, John Wayne returns to the McCarthy theatre in his new action packed feature-western "Telegraph Trail" which is presented in addition to "Alias The Deacon" and makes one of the season's finest two feature presentations that the McCarthy has shown on the screen. "Park Your Baby" an amusing cartoon and also a new "Screen Snapshots" completes this fine program.

AT THE BELLE

"Two Girls on Broadway"

With "Dancing Co-Ed" Lana Turner and "Broadway Melody" George Murphy heralded as setting a new pace for the last word in dance teams, and Joan Blondell in an entirely new sort of role, the streamlined musical, "Two Girls on Broadway" is now on the Belle theatre screen. While both Miss Turner and Murphy have displayed their dancing prowess on the screen before, the new musical marks the first occasion in which they are seen as a dancing team.

With the three stars as its principals, "Two Girls on Broadway" is described as a dramatic story with a musical background. Opening in a small town in Indiana, its action proceeds to New York where the adventures of its key characters, Molly and Pat Mahoney, are traced. The theme centres about the love of the two girls for the small boy, played by Murphy, and the sacrifice of the older of the two so that her "kid sister" might find happiness.

In addition to the stellar threesome, the cast of "Two Girls on Broadway" includes Kent Taylor, last seen with Spencer Tracy, Hedy Lamarr in "I Take This Woman," Richard Lane, Wallace Ford, Otto Hahn, Lloyd Corrigan, Don Wilson and Charles Wagnoheim.

S. Sylvan Simon filmdom's youngest director, makes this the third of a series of films in which he has directed Lana Turner the others having been "These Glamour Girls" and "Dancing Co-Ed." It was Simons idea to take a dramatic story and set it against a musical background and the result is hailed as the first time such a combination has been 100 per cent successful in Hollywood.

Among new songs heard in the production are "My Wonderful One Let's Dance" and "Broadway's Still Broadway."

"Calling Philo Vance"

One of Hollywood's most popular film series has come from S. S. Van Dine's ingenious detective Philo Vance, and his latest adventure is now being shown on the Belle screen in "Calling Philo Vance," announced as the companion feature attraction. In the past, William Powell, Warren William, Basil Rathbone and Edmund Lowe have played the sleuth. Added to the rank now is the dapper English star James Stephenson, who plays with Margot Stevenson, comely brunette recently discovered on Broadway, and such talented featured players as Henry O'Neill, Edward Brophy, Sheila Bromely and Ralph Forbes.

An interesting all-new edition of the March of Time will be presented on the same program.

PRAIRIE MEMBERS UNITE TO FIGHT 10P.C. IMPORT TAX

REJECT AMENDMENT

Ottawa, July 18—(CP)—As solid and determined a bloc of Prairie members as the House of Commons has seen in recent years is fighting the government's new 10 per cent tax on imports—especially farm machinery.

Ignoring party lines, western members have united against the application of this war exchange tax to agricultural implements but failed yesterday, despite their pleas and criticism, to sway the government from pushing through the tax resolution as the preliminary to its being made law.

Indications, however, point to the fight being resumed with new intensity when the tax bill itself is presented to parliament within the next few days.

Debate on the budget resolutions came after Prime Minister Mackenzie King said he thought it might be understood the unemployment insurance bill, introduced Monday, would be referred to a special committee of the Commons when it comes up for second reading today or tomorrow.

In special committee it could be discussed in detail more speedily than in committee of the whole and debate in the House might be postponed until the bill had been returned from the committee, Mr. King suggested.

Representatives of agricultural districts have been speaking for the past three days in protest against the war exchange tax during debate on the budget resolutions. Yesterday an amendment moved by E. E. Perley (Con. Qu'Appelle) to exempt from the tax "farm implements and parts thereof," was rejected as out of order.

The claim of opponents has been that agriculture, already distressed, would suffer further because prices of implements of production would be increased as manfacturers took advantage of the tax.

Centenary

Centenary perennial playoff contenders in Sidney Township Softball circles, drew a bye into the 1940 playdowns at the completion of the Sidney Softball League schedule this year, which saw three teams, Centenary, last year's champions, Marsh Hill and White's all tied for the first rung with the latter two teams now engaged in a best two out of three series to determine which team will stack up against the Centenary team in the finals.

The boys did not get their entire playing schedule completed owing to rainy weather, etc., but with the other two entrants in the league, namely—Wallbridge and Ninth concession lads having won only one game each, they could not possibly catch the leaders even should they win their postponed games and it was decided to get the playoffs started, while the long evenings lasted.

In the first game of the semi-finals between Marsh Hill and White's played on the latter's diamond last week, the Marsh Hill lads drew first blood and now need only one more victory as the result of eking out a close 9-7 decision over the Frontliners. Westfall, hurling for White's was nicked for base-hits a-plenty by the victorious Marsh Hill nine, with Frederick, Smith and L. Finkle being the strongest on the offensive for the winners. Harder for the losers connected for the only four base clouts of the game when he cuffed one of Campbell's slants for the circuit. Campbell, however, was in rare form, whiffing nine batters and walking only one, while Westfall, on the other hand, walked two and struck out four Marsh Hill batters.

The second and what may be the last game of the semi-final series will be played on the Marsh Hill diamond this coming Friday evening. If Marsh Hill win, they will immediately enter a three-out-of-five series with Centenary to determine the championship.

Germany Depreciates National Currencies Of Areas Captured

London, July 18—(CP-Cable)—Under the heading "Nazi Plot to Loot Europe," The Daily Telegraph reported today that London economic circles have learned that Germany is purchasing large quantities of supplies in the countries it dominates after depreciating the national currencies of those territories.

The Nazis are said to have depreciated the French franc 70 per cent. In accepting devalued francs for their goods, the newspaper reported, the French people have not realized that against this currency they have a claim only on the Reichsmark balance in Berlin.

Assisted by a favorable rate of exchange, the Nazis are also stated to be buying shares of French industrial companies and thus obtaining control of industry.

The Telegraph envisioned behind the plan "the craft of Schacht, who is now back in Hitler's favor. (Dr. Hjalmar Schacht is a former German Minister of Economics and president of the Reichsbank).

AIRMAN STUDY BRIDGE MODEL

R.A.F. Bombers Severely Damage Double Aqueduct Over Canal

London, July 18 (CP Cable) — Airmen of the Royal Air Force who raided and severely damaged the Dortmund-Ems canal, one of the important links in Germany's internal transportation system, studied a model of the vital double aqueduct where it crosses the Ems river, before making the raid, the Air Ministry news service disclosed Wednesday.

The models were constructed after reconnaissance flights during which particular attention was paid to the aqueduct and photographs were taken. Picked crews then received special instructions on the method of attack.

The captain of one attacking aircraft commented: "If we had not seen the model and photographs beforehand we could easily have made a mistake for there were several places which more or less resembled our real target."

Photographs taken after the raid showed the double aqueduct unusable, the canal empty, and barges high and dry in mud. The Germans have been reported making increased use of their canal system after British raids have damaged railway lines and junctions.

SHANNONVILLE AND CANNIFTON WIN LOOP TILTS

Foxboro and Latta Shoved Deeper Into Cellar Positions by Losses

GOOD CONTESTS

Shannonville and Cannifton climbed a trifle further up the ladder in the South Hastings League last evening, shoving Foxboro and Latta deeper into the cellar positions with Shannonville scoring an easy 6-3 win over Foxboro, while Cannifton took their fifth straight game to win over at Latta by a 6-4 score.

Shannonville scored four easy runs in the first inning to win the ball game at Shannonville as with the aid of two walks, a error and three hits they put the game on ice before the Foxboro lads were able to break into the scoring column. Peacock started on the mound for the Foxboro team but did not last the first inning as a streak of wildness and an error put him in the hole. V. Guay coming in to relieve him faired considerably better and after weathering the storm in the first canto went on to hold the winners to two runs for the balance of the game.

Juby, on the mound for the Shannonville nine, was the big noise for the winners as he limited the Foxboro lads to two stingy singles, both collected by Walt, while he struck out 13 and hit one batter. Shannonville on the other hand touched Foxboro pitching for seven bingles, including a double by Juby in the first canto.

DETERMINE CAUSE BY AN INQUEST

Bodies of Dr. and Mrs. G.W. Paterson - Smyth, Montreal, Found in Small Woods

St. Donat, Que., July 18—(CP)—Result of an inquest was awaited today to determine cause of the death of Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Paterson-Smyth of Montreal, whose bodies were found near here yesterday.

The bodies were found 200 yards from their automobile, near an old stump in the forest. The car had been abandoned after its back wheels had plunged through a rustic bridge over a small stream.

Dr. Paterson-Smyth, a neurologist at the Montreal General Hospital, and his 30-year-old wife had been missing since Saturday morning, when they set out for Ottawa. Their car was found by friends Sunday on the rustic bridge not far from nearby Powter's camp, where they were well-known.

When the bodies finally were discovered by two brothers of Mrs. Paterson-Smyth, Dr. James B. Ross and Dr. Alan Ross of Montreal, there were no apparent marks of violence on them except for a few scratches which searchers believed had been received when the couple walked through the woods.

Dr. Paterson-Smyth was the son of the late Archdeacon and Mrs. J. Paterson-Smyth of Montreal. His wife was a daughter of Rev. George E. Ross, a retired clergyman. The couple had no children.

Youth Admits Writing Ransom Notes In Order to Purchase a Pony

Detroit, July 18 (AP)—Eleven-year-old Raymond DiCiaire forgot when he planned his own "kidnapping" that boys of his age get hungry, so now he won't get his pony after all.

Found staring hungrily into an ice cream store soon after daybreak, the boy who sent police on a frantic search for his captor last night admitted he had written his own ransom note in the hope of getting enough money to buy a pony.

The note, addressed to his foster parents, demanded $500 by Saturday midnight and threatened "your son will be killed," if the money was not forthcoming.

"I guess it wasn't such a good idea after all," he grinned sheepishly as detectives fed him after his all-night vigil in an abandoned bunkhouse. "I hadn't counted on getting hungry."

'I planned to send a second ransom note from the bunkhouse. Then I expected to get the pony," Raymond explained.

The ransom" note, written on a sheet of paper torn from school tablet and tossed into a flower box at the rear of his home, read:

"Your son has been kidnapped and I demand $500, which I want by 12 o'clock Saturday night, July 20. If I get the money, your son will be returned unharmed. If I do not get the money and you notify the police, your son will be killed."

Mrs. Raymond L. DiCaire, the child's foster mother, said she had heard him scream after she sent him to put his bicycle away for the night. Neighbors and police took up the search when the boy failed to return.

Nazi Bombs Fall in Open Space

The German raiders spread to Scotland where a bomber dropped three high explosive and several incendiary bombs on a northeast town. The bombs fell in an open space. One house was damaged slightly.

A single German place staged a machine-gun attack on a village in northeastern England. At mid-day German raiders bombed a small town in Wales. No considerable damage was reported. Fighting planes drove off a lone raider from another Welsh town where no bombs were dropped.

Britain experienced minor air raids during the night. "Some casualties" were caused the Ministry of Home Security and the Air Ministry said, and "a few were fatal." Loss of the 1,359-ton cargo ship Limerick by air attack also was announced by the Admiralty.

The King yesterday visited the section, which was bombed but officials declined to say if he was there when the bombs fell.

British Cruiser Damaged Slightly Last Week

The Admiralty said a Royal Navy cruiser had been damaged last week in a fight with Italian forces. The damage was caused by aerial bombs which registered some casualties but failed to impair the fighting qualities of the ship.

The Spanish angle to the situation developed when Gen. Francisco Franco, totalitarian chief of the country, said it was the "duty and mission" of his regime to realize the historic aims of Queen Isabella and make Gibraltar once more Spanish.

Both U.S. Nominees Sympathetic

British observers said they were satisfied that, with the renomination of President Roosevelt, both the United States Republic and Democratic parties have candidates sympathetic to Britain's cause in the war.

Said the London Daily Telegraph: "A growing knowledge of what is at stake in our crusade was the strongest factor in the call for Mr. Roosevelt to lead the Democrats again. Whatever the outcome of the November election, the President of the United States will be a vigorous leader who realizes that the liberties of the world are threatened, knows that we are fighting their battle, and desires to help us by every means for which his countrymen are prepared."

Nazi Air Activity Seems to be Diminishing

Germany's air activity over Britain seemed to be diminishing. A communique said "Damage is only reported from a few places." The raids apparently struck at south-east and southwest England and Wales.

The communique said:

"During the night, there was some enemy activity over the south-east and southwest of England and over Wales.

"Bombs were dropped at several points in these areas.

"Damage is only reported from a few places where there were some casualties, a few of which were fatal."

Question of U.S. Ships for Evacuees

The House of Commons was told yesterday Britain is open to any United States offer to send American ships to remove British children to safety. The statement was made by Goeffrey H. Shakespeare, Dominions Undersecretary, who said the military situation alone was responsible for postponement of the plan to send the children overseas.

Shakespeare said arrangements still were going forward so that no time would be lost when "the situation improves," presumably when sufficient convoy facilities can be arranged.

A "great onslaught" of German forces on Britain by land, sea and air simultaneously may come within the next month and if it comes it will fail, Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair said in a broadcast.

He declared Great Britain is "certain" to have to withstand an air attack "many times greater than any which the enemy has yet launched."

Offensive Necessary to End War

"The war cannot be won until we have passed from the defensive to the offensive in the air and on sea and land as well," he continued.

CONVENTION

Wait For Reply

Then the convention sat down to wait for Mr. Roosevelt's reply to the appeal that he run again.

A special committee tried to reach him by telephone following the nomination, but, it being well after midnight, was told he had retired. Nevertheless, it went ahead with tentative arrangements for him to give his answer in a radio speech tonight.

Delegates also sought any word of his choice for second place on the ticket if he does accept—which most politicians here confidently expect. The vice-presidential nomination was still described as an open prize, subject to capture by any of a dozen or more aspirants.

Read Platform

The convention started its session last night in a staid and traditional manner. Delegates stirred and talked in the same old way while Senator Robert Wagner of New York went through the usual routine of reading the platform.

He elicited applause when he read sections praising President Roosevelt and approving the legislation enacted under the New Deal, promising a continuance of its principles. He got another rise out of the foreign affairs section, which said:

"We will not participate in foreign wars, and we will not send our army, naval or air forces to fight in foreign lands outside the Americas, except in case of attack. We favor and shall rigorously enforce the Monroe Doctrine."

Representative Elmer Ryan of Minnesota got the first sample of the convention mood a moment later. He offered a resolution opposing a third term, but the last words were drowned in a storm of "boos."

Some "ayes" were heard when the question of adoption was put, but they were instantly smothered in a tumult of "noes," the platform itself was adopted with a roar.

These preliminaries cleared away, the convention dived straight into the business of nominating a presidential candidate. The Roosevelt name was dropped in at the outset of a state by state roll call.

State Roll Call

"Alabama," the clerk shouted.

"If America is to survive," he said, "we must now give the best that there is in us and in the cause of freedom and law and justice. I place in nomination that valiant American, Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Hill stepped back, and the stadium floor became a mass of yelling, dancing, shouting, pushing delegates. Women were born aloft men's shoulders, waving banners. Horns and bells added to the bedlam. After 23 minutes, Barkley ordered the call of States to continue.

"Through consideration for the party itself, for its success and perpetuity, I have come from a sick bed to present to this convention the name of a great Democrat, James A. Farley," he said.

There were boos from the audience, but a moment later there were cheers when Glass added:

"Since I have been sitting on this platform I have had two anonymous communications objecting to Jim Farley because he's a Catholic. It made me more determined to nominate Farley."

The Roosevelt nomination went over midway of the roll call, the big block from New York being enough to put his total above the necessary 551 majority.

Washington, July 18 (AP)—President Roosevelt probably will accept the Democratic convention's nomination to a third term in a radio address tonight, but the White House said today he still was reserving a decision until he received official notification of the convention's action.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, told reporters the notification committee might delay informing the President until such a time as the vice presidential selection also has been made.

Mr. Roosevelt passed up all engagements today to handle office routine while waiting for the notification to come through.

That left him ample time to prepare an address, and radio facilities were ready to carry it on getting the word that Mr. Roosevelt wanted to go on the air.

Although political figures here unhesitatingly predicted that Mr. Roosevelt would answer "yes" to the draft of the Democratic National convention, the White House said that until the President had been advised officially of the draft, there would be no word.

It was likely said Presidential Secretary Stephen Early, that the official notification would arrive some time this afternoon, but he was unable to indicate whether Mr. Roosevelt would respond immediately, or in what manner.

"Unofficially," the President already knows that his party has selected him to break the third term tradition that has stood since the early years of the republic.

YOUTH COLLIDES WITH REAR OF MOTOR CAR

Colliding with the rear of an auto while riding his bicycle near his home at the noon hour today, Robert Shephard, of 125 West Bridge St., was thrown to the pavement but miraculously escaped injury. Considerable damage was done to the handle-bars, pedals and sprocket of the wheel however, but the motorist, apparently unaware that any accident took place proceeded on his way without stopping.

ROLLINS FAMILY HOLDS REUNION

Event Not as Largely Attended as Last Year Held at Agricultural Park

Tweed, July 18—(Special)—The Rollins' Family Re-union was held in Tweed this year at the Agricultural Park, on Wednesday. Owing to varying causes, the attendance while encouraging to the executive, was not quite as large as that of 1939, numbering about one hundred and fifty. Many of the members of the family were forced by harvesting operations to forego the reunion this year. Others, younger members, planned to attend the Junior Farmers' Picnic on Thursday instead of attending the reunion.

The first re-union of the Rollins family was held at Ivanhoe, the old homestead of the original members of the family, fifteen years ago and the practice has been continued since that time. The pioneer members of the family were James and George Rollins, who came out from Ireland and settled at Ivanhoe in 1848. They were among the first settlers in Huntington Township and their descendents number several hundreds, living in various parts of Southern Ontario.

Dinner Served in Pavilion

Dinner was served in the pavilian and everyone did ample justice to the abundance of food provided by the ladies.

Following dinner, business meeting was held with George Harris, President, in charge, and in the absence of Mrs. Stanley Rollins, Secretary, Mrs. Harper Rollins, Stirling was named Secretary pro tem.

Following the custom of previous years the minutes of the original meeting, which included a brief historical sketch of the family, were read. This was followed by the minutes of the last re-union held in Coe Hill in 1939. Two minutes of silence was observed in memory of members of the family who had passed away during the past year.

Mr. S. B. Rollins, Tweed, Treasurer, gave the financial report.

Presented with Gift

Mr. Harkness Rollins, Sr., of Cooper, the oldest member of the family who was in attendance, was presented with a gift. He is in his 85th year. The youngest member of the family who also received a gift was Robert Marshall Rollins, the two-months'-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rollins of Plainfield.

The officers elected for the year 1940-41 were as follows: Hon. Pres., C. S. Rollins, Coe Hill; Albert Rollins, Hartley, Man.; Pres., Harper Rollins, Stirling; Vice-Pres. Stanley Rollins, Cooper; Sec., Miss Lily Weese, Shannonville; Treas., S. B. Rollins, Tweed; Executive, Harry Rollins, Belleville, Mrs. Geo. Hill, Madoc, Elmer Post, West Huntingdon, Mrs. Jas. Jeffrey, Thomasburg, Harkness Rollins, Sr., Cooper, Dave Rollins, Belleville.

Brief Addresses Given

Brief addresses were given by several members of the family. James Gunning, who is engaged in farming near St. Thomas, paid tribute to the members of the family living in Hastings County. He compared conditions under which farming is carried on in Elgin County, where the country is very flat to those in Hastings County where it is more rolling. Mr. Gunning regretted that he had not been able to attend the re-unions since the first one held in 1925.

Mrs. Jane Taylor, St. Thomas, urged the younger members of the family to attend the re-unions regulary even if it means foregoing other events. To them nothing should take precedence over reunions of the family.

Mr. Harkness Rollins, Sr., oldest member present, referred to the fact that it will soon be a century since James and George Rollins settled in Ivanhoe. He pointed out the great debt which the present members of the family owe to their pioneer forefathers and urged them to honour and uphold the traditions of the family.

Harry Rollins, Belleville, was strongly in favour of continuing the re-unions despite the war; in fact, he expressed the opinion that they were more important than ever before.

Mr. Harry Lee, Belleville and Delbert Rollins, Oshawa, also spoke briefly.

It was decided to hold the next re-union at Latta on the third Wednesday of July, 1941. Telegrams were received from J. Borden Rollins, Montreal and C. S. Rollins, Coe Hill, expressing regret at their inability to attend the family picnic.

A vote of thanks was moved to Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Rollins and Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson, Tweed, who were responsible for the arrangemenist made in Tweed for the holding of the picnic.

Following the business meeting the younger members enjoyed a program of games and sports.

25 STITCHES REQUIRED TO CLOSE WOUND

Twenty-five stitches were required to close a gaping wound in the leg of 7-year-old Jean Toms, when her foot was cut by the knives of a mowing machine on the farm of her grandfather David Seabrook at Belmont Lake near Havelock yesterday. Mr. Seabrook was turning the team of horses around while hitched to the mower, when the girl, in jumping out of the way of the team, stumbled and became tangled in the knives as the mower started forward.

BATEMANS UNITE AT FAMILY PICNIC

Tweed Memorial Park Scene of Happy Gathering Wednesday

Tweed, (Special)—The tenth annual Bateman family reunion was held at Tweed Memorial Park this afternoon with a large attendance from various centres in the county and throughout the province. Visitors were in attendance from Schrieber, Stirling, Malone, Madoc, Kirkland Lake, Brighton, Marmora, Thomasburg and Springbrook and Baltimore, Maryland.

The afternoon was spent in sports, games and amusements in which young and old took part. Prizes were awarded for those coming the longest distance, the oldest and youngest persons present etc.

Following the dinner the officers were elected as follows; Pres. Stanley Bateman, Tweed; Secretary-Treasurer Edna Tanner, Harold; Executive, Mrs. William Brown, Madoc; Mrs. Charles Jeffery, Tweed; Burton Bateman, Springbrook, John Bateman, Stirling, Ross Bateman, Belleville.

The prize for the oldest person present was awarded to Mrs. Ann Bateman, Ivanhoe; to the youngest person, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bateman, Bonarlaw and to the three Miller sisters of Baltimore, Maryland, for having travelled the longest distance to attend. The largest family on the grounds was that of the Gehans, of Tweed.

The quiz contest held during the afternoon was won by Miss Edna Tanner and the rhyming contest by Mrs. Charles Jeffery. Miss Edith Tanner and Mrs. H. Mumby were in charge of the contests and races.

It was decided that the next picnic should be held at Twelve O'clock Point on the third Wednesday in July. The attendance was one of the largest in the history of the reunion, one hundred and seventy-five assembling at Tweed Park.

HOME DEFENCE UNIT PLANNED

Lieut. Alan Sprague of Belleville Addresses Gathering on the Project

Tweed, July 18 (Special) — A meeting was held in the council chambers on Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of discussing the organization in Tweed of a Home Defence unit of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. The meeting was attended by the members of the council, veterans of the Great War and others, who were addressed by Lieut. Alan Sprague of Belleville. He explained that there had not been enough volunteers registering for Home Defence. Those who register in Ougust would be required to go to camp for six weeks, whereas those volunteering now would drill two nights weekly and on Sunday and spend two weeks in camp.

It was the general opinion of the meeting that a platoon should be formed in Tweed to be in charge of Messrs. C. E. White and I. D. Corcoran. Some non-commissioned officers from Madoc would assist. Softball and other sports would constitute part of the training.

Mr. W. S. Gordon, manager of Tweed Steel Works and Mr. H. J. Cordy, Superintendent of Nichols' Chemical Co'y, Sulphide, asked if men who were busy on war orders would be required to go to camp for the two weeks' training; it was pointed out that special dispensation would be granted to men employed in key industries.

Men up to the age of 45 will be eligible for enlistment, and two nights of drilling will be equivalent to one full day. Pay will be at the rate of $1.30 per day.

Capt. Newell Broad also spoke saying that rifles will be issued as soon as possible for training purposes. Training at the present time is purely voluntary but as soon as registration in August is completed, men will be called up in classes. Voluntary enlistment will begin on Tuesday night in the township hall when recruits will be accepted and information will be given them.

EVACUATION

The prime minister's statement was prompted by F. C. Cocks, Labor, who asked if, in view of the fact that large scale evacuation of children overseas was an important factor in the military defence of Britain, the government would reconsider its decision to postpone the scheme. Mr. Cocks suggested that it should be borne in mind that children could be evacuated in ships already convoyed.

The prime minister emphasized that the scheme had been postponed, not abandoned.

Any further emigration that may be possible, he continued, will be regulated with a view to restoring balance between the classes and not in pursuance of any policy of reducing the number of persons in "this well defended island".

Asked if it were not possible to send small parties of fifty in convoyed ships, Mr. Churchill replied, "it may be, but I could not give a guarantee as to the times and numbers.

Recruiting for 2nd Battalion Of H. & P. E. Regt. Speeding Up

Only Men With "A" Category Will in Future be Taken on Strength

OTHER NEWS ITEMS

Trenton, July 18—(Special)—Recruiting for the Second Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment has been speeded up during the past few days, according to the Commanding Officer, Lt. Col. B. C. Donnan, E.D. Throughout the two counties recruits have been flocking to the depots at Picton, Wellington, Bancroft, Northport, Madoc and Trenton.

The recruiting at the armoury here has been very good, with nearly one hundred on the roll. The headquarters company, stationed here, will be the largest company to be recruited for the Second Battalion and will consist of six platoons.

Brigadier - General Armstrong, District Officer Commanding the militia for Military District No. 3 paid his first official visit to the headquarters company yesterday morning and carried out an inspection of the premises and the list of recruits.

The D. O. C. expressed his appreciation to Major Angus Mowat, Officer Commanding the headquarters company of the fine work that he is doing in Trenton.

New regulations concerning the recruits were given to Major Mowat by the D.O.C. yesterday. The most important regulation was the change in the medical categories. Only recruits with "A" category will be taken on strength instead of the three categories A, B, C, as was formerly announced.

Red Cross to Benefit

The Red Cross Society will benefit to the extent of over $60 for their war efforts as the result of the softball game played at Bayside Park last night between the Canadian Doughnuts and the R.C.A.F. Flyers, in which the latter team defeated the Doughnuts 6 to 3.

This large amount was mainly due to the efforts of Jesse Baker, President of the Trenton Softball League, who with a number of workers canvassed the town for days before the game.

The Flyers seemed to have the ability to obtain runs when they needed them last night. The Flyers took the lead in the second frame when they collected one run from a double and an error. Two more were added in the fifth innings to give the Flyers a three-run edge. The Doughnutst evened the score in the sixth with a barrage of three singles and a double. With the score tied, the air force launched another attack that only ended when they had scored three more runs.

The game was a pitching duel with Charlebois having the edge and receiving more supportt. He allowed eight hits and struck out eight. Burt on the mound for the Doughnuts gave up nine hits and struck out five.

Joe Stevenson, elongated first sacker for the Flyers, led his teammates at bat with four hits, two singles and two doubles while Bowden was the best for the Doughnuts, collecting two hits, one single and one double.

The line-up:

Doughnuts: Bowden, 2b; Moren, l.f.; C. Ellis, s.s.; R. Burtt, p.; Heaney, 1b; Stein, r.f.; S. Ellis, 3b; Townsend, c.f.; B. Burtt, c.

R.C.A.F.: Casey, r.f.; Snapp, 3b; Weaver, l.f.; Gibson, c.; Stevenson, 1b; Caswell, 3b; Legris, s.s.; Noseworthy, c.f.; Charlebois, p.

TEMPORARY STEP

Britain And China

"What we have therefore made is a temporary arrangement in the hope that the time so gained may lead to a solution just and equitable to both.

"We wish for no quarrel with any nation in the Far East. We desire to see Chinese status and integrity preserved and, as was indicated in our note of January 14, 1939, we are ready to negotiate with the Chinese government after the conclusion of peace, the abolition of extraterritorial rights, the rendition of concessions and the revision of treaties on the basis of reciprocity and equality.

Britain and Japan

"We wish to see Japan attain that state of prosperity which will ensure to her population the welfare and economic security which every Japanese naturally desires".

Mr. Churchill said Britain was prepared to offer "our collaboration and contribution" to the attainment of the aims of both China and Japan "but it must be clear that if they are to be attained it must be by a process of peace and conciliation and not by war or threat of war."

To a request for a full dress debate on far eastern questions Mr. Churchill replied it might be arranged after next week.

No Desire to Impose Peace on China

Further questions drew from the Prime Minister a statement that Britain has no desire to impose peace on China.

Leslie Hore-Belisha National Liberal, asked if Mr. Churchill was satisfied that this concession would in fact secure Japan's good will and whether the United States and Russia had been consulted.

The Prime Minister replied:—

"I can give no such assurance. I do not know at all. I think that all that happens to us in the Far East is very much likely to be influenced by what happens over here, to which our attention at the moment must be directed.

"Naturally we have made sure that what we have done has not been done without taking into full consideration the attitude of the two very important great powers mentioned."

In his statement to the Lords, the Foreign Secretary said the British Ambassadors to the United States and Russia had been informed of the government's decisions. Lord Marley had asked whether the Ambassadors were consulted.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on our front steps and pop came out smoking a cigar and saying, How does the idea of we two taking a brisk but not unleisurely little walk impress you, Benny?

Fine, sure, I said, and pop said, That's too bad, I was hoping for a little discourragement. If course I need the exercise, in fact nothing proberly would do me more good, but this is such a beautiful afternoon I have a naturel human desire to waste it, he said, and I said, How about compromising by just walking as far as the movies?

Nothing doing, if I cant do a thing well I prefer not to do it at all, that's the idealist in me, pop said. Ond yet I realize if I dont take exercise my waistline may assume a contour that will give it a prominence out of proportion to its relative importance, and as a result my business may fall off because my customers may take it for granted, justly or unjustly, that a man who cant be trusted with his own waistline is not to be trusted with their life insurance policies, and if my business falls off I may not be able to pay for your higher education and as a result you will be forced to be a self made man, wich may or may not be a lucky thing but at any rate you see this little problem concerns you as well as me, he said, and I said, Well G, pop, worry makes you thin, doesn't it?

I believe so, but I cant say I'm worrying about the matter, pop said, and I said, I know, but I mean suppose I keep on worrying you to take me to the movies, and suppose I keep on arguing and arguing with all kinds of bum arguments till you finely have to give in to keep from being worried too thin?

We'll take a walk, let's go, pop said.

Wich we did.

Birth Certificates In Great Demand

Toronto, July 18—(CP)—Demand for birth certificates at Queens Park has more than tripled, according to Acting Premier Harry Nixon, necessitating ten additional employees to cope with the rush.

The demand is due to employers asking for certificates to determine what employees they may lose in the registration and those joining the army.

Ordinary revenue of $4,000 a month for birth certificates and searches has jumped to $14,000, Mr. Nixon explained due to this demand which started some time ago. A charge of 50 cents is made for each certificate.

INDIAN STATUE TAKEN FROM CAMP ON TRENT ROAD

Mate to Statue is Now Used as Mascot for H. & P. E. Regiment Overseas

POLICE PROBING

Squaw Rain-in-the-Face, the wooden cigar store Indian statue that has been a landmark in front of Harry Ketcheson's Bide-a-Wee camp, vanished under the cover of darkness on Tuesday night, Provincial police were informed today.

Squaw Rain-in-the-face is one of three original cigar store Indian statues, one of which is now the mascot of the First Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment somewhere in England. The third is believed to be in the United States. The statue weighs in the neighborhood of 450 pounds and must have been spirited away by truck, Mr. Ketcheson believes.

"I have been offered several hundred dollars for that cigar store Indian statue and it has become a landmark for American tourists passing through Ontario. It is of considerble value to me and naturally I'm anxious to have it recovered", Mr. Ketcheson informed Inspector Frank Gardner of the O.P.P. today.

Some month ago Little Chief the mate of Squaw Rain-in-the-face, was taken overseas by the C.A.S.F. and authorities are wondering if the wooden squaw has been longing for her wooden mate and is headed towards Merry England to join Little Chief.

Years ago wooden cigar store Indians were quite prominent in front of stores dispensing smokes, but of recent years have become extinct and have vanished along with the buffalo and roving North American Indian tribes to roam the wide open spaces.

Today Inspector Gardner revealed he had obtained certain clues which might lead to the return of Mr. Ketcheson's wooden Indian statue, which may be found already enroute overseas to join Little Chief, it was slightly suggested.

Cadi Recommends Man be Prohibited From Future Driving

Following a conviction of reckless driving registered against F-O Luther Witherspoon of the R.C.A.F. in Brighton police court yesterday, Magistrate O. A. Langley, of Peterborough, recommends that the accused man should be prohibited from driving a motor car in the future. Witherspoon was fined $50.00 and costs and had his driver's licence suspended indefinitely.

The charge arose out of a motor accident, which occurred on Highway No. 2 near Brighton on June 29th last in which Miss M. O'Brien, a passenger in the car driven by Witherspoon, sustained severe injuries and had to be taken to hospital. "This practice of driving with abandon on the highways must cease," commented Magistrate Langley as he recommended that the accused man be prohibited from driving in the future. The charge was preferred by Constable David Adair of the Provincial Police.

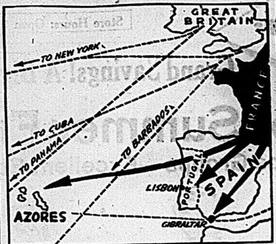
NAZIS MAY STRIKE AT AZORES



Hitler may send his forces southward with Spain, Portugal and Gibraltar as their objectives before launching his long threatened attack on England, according to reports from London. If such a move is made by Germany, the strategically important Azores, which belong to Portugal, would be among the primary Nazi objectives. The Azores have long been the key to the trade routes of the southern Atlantic and would give the Germans a highly important position from which to harass the Atlantic trade routes.

FORCED RAILROAD TO TEAR UP TRACKS

Mrs. Dorothy Douglas, who has "declared war" on the New York Central Railroad by forcing the line to take up tracks so that she might sail a boat under a drawbridge, is shown with her daughter, Dorothy, 14, at their New York home. Mrs. Douglas, owner of a small motor cruiser, the Dottie, which she kept anchored in a creek near Peekskill, N.Y., decided she wanted to take the boat into the Hudson river, but discovered that the drawbridge lacked one foot in clearance to allow the vessel to pass through. Originally the tracks were constructed so that the bridge might be raised, but when the creek passed into disuse, solid tracks were constructed across the draw, making it impossible to lift. Mrs. Douglas has told the war department, which has control of all America's navigable waters, of her intention to take her craft from the creek into the Hudson. The railroad had to lift and relay 240 feet of track as the Dottie sailed triumphantly into the Hudson and then back to the creek a few hours later. It costs the railroad $600 every time the tracks are taken up so that the draw may be raised. But the fun, apparently, is only beginning. Mrs. Douglas goes on vacation next week and probably will have the railroad lifting and relaying track every day.

Atlantic City, N.J., July 18.—(AP) Three-year-old Sylvania Ann Hill's dress caught fire while she was playing with a gas stove in her home. Instead of running for aid, she went to bed as she had been naughty.

'CHUTE TROOPS TO BE TRAINED IN UNITED STATES

Two Officers and 48 Men to Conduct Experiments for Two Weeks

NEW POWDER PLANT

Washington, July 18—(AP)—An experiment in the training of parachute troops such as Germany and Russia have used in the present war was announced by the War Department today.

For the first time, the department said, a test parachute platoon of two officers and 48 men has been organized and will be given training during the period of July 29 through Aug. 3.

War Secretary Henry Stimson said Major General G. A. Lynch had organized the platoon at Fort Benning, Ga.

The United States War Department, looking to an adequate supply of ammunition for the army, has contracted for a $25,000,000 smokeless powder plant which will more than triple the nation's existing output.

Announcement of the contract signing yesterday coincided with the assertion of War Secretary Henry Stimson that unless compulsory military service was instituted the defence outlook would be "very dark."

Congress has voted billions for military material, he told preparedness advocates from 42 States, but nothing has been done to supply the manpower necessary to use that equipment.

"There is no way by which those men can be obtained," he declared, "except by a selective service act somewhat similar to that we had 23 years ago."

The contract for the powder plant, to be located in the Louisville, Ky., industrial area, was signed with the E. I. Du Pont De Nemours and Company. The plant will be owned by the federal government but will be built and operated by Du Pont on a fixed fee basis.

On a normal operating basis, it is expected to produce 60,000,000 pounds a year, compared with the present 25,000,000 annual output of the army's Picatinny, N.J. arsenal and commercial plants.

French Relations With Dominion Remain Unchanged

Ottawa, July 18—(CP)— While France has broken off diplomatic relations with the United Kingdom, its relations with Canada remain legally unchanged, officials here explained today.

The change of government in France which resulted in the breaking of the war alliances, the action taken by the Royal Navy against the French fleet, and the withdrawal of the French Ambassador from London, has not affected in any legal way the position of the legation here.

For all diplomatic purposes in its relation to the Canadian government it represents the government of France just as it did before the developments of the last few weeks.

France is no longer an ally of Canada in the war, that is technically the only change in the situation.

WHEAT SUPPLY IN BRITAIN LARGE SAYS BOOTHBY

London, July 18.—(CP Cable) — The wheat supply in Britain is sufficient to enable her to carry on for many months in the event of unexpected sea losses Robert Boothby, parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Food, informed the House of Common today.

In a statement on the United Kingdom's food situation, he held out hope that the public during the winter months, will be allowed a larger ration of tea, sugar, and, perhaps, of fats "if, as we confidently expect, the enemy's threatened attack of the next two or three months on these islands is defeated".

Mr. Boothby said the nation's war time diet is to be fortified by the introduction of Vitamin B-1 and calcium salt into bread.

SIXTY GUNNERS NEEDED FOR NEW ARTILLERY UNIT

Major Van Steenburg Will Command 3-47 Field Battery With Headquarters at Cobourg

"The right o' the line; the left o' the paybook, and the pride of the bloomin' army." That is the slogan of the Royal Canadian Artillery and that heralds the recruiting of sixty batterymen here in the newly formed 3-47th Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, with headquarters at Cobourg.

The new battery will be under the command of Major Van Steenburg, the former popular commanding officer of the 34th Battery here, who will have his headquarters in Cobourg. Recruiting has started here already in the old headquarters of the 34th Battery on Church Street, and potential recruits will be given their medical examination immediately after attestation.

Second in command is Captain R. Manning who has been in charge of the 22nd Medium Battery of Cobourg. The battery will total 250 men, 150 of which will be recruited in Cobourg and the remainder in Belleville and Napanee. All present officers of the 22nd Battery will remain on the staff.

Belleville officers include Captain R. L. Bird, commanding officer of the local 'half' of the battery; and Lieutenants Everett Fairman, Fred Simmons and Alan Sprague. Troop Sergeant Major is Cecil Holway, a war veteran with a distinguished record. T.S.M. Holway served overseas with the gallant 8th C.M.R.'s during the last war and spent four years in the British Isles during his tenure of service.

Potential recruits are asked to apply at the battery headquarters on Church Street nightly.

The 3-47th Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery is "the other half" of the Ninth Artillery Brigade. The "first half" included the 32-34th Battery which is already in training in a post "somewhere in Canada."

Shortage of Skilled Labor in Hamilton

Hamilton, July 18 (CP)—There is a shortage of skilled labor in Hamilton and district and Graham Bertram, an official of a Dundas manufacturing firm, said that skilled workers now in the army should be forced to return to civil life.

"They should be sent back to the vital positions that await them," he said. "Men are not hard to get, they are impossible to get. Our shortage is pathetic. If 200 skilled men came to us we could use everyone at once."

W. D. Black, President of an elevator manufacturing company, said that the matter of skilled workers joining the armed forces had been brought to the attention of Federal authorities.

Chicago, July 18 (AP)—Elliott Roosevelt, as a member of the Texas delegation to the Democratic National convention, voted against renomination of his father, President Roosevelt, in the first announcement of that states vote.

Like all other Texas delegates, Elliott voted for Vice President Garner. However, when Garner's name was withdrawn, young Roosevelt, like the other Texans, voted to make the choice of his father unanimous.

FIGHTERS' PURSES ARE HELD UP BY COMMISSION

Henry Armstrong and Lew Jenkins With Managers Asked to Appear for Questioning

New York, July 18—(AP) — The purses of both Henry Armstrong and Lew Jenkins, fistic rivals in the Polo Grounds last night, were ordered held up by the New York State Athletic Commission today.

Jenkins received $24,964 as balm for his licking at the hands of the welterweight king, who got the same amount plus $419 for transportation from his Los Angeles home.

Jacobs said his instructions to withhold the purses came in a letter, dated July 17, signed by Brig.-Gen. John J. Phelan, Chairman of the Commission.

Jacobs said he didn't know the reason for the action but thought it was possible the commission simply wanted both Armstrong and Jenkins to post $1,500 forfeits to assure that each will make his next title defence in New York State. It was on that condition that the commission approved the fight.

The net gate was $94,922 and the gross receipts $111,486.95.

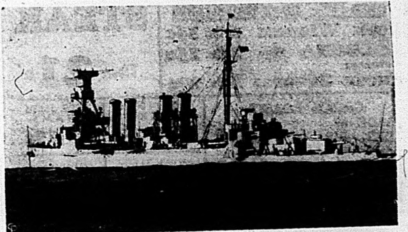
WHERE 63 MINERS LOST THEIR LIVES IN COAL BLAST

A general view of the scene showing a large crowd of anxious relatives watching rescue workers enter the Sonman coal mine where 63 miners were killed by an explosion in one of Pennsylvania's worst mine disasters. Only 21 men escaped from the mine following the explosion, which was thought to have been caused by either gas or coal dust.

U. S. WARSHIP CARRYING ROYAL REFUGEES TO AMERICA



The United States cruiser Trenton which, according to official quarters, is en route to America from Lisbon, Portugal, with the family of the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg aboard. GIANT FLYING BOATS OF R.C.A.F. KEEP CONSTANT VIGIL OFF CANADIAN COASTS

Day after day, in fair weather and foul, giant Stranraer flying boats of the R.C.A.F. such as the one, UPPER RIGHT, patrol the vast stretches of ocean on Canada's eastern coast. Flying hundreds of miles out to sea, they are the eyes of not only the coastal defences, but also of the vital convoys they help to shepherd through Canadian waters. Just like any other ocean-going craft, the Stranraer has its wireless cabin and "Sparks" is shown at his key, UPPER LEFT, as he keeps in touch with the home base while the giant flying boat searches the ocean for hostile craft. The navigator's job is a highly important one as the R.C.A.F. boats fly over the trackless ocean where dense fogs roll in and out with treacherous swiftness. Charting the course of his flying boat is this navigation officer, LOWER LEFT. In the course of long patrols, a spot of tea is always welcome and an airman is shown, LOWER RIGHT, making a pot of tea on the compact stove of a Stranraer while flying high above the Atlantic.

Great Fires Seen After British Bombers Visit Nazi Territory

London, July 18—(CP)—Germany is doing everything she can to hide from the Dutch people the effects of the continual Royal Air Force raids on western Germany and recently Netherlands were forbidden to visit after dark a line of hills which give a view far into Germany, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported Wednesday.

"The Dutch have to be careful what they sa yabout it (the raidings) but here is one description," the B.B.C. said. "The situation across the frontier is perfectly normal except for that curious new phenomenon we observe every night, the 'eastern lights.' Great fires can be seen every night after the British bombers have been over."

HITLER OFFERS BRITAIN 'PEACE OR DESTRUCTION'

Fast Italian Cruiser Sunk in Mediterranean by Australian Navy

Says 'World Empire Will Be Destroyed' If War Continues

German Fuehrer Declares He Was Not Asking Peace as Victor Demanding Capitulation of Vanquished but as Victor Proposing Reasonable Peace — Claims Russo-German Relations Fixed by Clear Delineation of Interests—Says His Policy Was Based on Real Friendship With Italy and Similar Relationship With Britain

ATTACK 'VERSAILLES'

Claims He 'Never Intended to Annihilate or Even to Harm' Existing World—States He Feels 'Obligated to Make One More Appeal to Reason in England' — Declares 'There is No Ground for Prolongation of War'

Berlin, July 19—(AP)—(By Trans-Atlantic Telephone)—Adolf Hitler, speaking before the Reichstag, tonight addressed "one more appeal to reason in England," asserting that "a world Empire would be destroyed" if Great Britain insists on continuing the fight.

Hitler claimed he was not asking peace in the voice of a victor demanding capitulation of the vanquished but rather as a victor proposing a reasonable peace.

He asserted that "British statesmen apparently have no conception" of the destruction which would be visited on Britain in a fight to the finish.

"But one thing is sure," he exclaimed, "no Churchill will be left" in that case for the "rehabilitation" of Britain.

The "people left behind in London" after the assault, he shouted, would have ideas entirely different from those of the Prime Minister and his colleagues.

Says Relations With Russia Fixed

Touching on Russo-German relations he claimed that these have been "fixed once and for all by a clear delineation of interests."

Hitler said his policy had been based on a two-fold aim: Real friendship with Italy and a similar relationship with Britain.

It "would have been a boon" to the world if England had accepted, he said.

T. CLARKE LAPP DIES SUDDENLY IN HEART ATTACK

Advertising Manager of the Ontario Intelligencer Has Been Ill for Some Time

SERVED OVERSEAS

Had Extensive Experience in Newspaper Field and Was Former Publisher of 'The Veteran' Magazine

Death took its toll of the fourth estate today when Thomas Clarke Lapp, advertising manager of the Ontario Intelligencer, succumbed to a sudden heart seizure at his home, 233 Dundas Street, East.

The late Mr. Lapp had been ill for some time, but according to his physician, had been in apparent good spirits early this morning. He arose to evidently shave himself, and collapsed near the bathroom of his home.

Born in Brighton forty-seven years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lapp, the late newspaperman enjoyed a well-deserved popularity, not only in newspaper circles, but in many social, fraternal and other organizations. A brilliant mind and an inherent capacity for "digging up the news" from remote places; an ability for organization that later brought him to the front ranks of advertising executives, and a compelling personality marked him as being one of the most popular men in his field.

The allure of the newspaper and printing business attracted him at an early age. The smell of printer's ink was a tonic to his mind and it was not long before he launched himself on the career that has been marked with many brilliant editorial and other efforts pertaining to the business he loved so well.

A marked adaptability, close application to his work, and a natural aptitude for his work, soon brought him to the top ranks and previous to his enlisting in the services of his country during the first Great War, he was foreman of the job printing department of the Daily Ontario.

Fine tribute to the late Mr. Lapp's ability was paid today by Mr. Charles Hardwick, composing room foreman of the Ontario Intelligencer: "Clarke was a splendid fellow, not only socially, but he knew his business from A to Z. The newspaper realm will miss a highly competent and valued member," he said.

Served with 4th C.M.R's

Enlisting in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces early in the last war, the late Mr. Lapp served brilliantly with the 4th Canadian Mounted Rifles. While in France with his regiment he was severely wounded at the second battle of Ypres in June, 1916.

Returning to Canada he again became associated with the fourth estate and joined the editorial staff of the Ottawa Journal. He "covered" many important beats for that newspaper and was rated as one of the outstanding reporters on its staff. Later he inaugurated the "Canadian Veteran" and his editorial and advertising ability soon

Claims Safest Place in Air Raid Is Within Steel-Framed Skyscraper

Builders Cite 20-Story Telephone Exchange at Madrid and Apartment Buildings in Rotterdam

BOMBING WITHSTOOD

New York, July 19—(AP)— The safest place in an air raid is within a steel-framed skyscraper.

This statement and evidence to back it comes from building authorities in New York City. It applies to a type of building common in United States and Canadian cities, the "articulated" or steel cage structure.

Two European examples are cited in News and Opinion, publication of the Building Trades Employers Association of the City of New York. Both are of North American pattern.

In Madrid, the 20-storey telephone exchange, of the International Telegraph and Telephone Company withstood constant heavy shelling and bombing for 18 months. It was hit many times by bombs and large calibre shells and not even seriously damaged.

In Rotterdam, damage to ordinary five-storey business buildings was terrific, but singularly a 12-storey new steel frame apartment building escaped

Monolith Type of Building in Europe

Engineers say that the old type of building, which includes all Europe's historic structures, is known as the monolith. This means that the walls support the entire weight of roof, floors and contents.

It means, also, in terms of bombing, that a hit which damages a wall may collapse the whole structure.

The articulated skyscraper is an endless steel skeleton, every part of the frame united by steel rivets, or by welding, to every adjoining part. This results in what engineers call distribution of load.

Bomb demolition of a lower wall will not necessarily bring down upper sections. Each part of the building is capable in a measure of acting alone.

In such a skyscraper the safest place at present would be the lower floors. For the roof, say the construction men, is the achilles heel of skyscrapers. Roofs were built before air defence became necessary. They can be made safe by heavier construction.

Bartolomeo Colleoni, One of Fastest in World Overtaken by Sydney

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 19—(CP Cable) — The Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni has been sunk in the Mediterranean by the cruiser Sydney of the Royal Australian Navy, it was announced today by the Admiralty.

The Colleoni was the first Italian cruiser lost in the war. It had a displacement of 5,060 tons and was armed with eight six-inch guns. It carried two aircraft. At its trials, the Colleoni, which was launched Dec. 21, 1930, did 40 knots, making it one of the fastest warships in the world.

Slower Boat Caught Cruiser

The Sydney, which is officered and manned by Australians, also is a six-inch gun cruiser of 6,980 tons, but has a speed of only 32.5 knots.

Since Italy entered the war the Italian navy has lost at least 14 submarines and three destroyers in addition to the Colleoni. Despite Mussolini's persistent claim that the Mediterranean is Italian property, his big ships have spent most of the time lurking in harbor or refusing battle with the British Mediterranean fleet.

Rescued 250 of Cruiser Sunk

The Sydney was named after the Australian warship which sank the German commerce raider Emden at Cocos Island in the Indian Ocean in the first Great War.

The Colleoni had a normal complement of 500 men. The Admiralty communique stated that a British destroyer rescued 250.

The Admiralty statement:

"The Commander in Chief, Mediterranean, reports that H.M.S. Sydney (Capt. J. A. Collins, R.A.N.), accompanied by a small destroyer force, became engaged with two Italian cruisers early this morning to the northwestward of Crete.

"In the ensuing action the Italian six-inch gun cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni was sunk. The other Italian cruiser withdrew, with the British forces in pursuit.

BBC Reports Germans Tell of Heavy Damage Caused by R.A.F. — German Population Described in State of Nervous Tension

New York, July 19—(AP)— The British Broadcasting Corporation declared in a broadcast reported by National Broadcasting Company that Germans arriving in Turkey had admitted terrific damage had been inflicted by the Royal Air Force on factories in the Rhineland and that the German population is in a state of nervous tension because of continual raids.

The announcer said an eye-witness reported that Essen, Ruhr Valley city famous for its munitions plants, had been damaged so severely that work had ceased in that district.

BABY HAS LONG RIDE

El Paso, Tex., July 19 (AP) —A six-month-old baby rode 60 miles in a box car after the frantic young mother failed to climb aboard as the train picked up speed. An itinerant told officers the woman placed the infant in the car at Fabens Tex., 40 miles east of here yesterday. He said he cared for the baby until the train reached Sierra Blanca. There he notified authorities. They wired Fabens only to learn the mother could not be found.

CAN'T SEE WAY CLEAR

London, July 19—(CP)—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin "can't see his way clear" to form a new National Labor Corps to include all conscientious objectors, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported Thursday. Bevin also strongly deprecates any "victimization of conscientious objectors by their employers," the B.B.C. said.

THIRD INSTALMENT TO FUND

London, July 19—(CP) — The Gold Coast of Africa "Spitfire" fund has contributed a third instalment of 5,000 pounds toward cost of a gold coast squadron of Spitfire planes, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported Thursday. Other gifts to Britain's war chest received today included one of 10,000 pounds from Algeria and an interest-free loan of 100,000 pounds from the Railway Advisory Council and the Harbor Advisory Board of the Kenya-Uganda railway.

CERTAIN AREAS EVACUATED

London, July 19—(CP)—Certain costal areas in East Anglia and on the southeast coast have been declared evacuation areas for the purpose of defence, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported Thursday. Persons who leave these areas will be granted a postponement of the liability to pay rent, rates and certain other charges.

Raids Over England by Germany Have Cost the Enemy 200 Planes Says BBC

London, July 19—(CP)— British and German air fighters engaged in a fierce battle over the Straits of Dover today when a cloud of raiders swarmed down on a destroyer guarding the southeast English coast.

The warship, which was reported undamaged, fought off the attack with intense anti-aircraft fire and brought down one of the planes.

Royal Air Force fighters chased the bombers back to the French coast where they engaged in a sky battle between Boulogne and Calais in which observers said they saw at least four planes falling in flames into the sea.

The attack was the most spectacular of a series of bombing raids this morning on northeast and northwest England, southwest Scotland and on a trawler 17 miles off the southeast coast of Ireland.

Six enemy planes swooped low out of the sun and dropped a salvo of 30 bombs near a southeast town in the face of terrific barrage and a fierce chase by fighters. "Considerable damage" was done, a fire was started, and one of the bombers was sunk in the sea.

Several areas in southwest Scotland were bombed. These attacks followed a bombing of a city in southeast Scotland last night in which a 16-family apartment house was struck.

Eight Bombs Dropped

The Air Ministry reported this morning that one of the bombers participating in this attack was shot down into the sea. Casualties were reported "very light," however.

Eight bombs were dropped in the Scottish raid this morning and workers sought a number of persons believed buried in debris. There were at least two casualties.

Enemy planes also were reported over Wales this afternoon.

The trawler city of Aberdeen, attacked by bombs and machine guns by a single plane off the old head of Kinsale, Ireland, sprung a leak when bombs exploded nearby and was beached. The crew was saved.

One German was shot down when British planes intervened yesterday in another attack by four enemy aircraft on trawlers, the Air Ministry said.

Meanwhile, British military men, looking beyond these persistent raids and the approaching battle for Britain, are preparing for "the day" when they say their troops will launch a counter-offensive against Germany.

For this blow, British and neutral military men declare, the army must be supported not only by the output of Britain's own factories and arsenals but by every gun, bullet, shell, tank and plane that can be bought from the United States.

Senator McNutt Calls Upon Democratic Convention to Support Roosevelt and His Choice for Vice President, Saying Nation Cannot Take Chances for Country Which Does So is Lost — Nation Requires Leaders and Such a Leader, he Declares, is Roosevelt

By W. G. RAGSDALE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Chicago, July 19—(AP)—President Roosevelt, deciding that in a time of "public danger" he could not turn his "back upon a call to service," accepted today a third-term nomination from a Democratic convention which amid boos and cheers chose Agriculture Secretary Henry Wallace for his Vice-President.

While fully 20,000 persons sat in a midnight hush in Chicago Stadium, the President told them by radio from the White House that "only the people themselves can draft a President."

"If such a draft be made upon me, I say in the utmost simplicity I will with God's help continue to serve with the best of my ability and with the fullness of my strength," he said.

Army officials say "an attack may be expected at any moment". Members of the Dail have urged: "everyone who can walk should join the army".

Col. Liam Hayes, adjutant general, said he wants 10,000 men, fit and strong, within a week.

Present enrolment is about 190,000, for all forces. The regular army's strength approximates 70,000.

Army manoeuvres were held today—predicated on the theoretical landing of parachute troops.

Local and National Government Service and Public Service Denied Those Who Do Not Fill Requirements

PETAIN GOV'T. DECREE

Vichy, France, July 19—(AP)—A decree of the Petain government proclaimed today that no one, high or low, henceforth may serve in any capacity in French local or National government or any public service unless he is French born of a French father.

The decree was displayed widely in the press following a night meeting of the cabinet. Only exceptions listed in the decree were for persons who served in the French armed forces in the first Great War or their direct descendants.

All persons who do not fill these requirements have been notified of their immediate discharge, with indemnity for their years of service. If they have served 15 years or more they will be pensioned. The other extends to judicial and military as well as civil posts.

MINESWEEPER SHOOTS DOWN GERMAN PLANE

London, July 19—(CP)—A British minesweeper, attacked from the air off the English south coast yesterday, shot down one German plane, the Admiralty announced today.

"H. M. minesweeping trawler Rinovia (Chief Skippper G. Grazer, R.N.R.) was attacked off the south coast yesterday by enemy aircraft which machine-gunned the trawler," said the Admiralty statement.

"One aircraft, brought down by the Rinovia's gunfire, crashed into the sea and sank immediately. In this action the Rincvia suffered three casualties. Next of kin have been notified."

Soviet Agency Says Russia Informed But Not Consulted

Moscow, July 19—(AP)— Great Britain solicited neither the opinion nor the advice of Soviet Russia concerning the agreement with Japan to close the Burma Road because she "is not obligated to do so" in the present state of Anglo-Soviet relations, Tass, the Soviet news agency, said today.

It said Prime Minister Churchill's reference in the House of Commons yesterday to consultation with the U.S.S.R. contained an "inaccuracy."

"What really took place," said Tass, "was that the British Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Richard Butler, informed the Ambassador of the U.S.S.R. in London, Ivan Maisky, of the decision of the British government to conclude an agreement with Japan on closure of the Burma-China road."

Tooth Brush Made To Work Like Fountain Pen

New York, July 19—(AP)— A tooth brush which works like a fountain pen, its dentrifice coming through a hollow handle into the bristles, has been perfected by two South Carolina dentists.

Its object, they say, is to appeal to some of the 91,000,000 (that figure is right) Americans who never use a toothbrush. This figure is based on estimates from the American Dental Association made on manufacturers' figures.

The dentists are Dr. John W. Douglass, Jr., of Greenville, and Dr. David Aiken of Winnsboro. The brush is intended to be a time-saver. It takes only a shake in the air to be loaded.

Half-Brothers Separated 20 Years, Reunited by War

London, July 19—(CP Cable) — Two half brothers from Barrie, Ont., (21 Jane Street) who had not met for 20 years, have been reunited by the war. They are Stanley Brown, 39, and Jack McDougall, 28.

Stanley went to Oregon 20 years back and has not seen his family since. He came to Europe, was stranded at Antwerp, and subsequently enlisted in the British army last December serving in France.

Back in England, Stanley got a letter from his mother saying that Jack was with the Canadian Active Service Force. They met last night in a south coast town.

FULL GROWN DOE GRAZES WITH CATTLE

One would naturally think it would be an easy matter to distinguish a deer from a cow but Mac Little, Seymour Township farmer residing near Campbellford mistook one for a cow in his herd recently.

Mr. Little observed the animal grazing near his herd of cows on the back fifty. As he went "to fetch" the cows for the evening milking, Mr. Little was quite certain the animal was one of his herd, as it followed in the rear slowly grazing. Imagine his surprise when within 300 yards of his barnyard Mr. Little discovered a full grown doe in his herd of cows.

Little approached within 100 feet of the animal before it took fright and turned to bound over a fence and disappear in the woods.

In a story published on Wednesday evening in the Ontario Intelligencer giving an account of the "lick Hitler" theatre campaign held at the Regent Theatre in Picton on Monday evening, July 15th, among those taking part in the stage program was included the name of Donna Fleming. This was a typographical error and should have read four-year-old Donna Cameron.

Aged Man Identified By Son-in-Law

Discovered wandering aimlessly near the filtration plant and in a more or less dazed condition as the result of an apparent slight sunstroke, an aged man, who maintained that his name was James Gibson was picked up by police Thursday afternoon who vainly tried to discover the man's address as his mind seemed to be almost a total blank and no identification could be found on his clothing.

All efforts to identify the man through Gibson families listed in the city directory failed, and as a last resort, he was taken in the police car on a tour of the city's parks with the thought that someone may know him but no satisfactory results were obtained.

It was not until 6.30 last evening that his true identity was established by a phone call from Mr. Gordon H. Bray of 28 Hillside Street, who said that his father-in-law had been missing since early morning. Apparently Mr. Gibson had gotten up early without the family's knowledge and had left the house, but thinking that he had joined friends, the family had not become alarmed at his absence until he failed to come home for supper, resulting in the enquiry at the police station and the ultimate identification of the man.

District Can Make 25 P. C. More Cheese With Present Equipment

This part of Ontario, long regarded as being one of the best cheese-producing areas in the Dominion, can readily manufacture 25 percent more cheese without additional factories, equipment, labor, or other necessities, cheese association officials stated yesterday in commenting on the appeal for more production of this important commodity.

Increased production of butter in the district, and the shortage of evaporated milk is making great inroads on milk production here, it was stated. The district is now manufacturing between ten and eleven thousand cheese weekly, and this amount can be stepped up easily 25 per cent.

The advance of between 10 and 12 cents per hundred pounds of milk has held but little incentive to farmers who for years have been sending their milk to creameries, it was pointed out. These producers have adjusted themselves to these conditions, and use the skimmed milk for the raising of chickens and pigs.

In addition, the officials stated, present conditions are ideal for milk production. Pastures are in June conditions and prospects at present point to the continuance of good feeding.

30,000 Boxes of Berries Expected Off 10 Acres

One hundred and fifty men, women and children will descend on the ten acre patch of raspberries on the farm of George Baitley, Wellington grower, within the next ten days to harvest what is said to be one of the heaviest crops of this fruit in years.

A nine-acre patch yielded 25,000 boxes last year to this grower, and an additional acre plus ideal conditions, is expected to bring this total to well over the 30,000 box mark.

Timely rains and other well-nigh perfect weather conditions have resulted in canes that are now bending to the ground heavily laden with fruit. The crop is under contract to a private canning company.

Reports from other parts of the district substantiate the above report. Indications, at present point to a bumper yield, and the first fruit of the current season is expected to be on the market this week.

POLICE COURT

Chief Kidd announced in police court that one Albert Blanchard, who had been apprehended wandering at large in Belleville recently and unable to give an account of himself, had later been returned to a Montreal mental hospital, from where he had escaped. Blanchard had been held locally on a nominal charge of vagrancy and the charge had to be disposed of in open court today.

H. K. Brown, Trenton, appeared on two charges, that of being found in the illegal possession of liquor and secondly of careless driving. The accused man pleaded guilty to both charges and was assessed $10.00 and costs in the first incident and $5.00 plus costs on the H.T.A. count. Brown was arrested by P.C. Evans one night this week following a hectic chase in the police cruiser, during which the accused is alleged to have tried to escape detection by driving through Holway's service station premises.

Charles Smith, Belleville, was fined $20.00 and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of reckless driving. His Worship also cancelled Smith's driving privileges for three months. "This man won't be driving an automobile again, as he has disposed of his motor car," assured Jacob Goodman, local barrister appearing for the accused.

Norwell Porritt, paid $2.00 and costs after admitting he had been driving in excess of the city speed limit on Dundas Street recently. Porritt paid the fine prior to the court and did not appear.

Acting Crown Attorney W. S. Lane of Picton, entered a plea of guilty for a local youth, who was charged with intoxication. The conventional ten and costs were paid. Two assault cases were enlarged at the request of R. D. Arnott K.C., who appeared for the accused persons in each incident.

9-Year-Old Holstein Has High Record

Two thousand nine hundred and forty-one pounds of milk in thirty days is the record of Minnie Abbekerk Vale, a nine-year-old Holstein cow, owned by Amos Hudgin and Brian Dodds, Picton-Cherry Valley road. This record was made during the month of June under the record of performance and checked by the R.O.P. inspector. The milk test was good.

During the month this fine animal milked as high as 105 pounds a day and at present is averaging around 90 pounds.

Included in the fine herd of Holsteins are a two-year-old and a three-year-old, each averaging around a ton of milk a month.

Minnie Abbekerk Vale's dam was Pauline Veeman Vale, bred by Hudgin and Dodds, and sold when 18 years of age, then still being a good producer. Her sire is C. V. Abbekerk Lad, which was purchased by George Rose and A. Hudgin from the Innes herd at Woodstock and was well bred.

The Hudgin-Dodds herd is now headed by Emperor Bonheur Nig. born October, 1939, and which was purchased at the recent National Holstein sale. His dam was Montvic Pathfinder and his sire, Emperor, of the famed Mount Victoria Farms at Hudson Heights, Quebec.

Provincial Police Force Not Increased Says Inspector Gardner

"There is absolutely no foundation to the report that an extension of the Ontario Provincial Police Force by the addition of new members is being contemplated or has it been suggested at Headquarters that the Department increase its numbers", stated Inspector Frank Gardner, in charge of District No. 8 of the O.P.P. here today.

"It was erroneously reported that the Provincial Police Force would be enlarged but I am in receipt of circulars from our headquarters in Toronto flatly denying such statements. Since these rumors have been circulated my office has been flooded with applicants and enquiries regarding information as to the possible increase in our staff. You can assure the public there is no truth in these stories which were circulated in a Toronto newspaper", Inspector Gardner told The Ontario Intelligencer today.

Picton and District

Picton—Mr. Perk Stanton was receiving the congratulations of a host of friends on Wednesday, on the occasion of his 90th birthday. Mr. Stanton was about town as usual, with the cheeriness and appearance of a man many years younger, and belying the record of his years. He has one son Mr. Curtis Stanton, who lives on the Wellington Road.

Mrs. Sam Hollingsworth

Residents of Picton were shocked early Thursday morning to hear of the sudden passing in Belleville General Hospital, where she had gone for an operation, of Mrs. Sam Hollingsworth. The deceased had been ill for several weeks, but her recovery was hoped for. Mrs. Hollingsworth was before her marriage Miss Williams, of Big Island. She had lived in Picton for the past twenty-five years, where she was active in the work of the United Church, and had a host of friends, who regret her early passing. She is survived by her husband, two sons, Louis of the R.C.A.F. at Trenton and Jack of the R.C.A.F. at Brandon, Man., and one daughter, Mrs. Wm. Watt, of St. Catharines. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Celebrates 93rd Birthday

Born in a stone house at Hubbs' Creek on July 22nd, 1847, he was a son of Abraham Hubbs and Eustasia Leavens. In 1876 he married Amanda Cronk and to them was born one son, Everett Lee Hubbs, who died in 1933. A grandson Walter M. Hubbs resides in Ottawa and another grandson, Winfred Lee Hubbs died in 1918.

In his younger days Mr. Hubbs ran the mill at Hubb's Creek, which he bought from his father. He resided in the old stone house there until his marriage and then in a frame house there until 1903 when his son Everett married Alice Clapp and took up residence there, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hubbs then moving to Wellington.

Mr. Hubbs for many years made the trek north for deer hunting with Amos MacDonald and Clayton Hyatt who still follow the chase and later visit Mr. Hubbs to recount their adventures.

Mr. Hubbs travelled some, including trips to Indian Head, Sask., and .. Manitoulin Island. In Wellington he resides in the red brick house he owns on Main near Consecon Street, living with his son's wife, Mrs. Everett Hubbs, who does everything she can to make him comfortable and happy. Until he fell a few years ago he was wonderfully well and active but is now forced to use a crutch since at that time he suffered a broken hip.

He had a step-sister who lived to be 101 years of age, but Mr. Hubbs says he does not care to live that long. Mr. Hubbs has always lived an exemplary life. He is a staunch Conservative. His mind is still clear and he takes much interest in the planes which fly over the village. He enjoys meeting his many friends. He clearly recalls the earlier days of the village and the time when Jim Squier and Cornelius Clapp built storehouses for grain along the Lake Ontario shore, schooners calling there.

Robert Service, Poet Of Yukon, On Way To Canada

London, July 19—(CP Cable)—After twenty-eight years in France, Robert Service, the Poet of the Klondike, is returning to Canada soon with his wife and 23-year-old daughter, Iris.

The author of "Songs of a Sourdough," interviewed, looked fit and well despite the hectic experiences while getting his family out of France.

The Services had been living in Britanny when they heard on June 17 about the bombing of the nearby city of Rennes, where more than 4,000 people were killed in three hours. Within an hour Service and his family were packed in a car headed toward St. Malo.

"The skies were black with airplanes," Service said today. "The panic among civilians was terrible. We lost practically everything, our home in Britanny, our villa in Monte Carlo, and we had to leave our car on the docks."

Mrs. Service, a Frenchwoman, is eager to see Canada.

Service plans to visit his brother, Peter, in Vancouver en route to his final destination at Victoria.

"The war has completely knocked me out, but perhaps I'll even be inspired to do some more writing there," said the man who spun the colorful ballads of Sam McGee and Dan McGrew in the Northern gold fields.

Former Governor Of Bahamas May Assist In Household

By ETIENNE DUPUCH
Canadian Press Correspondent

Nassau, The Bahamas, July 19—Rumors persist here that Sir Bede Clifford, gay and versatile former Governor of the Bahamas, may be in the Duke of Windsor's household when the Duke arrives to take up his new duties as Governor.

These reports are based on the facts that Sir Bede, Governor from 1932 to 1937, never wanted to leave the Bahamas to accept promotion as Governor of Mauritius; that both he and Lady Clifford—the former Alice Gundry of Cleveland, Ohio—have suffered from Mauritius fevers and have spent most of their time in England to recover their health; and finally that the Duke probably would like to have someone near him who is familiar with Bahamian affairs. The principal official posts in the government are invariably filled from outside the Bahamas, the present Chief Justice, Colonial Secretary and Attorney-General all came from the African service.

Sir Bede Clifford was a great friend of the Duke when he was Prince of Wales. At the time of the Duke's ascension to the throne as Edward VII Sir Bede was building an elaborate swimming pool at the Governor's official offices in Nassau. In the bottom in colored tile was the inscription "E.R.I.—1936," surmounted by a crown. This now has been erased, so that the Duke may use the pool without a constant reminder of past crises.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, July 20
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE LUNAR transits bearing rule over the affairs of this day are read as adverse, conflicting. While there are indications of pleasant pastimes, with social and sentimental attachments and functions, yet there is a menace of overdoing in this direction, with much self-indulgence and extravagance. Likewise there are aspects showing duplicity, intrigue and underhand methods manifesting in private relations as well as financial.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a pleasant year of sociability, romantic attachments and a general good time although there is a regrettable sign of over-indulgence and a disposition to over spend. Finances are also beset by intrigue, connivance and other forms of sharp practice. With wisdom and prudence there are signs of a moderately happy year, but shun strife and recklessness.

A child born on this day may lean toward tempest, stubbornness, and rash and pleasure-loving traits, possibly to excess. It would be wise to begin early with discipline and precept.

AT THE BELLE

"Get a Laugh Week"

Ace talent and a streamlined story of modern marital entanglements mark the fast-paced, delightful comedy entertainment, "My Favorite Wife," which makes its local bow next at the Belle theatre.

Re-united for the first time since their appearance in the memorable comedy hit, "The Awful Truth," Irene Dunne and Cary Grant are co-starred in "My Favorite Wife." The reunion also includes Leo McCarey, producer-director of "The Awful Truth", who guided the current production for RKO Radio. Garson Kanin, responsible for "Bachelor Mother," "The Great Man Votes" and "A Man to Remember," directed with Randolph Scott and Gail Patrick heading a notable supporting cast.

"My Favorite Wife," penned by Bella and Samuel Spewack, authors of "Boy Meets Girl" and "Clear All Wires," is described as a breezy, laugh-laden sophisticated comedy.

Miss Dunne, cast as Grant's wife, disappears when a scientific expedition for which she is the photographer is shipwrecked in the South Seas. After seven years Grant has her declared legally dead and marries Gail Patrick.

Unfortunately, Irene is very much alive, and is rescued from the desert island with Scott, a handsome scientist with whom she has been marooned alone all this time. She arrives home on the very night her husband embarks on his second honeymoon.

Chartering a plane, she flies to Yosemite to overtake the newlyweds. After she flabbergasts Grant with her appearance, "My Favorite Wife" attains dizzying heights of hilarity. Irene tries to outwit Gail for the love of her husband. Grant grows frantic in his efforts to tell his bride the startling truth of Irene's return. Gail can't understand her groom's sudden coolness. And when Grant learns of Irene's island mate, Scott, who now wants to marry Irene, the picture unrolls a series of spicy situations and scintillating moments unique to the screen which are climaxed by a whirlwind finish.

In addition to the quartet of principals, the cast of "My Favorite Wife" includes Ann Shoemaker, Donald MacBride, Granville Bates, and two highly talented young mimes, Scotty Beckett and Mary Lou Harrington, portraying the Dunne-Grant children.

The feature is augumented by the exhibition of a funny Edgar Kennedy comedy, "Mutiny in the County" and Walt Disney's funniest Donald Duck cartoon, "The Billposter."

Smart Show

The ultimate in musicals, streamlined in a manner that makes the dance and music a definite part of the plot has been achieved in "Two Girls on Broadway," featuring Lana Turner, Joan Blondell and George Murphy now playing at the Belle, with S. S. Van Dine's dramatic "Calling Philo Vance." A new edition of the March of Time will also be exhibited.

PRAIRIE NATIONAL PARKS

In mentally visualizing the Canadian prairies, many people imagine them as a vast, open, treeless plain with nothing to break the similarity of the landscape for hundreds of miles. Yet this picture would be very misleading if applied to Canada's three so-called prairie national parks—Elk Island in Alberta, Prince Albert in Saskatchewan, and Riding Mountain in Manitoba. Elk Island National Park is the home of one of Canada's great herds of buffalo, as well as numerous elk, deer and moose. It is a rolling, wooded, and well-watered area of 51 square miles within an hour's motor ride of Edmonton, Alberta. Besides providing sanctuary for many species of wild animals and wild fowl, this park has, in recent years, become a popular holiday centre for thousands of prairie dwellers.

Prince Albert National Park in Saskatchewan, covering an area of over 1,869 square miles, is also located in what is known as the "Park Country" which lies north of the Great Interior Plain. It is studded with numerous lakes connected by scores of little rivers and streams, providing, with a few portages, continuous water-ways for hundreds of miles. Since the days of the fur trade the water highways of this park have been travelled by trapper, hunter and trader from the north country and Hudson Bay, but until comparatively recent years the remoteness of the region placed it beyond the reach of all but the most adventurous tourists. Now Prince Albert National Park is connected by an all-weather motor road with the main provincial highway system of Saskatchewan, and the beauty and freshness of the entire region have been brought within reach of those who seek an ideal summer playground.

There is nothing about Riding Mountain National Park in Manitoba to link it with the general conception of prairie country, except that from its position high up on the Manitoba escarpment it commands a magnificent view of fertile farmlands stretching away for miles in every direction. This park, which covers an area of 1,148 square miles, is heavily timbered and is the natural home of elk, moose, deer, bear, and many other wild animals. Beavers build their dams along its streams and waterfowl find sanctuary in its numerous lakes which range in size from mere ponds to bodies of water several miles long nestling in hollows scooped out by glaciers of long ago. The largest, Clear Lake, is a delightful spot in summer.

ENJOY THIS SUMMER

An illustrated bulletin of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association gives the good advice, "Enjoy This Summer" and explains how this may be done by keeping free from accidents.

There is the accident on the highway which can be eliminated with the modern perfection in mechanism of automobiles if drivers will all observe care. Therefore the advice is "drive carefully."

1. Maintain an area or safety in front, behind and on both sides of your car.
2. Forget about who has the legal right-of-way and do the common-sense thing by keeping out of the way of the other fellow.
3. Adjust your driving speed to meet conditions of road, general traffic and visibility.
4. Assume that the other driver knows little about traffic laws and that the pedestrian may be deaf or blind or perhaps just "dumb."

In the water one should swim safely. On the water it is necessary for safety to be careful in boats and canoes. When diving "know where you dive."

Then there is the walking in the dark for which the admonition is "watch your step, avoid falls."

Then there are three other bits of caution worthy of remembering—learn to recognize poison ivy in the woods, avoid over-exertion, and attend promptly to cuts and scratches.

Common sense is the cheapest insurance.

A SUGGESTION

A very little can sometimes be a great help. In view of the fact that the authorities in England have appealed to the people of the Kingdom to be careful not to waste paper, a correspondent makes the sound, practical suggestion that Canadians, when writing to friends in the Old Country, could materially help by enclosing with their written letter a blank sheet and an envelope.—Montreal Gazette.

It is reliably reported that his valet promptly secured a change out of the reserve stock, said to be some odd hundred of other uniforms. Considerable time elapsed in putting on all the medals.—St. Catharines Standard.

Register Animals To Avoid Depletion

Many of Canada's valuable fur-bearing animals are subject to marked fluctuations in numbers, according to the Department of Mines and Resources which, with the assistance of the Bureau of Animal Population, Oxford University, and the Hudson's Bay Company, is making a study of wild life populations.

This survey takes the form of an annual questionnaire distributed to resident traders, trappers, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and officers of government departments stationed in the Northwest Territories. The investigation is carried on from year to year because the situation is changing continually and it is hoped that the work will produce data from which a forecast can be made relating to the expected abundance of each important species.

The results of the study may also suggest measures to prevent unnecessary depletion of any species of wild life during the periods of scarcity.

From The New York Times

Marcus Garvey, who died the other day, was a short, stout, ebony-colored firebrand who styled himself a "world-famous orator". He was a promoter who sold hundreds of thousands of American Negroes on the idea of a nation for themselves, an African empire. He preached racial solidarity, racial enterprise and race segregation. Until some of his promotions landed him in jail they paid him at least $22,000 a year, and probably much more.

Where Father Divine of a later day created "angels" and "archangels" among the colored population of Harlem, Garvey in his time sprinkled the area with princes and princesses, barons, knights, viscounts, earls and dukes, and kept for himself for a time the comparatively humble designation of "Sir Provisional President of Africa." There was no evidence that he had ever set foot on that continent, and the Republic of Liberia was, by announcement of its government, closed to him and his followers.

Exact information about the origin of Marcus Aurelius Garvey, as he sometimes proudly named himself, was never forthcoming. It appeared, however, that some time about 1880 he was born in Jamaica, B.W.I., which fact made him a British citizen. According to his own story he was the editor of a Catholic newspaper in Jamaica at the age of 15, and thereafter edited papers in Jamaica and Costa Rica. He also said that he spent a year travelling through Europe before coming to the United States as the World War was about to begin.

His career in this country began as a journalist and lecturer to negro audiences. It appeared to him that the negroes in this country were in a state of semi-serfdom and he proposed to do something about it. The first step was the formation, in July, 1914, of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, with an original membership of 15.

The next five or six years were his firebrand period. He made inflammatory attacks upon white people; suggested that for every negro lynched in the South a white man should be similarly treated by the negroes in New York. The trickle of dues into his "parent body" as he began to call the U.N.I.A., swelled into a stream, and Garvey began to dream other dreams than race fighting. He had learned that small sums contributed by many persons may reach an impressive total.

So he organized the Black Star Steamship Line and the Black Star Steamship Company, to establish a world shipping firm staffed wholly by negroes. He called a convention of his U.N.I.A. and offered some 5,000 negroes who attended at Madison Square Garden an opportunity to buy stock at $5 a share. The money rolled in and he bought several ships.

One was the Yarmouth, another the Kanawha, which had been the pleasure yacht of the late Colonel Henry Huddleston Rogers. The first job the Yarmouth had was to haul a $3,000,000 cargo of liquor from Brooklyn to Cuba for a firm that wanted to get it out of the country before prohibition became effective on January 15, 1920. All that whiskey was too much temptation for the crew, who got drunk and put in at Norfolk, where the ship was seized under the prohibition law. A total loss.

The black skipper of the Kanawha also had bad luck at Norfolk. On his first voyage he rammed a pier there, his boiler exploded, and the Kanawha, too, became a total loss. A lawsuit followed in which the owner asserted that the crew was drunk and shot dice on the deck, while the captain claimed that Garvey had demoralized his crew by bringing a woman aboard.

Nothing, meanwhile, had happened in Harlem except the multiplication of Garvey's notions. He had organized the African Community League, incorporated at $1,000,000; the Negro Factories Corporation, and, on the non-commercial side, the Order of the Nile; the Black Cross Nurses and the Universal African Legion.

By reason of his various operations Garvey now styled himself as Sir Provisional President of Africa; Commander of the Sublime Order of the Nile; Knight of the Distinguished Service Order of Ethiopia, and President General of the U.N.I.A. Like Father Divine in a later time, he was a man who often got into the newspapers, and was much esteemed among people of his own color as a great leader.

It was about that time (1922) that the Federal Government cracked down on him. He was charged with using the mails to defraud in soliciting funds for his ship company. The case ran through the courts for the better part of three years.

While it was in progress and he was out on bail, he announced that the scheme to take thousands of Afro-Americans back to their homeland was ready and that he was buying, in the name of the Black Cross Navigation Company, a boat to take them there. That too, fell through.

In February, 1925, he went to Atlanta penitentiary, where he stayed until the middle of 1927, when his sentence was commuted, so that he could be deported. Sent back to Jamaica, he tried to carry on with the mission he had inaugurated in the United States. Back within the British Empire, his pleas were less well received, financially, and, after a little effort to raise funds to rescue Ethiopia from the Italians, he sank into obscurity.

He remained, however, the man best remembered for his proposal to take all the negroes back to Africa. It was his one idea that had the least chance of success because while some few negroes in the United States believed in it, most of them did not, and the one place they had a chance, Liberia, was closed to them.

More importantly, Marcus Aurelius Garvey had had his fling and while he was in exile a new idea, advanced by Father Divine, had claimed the attention of those who earned enough to make the necessary weekly contributions.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Upsets of Stomach and Intestine Seldom the Cause of Headache

If you were asked what was the commonest cause of headache, you would likely say eyestrain. This is a very common cause.

The next commonest cause of headache in your opinion may be some derangement of the stomach, liver, or intestine, and you would be wrong, according to Dr. C. L. Hartsock, Cleveland, in Medical Clinics of North America. It is because a disturbance of the stomach or intestine occurs so often at the same time as a headache that the stomach and intestine are blamed for the headache whereas some disturbance in the head or elsewhere is causing the distress in stomach and intestine. That is the upsets in the stomach and intestine that occur before, with, or after the headache are more likely to be a part of or an associated condition rather than the cause of the headache.

Another fact which most sufferers fail to notice is that in the so-called bilious headache and migraine— one sided headache— the headache always comes before the nausea and vomiting so that it is only logical to believe that whatever is causing the headache is also causing the nausea and vomiting.

This does not mean that some headaches are not due to stomach and intestinal sluggishness but in Dr. Hartsock's opinion gathered from research work this sluggishness of stomach and intestine is not often a cause of headache. He believes, therefore that, the eye specialist, the nerve specialist, the food specalist (allergy) and other specialists should have a prior claim on the patient who has headache and also stomach and intestinal distress.

The intestine can and does cause headache because of obstruction or partial obstruction of the upper or small intestine a short distance from the stomach. But this does not occur often.

Fatigue can cause disturbances in stomach and intestine that bring on headache.

Many physicians will not agree entirely with Dr. Hartsock but his suggestion that headaches with nausea and vomiting should not be blamed on upsets of stomach and intestine but should be investigated by eye, nerve, food and other specialists is worthy of serious thought.

British Planes Justify Faith of Their Crews

London (CP)—Experience in full-scale air war since opening of the "blitzkrieg" has justified confidence of the Royal Air Force in the technical superiority of British bomber and fighter aircraft. This superiority is due to their arming, design and the manner in which they are flown.

In current British fighters the emphasis is on multiple rifle-calibre machine guns. Britain's bombers have heavy defensive armament. Variations of the standard armament, including use of cannon, have been employed on some types, British and German. The word "Cannon" is a general term for large bore, shell-firing machine guns.

FIGHTERS:

(B) Hawker Hurricane; eight machine guns. (G) Heinkel 112: two machine guns, two cannon in wings.

(B) Vickers Spitfire; eight machine guns. (G) Messerschmitt 109: four machine guns, one cannon.

(B) Boulton-Paul Defiant; multiple guns in turret; also Bristol Blenheim; nest of guns under fuselage, one gun in rear turret (G) Messerschmitt 110; four forward guns, two rear guns, two cannon.

BOMBERS:

(B) Handley-Page Hampden; two forward guns, four rear guns, (G) Dornier, 17; two fixed guns, two moveable guns.

(B) Armstrong-Whitworth Whitley; one forward gun, four rear guns. (G) Heikel 111; three moveable guns.

(B) Vickers-Wellington; one forward gun, four rear guns. (G) Junkers 88; three gun positions.

Pools, Ponds, Brooks, Creeks Drawing Hazard To Young Children

Ottawa. — Lily pools, fish ponds, brooks, and other water to be found in back yards constitute a grave drowning hazard for children one and two years of age. Of the children of this age group who are drowned each year, by far the greater number meet death in their homes or nearby, according to statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Cisterns, cesspools, and irrigation ditches, barrels, vats and other liquid containers, and even bathtubs have been responsible for such drownings.

The statisticians call attention to the significant fact that more drownings take place among one-year-old babies than among persons of any other age.

From the insurance company's mortality records, the statisticians set forth incidents attending some of these pitiful deaths. A typically tragic case was that of a sixteen-months-old girl who was left alone in the yard while her mother, at work in the home, kept occasional watch over her from the window. Within an hour the child had disappeared, and her body was found later in a lilly pond at the side of the house.

Some of the youngsters wandered away and were drowned in near-by rivers, creeks, brooks and similar streams. Several climbed into bathtubs when their mothers left them alone "for a minute or two."

Dutch Answer Call Of Home

Pretoria, —(CP)— Almost the entire Dutch community, of the South African capital attended a meeting called by The Netherlands Minister, Jonkheer van Lennep, following the invasion of his country by the Germans.

The Minister told the gathering the fate of The Netherlands was "in the crucible." Tears of rage "against the panthers who traitorously have jumped at us without warning," were shed after the invasion he said. "Yet, the Hollanders had not signed the Treaty of Versailles, but on the contrary, had done everything to assist in many ways and at all times. Words fail one, and it is better not to refer to it. Deeds are now expected, and not words."

Dutch sympathizers had responded to his appeal for aid. "Oom Piet" Grobler, a former Cabinet Minister, had sent him a cheque, and a prominent doctor had offered to organize an ambulance crew. The Federasie van Afrikaanse Kultur-vereniging was collecting money.

Lots Of Adventure In Ships

London —(CP)— Life on the ocean wave in one of His Majesty's ships is an exacting business even when the enemy is not sighted, in air or on sea. A "Naval Eyewitness" gave this account after a 10-day voyage on a cruiser which has been in northern waters almost since the war began:

They've had ice, snow, blizzards and gales, and on occasions have been 13 or 14 days at sea, followed by a few hours in harbor and then off to sea again. In 2 1-2 years this ship steamed about 42,000 miles. In the first six months of the war she covered 45,000 miles and had steam on in the main engines for 160 days out of a possible 185.

In three months, 67 per cent of her officers and men never set foot out of their ship. One petty officer was not ashore for six months. Week after week, month after month, the eternal watchkeeping and vigilance continued—and still continues—on the bridge, at the lookout stations, at the guns, in the engine and boiler rooms and in the wireless cabinets.

Official messages came crackling through the ether but for the majority their only links with the outside world were the mails and the newspapers when they returned to harbor, and at sea the regular news bulletins of the B. B. C.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Hints of new trouble for British interests came from two new quarters today, Spain and Japan.

General Franco head of the Spanish government reasserted Spain's centuries-old claim for the Rock of Gibraltar while in Japan a new government, possibly more favorably disposed to Germany and Italy, than the last, was formed.

Gibraltar which guards the entrance to the Mediterranean is regarded by Spaniards as a piece carved out of their homeland. As the claim put forward by General Franco is not new it may not mean immediate action to enforce it.

Such action, if resisted, would certainly prove costly to the aggressor whether he attacked from land or by sea.

The caverns and tunnels of the big fort, carved out of solid rock also make the defenders almost impervious to air attack. Although Gibraltar is an ancient fortified point its defences have been thoroughly modernized and it is equipped with the latest and the most powerful weapons.

The change in the Japanese government, believed to indicate a shift towards the one-party system of the totalitarian states, came just as Great Britain offered Japan a concession in the temporary closing of the Burma Road to traffic bound for China.

The purpose of the concession was to improve relations with Japan and to hasten a settlement of the war between China and Japan. Its influence in accomplishing either objective remains to be seen.

FINE HERDS SAVED

Canadian agriculture, particularly the dairymen, will find cause for joy in reports that the famous herds of the Island of Jersey have not fallen into Nazi hands. These cattle, though hundreds of miles away across the ocean, mean something to dairying in Canada. They from the source for much of our best livestock, and it is not difficult to conclude, had they fallen to the Germans, they would have ended up as beef to help fill the empty tables of the Reich, a waste from which the agricultural world would probably never have recovered.—Windsor Daily Star.

FATHER RECOVERS BODY OF HIS SON

Nine-Year-Old Boy Falls From Raft Near Cornwall and Drowns

Cornwall, Ont., July 19—(CP)—James Blackadder, nine-year-old son of Police Constable James Blackadder and Mrs. Blackadder of Cornwall Township, drowned yesterday when he slipped off a small raft in Blackadder's Creek near his home.

A double drowning was narrowly averted when Mrs. Albert Irwin plunged into the water, fully clothed, and rescued her nine-year-old son, Bertie, who was playing on another raft in the creek.

Shortly after being advised of the accident, Constable Blackadder plunged into the creek and recovered the body of his son. Artificial respiration was tried for about two hours but it failed.

GREAT BRITAIN

"At present," one officer said, "we are confident we have enough to hold Britain if need be."

Will Settle Accounts

It is clear the army's feeling that the war may be settled in battle on the continent follows the lead of Prime Minister Churchill, who declared last Sunday Britain must prepare for battle "not only for 1941 but for 1942, when the war will, I trust, take a different form from the defensive......."

This has been taken by all three fighting services as the keynote of their determination to settle accounts, as a naval officer expressed it, "for Dunkerque, Narvik and our toll in civilian lives and homes from bombing."

"Germany will attack us," one military man said. "It will be a bitter battle in which she will lose enormously in men and materials. We expect such losses ourselves.

"We must make certain that when Germany is battered and worn after weeks and perhaps months of fruitless warfare against this island, we will have fresh guns, great stores of ammunition and hundreds of tanks and trucks to throw into an offensive of our own.

"That is the day we will need everything we can buy from the United States. Possessions of it will bring us much closer to final victory."

Guns of All Types

Guns of all types are used in Britain now. To cover the coasts and important positions, and for other novel purposes. For instance, airfields which might attract German Junkers 88s, the troop-carrying planes, are covered by batteries of heavy guns many miles away.

Landing of the first German plane would be the signal for a terrific bombardment which, artillery officers declare, would churn the field into ruin, destroy the plane and kill the men aboard.

German air raids continued today after night attacks in which the heaviest damage was done in an unnamed southeastern Scottish city. A 16-family tenement was struck, but casualties were described as "very light" in view of a direct hit by a high explosive bomb.

Death List Placed at Six

Yesterday's raids took a toll of at least six lives while one bomber was reported shot down.

(A British Broadcasting Corporation announcement heard in New York today by National Broadcasting Corporation said raids on England had cost the German air force an even 200—157 bombers and 43 escort planes, against a loss of only 23 Royal Air Force fighters.)

There were two developments yesterday in the war at sea.

The Admiralty announced loss of the 1,370-ton destroyer Imogen after a collision in heavy fog, with 17 sailors missing and feared dead and one officer and 10 other sailors injured, one fatally.

The Ministry of Shipping announced all French merchant ships in British harbors were being requisitioned "for the duration" and that the ships would be returned to France with payment for their use "at the end of the war."

Newsprint Industry In Robust Health

Ottawa, July 19—(CP)—Canada's newsprint and wood pulp industry, after several tough years, has come around to robust health and, a trade department official stated today, the war is responsible.

The blockade of the Scandinavian trade routes was given as the reason for sharp increases in sales of Canadian newsprint and wood pulp in recent months.

"Scandinavian countries, particularly Sweden and Finland, did a large newsprint trade with South America and sold large quantities of wood pulp to the United States," the official said. "Canada has taken over much of these markets."

Exports to the United Kingdom have increased for the same reason, he added.

For the past few years, Canada has led the world in newsprint exports. June exports of this product were 6,413,000 hundredweight, valued at $15,168,000, compared with 4,893,000 hundredweight valued at $10,680,000 in June, 1939.

The Girl Guide In The Home

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Dear Dr. Myers: As a leader of a Girl Scout Troop, I have been able to observe children in relation to their parents.

I teach those responsibilities that you mention and try to help the child to become a good homemaker. Some children are inspired for a time but then I notice the interest dies out. When I question them as to whether they arranged their rooms differently, or mended an article of clothing, or if they helped with laundering or cooking, the answer is, usually, "My mother won't let me."

"When I invite the mothers to special gatherings, the only mothers who attend are the mothers whose children complete the projects. When I discuss responsibilities of children in the home, I find that the parent objects to keeping the child indoors for home duties as their school homework takes up a lot of time and they feel they should have more time outdoors.

Good Citizens

I have visited parent and teacher meetings and the only topics I have heard discussed are cemetery developments, foundation garments to improve mother's or teacher's figure or an educational travelogue talk. Perhaps these are just drawing cards to get the mothers out.

The mothers and teachers could discuss their problems in relation to home and school and lecturers could analyze and advise. In this way there could be a better understanding between parents and teachers. Perhaps they could arrange to have a study class for children, teaching them responsibilities in the home, helping them to become good citizens and maintaining good characteristics. The home is the place for such guidance, I believe.

Worthy Ideals

Scouting teaches a child to be trustworthy, thrifty, to play fair and to be useful in the home and the community. These are truly the foundation of good citizenship.

Every child should be a Scout, starting from the Cub Pack in Boy Scouts and the Brownies in Girl Guides. Let's get together and work with youth which seems to be at loose ends today.

I wrote this young lady that I shared her enthusiasm for the Scouts and similar organizations; that while I have learned that all too many parents and teachers are such as she described, there are also a good many like the ideal she sets up.

That Cup For Baby

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

WISE IS the mother who trains her infant early to take water and fruit juices from a cup. But some parents who easily effect this training have trouble getting the baby to take milk from a cup instead of a bottle.

Some child doctors advise letting the baby have the night bottle even past the age of two in order to induce the child to take enough milk. It is doubtful if this procedure is necessary. Nevertheless, the mother should carry out her doctor's instructions.

One Mother's Problem

Assuming that you have resolved to have your baby abandon the bottle, what is a good procedure? I answered this question in my reply to the mother who wrote the following:

"Dear Dr. Myers: I've a problem I would like solved. It may be small to some but to me it is quite a task. I have a baby fifteen months old. She still takes her milk in a bottle. Has done so since two months old. I have tried every way I know of to get her to drink her milk from a cup. She absolutely refuses. I've taken her bottle away from her at times. She still won't drink from the cup. She doesn't make any fuss about drinking water from a cup.

"Some tell me she will ruin the shape of her mouth and teeth. Others say to let her have the bottle as long as she wants it, just so long as she gets her milk. I wish you would please advise me."

Can You Be Firm?

I answered:

"Since your baby takes water from a cup, she easily can learn to take milk in like manner. The trouble with so many of you mothers is that you don't stick to any plan long enough to make it work. Just remove the bottle and never bring it back. It might be a good plan to have a little ceremony in which you bury the bottle while the baby watches.

"Then as it is buried—all other bottles put away — she might choose without it. A number of babies have under such conditions. Otherwise just let her cry. She won't starve even though she might hold out a day or more. Of course, you will hasten results if all other food is denied her in the meanwhile. In case she develops nausea consult your doctor."

Having advised another mother who had a hard eating problem with a three-year-old, I received the following from the mother after a few weeks:

"Dear Dr. Myers: Your plan worked.

"It was difficult at first, but at the end of two weeks he had formed new eating habits and was taking his milk. Believe me, it took a lot of courage or grit to stick to the program once it was started, and to have to put the baby to bed hungry for several nights. It was all we could do as parents to keep from giving in. I can honestly say that once he realized that eating was solely for his own pleasure and satisfaction, he has been a different child to feed. I think in this case the parents were disciplined as well as the child."

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Do you think a father should whip an adolescent girl?

A. Certainly not. Any one who has read this column regularly must know that I say repeatedly that we should try to get along without using corporal punishment after the child is four or five. One of the best arguments for selective, intelligent corporal punishment of the tot is that he might be prepared to escape all corporal punishment before he is old enough to enter school, need very little of any kind of punishment thereafter, and be a happy, likeable citizen.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dates Do Not Alway Mean Marriage

Perhaps you've been having dates with him pretty regularly for the past six or eight months, and you have begun to look at those shimmery, filmy things of satin and tulle in department stores. But are you sure that dates mean the middle aisle, Lohengrin and showers of rice?

I've had hundreds of letters from girls who have been dated for years and have come finally to a realization that they don't stand for anything more than just a nice girl to go places with.

So if you entertain strictly honorable intentions toward any particular young man it's your job to transform the image of the congenial girl friend into that of the better half of a life-partnership.

While you're about it, do a little hard thinking about what you've got to contribute to such a partnership. How about his future, his business or professional success; his health, happiness, even his hobbies? Have you thought about them as prayerfully, as you have about your latest hair-do, your nail polish, or other temptations of the beauty parlor?

It takes a good deal more than being a No 1 date girl who's a good dancer a good dresser with a turn for amusing talk to make the average successful bachelor give up all the pleasant perquisites of single blessedness.

Remember that almost any girl will give him a date, and that he's in demand for dinners, dances, picnics and amusements of all sorts because men are becoming more scarce every day and that a good many other girls may cherish toward your young man the same honorable intentions that you do.

Bernard Shaw has warned us that women do the real proposing, thought it's as intangible as some of our taxes. In view of that, it's up to you to make him visualize you as the perfect companion, the good wife and the loving siren who will help him to succeed. Whether a man goes in for a profession, business or politics, his success is largely determined by the type of wife he acquires.

If he has a "gimme" type of wife, he never gets very far unless he's a genius. The intelligent girl who means business toward her date couldn't do better than take an interest in his job. She should know enough about it to listen attentively and put in the right word now and then, making him realize that she'll be able to meet the wives of his professional or business acquaintances on their own ground, and not be just another woman who tags along.

What kind of a home does he dream about? It's bound to come out some time or other, probably when he's had a particularly tough steak at his boarding place. Does he dream about a bungalow in the suburbs or an abandoned farm where he can raise vegetables—a likely ambition if he's been born and brought up in the city? Or if he's country-bred his idea of a domestic paradise will probably be an apartment with every electrical gadget, not a dozen blocks from Main Street.

As you are as much interested in a home—perhaps more than he is—a certain elasticity on your part would be the proper attitude. Later he can be made to change his home ideal. But, for goodness sake, don't terrify him by loud pedalling the home and creating the impression you've been consulting real estate agents.

If he loves the out-of-doors learn to cook simple things in the open. If he likes to hike, don't go along wearing high-heeled shoes. If he likes tennis or bridge, learn to play a good game. Remember, his hobbies are the things to which he looks forward when the day's grind is over.

"Read Up" on Your Trip Before You Travel

Is your vaaction to include some sightseeing? Are you perhaps going to a city which you have never visited before, or to a place rich in historical background? Or are you going to places that offer special contributions to your hobbies?

You'll make your sightseeing more vital and thrilling, bolster up your conversation, if you do some "home work" in reading before you go.

Sightseers are of two kinds. There are the travelers who never take the trouble to find out anything about the places to which they are going. By some form of transportation they are "taken", and in a vague, dull-eyed sort of way they "look", principally when they are told to and at what they are told to. They contribute little to the conversation except constant repetition of worn-out adjectives. And either they say to their companions or silently regret to themselves, "Why in the world didn't I read up on this before I started on the trip?"

And then there is the other group of travellers seizing every opportunity to make an important occasion of this long-longed-for trip. They take advantage of the wealth offered in the public libraries, in the hundreds of carefully-prepared brochures and booklets offered by the travel agencies, garnering here and there and everywhere interesting facts that will make them the "informed" travelers they insist on being. They have eyes that really see, they have ears that rally hear, and they have minds that really absorb and understand. They are "aware" people, and aware people are the interesting people in the world, whether they are at home or "at home" in traveling.

I urge you to make a resolve to be an informed traveler, to gather knowledge before the trip as well as during the trip, because you and I know how much grist this will mean to your conversation mill. And good grist is what we need if we aren't smugly satisfied with being just 'run-of-the-mill' talkers.

That greatest of social assets—the ability to talk intelligently—doesn't just happen. It has to be nurtured, fed with all the vitamins that make "good talk". And there are lots of conversation vitamins in intelligent traveling.

Of course I don't mean that before and during and after our trip we talk like a travel guide-book. But on the other hand I'm sure you'll admit that a colorless repetition of a stock adjectives, "wonderful", "beautiful" and the like aren't the stuff of real conversation.

taAeigl"5kkkkkt g

To talk interestingl, you've first got to have something interesting to talk about. And the keen-eyed and keen-minded traveler is alert to all opportunities to store his or her mind with things "interesting to talk about".

Think about these wise words: "He that would bring home the wealth of the Indies must carry the wealth of the Indies with him. So it is in travelling—a man must carry knowledge with him if he would bring home knowledge".

Fashion Flashes

A SURE THING in any wardrobe, any clime, any time is the fur jacket. A new model is of natural lynx made with tuxedo collar and revers. Full sleeves are gathered into a tight wrist.

YOU'LL FIND OUT that the profile and off-face beret will be very important come autumn. Red velvet makes a dramatic off-face beret with tuckings in front to give a soft line.

THE DARK SIDE of fashion is emphasized as the impetus for black frocks gains ground. For late summer and early autumn wear, we like a dress of black pure dye crepe satin made with accordion-pleated skirt and snug bodice with a fastening of mirror glass buttons. Self sash ties in back.

INSTALMENT 11.

"When Ben needed a couple of hundred to settle an accident claim," Ballard continued, "he tried to borrow it from a couple of old friends of mine before he came to me. Jim Butters telephoned me. 'What's your boy want money for?' I had to laugh it off. Then Lissy got in with young Ross—that was all right. I spoke to her about it, and she said, 'For heaven's sake don't ask me any questions!' and ran upstairs. The engagement was announced without any reference to me. Later on when things went wrong I saw her crying one day and I asked her, 'Anything your dad can do, Lissy?' and she said, 'Just keep out of my affairs, please!'

"Meanwhile the business was going on the rocks and the bills were piling up. I asked myself—"

The speaker interrupted himself to send a troubled look about the circle.

"I asked myself what the deuce it was, anyway. I wondered who these people were that we'd brought into the world. I realized that whatever motives had influenced me all these years since you girls and Ben were born, they'd worked out wrong.

"And I told myself then," William Ballard went on simply, "I told myself then that when I had had money I had been a fool not to make my life and your mother's life secure. I said to myself then, 'if ever I have it again, if ever my bills are paid and my bread and butter safe, I'll not make the same mistake again! Whatever we've done for them,' I said to myself, 'hasn't made these children happy. We've sacrificed everything, we've worried, we've ruined ourselves, and all we have to show for it is a few things like pianos and motor cars. The children can't wait to get out of our lives. The bills are bigger and bigger. And who's happier?"

"And you might have added, daddy," Mrs. Ballard's voice said lovingly and lightly—but Joyce saw how pale she was and how she was trembling, "that that's what daddies and mommies have been doing for their children since time began, and they wouldn't be happy doing anything else!"

He looked at her meditatively; sighed. Presently he began again; "I can buy this place for twelve hundred dollars," he said. "I like it. The house isn't much, but there are redwoods and there's water and there's view—they all count. I like cows and chickens, planting a few vegetables. I was raised on a farm. With my creditors settled, dollar for dollar—and God bless Laura for giving me the chance!" he said under his breath, "I'll have a thousand—twelve hundred a year. That's enough for me; that's all I want. If they clear up any more than that, I'm going to settle it on your mother.

"A week after I get poor Laura's money I'll have just about what I have from the bank now. But I'll own this place, and I'll have settled up every last bill I owe in the world: creditors, stockholders, dentist, doctor. I'll sleep at night for the rest of my life, and that's something to say at fifty-three!

"This is home for all of you as long as you want to make it home, you know that. You'll scatter, marry, but whenever you want to come back you'll be welcome here. Until you make plans I know you'll make the best of it, help your mother and me as you would complete strangers who were giving you a home and food. Perhaps that's the answer," Will Ballard finished, "perhaps parents and children are complete strangers, if they only knew it. Anyway, I'm my own master now for the first time in twelve — fifteen years. I know where I stand! I've got what I want!"

In a dead silence he rose.

"You'll want to know about money," he said. "I'm going to give each one of you a cheque for one hundred and fifty dollars. You can do what you like with your money; after that whatever you get you'll earn. I can't give you any more because I won't have it without touching the little capital that means your mother and I will never be dependent on our children. There'll be paid jobs here when the fruit is ripe.

"I don't know that every one who's made a botch of things is given a second chance," he said. "I've been given a second chance. I hope Cousin Laura knows what it means to me!"

And then from the doorway he added:

"I believe I'll turn in, mommy. I've had a long day. Good night, everyone!"

The Ballards looked at each other. There was a long silence.

After a long pause Ben said cautiously in an awed voice, "What's eating the old man?"

"He talks," Lissy said in a bursting voice that trembled with tears, "as if he didn't love us any more!"

"Of course he loves you!" Sally Ballard said, her own voice shaken with impatience, annoyance, excitement. "It's just dad blowing off steam. He doesn't mean any of that. It would be preposterous to take Cousin Laura's money and throw it away on a lot of people who've quite given up any hope of ever getting it back! They invested it, as he did, and they lost it the way every one's losing it. I've seriously," she added lowering her tone, "been wondering if daddy's mind is—is quite what it used to be. I don't mean insanity—"

"No, I don't think it is that. Nothing serious, anyway. But I sometimes have suspected that worry and not sleeping—he was eating very badly—I really wonder sometimes if dad is quite right. I'm sure he will be," Mrs. Ballard went on eagerly. "The relief from money worry and the good rest I'm going to insist on him having will take care of that! Meanwhile I think we'll have to be gentle with him and bide our time."

"Meanwhile he may give all that money away, mom!" This was Ben.

"Oh, no, he won't. He won't get it for several weeks. And by that time—you know dad; he'll be his reasonable sensible self again! He's tired tonight he's in a mood for extremes.

Joyce walked up to the barns in a flood of deliciously warming sunshine. April nights were bitterly cold on the hill and she was beginning to be accustomed to wakening with the tip of her nose cold as ice. Dressing and descending to the kitchen barely warmed by the crackling woodfire were separate ordeals, but there was blessedly warming coffee to follow, and the brisk routine of bed-making and dish-washing to get one's blood started for the day. Then walking up to the barns with the sun shining and the year at April, Joyce would find life amazingly sweet.

On this particular morning, in a rambling open-faced shed that was attached to the tool house she found her father tinkering with a scrap of leather and an awl.

"Dad, what a divine morning! Everything just seems to be singing!"

He got off the little barrel upon which he had been seated, and they looked off toward the east together. The untidy paddocks and sheds of the ranch descended to a slope of prune trees; beyond rose the elms and poplars of the Paarsen homestead; then came the red roofs of Tye's packing plant down near the village itself.

"It's pretty," William Ballard said.

"On a morning like this," Joyce conceded.

"But you think it would be pretty dismal in winter?" the girl laughed.

"I know it would be pretty dismal in winter!"

"But interesting, Joyce, interesting!" he urged.

She hesitated a moment, spoke slowly when she did speak, as if finding the right words.

"I think mother feels it would be terrible—always." Her father looked at her sharply.

"Yep, I guess she does!"

"I mean—she really was a good sport about it, when she thought we had to do it, dad!" the girl argued.

"For this last week, you mean?" he asked with a touch of dryness.

"Well, she would have been as long as she had to be—as long as we were poor! But mother says—she and Ben are working it out—that with four or five hundred a month we can live in some place like Piedmont or Burlingame, have one good maid, see the people we like—

"Not," she went on eagerly, "that we ever would put on any airs, or get into debt again! Mother's definite about that. But honestly she loathes this, dad, and Lissy and Ben—well, just naturally, there's nothing for them to do here!"

He was smiling at her appreciatively.

"No," said Joyce laughing and flushing, "they didn't. But we've—they've been talking for several days of course. Mother and you are going to town tomorrow, and I suppose she thinks you may say something—decide something."

"I haven't deceived your mother about it," William Ballard said, in a troubled tone in the silence. "She knows exactly what I mean to do."

"You mean to give all that money away, dad?" Joyce asked.

"It isn't giving it away, dear. Now look," he said. "Suppose we do it your mother's way. We all go up to town, look about for a place. With what we brought here and the things your mother stored with Aunt Rose we furnish that place. Good! Then the whole thing begins again. Ben costs money, Lissy wants to go abroad, you and Dodo have your expenses, your mother begins to charge again; frocks, dentist, florist, everything."

Joyce felt a little baffled. She said nothing more for the moment. She felt that she hardly knew her father in this odd unsympathetic mood.

There was a tense silence at luncheon. During the rest of the day, as the women of the family discussed meals, brooms, the groceries Dodo and Ben must bring back from the village, their thoughts were only upon the great question of whether they were to be made rich or poor by the stroke of a pen within the next few days.

When Dodo and Ben came back they brought the mail and among the letters was a long one from Paul. She carried its scrawled pages up to the gnarled low-spread branches of an oak back of the barns where a short board had been wedged in as a seat. Sitting there, Joyce plunged into her first love letter. She laughed aloud in ecstasy as she finished it—and started it over again, and over again after that. The sense of it, the emotions it gave her, stayed with her all that evening, were with her when she dropped, smiling, off to sleep and when she awakened to the soft fogs of the morning.

PASTEURIZATION

Sometimes the opponents of the pasteurization of milk have real technical arguments upon which to base their stand. Sometimes they declare that pasteurization destroys vitamins, or makes the milk hard to digest, or something like that. Since I first came out in open support of pasteurized milk for children many persons have written me, taking issue with my stand and some have advanced a variety of arguments based to some extent on scientific findings. But most are typified by one letter I got which was really scathing in its attack on me. The writer expressed surprise and sorrow that I, the old fashioned type of country doctor, would deny that milk in its natural state, just as God made it, wasn't better by a long way than milk that had been pasteurized. Such people enthuse over the natural qualities of the milk, convinced that since the milk comes this way from the cow, it should be consumed that way.

Well, as anyone who has been following these columns will agree, I am the last one to depreciate the value of milk as a food for humans. But I have contended that the milk of the cow is man's natural milk. I have always been under the impression that the milk of the cow was primarily intended for calves.

We know today that the milk of any mammal is best for its offspring. That's the reason that as often as I think it will be read, I wrote about the superior advantages of breast feeding for babies. The milk of the cow is relatively close in make-up to mother's milk, but it usually has to be given to infants in a modified form. For there is about four times as much calcium in cow's milk as in human milk, and the protein in it is double that of human milk. On the other hand, there is about twice as much milk sugar for a baby at his mother's breast, than he would get in cow's milk.

The Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto has conducted some interesting investigations into tuberculosis in children. The surveys are significant because the hospital serves a city where there has been compulsory pasteurization since 1915, but also draws many of its patients from surrounding suburbs and municipalities where milk supplies weren't compelled to be pasteurized until a short time ago, when compulsory pasteurization was adopted for the whole province of Ontario.

At the hospital, studies were made of 490 cases of tuberculosis in children brought in. All cases were under the age of fourteen years and it was found that in 9.2 per cent of all cases the organism was of bovine origin. These cases all showed a history of use of raw milk. And not one of these cases came from Toronto, where as I said above, all milk was pasteurized.

Be Yourself Or Be Nobody

By HELEN FOLLETT

Considering that conduct has so much to do with beauty and charm we hope our paper friends won't mind if we say a few words about the girl who has affectations—to which everyone is wise of course. What Sentimental Tommy called "putting on airs" is a silly business and we often wonder why the smarties of this modern age ever act that way. Young women of intelligence and good bringing up do play acting that is the despair of those who love them.

Be yourself, ducky, be yourself. As soon as you start trying to be like somebody else you lose out. The girl with easy, natural manners and no silly assumptions makes the best comrade. She's good company. You know where you stand with her.

A Tiresome Young Lady

Posing never fools anybody. Bragging about family, one's possessions, attainments, or education makes the listener's ear drums ache. Particularly tiresome is the young lady who tells you how many social engagements she has had last week. As if anybody cares. Then there's the one who does imitations. Let us draw the curtain.

Make-up is just the frosting on the beauty cake. The real substance is the complexion which must be of fine texture and good coloring.

Powder isn't much help to a dry skin, but the dries use it just the same because it is a custom. The wise lady will apply creams lavishly, so that the cutaneous surface will not be arid, inclined to flake. Soap she should use sparingly. When dead skin scales fluff off to excess, a massage emollient or even a light oil will make them see the error of their ways.

Make up does not hide defects; it points them out. So do your beautifying duties, keep your facial coat in prime condition.

BRITISH WARSHIP FIGHTS OFF NAZI PLANES AT DOVER

British Fighter Planes Drive Off Attackers With Warship Suffering No Damage

ENEMY PLANE DOWNED

A Southeast Port, England, July 19 (CP)—A British warship fought a terrific battle with enemy planes in Dover Strait this afternoon and was reported to have shot down one attacker.

The warship was said to have been undamaged although ringed by Nazi bombs.

British fighter planes joined the battle and chased the bombers across the Channel to the French coast where they fought a battle between Calais and Boulogne.

Watchers on the English coast said at least four crippled planes fell into the sea.

Saw Four Shot Down

"I saw four planes shot down off the French coast," one eye-witness said. "Two went diving into the sea off Boulogne. Then, more toward Cape Gris Nez, two more crashed in flames. I saw two airmen parachuting.

"R.A.F. fighters steadily cut off the bombers as they raced to their bases and attacked them as they were nearing the French coast."

Another observer said: "I saw bombers streaking down releasing bombs around a destroyer, flinging up white pillars of water 60 feet high that once hid the warship from view."

"It seemed she must be hit," he said, "but when the smoke cleared the destroyer still was firing all anti-aircraft guns at the raiders, now fleeing to the French coast.

Report Mexico Deals With Japan For Oil Pipeline

Mexico City, July 19 (AP)—Mexico was reported today to have virtually completed negotiations for construction of an oil pipeline to facilitate sale of petroleum to Japan, but the deal was said to be boging on the objection of the United States State Department to participation of a New York construction firm.

The pipeline would run across the isthmus of Tehauntepec from Puerto Mexico on the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific port of Salinas Cruz. It would carry 40,000 barrels of oil daily from the gulf fields, for sale principally to Japan but also for a Mexican drive to open up markets on South America's west coast.

Say Huge Contract Promised

Representatives of Jap's powerful Mitsui financial interests are reported to have assured Mexico of a "huge" contract under which millions of tons of petroleum would be purchased for the Empire's military needs, to be signed after completion of the pipeline. Japan now is dependent largely upon California wells.

The Raymond Concrete Pipe Company of New York is reported to have agreed to run the pipeline across the rugged mountains of the 150-mile wide isthmus for $6,500,000, taking about a year for the job. The Mexican government is said to have agreed to pay $1,400,000 in cash and the remainder in scrap iron and petroleum. Only minor details remain to be worked out, it is reported.

May Be Hitch in Plan

However, Washington's attitude appeared to present a definite hitch in the plan. The State Department is said to frown on participation of the American Company because of the present unstable character of Japanese-American relations.

For this reason, informed quarters are uncertain whether the contract eventually will be signed.

For years Mexico has discussed creation of a Pacific coast oil outlet to eliminate the long and expensive haul from her gulf ports through the Panama Canal. This haul has prevented Mexico from competing with California wells in the Orient and in western South America.

A Japanese offer to finance part of the cost of pipeline has been rejected, it was reported. "We don't want any open Japanese participation," a high Mexican government official was quoted as saying.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Hot winds! There is always a comparatively warm wind from the east southeast or south in front of a depression or cyclone (or general storm). If these winds in their journey pass over heated areas as deserts they become aditionally heated. Hot winds from any direction are usually the result of their having passed over hot areas, and in cases are additionally heated by being compressed as they descend mountain slopes. The most noted hot winds in North America are the Chinook of the Rockies, hot winds of the plains, and the Santa Anas of Southern California. These winds may continue for several days and a warm or hot wave results, and when accompanied by high humidity in eastern United States cause many prostrations.

SAYS ARMED NAZI TROOPS IN SPAIN

Declares He Saw German Soldiers Everywhere in That Country

New York, July 19 (AP) — A concerted movement into Spain of German soldiers — openly armed, uniformed and mechanically equipped—is reported by Americans who fled troubled Europe through the Spanish Peninsula and arrived here on the S.S. Manhattan.

Many said that they saw "thousands of Nazi soldiers" entering Balbao by armored car, as well as choking the streets of Barcelona and crowding the hotels of other Spanish cities.

States Barcelona Flooded with Nazis

"In my travels through Spain I saw German soldiers everywhere. Barcelona was flooded with German officers—in full uniform and carrying sidearms. There was talk everywhere of Spain getting Gibraltar back from the British. The Spanish people do not want to fight, but their leaders have been influenced by the Germans."

"I saw several thousand German soldiers enter Balbao in armored cars," said Charles Wright, a native of St. Paul, Minn., who fled the German invasion of Paris.

Charles Findley, Pathe News representative in Paris, reported more Swastikas in Madrid than in all Germany."

Detroit Tigers Move Into Lead Of American Loop By Defeating Boston, Yanks Take Indians

BROWNS LOSE

St. Louis Nicked for 14th Straight Loss by Philadelphia A's 10-3

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The American League still is boiling over, like a pot of hot porridge, and there doesn't seem to be anything anyone can do about it.

Cleveland Indians stumbled into their fifth consecutive defeat yesterday, 9-6, at the hands of the ever dangerous New York Yankees. Four losses got 'em into first place, but five took 'em out.

Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers had a chance to scoot into the lead, but when they finished batting each other at the end of 11 wild innings, it was Detroit that was on top, 10-8.

This was a game that had everything, including a triple play. The Red Sockers scored all their runs in the first three innings. Then the Tigers, using five pitchers, held them helpless the rest of the way.

Boston used four hurlers, the last of whom was free and easy Jack Wilson. The Tigers had kept nibbling away at Boston's margin, and had it down to 8-7 when Wilson came on duty at the start of the ninth. He gave a walk, a single and a long fly for the tying run. In the 11th he walked three men to fill the bases and Pinky Higgins spanked a two-run single to win the game.

Yanks Sew Up Victory

The Yankees sewed up their victory in the first two innings. Buddy Rosar homered with the bases loaded in the first and Red Rolfe hit for the circuit with one on in the second. Joe Dimaggio extended his hitting streak to 13 consecutive games by poling his 17th home run in the seventh inning.

Washington Senators chalked up their fifth triumph in a row with a 5-4 decision over the Chicago White Sox. Lemons Solters sent the Sox away to a good start with a three-run homer in the first inning. In the eighth inning two singles and a squeeze bunt by Buddy Myer scored the tying run. Lefty Ed Smith walked two men to force across the deciding run.

The streak to end all streaks, however, was the one St. Louis Browns extended to 14 games, all losses, yesterday. The 10-3 victory that Philadelphia Athletics took from them was a combination of five-hit hurling by Johnny Babich and a 17-hit assault on five St. Louis Slingers.

National League

The National League program was abbreviated two games and Brooklyn Dodgers made the most of the idleness of Cincinnati Reds by whipping Chicago Cubs 7-4 to narrow the gap between first and second place to three games.

Credit for the triumph went to Lefty Vito Tamulis, who blanked the Cubs for six innings on one hit after Chicago had got rough with Curt Davis in the third, when Bill Nicholson and Hank Leiber hit homers. The Dodgers made good use of 11 hits and three Chicago errors to spread their scoring into five different innings.

Carl Hubbell got the chance he wanted to work in a night game and handcuffed Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1 on six hits, although his teammates on the New York Giants fell apart with five errors. They gave "Hub" plenty of assistance with their bats, though, banging out 16 hits.

FINE COMRADSHIP

Bill Gilbert, Senior, and Bob Dickens, Junior, Win Honor Crests During Outing

Browned and burnished like young Indians, a happy crowd of Belleville boys returned from the camp at Moira Lake on Tuesday. As the truck, carrying the boys and their luggage, rolled down the street the air was full of camp and cabin yells, an effort to carry the camp atmosphere with them until the last possible minute.

The two weeks at camp were filled with baseball, volleyball, archery, swimming, life saving, boating and fishing. Bible study, handicraft and evening programs of songs, stunts, and fun. Forty-two campers thoroughly enjoyed this program, which was interspersed with special events such as overnight out trips, treasure hunt, hikes, athletic and aquatic meets, etc.

The Honor Crests—significant of the finest type of camp development and behavior—were awarded to Bill Gilbert, Senior, and Bob Dickens, Junior. These boys displayed good sportsmanship and a fine camp spirit at all times, and were ever ready to do anything, which might be for the good of the camp.

Much credit is due Camp Director Joe Shortt and his assistants for the splendid all round program and the outing provided under their supervision. The health of the camp was excellent, and was operated as usual without illness of any kind or any serious accident. Pasteurized milk was used at the camp, and the water supply was again graded A1 by the Provincial Department of Health.

The camp program champions were:

Athletic, Senior: 1 Ken Campbell, 2 Gord McClelland, 3 Vern Flindal.

Playground Notes

Thursday afternoon the West End Junior Boys defeated Bowerman's East End Pets by the tune of 15 to 9. The Senior West End girls made things look worse when they won by the score 24-7. Shirley Adams of West laid too heavily on the hickory when she knocked out two home runs. Gwen Bennett was the star for the losing team.

In the boys game there were no outstanding players on either team. Both Bunton and Sword pitched a steady game, but the steady hitting of Greatrix, Meagher and Sword turned the tide for the wes.

The teams are as follows:

East End Girls—Bennett, Diamond, Johns, Ward, Diamond, Bennett, Button, Coleman, Kilbourne. Number of runs—7.

West End Girls—Mathews, Baragar, Bell, Adams, Sprung, Martin, Bennett, Lundberg, Vandervoort. Number of runs—24.

WINGS LEADING NEWARK BEARS BY 7 1-2 GAMES

Defeat Buffalo Bisons While Bears Split Double-header With Syracuse

MARCHILDON WINS

Toronto Hurler Allows Seven Hits in Defeating Rochester 3-1

By The Associated Press

The way Rochester Red Wings go along winning ball games day after day, it doesn't seem possible that anyone can stop them at this stage of the International League race—yet this is the same team that many experts early in the season wouldn't give a chance to finish in the first division.

The Wings are leading the second place Newark bears by 7 1-2 games. Much of the credit for their success belongs to Billy Southworth, who took a bunch of youngsters to Florida for spring training and turned them into a winning class AA outfit.

Southworth has since moved up to manage the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League, Rochester's parent club, but the morale of the team remains the same under Tony Kaufman, who took over the reins June 28.

Wings scored a 4-3 victory over Buffalo Bisons last night to stretch their latest winning string to six games and picked up a half game on Newark who split a double-header with Syracuse.

Lyons Scores 13th Win

Herschel Lyons went the distance for Rochester, allowing eight hits, to become the third Red Wing pitcher in succession to win his 13th game.

After George Barley pitched one hit ball to give Newark a 4-0 verdict in the seven inning twilight game, Syracuse came back to swamp the Bears in the nightcap, 8-3. Chris Hartje got the only hit off Barley, a single in the fifth, and also got the only base on balls given up by the young right hander, who struck out four.

Jersey City Giants nosed out Baltimore Orioles 3-2 to climb into a tie with the Orioles for fourth place. Dusty Cooke was the batting hero, getting two for four and knocking in two runs.

Phil Marchildon defeated Bob Porter in a pitching duel at Toronto to give the Leafs a 3-1 triumph over Montreal Royals. Each man allowed seven hits.

BIG-Z LASSIES CINCH PLAYOFF BERTH BY WIN

Defeat Metros 32-18 and Tie for Leadership of Loop With K-Nines

HEAVY HITTING

Chuck Barnett's Big-Z lassies cinched a play-off berth in the Ladies' Mercantile Softball League by defeating the Metros 32 to 18 in an abbreviated seven inning game called on account of darkness, at the armouries last evening. In victory the Big-Z nine advanced into a tie with the K-Nines for the league leadership in the bargain.

The white-clad Big-Z team scored 13 runs in the initial three innings with Helen Garrow's big bat accounting for three circuit blows, one in each frame. The winners then scored nine in the fourth and mounted their score in every subsequent inning to drive Jean Muir, the Mets' ace moundsman, to cover, Jean Hall finishing the Mets' pitching chore. Betsy Adams hurled the entire game for the victorious nine.

The Mets made a determined stand in the second and third frames, when they scored six runs in each of these frames to knot the score, but the Big-Z rally of nine runs in the fourth spelled defeat for the Mets. Corbins and Zellers clash at the Collegiate tonight with the winner taking sole possession of the top run in the league ladder.

Betsy Adams, diminutive hurler of the winners, led her team on the attack with three circuit blows, a triple and double in seven tries. Helen Garrow had three home runs, a double and a single in six tries, while Bennett also hit in the clutches. Jean Hall, Pat Alexander, Edith Cook and Tufts paced the losers with the willow.

The lineups:

Big-Z: Bennett 3b; Irvine 1b; Garrow ss; Adams p; McClelland 2b; Hunter cf; Cordon lf; Moore rf, and Donovan c.

Score by innings:

Metros .... 166 320 0—18 runs
Big-Z .... 436 943 3—32 runs

Umpires: Bawden, plate, Henn, bases.

Suffolk Downs got off to a bad start (because of the weather) but is now about a quarter of a million ahead of the same time last year. . . . If the Dodgers win the pennant, they may play their world series "home games" in Yankee stadium, where about twice as many customers can buy tickets. . Baseballers are still chuckling over the wire Lefty Gomez sent to George Selkirk the day Twink was benched here during the White Sox series.

It read: "Sorry you're not in the line-up" . . . and it was signed "Thornton Lee."

Simpson Ladies Team, Toronto Plays For Charity With Airport

With Batteries Reversed Air Force Players Defeat Ladies 14-9

SMART CONTEST

Trenton, July 19 (Special)—One of the largest crowds to ever witness a softball game in this town, crowded Bayside Park last night to witness the game between the Simpson Ladies team of Toronto and the R.C.A.F. Flyers. The game was held to raise funds for the women's auxiliary of the R.C.A.F., Trenton.

The batteries on the two teams were reversed with the Simpson's Ladies battery playing with the Flyers and the Airforce battery playing with the ladies.

The Flyers won the ball game by a score of 14 to 9 but the game was close throughout with both teams playing errorless ball. The girls turned in a fine effort but they were unable to cope with the heavy hitting Flyers, who collected 14 hits, three being homers.

The Airforce broke into the scoring column first, when they collected three runs in the third, and the men showed their superiority with snappy base running. The Simpson's collected two runs in the fourth to whittle down the lead but the men came back with another two runs. The Flyers added four more in the fifth, two in the sixth and three in the seventh before the Ladies could click again. In the eighth frame, the ladies scored once on two singles. In a desperate effort to even the score the Simpsons staged a comeback and collected six runs before they were stopped.

Work Three Frames

Three Airforce hurlers were used by the ladies team each doing duty for three frames. Farrar started on the mound and turned in the best effort allowing only two hits. Noseworthy the second hurler allowed seven hits and Walker allowed four hits in two frames. Two Simpson hurlers were used by the Flyers. M. Hanna hurled the first five frames and allowed six hits while J. Stone on the mound for the last four, allowed ten hits.

Marg Booth with a homer and two singles was the best at bat for the ladies, while Reeves with a homer and two singles was the best for the airforce.

The Lineups:

Simpsons: N. Stone ss; Helen Peterson cf; Marg Booth lf; Grace Bannon 2b; J. Stone p and 2b; Lorraine Pettibone 1b; Violet McNaughton 3b; Jean Hunter rf; Gibson cp Farr p; Noseworthy p and Walker p.

The Belleville Softball League executive met last night and voted to terminate the league schedule as of the standing of today. This means that the "Oilers" are first, Point Anne second, Corby's A.C. third and Uptown Juniors fourth, all of which qualify for the City League play-offs. The Oilers and Corby's agreed to play a series of the best four in seven, with the winning team not only being declared O.A.S.A. representative for Belleville, but also win the right to advance into the City League finals, versus the winner of the Point Anne versus Junior series, which will be of the best three-in-five nature. The finals will also be the best in five series. Realizing the seriousness of military training on Monday and Friday nights, the playoffs will commence next Tuesday night, when Corby's meet Shell in the opening play-off games. This series will continue Wednesday and Thursday at the Flats, while the Juniors go to Point Anne on Wednesday for their opener.

Chuck Barnett's Big-Z lassies gave the Metros a sound 32 to 18 trouncing at the Armouries last night, but there is a feature to the game not generally known. Coach Barnett was unable to field a full team and the Mets' management allowed the white-sweatered winners to use two Woolworth players. Now, it appears, Woolworths have decided to toss in the softball sponge and disband for the season, as they haven't won a single start during the schedule. There are three or four fairly good girls with the "Five and Ten Cent" squad, all of whom want to play softball. The ultimate result, as announced by General Chairman Ted Schwab today, finds all teams in the league will benefit by the league decision in the matter. The names of five of the better players with Woolworths will be placed in a hat tonight and drawn for by the remaining five clubs in the loop, thus giving each team one additional player with which to advance into the playdowns.

Do you remember when Hank Cieman, lanky Toronto walker, cracked George Goulding's 1910 Canadian mark for the two miles at Toronto nine years ago today? Cieman covered the distance in Ontario track championships in 13:54.4, compared with Goulding's 14:07.4.

Carl Hubbell, New York Giant portside ace, has a unique All-Star game record. In four appearances in the mid-summer event, King Carl has not received credit for a victory or been charged with a defeat. Toiling in eight and two-thirds innings, he has allowed eight hits and three runs. Of the four games in which he served—1933, 1934, 1936 and 1937—only one, 1936, resulted in a National League win.

Lon Warneke is the only other major moundsman who has appeared in more than two All-Star games without receiving credit for a victory or being charged with a defeat. Lon represented the Chicago Cubs in the 1933, 1934 and 1936 games, pitching in seven and one-third innings and yielding ten hits and two runs.

Don Thomas and your reporter journeyed to Trenton last evening to umpire the Air Force versus Simpsons girls' team from the Toronto Sunnyside League. The teams exchanged batteries and a fairly good game was enjoyed by an over-flow crowd of over 1,000. One thing was definitely proven, there is no comparison between men's and girls' softball, the Flyers won 14 to 9 without trying too hard. However in Helen Peterson, Simpson's centre fielder, we saw a softball player who can go and shag fly balls with the best of them. This girl made two sensational running shoe-string catches, both of which would have been a credit to any male. The girls snap the balls around the infield like veterans and possess a fine ability of base running, taking full advantage of every opportunity on the base paths. Marg. Hanna started on the mound for the Flyers but Jessie Stone, who hurled the last four innings, looked the better. However, Miss Hanna had pitched a 12-inning game and won over Thelma Golden only the night before. Incidentally Marg. Booth hit a home run to prove the lassies can clout the apple.

Tonight the members of the winning teams in the Ki-Y softball groups will be presented with their championship crests. The winning teams in the 1940 Ki-Y groups are Bantam—Rinkydinks; Midget—St. Mikes and Juvenile Smashers. The presentation will be followed by the conventional plunge into the pool and refreshments.

It is not generally known but the fight purses of Lew Jenkins and Henry Armstrong were both ordered held up by the New York State Boxing Commission. It seems that the fighters agreed to use ten yards of hand tape, whereas the State Boxing laws only calls for 7 1-2 yards. Chairman John J. Phelan ordered Armstrong to remove 2 1-2 yards of tape and Eddie Mead, his manager, told Phelan to "go fly a kite." Phelan threatened to call the bout off, but the sight of 23,000 paid customers changed that idea pronto. Now the boys' purses have been held up pending an investigation of which we'll never hear more.

SPORT SPICE—Connie Smythe, generalissimo of the Maple Leaf hockey team, has recommended that all of his players volunteer for military training. . . . By getting in their period of military training early the Leafs would be free for N.H.L. campaigns, providing, etc. . . . Joe DiMaggio smacked his 17th homer of the season yesterday as the Yanks beat the Indians 9-6 and in the Bronx today it's the old battle song "The Yanks are Coming," but out in the sticks the boys are still favouring the Red Sox, as both the Indians and Tigers seem to be cracking under the strain. . . . The local branch of the Red Cross is to benefit by a softball game on Civic Holiday, when efforts to bring three N.H.L. players here to umpire the game will be made as a special attraction, says Gerald Barriage, skipper of the Corby outfit.

Questions (but no answers) dept. —Are the Dodgers dickering for a stratoliner to bring them back to town Sunday? . . . What American League club is interested in Pitcher Frank Melton of Columbus? . . . And why aren't big league scouts camping on the doorstep of John Leonardo, pitcher for Dupont in Virginia Intercity League? All he's done is hurl five shutouts this season, the last four in succession.

How To Overcome Piles
And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

HAND BANDAGE MATTER SETTLED

Al Hostak and Tony Zale Battle for Middleweight Title of 46 States

Seattle, July 19—(AP)—After an argument over the amount of bandages had been settled, everything—including the weather—was ready for tonight's 15-round fight between Al Hostak of Seattle and Tony Zale of Gary, Ind., for the 46-state National Boxing Association Middleweight championship.

Sam Pian, co-manager for Zale, said the bandage argument had been settled with State Athletic Commissioners, so all that now remains is for former lightweight champion Benny Leonard to call the boys to the centre of the ring for their instructions, and then await the gong.

"We don't object to five or 10 yards of gauze on a fighter's hands", Pian explained, "but we don't want any tape or plaster of Paris or that stuff so a fellow can punch his way through a brick wall. If this Hostak is such a puncher, okay, but why give him an iron mitt?"

Eddie Marino, Hostak's manager, disclaimed any desire to wrap the Seattle Slav's hands in anything but gauze, and scoffed at reports Al would bandage his hands heavily to protect his oft-broken hands

Stirling and District

Mrs. A. Bailey, Retiring Manager Of Telephone Exchange, Honoured

Served With Company for 24 Years and at Stirling for 17

GIFTS PRESENTED

Stirling, July 18—(Special)—On Wednesday evening at the summer home of Mr. Gordon Bailey at Oak Lake, a group of Bell Telephone officials from all parts of the district and to the number of thirty-five gathered to honour Mrs. Anne Bailey, retiring manager of the Stirling Telephone exchange. Mrs. Bailey has been in the service of the company for 24 years and for the past seventeen years has been in charge of the Stirling office and exchange.

Services Widely Appreciated

Encouraging the courteous public service for which the Bell Telephone Co. is well known, Mrs. Bailey went the second mile in this respect and those on her staff maintained the public interest throughout their faithful service. They became more than public servants, they were friends of every subscriber and all with whom they talked. Truly they possessed the "voice with a smile."

With a sincere neighborly interest, they often extended their duties to tracing parties in order to complete important calls. They were always the main source of alarm in the case of fire, flood or windstorm. They were instructed by Mrs. Bailey to co-operate as much as duty would permit with the press on all matters of public interest, elections, etc. In this respect no staff in the province is deserving of more praise and credit than the one recently replaced by the installation of the automatic exchange in the Village of Stirling. Even now when the new arrangement is working to the complete satisfaction of all users, many express regret in the removal of the personal contact with "the girls" who rendered such cheerful and excellent service.

Honored with Gift

Wednesday night, with representatives present from Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Belleville and Trenton, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bailey at Oak Lake was the scene of a happy gathering in the form of a surprise party to honour Mrs. A. Bailey on the eve of her retirement from the service. Midway through the splendid social event, the gathering was called to order and its purpose being revealed by Mr. A. P. Leneveu, District Traffic Superintendent of the Bell Telephone Co. who addressed the honored guest, expressing the genuine appreciation of all her fellow workers for the splendid services she had given throughout twenty-four years in the employ of the company both to the general public and to those with whom she worked. As a token of this appreciation Mrs. Bailey was presented with a handsome travelling set by Mr. G. W. Proctor, District Supt.

Taken completely by surprise, Mrs. Bailey then took the opportunity of returning some of the splendid compliments to those with whom she had served. "Contact with such a fine group of people during all the years had made the work pleasant and easy." She hoped that the pleasant associations would in no way be broken by her retirement from the service and the same friendly attitude would continue to provide happiness in the days to come.

The handsome gift was most fitting and appropriate since Mrs. Bailey intends to spend the first part of her days of retirement travelling.

Luncheon was served by the ladies present and the happy event climaxed with a brief social period of thorough enjoyment.

Sir Frederick Sykes Returned to Commons

London, July 19—(CP Cable) — Sir Frederick Sykes, a member of the Imperial War Cabinet during part of the last war, was returned to the House of Commons by acclamation from central Nottingham today to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sir Terance O'Connor in May.

In the 1935 general election Sir Terence, a Conservative, defeated J. W. Allitt, Labor, by 18,706 votes to 10,193. Sir Frederick Sykes is a Conservative. The by-election was not contested in accord with the wartime truce of the political parties.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Cisco Kid and the Lady"

"Tomboy"

Marcia Mae Jones and Jackie Moran, Monogram's new starring team, is now playing at the Capitol theatre, in "Tomboy," first film of a series they will make for Monogram, which was enthusiastically greeted by a capacity audience.

"Tomboy" is dedicated to the spirit of American youth that will not admit defeat. It is the story of a country boy and a city-bred girl who join forces to whip the world together. Steve is a farm boy, hard-workikng and poor, who wants to be a lawyer. But his Uncle Matt, the meanest man in Middleton, doesn't believe in education, and forbids the boy to continue at school.

This is the situation that faces Pat, the ex-baseball player's daughter, when she and her father come to live in Middleton.

All problems are happily solved, however, in a thrilling climax.

Marcia Mae Jones and Jackie Moran have roles that demand intelligence and good acting sense, and they fulfill these demands more than satisfactorily. There is plenty of comedy as well as drama in "Tomboy," and these two seem equally adept at both.

There is love interest in "Tomboy" too, for Pat's father, played by Grant Withers, falls for the pretty school teacher, Charlotte Wynters.

To complete this ideal program is the "Universal News." First chapter of the new thrilling serial, "Buck Rogers," and round for round description of the Baer vs. Galento fight pictures.

Butter Turns Up Eggs, Cheese Steady

Butter firmed slightly yesterday to register the only price change on a dull Toronto open produce market. Cheese and egg prices remained unchanged in extremely slow trading.

Sellers appeared to have no trouble in moving first-grade Ontario creamery solids at 22 3-4 cents. Offerings were scarce at this price and buying was limited. At the close some brokers were asking 23 cents but no sales were reported at this level. Western butter was sold at 23 3-4 cents.

New, large current-make cheese was steady at a wholesale price of 14 cents. Offerings were light and demand slow.

The egg market was easier in tone. Receipts were plentiful but moved at a very slow rate. Demand was spotty and quotations remained nominal. A-large eggs were unchanged at 25 cents in the graded section and 27 cents to retailers.

Cheese production in Ontario this month is expected to show an increase of 4 to 5 per cent over July, 1939, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported yesterday in its monthly market review. It added: "In Ontario, July butter production is expected to equal July, 1939, or possibly show a slight increase, depending on weather conditions. On the other hand, any diversion from butter to cheese may result in a slight decrease in production compared with July, 1939". Butter production last July totalled 10,037,000 pounds— 26.3 per cent of the Dominion's output.

DOUBLE SUICIDE VERDICT OF JURY

St. Donat, Que., July 19.—(CP)—Death of Dr. and Mrs. G. N. Paterson-Smyth of Montreal, whose bodies were found Wednesday near this Laurentian mountain town, was double suicide "while of unsound mind", a coroner's jury decided today.

The inquest had been adjourned yesterday by Coroner Dr. J. Coupal of Rawdon, Que., to give Dr. Jean Marie Roussel, medico-legal expert from Montreal, time to complete his autopsy.

HENRY WALLACE

Will Do Little Campaigning

He explained, as had Mrs. Roosevelt an hour or so earlier, that the times were so fraught with danger that he would be able to do little campaigning.

"But I shall never be loathe," he said, "to call the attention of the nation to deliberate or unwitting falsifications of fact which are sometimes made by political candidates."

He said all the needs of human security had not been met; much more needed to be done. And, he added, "progress along free lines is gravely endangered by what is happening to other continents."

Warns Against Compromise

Then he continued in a grave tone:

"If our government passes to other hands next January—untried hands, inexperienced hands—we can merely hope and pray that they will not substitute appeasement and compromise with those who seek to destroy all democracies everywhere."

Wallace got 627 and a fraction votes. Speaker William Bankhead got 329, and Senator Paul McNutt, in spite of the effort he made to hold off support—even to the extent of turning the bulk of his Indiana delegation to Wallace—got 66 and a fraction votes. The others were scattered among 10 candidates.

Wallace President's Choice

The delegates had been convinced that only by choosing Wallace—the president's choice—could they induce Mr. Roosevelt to accept first place on the tradition-breaking ticket. In the end, they gave a surface appearance of unanimity to the nomination by adopting a motion to make it unanimous.

But "noes" rang out plainly when Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, the convention chairman put the motion. His decision was that it had been carried by more than two-hirds of the delegates.

The dramatic peak of the evening was reached when McNutt, who had instructed that his name not be placed in nomination, shouldered his way to the Speaker's stand.

He had leaped from his seat and started for the plaform when Don Welch, an Oklahoma delegate, offered his name. The crowd was going wild.

McNutt clutched Barkley's arm with a hand that trembled. They talked earnestly.

"We cannot take chances now; a nation only gets one chance these days," McNutt shouted. "If it makes a mistake it is lost. We must have leaders who will keep this country free and safe.

"We have such a leader in Franklin Delano Roosevelt. I follow his wishes and I am here to support his choice for Vice-President."

The crowd yelled: "No—No."

"I therefore ask emphatically that my name be withdrawn, and I pledge my enthusiastic support to the nominee who is being selected on this historic occasion," he concluded.

'Invisible Thing Called Conscience'

"I find myself as almost everyone does sooner or later in his lifetime in a conflict between deep personal desire for retirement on the one hand and that quiet, invisible thing called conscience on the other," Mr. Roosevelt said in his address from the White House.

When he was elected for a second term in 1936, he went on, "it was my firm intention to turn over the responsibilities of government to other hands at the end of my term."

"That conviction remained with me," he added. "Eight years in the Presidency, followed a period of bleak depression and covering one world crisis after another normally entitle any man to the relaxation which comes from honorable retirement."

Would Have Sought Retirement

The President said that when the war broke out last fall, it still was his intention to announce simply and clearly, at an early date "that under no conditions would I accept re-election."

This fact was well known to my friends, and I think was understood by many citizens," he said.

"It soon became evident, however, that such a public statement on my part would be unwise from the point of view of sheer public interest.

"As President of the United States, it was my duty, with the aid of the Congress, to preserve our neutrality, to shape our program of defence to meet rapid changes, to keep our domestic affairs adjusted to shifting world conditions, and to sustain the policy of the good neighbor."

Traced Defence Plans

He traced the course of national defence plans and told how the international situation had developed.

"Every day that passed called for "Thinking solely of the national the postponement of personal plans and partisan debate until the latest possible moment," he said. "The normal conditions under which I would have made public declaration of my personal desires were gone. good and of the international scene, I came to the reluctant conclusion that such declaration should not be made before the national convention. It was accordingly made to you within an hour after the permanent organization of the convention.

HITLER

Hitler did not say what he expected Britain to do in response to his "peace offer," but he left no doubt that the "peace" would be on German terms.

Hitler said he "never intended to annihilate or even to harm" the existing world.

He added: "In this hour I feel myself obligated to make one more appeal to reason in England."

He said he could do this because he was not asking for peace as one vanquished but rather as a victor appealing to common sense.

The Kroll opera house was a sea of brown uniforms sprinkled with the field gray of the army. Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, arrived 15 minutes before Hitler and was given a seat in the diplomatic box.

Hitler Sees No Reason For Prolongation

"There is no ground for the prolongation of the war" he said. "The British statesmen probably have no real conception of what it will mean, once the German offensive begins in earnest against the British Isles.

"Churchill would not dare to face the music. The people left behind in London would have quite a different conception than that of a government which had fled to Canada.

"Once more I will attempt to be a prophet," said Hitler, prophesying that a "world empire will be destroyed" unless Britain listens to "reason."

Mr. Churchill, he said, may think that it is Germany which faces destruction.

"I know it will be England," he asserted.

Assails Versailles Treaty

As usual Hitler began his speech by assailing the terms of the Versailles Treaty.

"The program of the Nationalist Socialist movement proclaimed to the world our determination to shake off the shackles of this treaty," he declared.

He assailed "Jewish capitalist warmongers," blaming them for the war.

"No other statesman dared to propose a solution such as mine to the German nation," he said.

"On Sept. 2, the conflict might have been averted. Mussolini made a proposal for peaceful negotiations, ...It was only the British warmongers who wanted war."

Claims Documents Found

On June 19, 1940, a German soldier found a "strange document" which led to the finding of other documents of the supreme Allied War Council, he claimed.

These documents showed, Hitler alleged, that the British and French planned to use the small countries to their own ends.

Finland, the Balkan States and Belgium were among these nations which were to be used for their own purposes, Hitler said.

"These same criminals were responsible for leading Poland into war," he declared.

He recalled he had "warned" Britain and France after the Polish campaign "not to continue this war."

Says He Was 'Abused' as Coward

He said he was "abused" as a coward because of these peace proposals; thus this "capitalist clique of warmongers, with a personal stake in the war,' caused the conflict to continue.

"While this Anglo-French war clique was seeking ways to extend the war and rope in new participants, I was working to build up my own forces.

"Along about March, we learned of intentions by the Allies to get bases in Finland for movement into the Baltics and to obtain access to Swedish and Norwegian mines.

"The conclusion of peace between Russia and Finland caused these intentions by the Allies to be temporarily withheld."

Invasion of Norway

However, plans were taken up by the Allies a few days later, Hitler went on, to pursue the northern campaign. Germany learned of the plans, he declared, because of the "verbosity of that First Lord of the Admiralty (Winston Churchill) now British premier" and French premier Reynaud.

The dispatch of minelayers to Norwegian waters, Hitler's story continued, removed any doubt of the British intention to occupy Norway.

He then reviewed the opening of the conflict in Norway. He claimed Germany moved in only after British forces had tried in vain.

"Successful execution was possible only by the fine work of the three divisions of our forces, the navy, land forces and air force.

"The air force, which was often the only means of transport, surpassed itself in every respect.

"The British fleet was finally obliged to yield before the attacks of German dive bombers and evacuate . . ."

Refers to Air-Landed Troops

"Air-landed troops," he said, provided the first occupation of many places. He said Norwegian troops gave "very brave defence" but he ridiculed British troops, asserting they were poorly trained and equipped and "definitely inferior in every respect."

"The word Narvik will be immortalized as a symbol of the National Socialist Reich," he asserted.

"It is a pity that Chamberlain's Grenadier Guards did not make contact with the German troops."

The Low Countries

Turning from Norway, he took up the Low Countries. Germany, he said, had few troops on the Belgian frontier while large concentrations of French tanks and troops showed France was preparing to move against Germany through Belgium.

"There was such a concentration of signs pointing to a movement of French and British troops through Belgium and Holland that I discussed the developments with the army and made minute plans to offset such an attack."

Telephone messages between London and Paris showed the British and French were preparing to attack early in May, he alleged, and so " I gave orders to attack" on May 10.

Praising the German soldiers, he said the soldiers of the "new provinces taken into the Reich" showed equal valor and thus helped make possible the "glorious victory."

Praises Command

"The command of the new German army," he said, "must be considered much better than the command of yesterday."

Says Taking of Paris Not in Original Plans

Naming Generals in charge of units participating, he brought cheers from the Reichstag in each case. The taking of Paris, he said, was not envisioned in the original plans, After Paris fell, he said, the operations of the Swiss border and encirclement tactics made possible the crushing of the French army.

"In this war, the German infantry has shown itself to be what it always has been, the best infantry in the world," he continued.

"In this war, the German tank corps has won a place in history . . . . All other troops deserve the highest praise.

"As for the air force, at dawn on May 10, thousands of fighter planes and dive bombers swept down on enemy air bases. In the space of a few days our air superiority was established and it never was relinquished."

Hitler gave these as the reasons for his speech:—

"The necessity to open up to our own people an insight into the historical rareness of the events which we are experiencing; to thank our soldiers and to attempt to direct one more—and this time the last—appeal to reason."

Junior Farmers Of Hastings Hold Field Day At Tweed

Lateness of Haying Season Causes Attendance to Drop Suddenly

SPORTS PROGRAM

Tweed, July 19—(Special)—The Junior Farmers of Hastings County held their annual field day and softball tournament at Tweed Agricultural Grounds and the Memorial Park on Thursday, July 18th. The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of Mr. H. L. Fair, B.S.A., Agricultural Representative, Stirling, the presidents of the Junior Farmer township organizations: Hungerford, Donald Bateman; Rawdon, George Sutherland; Sidney, Ralph Campbell; Madoc, Douglas Bailey; Huntingdon, Leonard Rollins; Thurlow, L. Ketcheson; Marmora, Don Neal and the umpire-in-chief, Don Williams, Stirling.

The umpires were Don Williams, umpire-in-chief; Herb. Higgs, Stirling; J. R. Burton, Stirling; H. Brown, Glenn Ross; J. Armstrong, Glenn Ross.

Officers in Charge

Officers of Hungerford Junior Farmers who were in charge of local arrangements are: President, Donald Bateman; Vice-President, Bill Coulter; Secretary, Stanley Geen; Treasurer, Wilbur Bateman.

The attendance was very encouraging to Mr. H. L. Fair and his committee although not as large as usual, due to the lateness of the haying season which made it necessary for the farm lads to make hay while their more fortunate fellows were engaging their energies in softball. At the picnic lunch which was served at the Fair Grounds there was an estimated attendance of two hundred and fifty.

Five boys' teams were entered in the boys' softball tournament: Madoc, Manager Cecil Woods; Marmora, Manager Don Neale; Sidney, Manager Clarence Woods; Rawdon, Manager Bill Heath; Hungerford, Manager Bill Coulter.

Three Girls' Teams Entered

Three girls' teams were entered in the Girls' Softball Tournament: Sidney, Manager Laura Sine; Rawdon, Manager Bill Heath; Madoc, Manager Beulah Keene.

The first round brought together Sidney and Hungerford with Sidney leading 2 to 0 at the end of the second inning. Hungerford defaulted the game and Sidney advanced to the next round to meet Rawdon. This encounter was probably the best of the day, developing into a pitchers' battle between Broadworth on the mound for Rawdon and Shortt who served them up for Sidney. Both pitchers were accorded stellar support by their teammates with the final score in doubt until the last out. The final score was Rawdon 3, Sidney 2.

Rawdon opened the scoring in the second frame, pushing over two runs on successive hits by Rodgers, Rennie and Thompson, the first two crossing the plate, Sidney cut the margin to one run in the third inning with Vandervoort notching a counter. Rawdon came right back in the same inning with the winning run. Brown, batting out a long double crossed the plate on a hit and a passed ball. Broadworth was working along smoothly and allowed his opponents only one additional counter in the sixth, Ray being the scorer.

Meet in First Round

Marmora and Madoc met in the first round with the latter scoring an easy victory by a score of 13 to 6. F. Stewart and A. Ray shared the mound duties for the winners, the former holding the losers scoreless for three frames before giving place to Ray, who allowed six runs, all coming in the final three frames. Hunter, Marmora twirler, proved no mystery for the Madoc township lads who belted his offerings to all corners of the lot for 13 runs, scoring three runs in the first and seven in the second.

Madoc .....3 7 0 2 1 0 x—13 runs
Marmora ...0 0 0 0 1 3 2— 6 runs

Final Game Thrilling

In the final encounter Madoc and Rawdon staged a thrilling battle both teams strove to capture the Junior Farmers' Softball Trophy. Madoc opened the scoring in the first frame, Sine singled with one down and scored on E. Woods' first of three doubles.

Rawdon hit back in the same inning scoring twice for their only run of the game. Brown and Rodgers were the scorers. Broadworth pitched his best ball in the second frame, striking out Ray, Delve and Coulter on nine pitched balls.

Ray was in difficulty in the second inning walking the first two men but his support came through in spectacular style and the next three men were out.

The third inning put the game in the bag for Madoc, Broadworth's efforts, having already pitched one stiff game, took their toll and he was greeted with a barrage of hits including doubles by the Woods' brothers, and four runs crossed the plate. Rawdon again collected two free tickets in the third inning but could not connect safely with Ray's slants and failed to score. Both sides went down in order in the fourth inning as the fielding tightened up and several nice catches were made in the outfield.

An error by Thompson in centre who dropped Sine's fly paved the way for the winners' final score. Rogers dropped the third strike on Kirby and then hit the runner with the ball which rolled to the outfield permitting Sine to cross the rubber. Rawdon went down in order in the seventh frame. Broadworth struck out 6 and issued 3 walks, Ray struck out 2 and gave 5 bases on balls.

brought that publication to its present fine position. He was its editor and his witty pungent pen soon marked him as an outstanding columnist.

Disposing of his interest in that publication last year, he became associated with the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer as advertising manager in November. His ability in this field was marked and he enjoyed the confidence and respect of the many business organizations, stores, shops, etc., with which his work brought him in contact.

Member of Rotary

He succeeded the late Andrew Davie as the newspaper representative of the Belleville Rotary Club and was a valued member of that service club. A prominent Mason, he was a member of the Ottawa Lodge, A.F. & A.M. and the Ottawa Chapter, R.A.M. He was a regular guest at the meeting of the local Masonic lodges and chapters.

Left to mourn his passing are his widow and three sons, Douglas at home, Robert of Toronto and Keith, of Algonquin; three sisters, the Misses Mabel and Lila of Western Canada and Miss A. J. Lapp, Ottawa, two brothers, Clarence and Charles of Bradford. Mrs. R. M. Lapp of Brighton is a sister-in-law.

KING ASSURES HOUSE SPEECHES HIS OWN MAKING

ADMITS CONSULTATION

Ottawa, July 19—(CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King assured the House of Commons yesterday that his radio and other public addresses were not written by L. W. Brockington, of Winnipeg, who is attached to the Prime Minister's office to record various aspects of Canada's war effort.

Mr. King made a spirited defence of Mr. Brockington who, he said, was the only important staff addition to his office since the war started. "He is a gentleman of wide experience of affairs, an able counsellor, widely informed on public matters, and is rendering Canada an exceptional service at this time," the Prime Minister said.

Discussion of Mr Brockington came up when Conservative Leader Hanson suggested an answer to a question, given yesterday and indicating no Canadian war historian had been appointed, was misleading. Mr. Hanson said it was his impression a war historian had been appointed.

He read a press release issued at the time Mr. Brockington was attached to the Prime Minister's office, in which references were made to his duties as "recorder of Canada's war effort and suggested "historian" would serve equally well in describing the position.

Mr. King said there had been no desire to mislead the House. The question referred to had not mentioned Mr. Brockington and the statement that no historian had been appointed was correct.

Service Provided in All

It was impossible for a Prime Minister to keep himself properly informed of the swiftly changing world scene without some assistance of the kind given by Mr. Brockington. He also assisted by preparing information the Prime Minister required for speeches and statements, and the same service was provided other memebers of the cabinet.

"But my radio and other public speeches are my own," the Prime Minister said. Scarcely a day passed that he had not occasion to consult Mr. Brockington or make use of information he prepared, said Mr. King.

Mr. Hanson said he had made no attack on Mr. Brockington nor upon the Prime Minister.

Mr. King replied that this was quite true but the Conservative Leader had twice mentioned Mr. Brockington's name in the House and "some of his supporting journals have said it is my duty to stand here and defend him."

Later, when Mr. Hanson was objecting to discussion of unemployment insurance because he had not been able to digest the bill, Mr. King said that illustrated the value of an assistant of Mr. Brockington's type.

"I wonder if the country would provide me with a $9,000 a year adviser," Mr. Hanson observed, and the incident closed.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was downtown with ma and it was hot as anything, and we got off the buss coming home, ma saying, My, such a day, I feel as if I'd been put through a wringer against my will.

Well G, ma, here's White's drugstore, why dont we go in and have a nice cool soda, it's nowhere near supper time yet so it cant spoil anything, I said, and ma said, I'm doing my humble best to keep my weight within the bounds of reason, and if there's one thing that wouldn't lift a finger to help me, it's a soda.

But jimminy, ma, we dont have to have ice cream in it I mean at least you dont, I said. It's the ice cream part that's fattening, isn't it, ma? I said, and she said, There's nothing about a soda that isn't fattening.

Well anyways, ma, you dont need to worry, I mean you're lots thinner, I can see it myself, I said. Just get on Mr. White's free scales and find out for yourself it wont cost you anything and you'll have a pleasant surprise, I said.

Well I suppose I really oughtn't to miss a chance to weigh myself on dependable scales, ma said.

And we went in and the scales said almost 4 pounds less than ma expected, making her so happy she ordered 2 ice cream sodas, saying to Mr. White, I just had a pleasant experience on your free scales, Mr. White, and Mr. White saying, Yes, a lot of ladies are fond of those scales, even though they know from experience that those scales give exactly 7 pounds short weight.

Wich just then I looked at ma and she was giving me an accusing look, and I said, Well G, ma, I didn't know it for sure, and ma said, Look me in the eye, what do you mean by not knowing for sure?

Well for all I knew they might of been fixed, I said.

The general result being ma didn't finish her ice cream soda and the only reason I was aloud to finish mine was already finished.

GOVERNMENT SILENT

Britons Undaunted by Nazi Threats, Driven Home on Friday by One of Worst Air Raids of War—German Raider on Saturday Reported to Have Machine-Gunned Civilians on Railway Platform—Some Casualties but No Deaths Reported in Saturday's Nazi Air Attacks

London, July 20 (CP)— Britain ignored Adolf Hitler's "final appeal for peace on his own terms today and indicated she is ready for a test of strength, undaunted by Nazi threats driven home by one of the worst air raids of the war.

A scornful silence was the government's answer to the German dictator, who yesterday gave Britain the choice of coming to terms or facing "total destruction."

It was intimated that Prime Minister Churchill might have some comment to make in the House of Commons next Tuesday, but official circles pointed out that he had emphasized only last Sunday Britain's determination to fight on to a finish and they declared that Hitler's "offer" scarcely merited an answer.

The press and public were more vocal in their reaction to the Fuehrer's speech, viewed in many quarters as nothing more than an effort to drive a wedge between Churchill and the people.

Hitler's assertion that the British people were being led astray by their leaders in continuing the war was heard by the public by radio and was read in the press, which carried full texts of the speech. They were able to hear Hitler's full argument.

BODY OF WOMAN IS DISCOVERED

Mrs. Dorothy Thwartes, 23, of London Has Been Missing Since Monday

St. Thomas, Ont., July 20—(CP)—Body of Mrs. Dorothy Thwaites, 23, missing from her home at (113 1-2 Clarence Street), London, Ont., since last Monday, was found floating in the harbor at Port Stanley shortly after midnight last night.

R. L. Chantler and William Speight, St. Thomas, operating a small power boat in the harbor made the discovery. Identification was made by the woman's husband, Robert Thwaites.

Investigations had been made and dragging operations in harbor had been conducted for days following discovery of woman's clothing on harbor embarkment Tuesday. In her purse was farewell note in which she instructed her husband to "bury me in the new dress you bought me."

Besides her husband, she leaves two children, aged one and four years.

Britain Seeks Means To Prevent 'Frozen Assets' Going To Germany

Assets of German-Dominated Countries of Europe Now in United States

DISCUSSIONS HELD

Washington, July 20—(AP) — Britain is seeking a means to prevent "frozen assets" of German-dominated nations of Europe from melting in the United States and flowing into the Reichsbank at Berlin for use against the Empire.

Assets of most German-invaded countries, the value of which runs into billions of dollars, have been virtually impounded in American vaults under orders of President Roosevelt. They cannot be removed except under license from Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau.

It was disclosed yesterday by Sir Frederick Phillips, Under-Secretary of the British Treasury, and Secretary Morgenthau, that British and American representatives are consulting about the "frozen assets."

Sir Frederick, speaking for Britain, said:

"Naturally we don't want these assets to get under the effective control of Germany."

He declined to say whether he had received any assurances from the United States that the assets would remain "frozen."

International law describes such assets as subject to blockade in war times. "Frozen" assets in this country include holdings of France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Denmark, Norway and Luxembourg, as well as those of Russian-dominated Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania.

The official reason for holding the funds and securities here is that, should they be turned over to any person except the rightful owner, American banks might be subject to damage suits. Officials have said privately that, however, there is a posibility Germany might force withdrawals of such assets under duress.

ALL EXPLOSIVES UNDER CONTROL

Gov't Now Has Complete Authority Over Possession, Sale and Safe-Keeping of Such Materials

Ottawa, July 20—(CP)— Under authority of the War Measures Act, the Dominion Government moved Friday to place all explosives in Canada under the rigid control.

An order-in-council gives the government complete authority over possession, sale and safe-keeping of such materials, stipulating that no explosive authorized under the Explosives Act can be sold by other than a licensed magazine and outlining regulations covering the issue of permits.

Within 15 days all magazine licencees must furnish a return to the chief inspector of explosives of the Mines and Resources Department showing the quantity of explosives in their possession, purpose for which they are held, and provisions made to safeguard them.

Failure to protect explosives adequately shall be deemed sufficient cause for cancellation of licence, the order-in-council states.

Need Purchase Permit

Operators of mines and quarries, by far the largest users of explosives, will need only one purchase permit a year under the new regulations, except when otherwise directed by the chief inspector. Bona fide employees of these and other industrial enterprises making use of authorized explosives are exempt from the regulations while engaged in the performance of their duties.

Permit to Give All Facts

Permits for the purchase of such materials must be obtained from officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Provincial Police, Provincial Inspectors of Mines or the Chiefs of Police of municipalities.

The permit will show the name, nationality, address and occupation of the holder, the purpose for which it is granted, length of time it will be valid, and conditions under which the explosive is to be used or stored when not in use.

The regulations do not apply to Yukon and the Northwest Territories, not, subject to certain provisions, to transactions between operators of licensed explosive factories and those of licensed magazines.

SPY IS BEHEADED

Berlin (AP)—Maria Diecker, first woman to be executed in Germany since February, 1935, was beheaded today on conviction of spying for an unnamed foreign power.

American Republics Look To U.S. For Formula Against Fifth Column

Havana, July 20 (AP)—The conference of American Republics, called at Washington's suggestion after Nazi invasion of the Low countries to discuss western hemisphere defence and economy, looked to United States State Secretary Cordell Hull today for some formula for action against "fifth column" activities.

Delegates expressed a hope Hull, arriving on the steamship Florida this morning for tomorrow's opening session, also would produce a solution to the problem of bringing Argentina into line with her 20 sister-Republics. Argentina frequently has expressed unwillingness to co-operate in any plan which might jeopardize her trade relations with Europe's totalitarian states.

Rumors that Hull was bringing "secret" proposals from Washington were heard around the National Hotel, headquarters of most of the delegates, but went without confirmation.

Intense Heat Wave Approaches High 90's in U. S. Middlewest Kansas Town Reports 109 Deg.

Chicago, July 20 (AP). — The most intense heat wave of the year sent the mercury climbing toward the high 90's in the middlewest today with only temporary relief in sight.

Thundershowers were forecast for parts of the mid-continent but there was little prospect of general relief before Monday.

High temperatures were reported draining the spring wheat belt and corn producing areas of the reserve supply of moisture. The hot dry weather was a factor in yesterday's advance in wheat and corn prices in the Chicago grain futures market.

Blistering heat from the southwest which overspread the plains states yesterday brought 100 degree temperatures to many regions. Phillipsburg, Kansas, reported the highest reading—109 degrees.

POLITICAL CRIME IN SHANGHAI TO BE CHECKED

Foreign Consular Office Says Reputation of Shanghai Being Ruined in World

NEWSMAN INJURED

Shanghai, July 20—(AP)— The Shanghai municipal council asked the foreign consular body today for aid to check "the present terrible wave of political crime which is destroying all confidence here and ruining Shanghai's reputation throughout the world."

One possible course of action by the consuls, who form the highest authority in the International Settlement, would be a declaration of a state of emergency, under which foreign troops—especially United States marines and British soldiers—would be called out to help the municipal police patrol the city.

The consuls are expected to meet next week to act on the appeal, signed by W. J. Keswick, British chairman of the council, who listed recent terrorist attacks on Chinese and American newspaper writers and proprietors.

HITLER MENTIONS CANADA TWICE

Remarks Made in His Attack Upon Prime Minister Churchill

Berlin, July 30.—(CP) — Hitler spoke of Canada in two passages of his speech to the Reichstag yesterday, offering Britain a "last chance" for peace.

Here are the passages:—

1.—"From Britain I now hear only a single cry, the cry not of the people but of the politicians, that the war must go on. I do not know whether these politicians already have a correct idea of what the continuation of this struggle will be like. They do, it is true, declare they will carry on the war, and that even if Great Britain should perish, they would carry on from Canada. I can hardly believe that they mean by this that the people of Britain are to go to Canada. Presumably only those gentlemen interested in the continuation of their war will go there. The people, I am afraid, will have to remain in Britain and the people in London will certainly regard the war with other eyes than their so-called leaders in Canada. . . ."

2.—"Only a few days ago Mr. Churchill reiterated his declaration that he wants war. Some six weeks ago, he began to wage war in a field where he apparently considers himself particularly strong, namely, air raids on the civil population, although under the pretense the raids are directed against so-called military objectives. . . .Until now I have hardly had any reprisals. That does not mean this will be or is my only reply.

I know full well that our answer which will come one day will bring upon the people unending suffering and misery. Of course, not upon Mr. Churchill, for he no doubt will already be in Canada where the money and the children of those principally interested in the war have already been sent. . . ."

BICKELL ARRIVES SAFELY

New York, July 20.—(CP)—Pan-American Airways was notified by cable today of the safe arrival in London of J. P. Bickell, Toronto mining executive and financier, who will assist the British Airplane Supply Board.

Bickell was held up for a day at Lisbon en route by an unexplained delay in the flying schedule of the British Overseas Airway plane, to which he transferred at Lisbon from the Pan-American clipper.

MANY EVACUEES GOING TO STATES FOR THE DURATION

Travel-Worn but Happy 500 Children from British Isles Arrive at Montreal

BROUGHT SOUVENIRS

Montreal, July 20 (CP).—Travel-worn but happy, throngs of evacuees from warring Britain crowded into Montreal today in the footsteps of others who have found a haven in Canada.

More than 500 persons of varied nationalities were estimated to have poured from two long trains which brought them from their eastern Canadian point of debarkation yesterday after a voyage across the Atlantic. And almost as many persons jammed downtown Bonaventure station to see the arrivals.

For many arrivals a welcoming face appeared on the crowded station platforms. For others, Montreal was just a stopping place on their journey west and south. But none was without a friendly helping hand. Red Cross nurses and refugee workers hustled to assist the weary travellers.

Police officials said if the bodies had been thrown they now would be deep in the ooze. Township officials said leaving the muddy pond floor bare would be a health menace.

Thirty-Five Stitches Needed To Close Wounds

Toronto, July 20 (CP).—An unknown assailant, wielding a sharp knife or razor, slashed the face and neck of Ernest Aggett in the grounds of the isolation hospital here last night. Thirty-five stitches were required to close the wounds when Aggett was admitted to St. Michael's Hospital.

Aggett, weak from loss of blood, staggered to the office of Dr. R. A. Belfry, police said. Dr. Belfry had him rushed to St. Michael's Hospital and police were summoned.

According to police, Aggett, sleeping on a bench to escape the heat, awoke to find someone going through his pockets.

Aggett leaped up and struck the pickpocket in the eye. The pickpocket whipped out a knife or razor and in the ensuing scuffle, police said, Aggett was slashed.

French Newspapers Not Meeting With Approval of Nazis

By The Canadian Press

Reduced in numbers and considerably muted in tone as the result of German occupation, the newspapers of France apparently do not meet with full approval of Nazi authorities.

Adolf Hitler's own Volkischer Beobachter, under the heading "Strange News From France," took occasion to criticize Le Temps yesterday for blaming France's distress on the German occupation.

Le Temps is being published temporarily in Vichy, provisional seat of Chief of State Philippe Petain's new authoritarian government. Two of the four papers now appearing in Paris, Les Derniers Nouvelles and La France Au Travail, a new publication, may have made themselves subject to similar criticism by attacking Petain's government and the men who compose it.

The two other papers in Paris, of the nearly two-score which once were published there, are Le Soir and Le Matin, both Rightist and Nationalistic. They were permitted to resume publication soon after Nazi occupation of the capital. Le Temps is expected to return to Paris if the Petain government goes to Versailles.

In unoccupied France, the most prominent paper now is Le Petit Dauphinois of Grenoble. Formerly non-partisan, it now appears to be the mouthpiece of the Petain government. It publishes all official communiques from Vichy and has figured so prominently in the news chiefly because it is the only French paper available in Switzerland.

Other papers being published in unoccupied France according to information received in New York, are Le Progres De Lyon, La Depeche De Toulouse and Le Petit Marseillais. Lillegois is printed in Lille, in the German-held area.

U. S. FREIGHTER REFLOATED

Punta Arenas, Chile, July 20 — (AP)—The 5,56[illegible]-ton United States freighter Felix Taussig, which went aground July 6 on Marca Bank in the Straits of Magellan, was refloated today 13 hours after 2,000 tons of her 5,000-ton wheat cargo had been unloaded.

'HOARSE RAGE' OF HITLER FORTIFIES BRITISH RESOLVE

Britain Encouraged to 'Blot Hitler Out of Europe' Says Daily Telegraph

SPEECH IN VAIN

London Express Uses Words of Roosevelt 'We Are Making One of Greatest Choices in History'

London, July 20—(CP)—British newspapers today published the text of Hitler's speech, which they called an effort to drive a wedge between the Churchill government and the people. The papers were unanimous in spurning Hitler's "peace ultimatum."

The Daily Mail said that Mr. Churchill "received a special translation with expert comment on the speech soon after it was delivered, and obviously he will study it carefully."

The Daily Telegraph said:

"His hoarse rage, now that he finds we are an insuperable obstacle to the realization of his dreams of world Dominion, merely encourages and fortifies us in our inflexible resolve to blot him out of Europe."

Hitler Speaks in Vain

The Herald, which said Mr. Churchill probably would give a reply next Tuesday in the House of Commons, commented that Hitler's speech was "a false lullaby of appeasement", against which President Roosevelt had warned twelve hours previously.

"If we walked into the trap, if we were lured into a policy of appeasement," the Herald said, "we know that any peace we might negotiate would be no peace, but only a chance for him to perfect new treacheries and new felonies."

'Offer Perfunctory.'

"Hitler in effect admits that his offer of peace is purely perfunctory by attaching to it no indication whatever of terms on which peace is possible. Presumably any terms that he would now propose would be based on acquiescence and cooperation in the so-called 'new order' for Europe. As Mr. Roosevelt said, this new order is a mere relapse into tyranny.

"We can do no other than fight to the last extremity against it."

Express Uses Roosevelt's Words

The Daily Express said the British people "will find their answer to Hitler in the magnificent words of President Roosevelt" and quoted a passage from Mr. Roosevelt's speech to the Chicago Democratic convention beginning "We are facing one of the greatest choices in history."

The Daily Sketch called Hitler's speech "as cunning and false as ever" and intended to "affect American opinion and to put Britain into a moral isolation."

SCREEN STAR COMFORTABLE

New York, July 20 (AP)—Annabella, screen star and wife of Tyrone Power, today was reported "resting comfortably and improving satisfactorily" following a major operation in Mt. Senia Hospital.

Hitler Speech is 'Masterpiece Of Hypocrisy and Distortion'

New York, July 20—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune said editorially today that Hitler's "final" peace offer "is a masterpiece of hypocrisy and distortion."

It added:

"As an offer of peace it can be compared only to the highwayman's 'your money or your life' with the additional warning that if the intended victim fails to surrender h's blood will be on his own head.

"To the outside world the speech will appear merely as another of those torrential outpourings of Hitler in the role of the champion of righteousness cruelly hounded and oppressed by the wicked of all nations. From beginning to end Germany is depicted as the innocent victim of the foulest schemes of the other nations, schemes which fortunately for the Reich, have always been thwarted just in time by he foresight and foreknowledge of he German machine in beating the Allies to the gun. Hitler even goes so far as to protest that he was turned aside from his pursuit of peace by shameless machinations of the German machine in beating war and never wanted to fight.

"As for his final warning to Great Britain—the warning that has been hailed as an offer of peace—it consists merely of a repetition of his distress at the sufferings of the people as a result of war, and of a statement that he sees no reason why the war should be continued. He states frankly that he would like to see it ended for Germany's sake as well as for the sake of the inevitable victims of Germany's armed forces. To this he adds the warning that if the war continues it will result in the annihiliation of the British Empire — which he says he has never wished—and in disaster and horrible suffering for all the people of England. Although no specific offer of peace is made, the way is opened for negotiations.

"How Great Britain could accept any terms which Germany might be willing to grant is hard to understand. Not only is the war now a struggle to the death—a struggle in which Hitlerism must be destroyed if Britain is to live—but Hitler's own record in the matter of past promises has rendered completely valueless any offers which he might make.

CAPTAIN JOKSTAD REMOVES DOUBT

Declares Floating Wreckage Found Belongs to Boat Owned by Richard Halliburton

San Francisco, July 20 (AP) —A strange coincidence of the sea, which served further to settle any lurking doubt as to the fate of Richard Halliburton, was disclosed yesterday with the arrival here of Captain Charles Jokstad of the liner President Pierce.

Captain Jokstad, enroute from the Orient, radioed from the mid-Pacific July 5 he had sighted a floating mass of wreckage, including a rudder.

The driftwood presumably was the remnant of the Chinese junk in which Halliburton, Tennessee-born author and adventurer, left China last year in an attempted trip to San Francisco.

Jokstad disclosed that by a coincidence, he had examined Halliburton's junk before its sailing, and was thus able to recognize the floating rudder as being identical in appearance with the one of the missing junk.

Halliburton and his crew of 15, including four Americans, were last heard from March 24, 1939, when they radioed they were battling a storm. Halliburton was declared dead officially several months ago.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Destructive winds! Of all the destructive forces of nature wind is in the same class as earthquakes and volcanoes. One single storm in England in 1703 and lasting seven days caused over ten million dollars of damage, but that was when most of the structures were of wood. In North America the worst winds are in connection with tornadoes which are most frequent in the middle west states and infrequent in Canada. In 1896 one tornado in five minutes caused 15 million dollars of damage, killed 85 people, and injured 1,300. All this in a narrow strip only 5 miles long. Later in 1905 another did 30 million dollars of damage, killed 196 people and injured 2,000.

Police Blotter

Wallace Muir, 302 Foster Ave., reported the theft of his bicycle to police authorities last night. The bike had been parked at the upper end of the main street while young Muir attended a nearby movie house. The bicycle was described as a red colored Glider type of machine.

Fender, tire and grill damage resulted to a motor car and truck at the intersection of Pinnacle and Bridge Sts. shortly after 10.30 p.m. last evening, when a truck driven north on Pinnacle St. was in collision with a west-bound automobile at the intersection. The latter vehicle was driven by George Gates, 283 Charles St., while the truck was in charge of Mrs T. Terry, 78 Gordon St. The matter of damages was amicably settled by the parties concerned upon the arrival of P. C. Evans for investigation.

Three brothers from Point Anne complained to police that a ten-dollar bill had been removed from the table at which they were sitting in a local beverage room last evening. Following investigation by Sergeant Arthur Booth a ten dollar Canadian note was forthcoming from the pocket of a man who gave his address as Montreal. The money was retained by the police pending further investigations, as the Montreal man was sitting at the next table and was accused by the losers of taking the note. No charges were preferred in the matter.

Again yesterday no arrests were reported in Belleville, with the exception of two speedsters who were apprehended "stepping on the gas" with too strong a foot.

400 CHILDREN FROM BRITAIN REACH CANADA

First U. S. Corporate Visa Issued to Allow 125 Entry Across Canadian Border

DOLLS, TOYS CARRIED

An Eastern Canadian Port, July 20.—(CP)—About 400 British children who made up nearly half of the contingent of guests to Canada arriving here yesterday, scattered today to the homes of friends and relatives in many parts of the country where they will start the job of readjustment to a new environment.

Most of the children were in groups cared for during the passage by the ship's personnel or by specially delegated wardens. Many of them remained aboard the ship for hours after it docked, but practically all of them were speeding to their destinations by special train today.

Also on the ship, which brought a total of about 850 persons to Canada, was Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, returning to Canada after nine months in Europe to take over the post of vice-chief of the general military staff. Other prominent arrivals included actress Elizabeth Bergner, Viscount Strathallan, son of the Earl of Perth, and Lady Barbara Bevan.

Children Attract Attention

But as usual, it was the children who attracted all the attention. Among them were 125 members of the families of the staff of Oxford University, en route to homes at Yale and Swathmore universities in the United States. The first United States corporate visa was issued to allow them entry across the Canadian border.

Also in the group were 65 Jewish children going to an unannounced destination, and about 125 heading for new homes in Montreal.

The children's baggage preceded them off the ship. Hardly had the vessel docked before slings were swinging down to the wharf filled with a variety of baby carriages, high chairs, bags and valises. The children themselves came ashore clutching dolls, toys and dogs, alive and otherwise.

British Soldiers Look After Children

Then Royal Air Force instructors aboard the ship said that they could not reveal their Canadian destinations. A group of eight electrical engineers was bound for New York to take over a ship there. All were from ships that had been torpedoed off the west coast of Ireland June 6.

An unexpected reminder of home greeted the new arrivals in the form of British soldiers who aided in looking after children and their baggage. Many a husky sergeant was seen wandering through the shipping shed, cradling babies in khaki-clad arms.

As one soldier remarked "I'm not a married man but I'm sure getting plenty of practice today".

TWO BUSINESS PLACES ENTERED DURING NIGHT

ONE FIRM LOSES $80

Scaling an eight foot wire fence robbers entered two factories on Station Street last night and stole upwards of $100.00. In the premises of Pepsi-Cola Company the sum of $80.00 was stolen from the company cash box in the manager's office, while next door in the Belleville Foundries the robbers broke open the cash box of a soft drink dispensary and looted the entire contents of some dollars.

The robbery was discovered by employees of the Belleville Foundries, when they appeared for work today. P.C. W. T. Evans responded to the call shortly after 7.00 a.m. An eight foot wire fence surrounds the Foundries property and the robbers scaled the fence to gain admission to the premises, which also permitted them access to the Pepsi-Cola Company plant situated next door.

Entrance was gained into the Foundries by means of a side window, while the robbers also went into the bottling company in the same manner. No cash was taken from the office of the Foundries, although the company office was ransacked, but all cash had been secured in the company's safe. No attempt to loot the safe was made, which prompts police to believe that the robbery was the work of amateurs, Chief Kidd intimated today. A small steel cash box contained the cash in the bottling company office and was left in a desk drawer, which was accessible.

Today Detective Fred Izard procured the bottling company cash box and searched it for fingerprints. The box will be sent to Toronto for further analysis, police added.

A Few Dozen Ears Quickly Disposed of at 40 Cents a Dozen

New raspberries were fairly plentiful selling at 25 cents the box. Strawberries brought 25 cents for two boxes while cherries were quoted at 10 cents the box and 30 cents the 6-quart basket. Gooseberries demanded 10 cents and Huckleberries 15 and 20 cents. Red currants were sold for 10 cents and a few wild blackberries at 25 cents.

New cabbage and cauliflower headed the vegetable display, selling at from 5 to 30 cents the head. New potatoes were plentiful and choice quality stocks sold at 40 cents the peck. A few of last year's crop brought $1.50 the bag. New peas demanded 25 cents th quart and string beans 25 cents the box.

Butter prices were steady at 30 cents brisk demand at $1.30 the pair, with other qualities priced as low as 70 cents. Yearling birds brought $1.00 each and fowl from 65 to 75 cents.

Shortage of lake trout sent prices skyrocketing, choice fish being quoted at 25 and 27 cents the pound. Whitefish, however, was plentiful at 20 cents.

Young pigs were offered at prices between $4.50 and $5.00 each, but few transactions were noted.

Battalion Parades Under Lieut.-Col. A. B. Gribble With Many Interested Citizens on Hand

RECRUITS INTERESTED

All walks of Canadian life rubbed shoulders in the first outdoor parade of the Argyll Light Infantry (N.P.A.M.) under Lieut. Col. A. B. Gribble last evening. Professional men, businessmen, tradesmen and laborers rubbed shoulders as they paraded and drilled on the armouries lawn and at the Collegiate campus as hundreds of interested citizens lined the streets to watch Belleville's sons in their answer to their country's call for home military service.

The Argyll Light Infantry, now upwards of 450 strong in all ranks, held its initial outside parade. Recruits were permitted to shed their suit coats inside of the armouries and drill in their shirt sleeves, as the evening was warm and sweltering. The unit was divided into three companies, two training at the Collegiate campus and one at the armouries. Only light drill was held last evening as the volunteers marched, formed threes and paraded in the elementary activities of military training.

Organization Not Complete

The organization of companies, while not yet completed, is advancing rapidly, one can readily observe by watching the units on parade. Recruiting of the Argyll Light Infantry is progressing with satisfaction, but owing to medical examinations and other military formalities, enlistments are being rushed as fast as possible. However, the raw recruits now enlisted are taking their voluntary military service very much to heart and respond to the sharp commands of their company commanders like veteran soldiers, proving the keen and ardent interest being taken by Canadian manhood in the Empire's hour of need.

During the training last night "A" company was in charge of Captain B. C. Sisler; "B" company, Captain R. Keele and "C" company, Captain W. C. Jack.

Citizens of Belleville also showed an interest in the efforts of Belleville's volunteer military effort, when hundreds of persons lined the armouries lawn and the collegiate campus to observe with concern the splendid efforts of the men of this city, who coming from all phases of the community's life, are eager to serve their country in its need.

PICKEREL BITING IN MOIRA RIVER

Arthur Newman and Toronto Friend Secure Eleven Beauties

The pickerel are biting in the upper stretches of Moira Lake. Evidence of this was seen yesterday when Arthur Newman, local fisherman, exhibited eleven of the beauties, which averaged between 2 1-2 and three pounds in weight. The catch was made by Newman and a Toronto friend.

"We went out shortly after four o'clock in the morning," the proud fisherman stated, "and by 6 o'clock we had the catch. However, the moment the sun came up the fish quit biting."

"There is not much use in telling this part of the sory, for it is a repetition of the usual fish story," Arthur grinned. "We had one that looked as if it might weigh ten or eleven pounds and had hauled him alongside the boat, when the line snapped near the plug, and he got away."

'Bughouse Boys' Adept at Softball

The "bughouse boys" from the Dominion Entomological Bureau on Dundas Street proved themselves as apt at playing softball as combatting parasites, when they defeated the 'Orphans' of the Neighbourhood League 15 to 10 in an exhibition game played at Coleman Flats last evening.

The pastime developed into somewhat of a family diamond fued as Frank Follwell hurled for the Orphans, while brother Jimmie Follwell of O.A.C. football fame, tossed them up for the winners.

Bucher, Wilkes and Cameron wielded potent bats for the "bughouse boys", while Grant and Fox proved most valuable for the Orphans. Scoring six in the seventh frame and adding four more in the next inning the "parasite fighters" rallied to come from behind and win.

The line-ups— Entomological Bureau—Follwell, p; Laughlin, c; Baldwin 1b; Cameron 2b; Wilkes ss; Bucher 3b; Atyeo cf; Burnett lf and Hammett rf. "Orphans"— Tebworth, c; F. Follwell, p; Henn 3b; Fox 2b; Stewart, ss; Fitzgibbon 1b; Grant rf; E. Follwell cf; Jackson lf and McGuire, c. The game was capably handled by Umpires Findall and Moore.

The War This Week

(Canadian Press Cable Editor)

The Nazi leader of Germany brought the 46th week of the war to a close with a "last appeal to reason"—an appeal to Britain not to engage in a struggle that Hitler said could only end in the "complete annihilation" of one or the other of the two adversaries.

It came five days after Prime Minister Churchill had said: "We shall seek no terms; we shall tolerate no parleys; we may show mercy; we shall ask none". Britain's leader said that London, which might well devour a whole hostile army, would be defended to the last, and that Britain eventually would take the offensive.

The two speeches, the one replete with Nazi bombast, the other a calm statement of the British Empire's determination, came in the war's quietest week since the invasion of Denmark and Norway in April. Nazi air activity, which in the previous week had been increasing day by day, fell off sharply, due perhaps to unfavorable weather, perhaps to Nazi pre-occupation with plans for the big attack on Britain.

While dispatches from German-dominated France pictured a terrifying array of men and ships along the coasts facing Britain waiting for the signal of attack, the Royal Air Force hit strongly at bases believed to be harboring the Nazi preparations and pursued its destructive bombings of the Industrial areas of Western Germany.

Haifa Is Raided.

In the Mediterranean, while Italy was still attempting to picture a naval skirmish of the previous week as a great victory, the Australian cruiser Sydney sent a modern Italian cruiser to the bottom, adding to the three destroyers and fourteen submarines Italy has lost since she entered the war. The Italian Air Force raided Haifa, in Palestine, and Gibraltar, causing a few casualties in each.

In the non-belligerent world there were several developments capable of influencing the course of hostilities. President Roosevelt, the friend of the British Empire, was renominated for the United States Presidency and in an acceptance speech declared his government would never compromise "with those who seek to destroy all democracies everywhere."

In Japan a government of political adventurers with totalitarian and expansionist tendencies was formed under Prince Konoye. The cabinet turnover came as Britain agreed to close for three months the road from Burma into China over which the Chinese government has been obtaining supplies to carry on the war.

Cripps Well-Liked.

At Moscow, Sir Stafford Cripps, the British Ambassador, who is well liked by the Soviet leaders, had a long interview with Joseph Stalin. It is rarely that Stalin makes himself accessible to the representatives of foreign powers and the interview was regarded as important. In Spain renewed demands for Gibraltar were voiced in deliberation attending the fourth anniversary of Gen. Franco's military rebellion.

Glancing back 25 years: Austro-German armies advancing through Poland flung back the Russian centre to threaten Warsaw in the week of July 14-20, 1915. On the western front, in the Argonne and Vosges, French troops repulsed German attacks.

EXPERTS REVIEW SWIFT COLLAPSE OF FRENCH ARMY

Failure to Destroy Meuse Bridge and Decision to Leave Paris Held Solvent Factors

SERIOUS BLOW

London—(CP-Reuters)—The defeat of the French army, the "finest in Europe," and the subsequent moves of the French government envisaging capitulation, are attributed in objective French circles to two causes—military views held by the French general staff and deep-rooted political divisions.

On the military side the general staff had minimized the importance of tanks and aircraft and have regarded them as auxiliary arms. They held that, as in Napoleonic times, the war would be won by infantry masses and acting on the lessons of the last war they calculated on a war of position and of fortifications.

General de Gaulle, chairman of the French National Committee here and chief of the military cabinet in the former Reynaud government, who foresaw the German tactics, earned opposition by his theories which ran contrary to other opinions. The general had inspired M. Reynaud's book on mechanical warfare recommending mass production of tanks and planes.

During the fighting in the forest of Warndt at the start of the war the French tanks proved their superiority. The Germans learned their lesson well, however, and speeded up the equipment of their armored divisions. They entered the battle with masses of tanks and over one front of 60 miles nearly 4,000 tanks were used.

Meuse Bridge Error

In the calmer period before the invasion of Belgium May 10 insufficient attention was paid to instructing the troops in the lessons of warfare taught in Poland. Consequently, when through the fatal error of not blowing up the Meuse Bridge, the German tanks accompanied by swarms of planes roared down on the North Army, the troops were forced to retreat. This created the gap which never afterwards was closed.

In the armies and divisions the morale was good but the losses in men and material in the initial operations and at Dunkerque were catastrophic. Subsequent heroism, brilliant tactics and unceasing fighting never made up for this initial defeat. The Germans pushed their advantage home, pressing the tired troops relentlessly with fresh divisions. The French troops finally were separated into four armies fighting without a continuous front. They were scattered in Brittany, in the Loire, in Champagne, on the Maginot Line and in the Alps.

It is unlikely that the Germans could have kept up such massive attacks with mechanized columns and planes, which needed such large quantities of petrol, if the Allies had not suffered so heavily at Dunkerque. If it had been possible for the French to hold the Germans on the Seine and the Somme it is possible that a defeat would have been turned into a victory.

Blow to Morale

The really serious blow to public confidence was struck when the government decided to leave Paris and subsequently not to defend the capital. When the government reached Tours, reports of imminent capitulation became current.

At Tours, Marshal Petain and General Weygand were said to have argued on these lines: "Let us as soldiers approach the generals on the other side and we shall secure an armistice which will save France's honor and avoid useless slaughter."

In vain, M. Reynaud, M. Mandel and other argued that they were dealing with Hitler and not with soldiers. Still divided the cabinet decided on the night of June 13 to leave for Bordeaux. Arrangements there were primitive and the lack of organization contributed to the sense of defeat and hopelessness which was growing.

Ottawa, July 20—(CP)—The War Committee of the Cabinet—least known of any new government organization—is Canada's war brain, formulating the vital, general policy to guide the nation through the conflict.

This group of 10 ministers, including the new members, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, War Services Minister, and Hon. Angus L. Macdonald, Navy Minister, confer frequently. Many times only a few persons "on the inside" know about the meetings.

The committee makes its recommendations to the whole cabinet of 18 members before decisions are acted upon.

Under the Peace Tower

Senator Raoul Dandurand says early August will see prorogation of Parliament...but summer heat is settling down on the capital...it may be that business will wind up in short order...

The national registration questionaire was delayed for a while when the Prime Minister suggested another question for women....it is No. 17 dealing with women's ability to do farm work and also "plain cooking."

Prolific questioner of the government is J. Sasseville Roy (Con. Gaspe)...almost daily several queries appear on the Commons' votes and proceedings in his name ...covering dozens of problems...

Criptic Comment on the Budget

Conservative leader Hanson's remark, "This is the end of the good five-cent cigar..." He smokes stogies himself, brand unknown...

Look-alikes: Dr. R. E. Wodehouse, Deputy Minister of Pensions and National health, and Washington's Postmaster General Jim Farley .... Dr. Wodehouse takes a lot of kidding about the amazing resemblance...

The capital closely watches new men in high positions ... Angus MacDonald is in this spotlight now ..he made his first appearance in a parliamentary gathering at a reception given by Speaker Parent of the Senate...he might be Navy Minister and a comparative stranger to Ottawa but he was "Angus" to a lot of guests...you get a particularly broad smile of greeting if you have a Scottish name when introduced....

Walter Kuhl (Nd Edson-Jasper) interjects as stock aside when some members tell him to "keep cool" in a heated debate..."I've been Kuhl for 40 years" shoots back the Alberta school teacher...

Mr. Hanson was host to the press gallery at dinner...in a parliamentary dining room where the only pictures hung are those of Liberal greats...Laurier, Mackenzie King, Dunning, Frank Oliver...Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen couldn't refrain during the dinner from eloquently and poetically commenting on the situation...

Capital Chaff

The Earl of Athlone's speech at the Canadian club luncheon here was probably the shortest in the history of the club ... practically every important personage in Canada over the years has spoken to his club....but the Governor-General set a real precedent...

Most beautiful foyer in Canada, in this column's opinion, is that in tht new Supreme Court of Canada building...

It is just being completed and you wander through the unimpressive entrance strewn with timbering to be struck by the marble magnificence of the interior ... two huge doric columns grace the ends of the vaulted lobby about 50 yards long...it is all done in soft-colored marble of pink and light-brown shades...but the court won't take over the marble palace....war departments are moving in....

Rush of business in the capital has even affected the government telephone exchange .... everyone waits much longer now for connections...hundreds of new telephones and tremendous increase in calls have been almost too much to cope with...

Trans-Canada Air Lines will replace their fleet of Lockheeds next year ... stratosphere planes might be used on some flights rocketting from Montreal to Vancouver in about 11 hours...it's 17 hours now.

The weather was fine and a large crowd assembled to partake of a bountiful supper provided by the ladies. Bingo and other games were well patronized and later in the evening dancing was enjoyed in the Agricultural Building. Music was furnished by Fred Izard and son, Joseph Gauthier and Harold Auger. Mrs. A. Bartlett was the holder of the lucky ticket on the raffle of a pattern quilt. The affair was very successful from the financial standpoint and the committee was very pleased with the result of their efforts.

Mrs. George Mantle Jr. has returned home after an extended visit with relatives in Ottawa.

Miss Gertrude Burns of Toronto is spending a vacation at her home here.

Miss Marie Judd of Toronto is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Burns for a few days.

NEW ARGUMENT ON WAR SLANG

English Writer Not So Sure of Mencken's Version of Things

London—(CP)—H. L. Mencken, American writer, thought he had something when he interpreted the "first crop of English war slang" for his countrymen. But Lionel Hale in The News Chronicle here contradicts Mr. Mencken's translation of new colloquialisms.

To begin with, "Flap" meaning a scare, originated with the airmen," according to Mencken. But Hale says the word originated in the Navy at the beginning of the century, and has been in common use for years.

Mencken's "Blitzflu" meaning a sudden attack of 'flu," in dismissed by Hale, who said he "never heard it." "And I doubt if you have either," he challenges his readers. Mencken was too hasty in including "vackie" for evacuee. The word was used in the early days of the war, but was not popular.

Mencken explains "to brown off" is "to be fed up." He's partly right, but Hale says the phrase is "to be browned off." It is an army term which derives from the hot suns of India.

There are some good slang terms Mencken has missed entirely, says the English writer. Two of them are, "to get cracking," and "to lay it on." But he neglected to explain what they mean.

FLYING BOAT TO BE USED IN NON-STOP ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE

The new Vought-Sikorsky flying boat which will be placed in non-stop, trans-Atlantic service next year by the American Export Airlines. Three of the planes are now under construction, and are the commercial version of the U. S. navy's latest flying dreadnought and can readily be converted into bombers.

WOUNDED GIVEN BETTER CHANCE

Many Important Changes in Surgery and Medicine Since First Great War

London—(CP)—Advances in medical science since the First Great War have assured the wounded of a far better chance of recovery. A quarter of a century has seen new discoveries helping doctors and nurses in their struggle against suffering and death.

In the last war much more suffering was due to illnesses following exposure of wounded men rather than to wounds themselves. Pneumonia took heavy toll of patients whose wounds alone would not have proved fatal. Two years ago research workers evolved a synthetic chemical, popularly known as M and B 693, which proved a powerful weapon against pneumonia.

The technique of blood transfusion has been revolutionized. Supplies of blood are available at dressing stations and casualty hospitals at and near the fighting zones.

Infection in fractured limbs during the First Great War meant weeks of hospital treatment. During the Spanish civil war a Barcelona doctor, Dr. Trueta, evolved a new treatment. He closed the whole wound and limb in a plaster cast; leaving the body itself to heal the wound, instead of using antiseptics. In this way recovery from serious wounds was more complete and faster.

By 1918 the worst of the war diseases caused by dirt of trenches, such as typhus, had been conquered. Greater attention to the soldier's food means better general health which proves its value in making for quicker recovery from wounds.

CANADIAN MONEY OUT FOR BOSTON

King's Dollar Brings 80 Cents in Atlantic Port and Few at That Boston —(CP)—Wartime restrictions on Canadian currency have created an almost unprecedented scarcity of such money around Greater Boston.

A survey shows that a person in Boston, wishing to exchange American dollars for Canadian dollars, to send to a friend in Canada for instance, finds it difficult to have his requirements filled in the usual manner.

Local bank officials pointed out that such a person may secure a Canadian draft for his American money at any bank here and send it to Canada where the recipient may cash it at a Canadian bank without any difficulty. However, in the case of a business firm such as in the habit of importing goods from Canada, payment for such goods must be made in United States currency.

The reason for this, it was explained, is the necessity of building up Canada's foreign exchange to facilitate war purchases in this country.

Subject to possible fluctuations almost hourly, the present discount rate of the Canadian dollar in 20 per cent for transactions of $25,000 or more, and from 19½ to 20½ per cent for lesser amounts. Thus, for ordinary purposes, the Canadian dollar is valued in American currency at around 80 cents.

The reason for the market scarcity of Canadian dollars in this country, officials at the Bank of Nova Scotia in Boston explained, is the fact that Canadian currency cannot be exported in the usual pre-war manner because of Governmental regulations imposed by the exchange control board of Canada.

Canadian residents may send out of their country a maximum of 100 Canadian dollars a month without a permit, although for travelling purposes a Canadian may secure up to $1,000 to take out of the Dominion.

U. K. CALM AS HITLER THREATENS IN 'PEACE' OFFER

Hitler has made what has been called his "peace" offer but he is nowhere definite what he would expect from Britain. He railed again Friday in German condemnation of the Treaty of Versailles and told the Reichstag that the German aim had been real friendship with Italy and also with Britain.

Britain has had evidences of what German friendship means and can see it in the states which she has taken under nazi protectorate—this friendship would mean the surrender of all that is liberty-loving and worthwhile.

As expected he placed the blame for the war on Britain and France and gave free rein to violent rhetoric in his threats of what might take place if the war were not stopped on his offer of peace.

Hitler struck out at Mr. Churchill, the Prime Minister, and Mr. Churchill must be proud that he has earned, by his tireless devotion to the service of the Empire to which he has been called as Premier, the spite and enmity of the German nazis. That is the honor that the wholehearted service of the Prime Minister has brought him in the mind of the enemy leader. Hitler knows that in Mr. Churchill there is the indomitable guiding spirit of an indomitable race which will not yield to international gangsterdom. Therefore he vents his hate at Churchill.

Actually, what his peace offer would be remains in the dark, for he said nothing of what he sought.

Hitler's appeal is, he said, "to reason in England," and having made the statement, he proceeded to wash his hands of the international tragedy of which the nazis have been the cause—the war in which so many have lost their lives and been wounded and in which millions upon millions have been driven from their homes as wanderers on the earth, all because of the lust of power and the delight in the exercise of brute force.

The speech was typically Hitlerian, there were assaults on "warmongers" as he called them in his "appeal to reason" in Britain but which was actually a threat of destruction. It left the British people unmoved by his picturization of war's terrors, for they are determined to carry on the defence of the principles of liberty.

Hitler's cup of joy is far from full. His speech did not reveal anything of the ultimate conqueror. He knows what to expect from the British people.

As it has been said by press dispatches, such peace as Hitler can offer would be a German peace which would hold on to all the lands he has overrun and would be a forerunner of further aggression. Hitler cannot see a world order such as true humanitarians seek, even though he claimed he was not asking peace in the voice of a victor demanding capitulation of the vanquished but rather as a victor proposing a reasonable peace. The peace he can envision is something absolutely irreconcilable to British views of freedom.

AUSTRALIAN NAVY'S ACHIEVEMENT

The navies of the Dominions have been doing markedly fine work during the war. Canadians know something of what the Canadian fleet has been achieving and now the Australian navy comes into the light with the sinking of the Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni in the Mediterranean Sea by the cruiser Sydney.

The Bartolomeo Colleoni was one of the fastest ships in the world and it was overcome by a slower ship.

The spirit of the people of the Homeland animates the people of the Dominions. They have the sea-faring spirit, the spirit of adventure, the spirit that takes in a world view. The Dominions' navies are well officered and manned and have been doing work of great value in blockade and in running down enemy craft.

"Our Sea" or "Mare Nostrum" as the ancients used to call the Mediterranean, presents the picture of an Italian navy which has boasted of "Our Sea" and yet spends most of its time in lurking in harbors and avoiding the British fleet. But all their caution has not prevented heavy damage to the Italian which has lost many submarines and three destroyers in addition to the cruiser sunk by the Sydney.

One fact mentioned in the Admiralty report shows the chivalrous spirit of a British destroyer which picked up 250 of the Colleoni's survivors. That fact is worthy of note in a day when Hitler talks of destruction of a world empire if Britain does not take his proffer of a German peace. British sailors from the Motherland and the Dominions as well as soldiers of the Empire preserve the spirit of chivalry.

The work of the Sydney in sending to the bottom the Italian ship is an important contribution to the successes of the British navy in the Mediterranean.

BRIGADIER PEARKES, V.C.

Brigadier G. R. Pearkes, V.C., has been promoted to command the First Canadian Division of the C.A.S.F. in succession to Lieut.-General McNaughton, who directs that corps in which the Canadians are brigaded, is known to many Canadians by reputation of personally. His appointment is looked upon as preeminently fitting.

His military record is one of the finest. He rose from private soldier to major-general and has served in all grades and knows the problems which the men have to face. He was a private in the Second C.M.R. during the First Great War and distinguirhed himself by his courage in action. He was five times wounded and won the Victoria Cross for "supreme contempt of danger and wonderful powers of control and leading."

This record is one which he will live out with the First Division and one which will be reflected in the units which he is now associated with.

Rehabilitating Workers

(Windsor Daily Star)

Many old-time fliers have been called back to service in this war. They are not doing the actual fighting, of course, but they can give valuable service in ferrying planes and in other useful pursuits.

They all, of course, need "refresher" courses, and from this, some authorities in Canada have progressed to the idea that the same sort of courses might be valuable for men being called back into industry due to war demands. Even an expert machinist gets "rusty" in his craft after a few years of idleness, and many have been out of work for long periods.

Thus, it is a valuable idea which Hon. Norman O. Hipel, Ontario Minister of Labor, has evolved, for giving to these men over 40 a refresher course in their trades. The move will be of benefit both to the men themselves and to industry which needs skilled workmen so badly just now.

HITLER WOULD DISPOSE

(Brandon Sun)

Regardless of what Petain and Laval propose, it is Hitler who will dispose, in France as in the other conquered countries, so long as his dictatorship is successfully propped by force. The latest evidence of his intention is found in Hitler's own paper, the Voelkischer Beobachter. In an article warning the Latin-American countries not to displease the fuehrer, his newspaper mouthpiece last week served notice that when the war is over they will have to deal with a Germany-controlled Europe organized for Nazi control of all European commercial activities. If Hitler has his way and imposes his will upon Europe, the French government like the others will take his orders — or give way to a regime obedient to him in all things. When Hitler's permanent peace terms assign to France the role of a vassal state under continuous supervision and control from Berlin, the French dupes will realize their mistake. Meanwhile millions of French folk within and without the surrendered homeland are not deceived and will not be stampeded.

Caution Urged

(Hamilton Spectator)

When the schools closed earlier in the season and thousands of children began their long summer vacation, Chief of Police Brown reminded motorists there was a greater need for caution on their part, and appealed to them to show consideration for the safety of the young people.

In the thrill of their play, hundreds of boys and girls are now running in the streets, many of them on paved thoroughfares, with no thought, perhaps, of the peril to which they are exposing themselves. This play-time is the birthright of every child and no one would want to mar or sadden it for any boy or girl. Motorists can therefore contribute much to the happiness of the young folk by being careful and not too insistent on their own rights in traffic. The driver who approaches a joyous group of youngsters, and gives them a break by slowing down, probably may lose a moment or two but he has the pleasant satisfaction of knowing that in so doing he is applying a little of that unselfish philosophy which makes life smoother for every one.

Parents were also given sound advice by Chief Brown when he urged them to impress upon their children the danger of playing in the streets. Any place but the road is the best and safest.

France: A British View

(New York Times)

Whatever bitterness may be felt in Britain toward Marshal Petain and his colleagues, there is no corresponding bitterness in British hearts toward France herself. Mr. Churchill has been the first to salute the gallantry of the French people, the depth of their sufferings, the certainty of their resurrection as a free nation. His words are echoed in a striking article in The Economist of London, which promises that "there will never be a word of recrimination from this side of the Channel against the people of France, who have fought and labored and died for the cause we share with them — who have given it much more than we have." The French people are held blameless, in this British appraisal, for a collapse and a separate peace which endangers Britain's very existence.

The people and the politicians (says The Economist) were not responsible for the faulty tactical ideas of the French army; it was not the things that Parliament or the people could give—money and man-power—that were at fault. When the crisis came, it was not pressure from Parliament or the electors that determined the attitude of the Government. M. Reynaud was not defeated in Parliament; he was dismissed by the President * * As for the people, the armistic terms had to be kept from them until it was too late for them to make any protest.

The fundamental fault in France, in The Economist's view, was "the personal characters of the ruling men." Such a judgment may be disputed, but there can be no dispute about the absence of rancor in Great Britain, or about the sanity of the British people as they face the most terrible peril in their history.

Astronomy

(St. Catharines Standard)

While Hitler waits for the full moon, the British taxpayer no less is getting something which requires considerable astronomical digestion. The war is costing, says Sir Kingsley Wood, $40,050,000 per day. If the English lad starting off to school these days has hopes and ambition some day to become Chancellor of the Exchequer, he needs a course in astronomical mathematics to quality.

Nine million pounds sterling per diem, all for material destruction as set against the rebirth of an ideal!

What will the grand total be when 1942 is ushered in and, as Churchill says, the war will take a new phase of offensive by Britain and the Dominions?

Those Britishers charged with financing the most stupendous thing in world history must surely know their way about. Another budget or falling of the axe is announced for next week, in the British House of Commons. One thing seems plain, that while the government is using one hand to spend enormous sums, it will use the other hand to take back a large part of the expenditure.

The Nazis are using the barter system. Take Sweden as an example. The Swedes are forced to send vital supplies to the Nazis, at the Nazi price, and take in return German goods of a luxury nature, which they don't need or want, and this again at the Nazi price. The squeeze is inexorable, and not a gram of gold is required for this sort of economy. It is all a matter of bookkeeping but under the distorted chartered accountancy of the Nazis.

And that, exactly, is the secret of the "new order of Europe" which the Nazis hope to permanently establish. It is the Yoke for millions, hewers of wood and drawers of water for the "master race," and the Italians hope to play second fiddle in the drama.

Of the 85,000,000 pounds of canned beef imported by the United States last year 38 per cent came from Brazil, 37 per cent from Argentina and 17 per cent from Uruguay.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Useful Lives Now Possible for Epileptics

A few years ago I had a feeling that if I could spend my life at research work, I would first try to find the cause and cure of epilepsy. To see friends or acquaintances in good health, mental and physical, fall in a convulsion anytime, anywhere, was a terrible sight. I felt that there was something about food or the stomach that caused a disturbance of the brain because I kept a patient free of epilepetic attacks for over a year by washing out his stomach twice a week.

It would seem that we are not much nearer knowing the cause of epilepsy today than we were years ago, although liquids and starch foods seem to be factors in bringing on an attack.

However, there is now the gratifying knowledge of how to prevent light attacks and lessen the number of the severe attacks. The treatment now used makes possible useful lives for most epilepsy victims.

Dr. William G. Lennox, Boston in the Journal of the American Medical Association, states that although the exact mechanism or cause of epilepsy is not known, and no specific or special cure has been found, the majority of persons with epilepsy can either be relieved of their symptoms or helped to live a useful life in spite of their symptoms.

It is agreed that in epilepsy there is either some condition present in the individual, or in his surroundings that brings on the attacks. Thus a quieting drug, or a change of occupation have brought results in many cases.

Although the cause is unknown, there are various drugs—phenobarbital, dilantin sodium, bromides—now used by physicians. These drugs are prescribed by the physician who watches their efforts for a considerable time so as to get a safe yet effective dose. Fortunately, these drugs as prescribed by the family physician are not expensive.

In addition to the drug used, physicians outline for their patients the other three rules of treatment, that is, (a) less starch foods, (b) more fat foods, and (c) less liquids. Often this diet is in itself sufficient to prevent attacks of epilepsy.

War And Intellectuals

(Hamilton Spectator)

Of all forms of war waste, the loss suffered by the cultural life of humanity is perhaps the most to be deplored. The best brains of belligerent countries are enlisted in the effort to make the war effort of their respective countries more destructive, when these exceptional individuals are not themselves directly exposed to the dangers of the fighting lines. It is certain that in the overrunning of Holland, Belgium and France many actual as well as potential men of genius have been killed; to say nothing of those who have lost their lives in the Nazi forces. Just how many British scholars, scientists, artists and members of other intellectual groups have been sacrificed and are doomed to be sacrificed in this war it is not possible to say, but the toll will undoubtedly be heavy.

In the review of the activities of the Rockefeller Foundation for 1939, the effect of the war on European institutions of learning is discussed by the president, Dr. Raymond B. Fosdick, who explains that when the war broke out at the beginning of September the Foundation had "100 running appropriations in Europe, distributed in 22 different countries, and involving a total sum in excess of four million dollars." A substantial part of this was for research in various scientific fields. Almost two million dollars was for work in Great Britain; about three-quarters of a million for Switzerland; $330,000 for France and equal or smaller sums for other countries. It has been possible to continue some of this research work in spite of hostilities, but, naturally, much of it is disturbed, if not actually suspended.

Reference is made to the "tragic examples" of the last Great War, when internationally famous thinkers, "a great host of fresh new leaders in every field of science," were slain in battle. Hundreds of professors and students of great promise laid down their lives for the cause, and, though some attempt has been made on the present occasion to "keep scientific workers at their tasks" and "salvage for the future those whose promise is already indicated," there is no way of preventing the loss of "the undiscovered scientists, the gifted minds, the intellectual and spiritual leaders upon whom each generation must build the hope and promise of the generation to come."

One thinks of Mr. H. G. Wells' prediction that mankind, which began in a cave, is doomed to end in "the disease-soaked ruins of a slum." Without subscribing to any such pessimistic forecast as this, it is impossible to deny the force of the Foundation's fear that if the "night in Europe" should be too long continued, the sacrific of cultural values will be so heavy that the chance of an "enlightened and gracious life" for succeeding generations in war-devastated Europe will be very seriously jeopardized.

About all that is left of France now, according to a National Geographic Society bulletin, is a little country of wine growers, shepherds and cheese makers. Surrounded, it might be added, by hate sowers, wolves in sheeps' clothing and maggots.—Windsor Daily Star.

Pen Not Mightier Than Sword To Essex Scottish Recruit

(Windsor Daily Star)

The pen may be mightier than the sword but Bill Colter, husky 6 foot 1 inch Cincinnati newspaper reporter doesn't think it's mightier than the gun, and that is why he is a recruit with the Essex Scottish reinforcements in Windsor.

If he wasn't so doggone hefty around the middle he would be in the Royal Canadian Air Force instead, where he really wants to be. But the 28-year-old American, who has 450 hours of flying was considerably on the stout side for the air force so is biding his time with the Scottish until he can knock off another 27 pounds and get a transfer. His reducing efforts no doubt will be successful, for he lost 11 pounds in his first two weeks in the army. He figures he can complete the job in two months.

Colter has a particular reason for wanting to join the R.C.A.F. There was a Colter gave his life for the Allies in the Great War. His name was Earl G. Colter and he died from injuries after crashing at Milan, Italy, while a pursuit pilot with the United States Air Corps. He was Bill's father, and Bill is mighty proud of his dad. The day before he died, Earl G. Colter received his papers which made him a captain in the air force.

Never taking out a commercial license, the young newspaperman who, at the age of 20 was the youngest newspaper publisher in the Middle West, was a sportsman flier.

He began his "war" flying in 1937 when he flew loads of bread to famine-threatened victims when the Ohio River flooded that year. Three times a day for four days while the flood was at its worst, Bill filled his Stinson Detroit cabin plane with 200 loaves of bread and flew in to Louisville, Kentucky, from Columbus, Indiana. Each time on the return trip he brought two passengers out.

Other fliers attempting to do the same thing had trouble landing on the air field, covered with a foot of mud, but Colter's machine, which he chartered at his own expense, had higher wheels and made the grade. Train service was practically cut off in the district and the populace was on very short food rations.

"I have never flown over a larger body of water than the Ohio flood—trans-Atlantic flying must be something like that," Colter remarked with a laugh.

Although young in years, he is old in newspaper experience, having started out doing part time reporting during summer vacations and after school hours when he was 14. Here again he was influenced by his father. Like him, young Colter was a police reporter chiefly. Like his father he began in the Columbus Indiana Daily Herald, graduated to the Indianapolis News and then went to Cincinnati.

Bill won his "youngest publisher championship" as proprietor of the Ottawa, Ohio, Pitnam County Gazette, in 1932. The circulation was 1,250 a week, and some of the subscribers paid for their papers. He bought the paper for $1,000 cash. On press day he set his own headings by hand.

"I went to three colleges, didn't graduate from any of them and didn't get kicked out of any," related Bill. "I just took all the journalism I could get at each and then went on to another." He can claim Franklin, Indiana College, Butler University, and University of Alabama as his alma mater.

Features and rewrites also took up some of Bill's time with the Cincinnati Times-Star.

On duty at the recruiting office at the Windsor Armories, William G. Colter, sits behind a typewriter filling out application forms for Canadian boys who don't seem quite as enthusiastic about this war as the American lads. He has a far away look in his eyes as he contemplates his ample girth.

"I'm going to get me up to training camp and work some of this off and be flying again," he says. "This is the second pair of trousers the Scottish have issued to me already and I have had to get three inches cut off the waist each time. It's going to cost me half my pay for tailor bills."

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Preliminary rounds of the Battle of Britain are now being fought in the air and on the sea. Paradoxically the more these preliminary rounds favor the British defenders the sooner the decisive phase of the battle — German invasion — may begin.

Successful British defence against air attack means increased power for future land operations. Successful British counter attacks by air on German industry means a lessening of German power for the head-on clash of all arms at some future time.

German striking power, after the collapse of France, was far superior to British striking power. Great Britain's safety for the time being was secured by her island position and possession of a powerful fleet.

Each day that passes now, providing the German bombers effect no calamitous damage to British industry, increases the strength of the British Isles. Owing to shortages of certain materials, each day that passes for the Germans makes no corresponding contribution to the fighting strength of the enemy.

The objective for which German war leaders planned has been largely attained. The objective of the British High Command is still far in the distance. The defence of Great Britain, while of immediate concern, is only the start. The final objective is to build up a force capable of striking at German power on the continent.

Only by such a force can the war be won. Thus when Prime Minister Churchill says in effect "We are only beginning to fight" he means British war preparations for the supreme effort of the future are only now hitting their full stride.

HITLER'S LIES

One of the most unusual experiences yet reported by Canadian soldiers was the hearing in mid-ocean by one group bound overseas of a German radio report that their ship had been torpedoed and sunk in the North Sea with all on board. That was only one occasion upon which the Berlin radio has made a bad guess.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

TOO MANY SHIPS

One cannot blame the British Admiralty for chuckling a bit over the revelation that Germany has already claimed to have sunk more capital ships that Britain ever possessed. But, is the Admiralty overlooking the sinking of that "ship" a few months ago, which the Germans gravely announced, and which turned out to be a naval shore training station in England? — Windsor Star.

UNEMPLOYMENT BILL TO BE STUDIED

Committee of 15 Will Hear Experts and Representatives of Groups

By CARL REINKE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 20—(CP)—A special 15-man committee of the House of Commons begins detailed study of the government's unemployment insurance bill on Monday.

The long-awaited measure received second reading with a minimum of debate yesterday before being referred to the special committee. Full co-operation in speeding the bill through its final stages was promised by opposition members.

When the committee gets under way it will first hear the technical experts who helped draw up the particular scheme proposed.

Mainly, the committee will hear representations of groups most vitally concerned in the bill, various employer and labor organizations.

In view of the fact these groups made extensive representations regarding the general principle of unemployment insurance before a Senate committee in 1935 when the first such bill was put through — only to be ruled unconstitutional by the Privy Council—it is likely that the chief concern before this present committee will be the details of the proposed scheme.

The makeup of the committee came in for sharp criticism yesterday from A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni), longtime advocate of unemployment insurance. He saw little prospect of the bill being much improved there from the workers' standpoint.

The only labor man on the committee would "have a hard time getting much for the benefit of labor" from the 10 lawyers there and from a parson who had said he had no faith in the scheme, said Mr. Neill.

A. W. Neill's View.

"I would almost say that it appears as if a dictum has gone out that this bill is not to be changed. If that is the case, why send it to committee? Why not take the vote now? We have lost so many of the privileges of private members this session we might lose a few more; it would save time at any rate," Mr. Neill said.

Labor Minister McLarty denied the suggestion. If the government was not interested in having the bill reviewed and suggestions made for changes, it would not be going to committee.

Incidentally, members of the senate will also attend the proceedings of this special committee of the commons, to save time when the bill gets into the senate.

Tribute To Public Men.

Hearty tribute to the members who fought for unemployment insurance years before it has as wide approval as today, was paid by John R. MacNicol (Con., Toronto-Davenport) who voiced his own happiness that the long battle was about ended.

He mentioned especially J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. National President at present prevented from occupying his seat in parliament by illness. He mentioned too, A. A. Heaps, former C.C.F. member for Winnipeg North, Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East), Mr. Neill, Humphrey Mitchell, former Labor member from Hamilton East, and the prime minister himself.

Says Many Groups Left Out.

While the bill left unprotected many large occupational groups, Mr. MacNicol felt confident that the British procedure of taking in other occupations as the scheme developed past the experimental stage, would be followed. While the British insurance scheme had gone in debt $500,000,000 to begin with, it had accumulated funds in the last two or three years so that it was paying off that debt at the rate of $100,000,000 a year.

St. Pierre Et Miquelon Not Blocked by Canada

Ottawa, July 20—(CP)—Contrary to reports of a British blockade on the French islands of St. Pierre et Miqtelon, the External Affairs Department said in a statement that only Friday, when Canadian co-operation was requested by St. Pierre authorities to enable them to overcome certain exchange problems, this assistance "was readily accorded."

The exchange problems, it was said, arose in connection with shipment of a codfish cargo to Martinique where the French High Commissioner at Fort de France last night was reported to have charged that British authorities have stopped supplies to the French colony at St. Pierre et Miquelon after local authorities there refused to surrender the colony's fishing fleet.

The Commissioner also was reported to have said the British Economic Mission was using heavy pressure to gain the fleet and also had demanded that the armed fishing patrol boat Ville D'ys be interned and its two cannons delivered to Canadian authorities.

"The High Commissioner has evidently been misinformed," the External Affairs Department statement said. "Statements attributed to him are completely untrue and the assertion that the British (which presumably means Canadian) authorities have stopped supplies from reaching the islands has no basis in fact. No prohibition or restriction has been placed on shipment of supplies to the islands."

The department said further that no demand for surrender of the colony's fishing fleet had been made and consequently no refusal has been received.

Report is Not True

"The assertion that the French colonists have now been reduced to the choice of eating fresh or salted codfish is equally absurd."

Soon after the defeat of France, it was said, various financial and economic difficulties with which the islanders were faced were brought to the attention of the Canadian government.

The Canadian government suggested it might be advantageous to have a Canadian and a Newfoundland representative meet with the administrator of St. Pierre to discuss these and related problems.

The reply of the administrator to this suggestion was:

"Your desire to study the present situation in cordial collaboration conforms with mine as already expressed. I shall receive the visit by the representatives of the friendly governments of Canada and Newfoundland with pleasure on Wednesday the 17th of July."

As a result of this exchange one representative of Canada and one representative of Newfoundland have this week been in consultation with M. Bournat, the Administrator of St. Pierre and Miquelon.

"It has been a most friendly and helpful discussion," said the Department. In the course of the talks at St. Pierre reference has naturally been made to the small patrol vessel the Ville D'ys which has been in the harbor at St. Pierre since the defeat of France. This, however, has formed a very small item in the general discussion, and it is apparent that there will be no difficulty in finding a mutually satisfactory solution.

"Neither the Canadian nor the Newfoundland government has the slightest intention or desire to interfere with the existing administration or status of the islands."

Bombing Gunnery School Is Largest School Under Air-Training Plan

One of Ten Bombing and Gunnery Schools Will be Located at Mountain View

SCHOOL DESCRIBED

The largest type of school under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan is the Bombing Gunnery School. Ten bombing and gunnery schools will provide machine guns and bombing instructions for all three categories of air crew members—pilots, air observers and air gunners.

One of these schools will be opened at Mountain View, Prince Edward County.

Pilots come to the bombing and gunnery school from the service flying training school to complete their education with two weeks of machine gunning and bombing.

Air observers, the actual bomb aimers of large aircraft, come to the school from the Air Observers Schools for six weeks of intensive bombing instruction and some machine gun practice.

The air gunners, of course, specialize in air gunnery in their four weeks at this school, which follows their twenty-four weeks at the wireless schools.

Operated Directly By R.C.A.F.

Bombing and gunnery schools are operated directly by the Royal Canadian Air Force, and have more planes, more buildings and more personnel than any of the other schools. Normal complement of aircraft is seventy, mostly the British single engine bomber-reconnaissance Fairey Battle with a crew of two, or the two-place North American Harvard, a low wing monoplane intermediate trainer.

The building area required is 45 acres, and the aerodrome must be capable of 3,000 foot landing strips in four directions. A bombing range on lake or river is also a necessity.

The aerodrome must be clear of boundary obstructions, and one hard surfaced runway 2,500 feet long and 150 feet wide will be provided on each landing strip.

Buildings have been standardized in design and materials to lower costs and speed construction. Buildings required are: six hangars 224 ft. by 160 ft., one guard house, one hospital of 34 beds, one supply depot, three motor transport garages, six airmen's barracks blocks, one airmen's mess, one airmen's canteen, one civilians' quarters, one civilians' mess, one civilians' canteen, one recreation building, two non-commissioned officers' quarters, one N.C.O.'s mess, one officers' quarters, one officers' mess, one 25yard machine gun range, one watch office, one ground instruction school, one headquarters building, one drill hall, five bombing ficers' mess, one 25-yard machine gun turret units, four indoor ranges for machine gun turrets, one 200-yard moving target range, one sports pavilion, sports field, storage for 20,000 gallons of gasoline and one compass swinging base.

Bombing Range Requirements.

Required at the bombing range are: one motor transport garage, one dock, one boat house, one observation tower, one quadrant shelter and a variety of raft and other targets.

The students, from Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom, will be from 18 to 28 years of age in the case of the pilots and from 18 to 32 in the case of air observers and air gunners.

The bombing and gunnery school will provide the final phase of instruction for all but the air observers, who next go to one of the two Air Navigation Schools for an advanced course of four weeks in air navigation. Pilots and air gunners go to the pool completely trained and ready for overseas service.

SHANNONVILLE LEADS S.H. LOOP

Hawks Beat Cannifton 7-4 While Foxboro Defaults to Latta Over Umpire's Decision

Shannonville retained their leadership at the top of the South Hastings League last evening when they won their second game of the week to turn back the Cannifton threat at the latter village by the score of 7-4, while over at Latta the hometown boys were conceded victory by the Foxboro nine when they objected rather strenuously against a questionable decision by the umpire.

Barberstock hurled for the Shannonville nine at Cannifton last evening and after being nicked for two runs in the initial canto settled away to hold losers to single runs in third and fifth to coast home to victory as his teammates went on to score three big runs in the third inning after scoring twice in the first to salt the game away. Dale Sharpe tossed them up for the losers but errors committed by his fielders put him in the hole.

Batteries—Shannonville, Barberstock and Houston; Cannifton, Sharpe and McCaffery.

Shannonville ..2 1 3 0 1 0—7 runs
Cannifton .....2 0 1 0 1 0—4 runs

The game over at Latta was terminated rather abruptly in the third innings after Umpire Hall ruled an out decision to Callaghan coming into third base with Walt, playing third for the losers, claiming that he tagged the runner "plenty" far off the bag only to have him called safe.

SIR ALAN BROOKE HEADS HOME FORCES

London, July 20—(CP)—General Sir Edmund Ironside has been promoted to Field Marshal and succeeded as Commander-in-Chief of the Home Forces by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Alan Brooke in a series of War Office promotions designed to place the army on the best footing to resist the threat of invasion.

General Viscount Gort, who commanded the British Expeditionary Force throughout the Battle of Flanders and the epic Dunkirk evacuations, was appointed Inspector-General to the forces in training.

Field Marshal Ironside remains on the active army list, available to act in an advisory capacity or to assume a new command.

The promotion of General Brooke, who served a part of the first Great War with the Canadian forces, reflects the view that it is essential the home forces should be under control of a General with immediate experience of command in France and Belgium. He commanded the second corps of the B.E.F. in fighting there.

He was general staff officer second grade, Royal Artillery, attached to the Canadian Corps, in 1917-18.

Toronto, July 19.—(CP)—M. H. MacBride of Brantford, has been appointed superintendent of the employment service of Canada for Ontario succeeding H. C. Hudson who left for Ottawa last week to assume special war duties An order-in-council covering Mr. MacBride's appointment was passed at yesterday's meeting of the Ontario Cabinet.

FERGUSON SAYS HE'S MISQUOTED

Former Premier of Ontario Says He Stated We Would Know Whether U. S. Would be in War by Christmas or Not

Toronto, July 20 (CP)—Hon G. Howard Ferguson, former Canadian High Commissioner to London, said Friday that "as Mr. Roosevelt (President Roosevelt) is such a forthright speaker, we will know by Christmas if the United States will come into the war or not; we know from the President's career that he will speak his mind clearly, and if he is once more elected to power we won't long be kept in suspense as to what course the United States will follow."

Mr. Ferguson said he was misquoted in a Canadian Press dispatch Thursday from Ottawa in which he was quoted as saying that if President Roosevelt is re-elected for a third term "the United States will be in the war before Christmas."

Mr. Ferguson said he believed it would be better for the Allies if the United States remained neutral. "They have done great work already by sending us supplies and munitions, and it is possible they might be able to wield more actual power in the councils of the world if they are a neutral nation."

Mr. Ferguson denied saying that all that was required to lead the United States into the war was "a little leadership in the right direction by some outstanding man like Roosevelt."

"I said that public opinion in the United States was coming more and more to realize the significance of the European situation to themselves, and how it was fraught with danger for them," he added. "I then said it would take only the leadership of some outstanding man like Roosevelt to crystalize that opinion."

(The Canadian Press report was based on the statement of Mr. Ferguson to reporters of two Ottawa daily newspapers).

Teachers' Council Urges Teachers To Help In Registration

The National Registration which the Dominion Government proposes to carry out in August will be conducted chiefly on a voluntary basis and the Government will require a very large number of helpers.

The Ontario Teachers' Council, through its constituent organizations, namely, the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario, the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation and the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, sent circulars before the close of the school term to the schools of the province and received in reply many hundreds of names of teachers who were anxious to do any kind of war work during the summer, on a voluntary basis.

Since it is impossible for the Executives of the teachers' organizations to reach individually their thousands of members during the summer vacation, they have asked the co-operation of the daily newspapers in this effort. All Ontario teachers who will be free to assist the Government during the week of August 19th to 23rd are urged to forward their names immediately to the Registrar either of the Dominion riding in which the teacher's school is situated, or of the riding in which the teacher expects to be during that week of August. If any teacher wishes to lend such assistance and is in doubt about the method of procedure, such teacher should communicate at once with the Ontario Teachers' Council, Room 406, 30 Bloor St. West, Toronto.

THE PROBLEM of getting sufficient customer traffic into a store is recognized by every merchant. With few exceptions, the life and success of a business is in direct proportion to the number of possible buyers that daily pass through the doors. Similarly, every established merchant realizes that the customer who enters his place of business is in search of certain quality at a certain price. The successful business man stocks the items in the quantities and qualities desired by his customers.

But after a merchant stocks the right merchandise and recognizes the need for customer traffic, what shall he do then?

He can follow the lead of successful merchants still further! He can advertise! He can tell 6,000 families living in Belleville and its environs about his business and his merchandise. He can make them special attractive offers to increase his store traffic.

Expert Designers Claim New York Can Replace Paris As Fashion Hub

New York—No essential element is lacking to make this country the successor to Paris as the source of fashion inspiration—now that the swastika waves over the French capital—unless it be the will to do so. That was the consensus of leaders in the style world who addressed several hundred members and guests of the Fashion Group at luncheon in the Hotel Biltmore.

The program brought before the assembly of manufacturers, retailers, stylists and buyers the most comprehensive discussion to date of America's future style status, a theme that has been of keenest interest to the entire fashion industry in recent weeks.

Both of the principal speakers, Miss Mary Lewis and Mme. Helene Lyolene, stressed the major adjustments that must be made to bring the mass production methods to which the United States is geared into the sphere of creative artistry, which they declared must be developed if the opportunity was not to be lost.

One of the greatest advantages Paris possessed over American design in recent years, both speakers asserted, was the superiority of the fabrics loomed abroad, which textile manufacturers in this country have protested they could not rival because the shorter lengths involved in production of extravagant cloths ate up their profits. Some solution for this situation must precede any real advancement in dress design here, Miss Lewis held.

She cited the impending arrival of the Duchess of Windsor in the Bahamas as "possibly the stimulus the Southern season needs" to give impetus to styles in this country. The Duchess, Miss Lewis added, is one of the few women capable of influencing the fashion world, and probably will be accepted as a style mentor by American women because she is an American.

Mme. Lyolene praised enthusiastically the creative talent she has encountered in this country. "Without denying the greatness of French designers," she said she must admit she had met designers working in America for $25 a week whose taste and talent "were so wonderful they made me jealous of them." Even among school children, she added, she had noted some ideas so fresh and original that Parisian couturieres would have been delighted to adopt them.

Miss Lewis advanced a special plea for recognition of the now largely anonymous fashion designers of America, especially in the Seventh Avenue centre of New York. Such idenification, she declared, would have a definitely beneficial effect in acquainting the public with fashion creators.

"When we thought of Paris and fashion," she argued, "we did not think of the city but of individuals —vivid personalities who helped to make their designs fascinating to us. When we talk about Seventh Avenue, it is with complete anonymity. American designs will mean more to the public when we know more about the people behind them. I have always believed that we would never find out our own strength in the style field until and unless we were cut off from Paris.

"Paris got its inspiration from its museums, with its old manuscripts and its paintings; from its geographical neighbors, from its fabrics, and from its visitors. New York has all of these things on fashion of the group of American manikins taken over to Paris in 1928 by Jean Patou. They were the inspiration for the current silhouette with the normal waistline, because they were healthy, normal young American girls who preferred to wear their belts where nature intended them to be worn, although every one else had dropped them around the hipbones.

"We are Americans and we can succeed in creating American styles that will be followed by the rest of the world if once in a while we forget the profit motive; forget about being snobbish, lazy and independent, and go to work at it."

Mme. Lyolene, who said she was "not a foreign designer," but now an American one, expressed resentment at being asked frequently how she could create design in the atmosphere she encountered in New York.

"Does Toscanini play different music in Paris and in New York?" she reported that she answered. "I am a citizen of the world.

"When I came to America seven months ago, I decided that I would find out about this mass production which seems so wonderful to me. I went to Kansas City and worked in a factory there, and my ambition still is to design a $1.95 dress—but I have never been able to do it."

Her great objection to American production methods is the throttling of creative talent through the restrictions imposed, Mme. Lyolene declared.

"Your American designers are smothered by price and yardage and the buyer's preference," she protested. "Children have to learn to walk before they can run. Give them help. Set them free. Let the children walk."

Consult Your Doctor Before Weaning Baby

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

A mother writes:

Dear Dr. Myers: I have a baby 11 months old today. She has been a breast fed baby and I have tried to wean her several times. Last Tuesday I just completely quit nursing her and decided if she would get hungry enough she would take milk. But she won't even take her pablum if I mix it with milk. I have to fix it with water. If I give her milk in any form she gags and vomits.

My reply: Although this trouble could come about because of the emotions of the child crying for her natural food, the chances are that you have not discovered the right milk mixture for this child. By all means see a doctor at once. Only a well trained physician is qualified, as a rule, to advise in such matters and can do so only by a careful study of the child and his physical needs.

Rely on the Doctor

Let me urge every mother on weaning the boby from the breast to run no risk about selection of the proper milk formula for the baby, but to rely on the doctor, and pediatrician (baby specialist) if at all possible. Money spent on anything else is relatively unimportant in comparison. This is a very critical period in the infant's life. He deserves to have proper food.

Even that mother who just does not have the money to pay a doctor should not hesitate to go to the doctor anyway, telling him of her incapacity to pay. Very few doctors will refuse to give her the best help they know how to give. We have it from the leading medical societies that no person needs to go without proper medical care Let us take them at their word. When they can't make this promise good, the community will have to see that all who really cannot pay for medical care have it provided free.

Crime Inherited?

A good many letters of comment and inquiry, on matters chiefly psychological, come to me from high school students in social science classes where this column often is discussed. And did you know that some high schools offer a course in psychology? From a psychology class of an Iowa high school a student inquires:

Is it possible for the child of criminal parents to become a law-abiding citizen if removed to a respectable home in his early years?

Answer: Yes; quite possible. And very probable if the foster parents prove worthy and skilful in his guidance. The earlier they get him the more likely their success, of course.

Q. Would the child of good parentage be likely to become a criminal were he removed to a slum in early childhood where lawbreaking is prevalent?

Answer: More likely than if he had remained in his home, assuming his parents would have brought him up in self-control and high regard for the rights of others. Without such desirable training his chances might be about as good in the slums. With very good parents, even in the slums, children might become excellent citizens. Criminals are not born, they are made, and their leading makers are their parents, even parents who have tried hard not to be.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Should children select their own clothes?

A. Yes; as soon as they are able to do so. Even the tot of two might properly choose the garment he will wear today, from among the several available. Within a designated price range, why should not the child of ten help select his clothes, and the adolescent do so practically alone?

Q. How soon should an adopted child be told he is adopted?

A. As soon as he can understand

Bellevillle Vacation School Closes Session With Fine Program

Concluding a session of happy association and interesting educational pursuits the Belleville Vacation School held at the three United churches for the past two weeks, the Closing Exercises yesterday afternoon were attended by parents and friends of the youthful members of the school, who presented a program with whole-hearted enthusiasm and splendid ability.

Those attending the school at Holloway Street United Church and Tabernacle United Church assembled at Bridge Street United Church a gathering of eager-eyed boys and girls anxious to show their audience just what the Vacation School has meant to them. Before the program began, the guests had an interesting half hour inspecting the exhibit of handiwork completed with care and neatness by the children as part of the School's program. These included raffia work, the making of clever pot-holders, oil cloth toys, wool flowers, scrolls, to mention only a few of the clever articles.

Most interesting was the map of the world drafted, and colored by the students, showing how the gospel story travelled around the world. Illustration of means of transportation since Bible days also attracted much admiration. The Primary Department had a fine display of soap models.

C. Burr as Chairman

For the program, Mr. Clayton Burr, superintendent of Bridge Street United Church Sunday School acted as chairman, welcoming the parents and paying tribute to those who had devoted their time to teaching the children at the Vacation School. One hundred and seventy children of all denominations had attended.

Primary songs under the direction of Mrs. Youdale and Mrs. Branscombe formed the opening numbers. This was followed by a dramatization of Paul's imprisonment, enacted by the boys and girls and expressive of their original ideas. Three scenes told the familiar story and those taking part presented the theme with ease and fine stage presence. Primary games followed after which the Juniors had their part in entertaining the guests. Explaination of the study period and of the method of making blue prints were heard with interest by the audience. Games by the juniors then took place on the platform and it is difficult to say which group enjoyed themselves more, those playing the games or the grownups watching them. A singing period was in charge of Mr. S. Anglin and in these numbers, and those by the primary children the sweet, clear voices of the boys and girls were a delight to hear.

Mrs. Youdale had charge of the worship period which followed the method used in the school each day, and in which the children joined with reverence and understanding.

At this point, Rev. Dr. James Semple, in presenting attendance certificates to junior and primary students who had attended seven days, spoke of the happy privilege it was to take part in the closing ceremonies. Many things about the Vacation School had impressed him of his four visits to the classes, especially the quality of the students' work and application. The singing of the National Anthem concluded the Vacation School for this year.

Co-starring Cary Grant and Jean Arthur the outstanding motion picture production "Only Angels Have Wings" will be presented next at the McCarthy Theatre. Richard Barthelmess is also featured.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Feminist Describes Woman-Ruled World as a 'Fearsome Place'

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"As a mere man I'm beginning to wonder if all this mass murder we call war is not resulting in drastic changes in the status of men and women.

"The millions of men slaughtered in the first war gave women equal suffrage. Since then, women have largely taken the places of men in industry because they work for less money and there is no denying, because they are capable.

"In my own family and the families of countless other men, women seem to have taken over the running of things. How different from my father's day when the husband and father was supposed to be the head of the house.

"My family claims to love me and bitter irony—remembered me with a new set of golf clubs on Father's Day. But for my own peace of mind, I have to fall in with their plans, do what they want.

"I was perfectly contented with our old home which has been in my father's family for two generations. But my daughters wanted a more fashionable neighborhood and I moved.

"I find the easiest thing for me is to wash my hands of all responsibility. While I love to distraction my crowing hens, the chief of whom I married and the rest fathered, I'd enjoy a return to the good old days. Do you think matriarchy is likely? And how do you understand matriarchy?

"Subdued".

The dictionary defines matriarchy as a "family group or state governed by a woman who rules. A mother who is head and ruler of her family and descendents". There are other definitions, among them one in which descent is traced in the female line, all children belonging to the mother's clan.

Heaven prevent that state of affairs happening to us! A world ruled exclusively by women would be a fearsome place in which to live. And I, as a feminist, says it. You know full well, if you've ever been on the inside of things when a club election is in progress, the things to which women resort to elect their candidate. Just for a moment consider what an election would be if they were running for huge stakes—the Government of a country for instance.

There is no telling how the balance of the power may dip, if men continue to engage in mass murder and dance to the piping of some egomaniac, as Europe's death dance whirls today. What assurance have we that in another twenty years the same horrors may not be upon us again? Good old "Uncle Shylock" engaged lustily in the war to end wars, and what happened? Enough surely, not to make my correspondent's idea that the world may be moving towards matriarchy the fantastic suggestion that it would have been a few years earlier.

Women, as you know hold, seventy per cent of this country's financial assets, and money is power. While the women of the United States are too well treated to start anything like matriarchy they may be persuaded to give financial assistance to agonised women overseas. Women who are heartily sick of seeing sons and husbands slaughtered at the behest of psychopaths.

Dictators do not relish women in positions of responsibility. With a wave of the hand, the bachelor Mr. Hitler sent professional women in Germany back to housefrauing. And while he abstained from reviving the old Kaiser's "church, children and cooking". he went farther in demanding that women should endlessly provide sons as cannon fodder.

What's going to happen when the cannon fodder all over the world begins to give out. Will women become impatient of the eternal slaughter? Matriarchy may not prove to be such a fantastic solution after all.

Whom to Invite

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to be married in September, and I wish to have a church wedding.

1.—Would it be correct for me to invite all my relatives and friends to the ceremony, and not to invite all of them to the reception? My mother and father are dead, and I may have the reception either at a friend's home or in the church parlor.

2.—Will you please tell me how my invitations and announcements should be worded, since I have no one to do the inviting or announcing?

3—Would it be correct for me to have a maid of honor and two bridesmaids?

4.— Does the maid of honor stand beside the bride during the ceremony? What are her duties?

Devoted Reader

1.—It is not necessary to invite to the reception all the guests who are invited to witness the marriage ceremony. However if you are inviting some of your friends to the reception, naturally all your relatives would feel that they should be invited. Also, if you are having the reception at the home of a friend, it would probably be necessary to limit your list of guests, but if you have it in the church parlor, all the guests present at the ceremony probably could be accommodated at the reception.

2—In your first question you speak of your "relatives", and I am wondering therefore why it would not be possible for a relative to sponsor your invitations and announcements. Since your mother and father are not living, your announcements may properly be sent out by your grandparents or by an uncle or aunt, or some other close relative.

Since you are apparently "providing" your own wedding, and since it is to be informal, you could properly write notes of invitation to the ceremony and to the reception, and then, if you wish, send engraved announcements to those not invited to the wedding. These annoucements might either be sponsored by a relative, or, if this isn't possible or agreeable to you, you and your fiance might send them out in your names:

Mr. John Bridegroom
and Miss Dorothy Wells Field announce their marriage on Tuesday, the tenth of September
Nineteen hundred and forty Jackson, Michigan

3—Yes.

4.—Yes, the maid of honor stands at the left of the bride, in position to be of service in holding the bride's bouquet and to arrange the bride's train and veil as she turns to go down the aisle after the ceremony.

Where Does Man Walk?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle this dispute for us? A says when a gentleman walks with two or more ladies, he walks on the outside, that is, nearest the curb.

B says that when a gentleman is walking with two ladies, he walks between them.

Three Jitterbugs

A is right. A man, whether he is walking with one or more women, walks on the outside, that is, on the side of the pavement nearest the curb.

ROME COMMUNIQUE

"A three-hour battle took place yesterday near the Island of Canada (Crete) between our 5,000-ton light cruisers Giovanni Delle Bande Nere and Bartolomeo Colleoni and an English force consisting of two 7,000-ton armored cruisers of the Sydney type and four destroyers.

"Despite the superiority of the enemy forces, our cruisers engaged in battle, inflicting serious damage on the enemy. The cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni was hit in a vital spot and sunk while the fighting continued. A good part of the crew is believed safe. Our bombing formations reached the enemy naval forces and repeatedly bombed them, hitting the cruisers several times. One enemy ship sunk in flames. All our planes returned to their bases."

(A British Admiralty statement indicated the cruiser Sydney was not accompanied by any second cruiser. There was nothing to back up the Italian claim that one British ship was sunk and others damaged).

Eletric Needle An Aid To Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

Small red veins on the wings of the nose are ruptured capillaries. No cream or lotion will have any effect upon them. If they are tiny, close to the surface, they can sometimes be burned away with the electric needle.

The needle is also used for the removal of moles and warts, though the medical man who treats blemishes of the skin, has other methods at his disposal. The X-ray is one of them. Moles, as a rule, are harmless. If they are placed where they are subjected to friction, as happens when the collar rubs against them, it is wise to have them removed. Also, if they increase in size, show signs of inflammation, medical attention should be sought.

Never Fuss with Blemishes

Senility warts are a menace. They appear suddenly, grow rapidly, have a broken white edge. They may become malignant. It is bad policy to disturb them with the finger nails. Pustules also should not be touched. Young girls, finding red speckles on their pretty faces, are inclined to pass their fingers over them or press them out. Many a scar has developed from this practice.

"No cream or lotion will have any effect on the small red veins."

If fate or too much indulgence in the good things of the table has caused the upper portion of the arms to thicken, the harassed one should forego the pleasures of the sleeveless evening gown.

Very short sleeves of lace or some other diaphanous fabric should curtain them.

The Child and Religion

In these days, there seem to be many couples who have no religion. Most of them had religious training when they were young, but due to their way of life, they have gotten away from religion; they have come to doubt the value of religion, or perhaps they have lost faith in sectarianism, and have blamed religion for it. Yet, when these people have children they do give thought to whether they should send the children to church and Sunday School. Some write me about it.

I should explain here that to me God is a personal God, a Supreme Being whom we must all recognize. I think it would be difficult to find a country doctor who didn't believe in God. I know I've seen too many miracles in my practise for me to deny Him.

I have seen again and again crises in the lives of patients in which I have thrown up my hands as far as science is concerned and said a prayer. Again, and again, I have given up hope for the sick and called in priest or preacher because I knew I had done all I could do. The results have often revealed the power of a higher being.

So, when a mother or a father writes me to ask what I think about religious training for the child, I don't mince words when I tell them. Not long ago, I had quite a volume of correspondence with a father in the Middle West. The discussions started with the mother and ended with the father. Apparently, the father had stronger agnostic tendencies than the mother. So when I answered her letter in the way I usually do, putting in my vote for religion, he wrote back in answer, challenging my theories.

I could go on and on, telling about our exchanges, but to be brief I found out he had come of a family unusually strict in a religious sense. Sunday after Sunday, as a child, he had been compelled to go to church and Sunday school. I asked him if he had learned anything at either of those places that had done him harm, had weakened his moral fibre or that he thought his child shouldn't be exposed to. He was very frank in his answer, that he hadn't. But he thought religion was for weaklings.

I rather imagine that child went to church and Sunday school just like the father, for I wrote back pointing out it was quite possible that his child might turn out to be a "weakling", and he might need that religious training and faith in God. Anyway if he took after the father and weren't a weakling, he could discard the whole business as for "weaklings" just as the father had done.

I've had no reply to them.

Ah There, Sweet Girl Grads, Here Are Ten Job-Hunting Rules

By ALICE DENHOFE

Will the sweet girl graduate's diploma be a passport to a job? Will the campus queen become the office belle?

Should her attire be collegiate or sophisticated when she applies for her first job? These are some of the questions agitating the many thousands of girls just graduated from universities and high schools, now hunting for an opening in the business world for a career or a profession.

W asked Loire Brophy for vital commandments for a girl in search of a job. Employment counsellor to the Fashion Group of New York, the American Women's Association and the Advertising Club, Mrs. Brophy has for seventeen years been a famous link between the girl and the job.

A Different World.

Here is her advice: Be open minded. The first thing a girl must recognize is that the sheltered world of the college is not the business world. In college, progress is authentic, and it often isn't necessary to be brilliant or industrious to be tops. Unfortunately the qualities which make for campus popularity often militate against business success, Sorority charm isn't necessarily secretarial charm.

The girl in a job must be tolerant of those about her. She must forget notions of superiority engendered by a college education and diploma. She must learn that the college yardstick of measuring those about her won't reach once she goes into the business world. Personal equations are quite different. To recognize this is the second commandment.

Next is the admonition to keep on learning. Don't put aside studies immediately you've graduated. Once you've got a job, you'll really have to study. Being industrious is vital for business success; when you find a job, keep busy but don't butt into the work of another.

How To Dress.

Proffer help when you know it will be appreciated. This is an important step, often a rung on the ladder of promotion.

Be well groomed. Remember when you apply for a job and after you get it—no campus didoes. And when you apply for a job—please do not wear a sweater. Girls wearing figure revealing sweaters annoy rather than intrigue prospective employers.

Wear make-up by all means, but tone it down. Don't wear an elaborate hair-do, men are wise enough to know that this takes constant fixing, with many trips to the big mirror in the rest-room. Tone down the nail polish.

The next commandment urges the beginner to acquire a good interview technique. Today the employer is something of an amateur psychologist and he considers the person as well as her talents for a particular job. So be a bit of a psychologist yourself.

Try to gauge the person who interviews you. Give necessary and constructive information, but don't be catty or unduly reticent. If you don't get the job, take the verdict gracefully. This self-discipline says Loire Brophy, has helped more than one girl to get a job later in the same organization.

Linguistic Lapses.

Acquire emotional stability. Tears and tantrums are out, even if you do look lovely when you're mad and appealing when you weep. Discipline yourself to avoid all personal eccentricities. Watch for that "goodbye, s'long, awright."

Be objective. Don't look at your fellow workers or at office situations through your own brand of mental spectacles. Get outside yourself. This is of vital importance for business success. Don't expect automatic promotion; business isn't like college where you go from class to class.

For a Gala Evening

By ALICE ALDEN

The high C's of fashion just now are four—cool, comfortable, casual and chic. This goes for day things, for evening togs, for town or country clothes. To show you what we mean, here is Dorothy Lamour wearing a delightful evening frock that subscribes to all that is desirable in summer modes. The fabric is white silk voile, a new favorite on the coast this season. The voluminous skirt, so graceful when the wearer is in motion, alternates the silk voile with wide appliqued rows of printed silk crepe in an exotic tropical flower motif. At the waistline, a sash of the printed fabric ties in an old-fashioned bow. The short puffed sleeves are graceful as is the neckline which manages to be different.

Hawaiian Taste Treats

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

A culinary tour of Hawaii induces a second cook's tour to the lovely flower-filled islands of the blue Pacific. Here are authentic recipes which we hope will bring something of the island atmosphere to your table.

Fruity Salad.

A dressing to glorify fruit salad is made with ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 egg yolks, ¾ cup pineapple juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ cup butter, ⅛ teaspoon salt and ½ cup whipping cream. Combine sugar and cornstarch, add slightly beaten egg yolks. Stir in fruit juices and butter. Cook until smooth over boiling water, stirring constantly. Remove at once, add salt and cool. When thoroughly chilled, fold in the stiffly beaten cream.

Banada Gem Salad is made with a 14-oz. can of pineapple gems, 1 3-oz. package of cream cheese, two tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ cup syrup drained from gems, 4 bananas, chicory and lettuce. Drain pineapple cubes, after chilling well in can. Mash cheese, add lemon juice and syrup gradually. Beat until creamy. Peel bananas and slice lengthwise, brush with pineapple syrup. Arrange two banana halves on crisp chicory or lettuce. Place six pineapple gems between banana halves. Pass cheese dressing. Four salads.

"I Spy"

Wonder how the girls in midriff gowns feel as the evening grows cooler by the clock? . . Several noted the other evening were bearing up, chilled but proud. . . . Wonder what everyone did with her purple outfit of a mere two summers ago? I haven't noticed much purple since except for dinner and later, and then it's teamed with a pastel . . . pale blue, for instance.

WORDS OF THE WISE

Nothing is more uncertain than a dependence upon public bodies. They are moved like the wind, but rather more uncertain.—(Clark).

A Fetching Bonnet

By ALICE ALDEN

If you are wearing a pomapdour or forehead curls, top off your coiffure with a fetching bonnet, as Virginia Fields does. When the right girl with the right hair-do dons a coquettish bonnet, the result is dangerously demure and fetchingly flirtatious. The bonnet is fashioned of attractive shiny straw in inky black and has clusters of scarlet chrysanthemums massed at the front of the hat. Cosgrain ribbons tied under the chin and to the bonnet effect. A frilled veil of embroidered net is the final touch of charm to this most wearable model. Worn with a delightful silk print suit in the ever popular black and white, black velvet collar and revers.

About The Snood—Now It Can Be Told

By ALICE DENHOFF

The girl who came to dinner wore a turban—and no one guessed that its suave, sleek lines covered recently set hair still in the clutches of the combs. After dinner, before the dance, the girl removed the turban and disclosed a beautifully done coiffure. And this helps tell the story of hair-dress this summer.

Manes streaming in the breeze have gone with the wind. Nowadays only a few debs and mature women who ought to know better subscribe to the flowing locks hair-do. The trend is for a neat coiffure, tidy curls, a sculptured effect, a pompadour. All of which means that the turban ,the snood, the hair-net have their well defined place.

Which Came First?

Whether the turban brought in the new neat look, or whether the desire for an end to the bane of the flying mane brought in the turban and such, we frankly don't know. All we know is that the peasant hankie over the head and tied under the chin seems to have been the forerunner of the snood, the turban and the net. When the snood went out as a hat adjunct, women liked its good qualities far too well to relegate it to the limbo of discard. So it has remained and does a frank, open job of looking after the hair-do. We see it on the tennis courts and on the golf links and at luncheons and teas.

A Dry Fact.

The pesky swim cap which used to do such a swell job of permitting the water to seep through to the hair, has got in most of its dire work. Many manufacturers have concentrated on caps with inner rims and extra bands employing suction devices designed to keep out water. A thin net over a neat coiffure and one of these caps should make it unnecessary to have to set and do the hair constantly after a swim as was the case in the past. Investigate these caps if you swim and have trouble with your hair-do. Combined with a sensible coiffure which is easy to handle, your summer hair troubles should be nil.

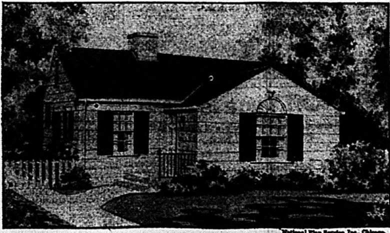
Twist Your Own.

Turbans were never nicer than now, and so they are still tops. Somehow they don't squash down the hair as those of an earlier vintage did. Whatever your style of hair-dress, whatever your type, you will find a turban to suit you. If you don't like anything you see in the shops, make your own. Or wind one of those big sports hankies or a scarf around your noggin and learn to become adept at making a decorative top-knot.

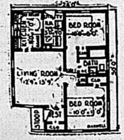
You'll like turbans for evening, too, and many designers have put out evening frocks with their own matching turbans. There's now no excuse for passing up a party because you couldn't get to the hairdresser in time. The smart girl, however, won't take advantage of all this and neglest her coiffure. She wants the assurance of knowing that when she takes off her decorative turban she will disclose, a neat, beautifully dressed head.

A Russian writer, in a Moscow article, declares the only way to subjugate Britain is by capture of the British Isles, which is a tough nut to crack. And it has been rendered much more difficult in the last few weeks, and will be still more difficult on the morrow. The Soviet scribe intimates a long struggle, considering the naval and other resources of the Empire. It is realism from an unexpected quarter, as contrasted with the surfeit of blow-hardiness out of Rome and Berlin.—St. Catharines Standard.

SMALL FORMAL HOUSE



National Plan Service, Inc., Chicago.



● If you want a small house with a guest room, or if you want sleeping quarters for one or two children well separated from your own, here is a pretty plan suited to your dream. Notice the good size of the living room, and the wrap closet by the front door.

The kitchen is unusually well arranged, with cross ventilation and its own outside entrance. The bathroom is placed in such a way as to be near both bedrooms, but not visible from the living room—a position too often not achieved in the small cottage.

That "Barefoot Boy" Had Healthiest Feet, Says Doctor

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

The feet, like every other part of the body, should give care at all times, but it seems in the spring and early summer they need more care than usual. This year abnormal temperatures throughout nearly all sections of the country, and hard rains, cause many feet to ache, especially when rubbers, overshoes and heavy footwear are discarded.

In children, the prevention of foot defects should be stressed and it is the objective of the National Foot Health Council to point out the necessity and proper method of doing this. In school examinations in large cities, an average of 76 per cent of boys and girls of high school age were found foot defective; some with corns, others with ingrown nails, some with weak arches, and many showing marked tendencies to the developing of large joints, hammer toes and bunions. Corns and ingrown toenails are not serious in themselves but they probably mean that proper footwear is not being used.

The healthiest of all feet are found in those who go barefooted. True, they have calluses but these are not the same as corns. For children, at this time of the year, nothing could be healthier than to encourage them to go bare-footed around the house, in the yard and on beaches. Any cuts or abrasions that they get should be treated antiseptically, but these are minor disadvantages compared to the advantage which is gained in the strengthening of the feet, improvement in arch support and functional efficiency.

Stress Proper Care.

Another objective of the Council is industrial foot care through the advancement of programs directed by men and women whose employment keeps them on their feet. The program stresses, first, correct footwear and, second, proper foot care.

Chiropodists and podiatrists are now quite scientifically trained and have a century of service behind them. The first chiropody office was opened in Boston in 1840. This year the National Association of Chiropodists will observe the centennial during the annual convention in Boston.

Foot care is not a luxury limited to a few, it can be enjoyed by persons in all walks of life and at all ages. Throughout this land there are foot clinics, many of them in first-class hospitals, where chiropodists and podiatrists are available to care for the foot problems of men, women and children regardless of their circumstances. Don't neglect your feet. Don't wait until they have become a major problem. Too often minor defects go untreated and disregarded until they become of crippling proportions.

It is not unusual for foot troubles to react on the entire system. Many women who are fatigued by a shopping trip, get that way from faulty foot posture.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. B. T.: "What effect have epsom salts on the body in a bath?"

Answer: Practically none. They are sometimes advised because they are thought to reduce weight but this is not true. Of course, if the bath is salt enough it removes fluid from the body, but if so it is unsafe. Epsom salts in a concentrated solution, saturated on a cloth, are valuable in the relief of pain locallly, but externally there is no other use.

E. G.: "Let me know if there is any harm in taking bismuth for a long time."

Answer: Yes. Bismuth produces a chronic metallic poisoning with deposits in the gums and degeneration of the blood. It should not be taken except on the advice of a physician.

M. M.: "Members of my family will not eat potatoes nor macaroni; and very little sugar on their cereal and in coffee nor white bread. I have to make them eat what I consider a well balanced diet.".

Answer: If people are hearthy and happy do not try to influence their diet. Starches and sugars and macaroni are simply concentrated, processed carbohydrates that family will get in vegetables, fruits, cereals, and probably be better off.

L. S.: "Please advise what is the best time of the year to have a child's tonsils taken out?"

Answer: "There is no time any better than any other. The best time is when you are certain the tonsils are doing harm. In other words, the best time of year to take the tonsils out is when the tonsils need to be taken out. Of course, usually August and September are the busy times of year for the tonsil doctor because parents feel that it benefits children to have their tonsils done before going to school.

N. G. L.: "Please tell me if there is quinine in grapefruit."

Answer: Not to the best of my knowledge and belief. The bitterness comes from a special vegetable acid.

F. D.: "I have heard of the treatment of duodenal ulcer with a series of shots. How successful is this treatment?"

Answer: I presume by "shots" you mean hypodermic injections. The use of injections of non-specific proteins was introduced several years ago but I believe has largely gone out of fashion, and of course the reason it has gone out of fashion is that it was not as successful as the treatment by diet and neutralization with soda or aluminum hydroxide.

Tiniest Garden Yields Spices

Pick your food seasonings right out of your own herb garden. If you own even the tiniest yard, dedicate some of it to fragrant herbs. If you are a city child, grow parsley, mint and such in window boxes. Seasoning, wisely chosen and discreetly used, transform the simplest foods into epicurean delights. When winter comes, there will be bottles of dried herbs to add their fresh piquancy to food if you garden your own.

Chives are favorites and a pot of them will furnish tang for cottage cheese, potato salad, soups, sauces and aspics. Woolly or curly mints are said to be the most flavorsome in this popular herb. The bruised leaves release a pungent flavor for drinks, fruit cups, sauces and salads. We all know about the affair between tender young lamb and mint sauce! Parsley has a legion of uses and is decorative too. A patch of watercress will insure delightful sandwiches for tea and make garnishing easy.

Chef's Delight.

If you have admired gloriously yellow foods, the chances are that they owe their sunny looks to saffron. Boiling water is poured over the dried stamens of the plant and it is cooked and bottled for use. No self-respecting chef will be without saffron.

If there is caraway in the herb garden ,there is pungent encouragement for cakes, cookies and bread. The leaves and small young roots are grand for salads. Grow rosemary, not for remembrance but to point up lemonade and iced tea. Delightful in apply jelly too.

Dill is a stout kitchen companion. It is good for other duties besides glorifying cucumber pickles. Dill seeds sprinkled over lamb chops before they are broiled give the meat a pleasing tang. A few finely chopped flowers do things to cream of tomato soup.

Dress Up Dressings.

Majoram, one of the oldest and most beloved herbs, is marvelous with new peas and adds tone to bread and butter sandwiches. It adds a new and tantalizing flavor to fruit salad dressings. Sweet basil is liked for its clove-like flavor. It is good with cheese dishes, and gives new interest to scrambled eggs. Horseradish, of course, needs no introduction, except to state that it is easy to grow. The same goes for thyme and for tarragon. Tarragon vinegar is so good.

Just before blossoms form on such herbs as mint, dill, tarragon, and sweet basil, gather them and fill jars with them. Cover with a fine grade of vinegar. After four or five weeks, strain and bottle the vinegars for the pantry shelf to give new culinary delight to winter dishes.

Vacation Slacks

By ALICE ALDEN

Slacks for the slim are lovely. The trend this year is to the slack suit as against the separate slacks and casual shirt ensemble. Peggy Moran wears a delightful slack suit, nautical in styling, feminine in its appeal. The fabric is a soft pastel blue silk crepe, with white silk braid for the trimming of the sailor collar. The middy blouse is in neat contrast to the wide trousers, which are brought smoothly over the hips to fasten sailor fashion with white pearl buttons in front. The picturesque cap and the bag are of white linen.

Summer Furniture Survives Cooling Drink Stains

It's cold drink time, which means that many a hostess is torn between the happiness of hospitality and the fear that her furniture is going to be a mass of rings, marks, dents and scratches. No matter how many coasters are sitting around waiting to be used, it is inevitable that water and alcohol rings will mar some polished surface. The best thing to do is to use as much summer furniture as possible, tables with those plate glass tops that won't look any worse if a whole tray of drinks splashes all over them. If wood-topped tables are in use, however, something can be done, especially if the table is a very good one. In many cities, there are shops that specialize in durable finishes for furniture. Have your dining room table finished with this process and you can sit back and laugh at water spots or heat spots. Not an inexpensive treatment, but worth its cost.

Out, Spot!

The filmy gray spot which is an aftermath of a water ring often yields to a few rubs of a cloth on which a drop or two of household ammonia has been poured. After this, rub with a clean cloth and then polish with oil and a soft cloth, using plenty of elbow grease. To clean water spots on waxed floors, rub in circles with a flannel cloth and turpentine, following with a clean polishing cloth.

Alcohol spots require prompt attention, a quick rubbing with a clean cloth. Rub with the fingers rather than waste time looking for a cloth. It will help return the finish. Get after the ring or spot as soon as possible with lemon oil, linseed or prepared oil, plus plenty of vigor. Some housewives swear by rottenstone and linseed oil rubbed on in circles, using plenty of linseed oil to lubricate the rottenstone. The rottenstone must float in the oil or it will scratch. Use your regular furniture polish to restore the lustre. Most shops that go in for very fine furniture have special waxes and polishes for renewing surface finishes.

Retouching Job.

Often a good going over with furniture polish will cover up scratches because the stuff contains dye or stain enough to darken wood that has been bared by a scratch. The scratches on mahogany may be retouched with a little permanganate of potash. A bruise in the wood, if it is not too deep, will often yield to a good oiling and rubbing. If the dent is deeper than a superficial bruise, moisten soft thin blotting paper in hot water and gently apply heat by means of a hot iron. The moisture and heat swells the wood and the dented part rises. This, of course, is not possible with a veneer, for this is only a thin wood surface finish fastened to a wood backing.

If there is no furniture polish at hand, get four ounces of beeswax and melt over water. When dissolved, remove from fire and stir in a pint of turpentine. Stir until the mixture is a thick batter and put up in a jar to be used as needed. The hand is the best wax rubber as its warmth softens the wax. Finish by rubbing with soft flannel.

Yanks Pulverize Indians 15-6 For Third Straight Over Club; Detroit Tigers Tighten Hold

Yankees Score Most of Their Runs Through Four Home Runs

TIGERS DOWN BOSTON

Tommy Bridges Hurls Seven Hit Ball in Shutting Out Red Sox 4-0

(By Bill White Associated Press Sports Writer).

To ban a tin pan alley phrase: The Yanks are coming.

Looking more and more like the club that pulverized the American League for four straight years, the Yanks sounded a note that must have been grimly familiar with yesterday's 15-6 third-straight victory over the erstwhile league leading Cleveland Indians.

For the Yankees did it their trade-marked way—via home runs. Babe Dahlgren hit two, Buddy Rosar got another—along with a single, double and triple for a perfect day—and Joe Gordon got the fourth.

Seven runs in the first inning did the damage and the note of glee in the Yankee dressing room was marred only by the thought that Lefty Gomez will be out for a week or 10 days. He was struck on the pitching hand by a ball off Roy Weatherly's bat.

Tigers Tighten Hold

Meanwhile Detroit Tigers tightened their hold on first place by shutting out Boston Red Sox, 4-0 behind the seven hit hurling of Tommy Bridges. Rudy York hit a homer with one on.

Thornton Lee stopped the five game winning streak of the amazing Washington Senators 5-1 with a five hit job. The White Sox pounded Walter Masterson and Joe Krakauskas for a dozen hits. Lee allowed only one Senator to get as far as second base after the second inning and yielded only two hits in the last six frames.

Johnny Berardino's homer with one on in the ninth was the winning margin as the St. Louis Browns snapped a 14 game losing streak by beating the Athletics 9-7.

Reds Three Games Up

In the National League Cincinnati Reds remained three games ahead of Brooklyn Dodgers since both absorbed beatings. The Reds outhit the Boston Bees, but lost 8-7 when the Bees bunched four safeties with two Cincinnati errors in the seventh inning.

Chicago Cubs counted on Hank Lieber and Bill Nicholson for an 11-4 victory over the Dodgers. Hank homered with three on and Nicholson slammed a four bagger with one on. The game was marred by a fistic free-for-all, when Hugh Casey hit Claude Passeau with a pitched ball. Passeau tossed his bat at Casey—and the fireworks started. Passeau and Joe Gallagher, who led the Dodger skirmishes were banished from the game.

Cards Win a Pair

St. Louis Cardinals snatched a pair of victories from the Phils, 3-2 and 5-3. Both with late inning rallies. In the first Kirby Higbe allowed only one hit for six innings, but the Cards rose in the seventh and eighth to win. In the second game Johnny Rizzo's 12th homer gave the Phils a 3-2 edge in the eighth, but Ernie Koy pumped one over the fence to score behind Enos Slaughter, who had walked. Then Joe Orengo doubled and Martin Marion singled him home.

Hal Schumacher gave the Giants a 5-2 win over the Pirates. He batted in three runs with a triple, and got credit for his seventh victory though the 90 degree heat wore him down and he had to be relieved.

"That's what I mean! SEE?"

I was joshing my Grand-dad that he had never left the horse-and-buggy era. A Trans-Canada liner was streaking by and I said, "That's what I mean! See?" He came back at me, "And what's that you've got in your pipe? Old Chum, isn't it? Well, boy, my generation started Old Chum and still there's no other tobacco just like it! SEE? It burns slow and mellow and sweet because it's aged." I took a pull at my pipe, tasted the rich flavour of Old Chum, and I said, "You win!" Great old boy, my Grand-dad! Great tobacco, Old Chum!

BIG-Z LASSIES DOWN VIKINGS TO LEAD LEAGUE

Betsy Adams Wins Second Game on Successive Nights

WINNERS RALLY

Teams Tied in Eighth but Zellers Shove Across Two in Ninth to Win

Rallying in the last two frames the Big-Z lassies chalked up their second win in successive nights, when they downed the Vikings 15 to 13 in a scheduled Ladies' Mercantile League game played at Queen Mary School grounds last evening. In winning the white-clad Zeller nine moved three points ahead of their nearest contender into the league leadership.

Betsy Adams, hurling her second game in as many days, accomplished the iron man feat of ball by pitching and winning two games in successive nights and added to her prowess by halting the Vikings in the dying stages as her team mates rallied to eke out a ninth inning victory.

All Even Up

The teams were tied at 13-all going into the last frame after Helen Garrow had hit a home run in the eighth to head a Zeller rally that netted them six runs. In the ninth Pudgy Donovan, Pee-Wee Colden and Helen Garrow hit safely to give Zellers two runs and a margin, which they protected in the ninth by retiring the Vikings in order. The teams battled at even terms, with the Vikings taking the lead in the seventh by scoring three runs and they added two more in the eighth, but the Zeller rally of six in the eighth proved the undoing of Coach Carson's team. Some exceptionally fine fielding was featured by both nines headed by Norma Maker, Viking second sacker.

Maker Has Two Homers

Helen Garrow with a homer, double and single paced the winners on the attack, while Betsy Adams helped her own cause with a timely double and two one base blows. Pudgy Donovan drove out for one base blows in five tries, while Pee-Wee Colden had two doubles and two singles. Norma Maker with two circuit blows and a single was the big hitter for the Vikings, as Helen Zebedee had a triple, double and a single. Petite Rita Rabbie, the Viking hurler, counted two hits in her own behalf. Vikings completed the only double play of the game, however.

The lineups:

Vikings: Ketcheson ss; Fletcher rf; Fleming 1b; Adams 3b; Maker 2b; Zebedee c; Greatrix lf; Woodcock cf and Rabbie p.

Zellers: Bennett 3b; Colden 2b; Garrow ss; B. Adams p; Irvine 1b; Hunter cf; Moore rf; Cordon lf and Donovan c.

Score by innings:

		R	H	E
Zellers	031 101 162	15	17	4
Vikings	410 031 320	13	15	6

Umpires: Young, plate; Colling, bases.

TONY ZALE WINS OVER AL HOSTAK

Scores Technical Knockout Over His Opponent in 13th Round

Seattle, July 20 — (AP)—Tony Zale, former steel mill puddler from Gary, Ind., methodically mowed down his opponent last night to win the National Boxing Association's 46-state recognized middleweight boxing championship with a technical knockout over Al Hostak of Seattle, in the 13th round of their scheduled 15-round fight.

Zale weighed 158; Hostak, 159 3-4.

Hostak was knocked down for a count of nine in the 12th round and again in the 13th shortly before the bout was stopped.

The Seattle fighter's eyes were badly cut and his left hand appeared to have been injured in the late rounds.

Zale forced the fight all the way and opened a cut over Hostak's left eye early in the eighth round. From there on the Indiana boxer worked on Hostak's eyes and finally closed one and had the other badly puffed.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By the Associated Press)

Chicago—Jorge Morelia, 131, Monterey, Mexico and Willie Joyce 132 1-2, Gary, Ind., drew (8).

Brooklyn—Bobby McInyre, 141, Detroit, outpointed Carmine Fatta, 135, Brooklyn (8).

SWATTER—SWATTED

With a "killer" scowl on his face, welterweight champion Henry Armstrong glowers over his fallen opponent, the Sweetwater swatter, Lew Jenkins, as Lew makes one of his many trips to the canvas of the Polo Grounds in New York. Lew went down on fewer than six times before Referee Donovan stopped the fight after he had collapsed in his corner after the sixth round. Henry won on technical k.o. in the sixth. Neither Lew's lightweight title, nor Henry's welter crown were at stake.

Fast Ball Still First Requisite in Ace Pitching

Man Must Have "Stuff" in Plenty to Make a Success of His Job in Big League, Star Player Says

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 20—(CP)—The modern baseball pitcher needs more than a fast ball, a glove and a prayer, writes Bucky Walters, ace of the Cincinnati Reds of the National Baseball League. Bucky goes on:

He's faced with the fact that every pitched ball in the big time today is a duel between a batter who knows a bad ball when he sees it and a pitcher who knows that the batter knows.

Which means that the pitcher must have "stuff"—and lots of it. But the fast ball is still the No. 1 requisite. After a pitcher has it working he must develop a curve, then a change of pace. Special pitching tricks like the screwball or sinker ball come later—after long, long practice.

The three chief types of delivery are overhand, side-arm and underhand. Overhand is most generally used and some good pitchers employ all three. Although every pitcher uses a slightly different grip and slightly different delivery, there are general pitching fundamentals.

How to Grip It

The ball is usually gripped between the first and second fingers and the thumb. The fast ball is usually thrown with a snap of the wrist. The curve ball, thrown with an outward rotation of the hand and arm, spins out of the hand between the thumb and forefinger. Both deliveries should look alike as much as possible. Wise batters will spot any deviation.

A screwball, or reverse curve, is gripped in much the same manner but is released with an inward rotation of the hand and arm, with the wrist snapped a quarter turn inward. The ball usually breaks down and inward.

For the knuckle ball, used as a floater for change of pace, some pitchers put the joints of the index and second fingers on the ball. Others use the ends of the same fingers. The ball floats up to the plate, breaking sharply a few feet in front. Many pitchers specialize in this throw and use it very effectively.

Next to throwing effectively, a pitcher's best asset is a retentive memory. By being able to remember a batter's hitting habits and weaknesses the pitcher himself can change many potential basehits to weak grounders or pop flies by "putting them where the sticker doesn't like 'em."

The Weak Spots

Most vulnerable points of any batter are the four corners of the strike area, low outside, high outside, low inside and high inside. An unknown batter's stance may tip off a wise pitcher about the hitter's weakness.

There's a lot of psychology in pitching, too. Some batters can be worried by slow, deliberate preparation by the hurler. Quick deliveries fool some. And the help of a "signal thief" is invaluable. If one of your teammates is wise to the opposing team's signals, he can advise the pitcher when to throw a pitch-out to catch an intended steal.

Fielding from the pitching position is not difficult after the pitcher has learned the one cardinal rule: never get off balance and be ready, at all times, for any kind of a ball.

Play-Off Time is Here

Ancient Diamond Rivals — "Oilers and Corby's A.C.— Clash in O.A.S.A. Finals.

It's here again - - -

Belleville's annual softball play-offs, the feature sporting attraction long awaited by the public begins Tuesday next with those two ancient "mushball" enemies of the diamond, the Shell "Oilers" and Corbys A. C., the principals on the softball stage. Of lesser importance, but just as much a feature will be the Point Anne versus Uptown play-off series, which will be played at the same time.

By mutual agreement the "Oilers" and Corbys will play a best four-in-seven game series commencing at Coleman Flats, July 23rd and continuing the 24th and 25th. On Wednesday next the Junior Uptowns will open their City League semi-finals at Point Anne.

Double Series

The "Oiler-Corbys" series will declare a dual winner. When the team managements agreed upon a best-in-seven series they also mutually agreed that the winner of this series would be declared O. A. S. A. representatives to compete in the provincial softball playdowns in the Intermediate "A" series and also the winner would advance to the Belleville City League finals, for the Bank of Commerce Trophy, versus the winner of the Point Anne versus Uptown Juniors series, which is to be the best three in five. The City League finals will be the best-in-five also.

After announcing the play-off schedule dates, Secretary Harry Knott added that all games must commence no later than 6.30 p.m.

The play-off schedule for the City League semi-finals, and also the O.A.S.A. finals is as follows—

July 23—Corbys at Shell; July 24—Shell at Corbys and Uptowns at Point Anne; July 25—Corbys at Shell; July 30—Point Anne at Uptown; July 31—Shell at Corbys; Aug. 1—Corbys at Shell and Uptowns at Point Anne; Aug. 6—Point Anne at Uptown; Aug. 7—Shell at Corbys; Aug. 8—Corbys at Shell and Uptowns at Point Anne.

LEFTY GRISSOM STRIKING STRIDE IN INT. LEAGUE

Eccentric Southpaw May be Recalled After Winning Fourth Straight

TORONTO WINS

Leafs Take Advantage of Buffalo Error to Score Three Unearned Runs

(By the Associated Press)

Lefty Lee Grissom had a tough job getting started in the international league after he was sent down to Montreal Royals by Brooklyn, but he's travelling under a full head of steam now and is one of the reasons Royals are riding along in third place.

The eccentric southpaw has won his last four starts. If he can keep up his present pace he may find himself back in the big time again before the season is over.

Last night Grissom halted a six-game winning streak of the league-leading Rochester Red Wings, letting them down with six hits to chalk up a 5-3 triumph. His mates pounded a trio of Red Wing hurlers for 10 hits.

The victory advanced Montreal to within four games of the second place Newark Bears, who lost to Syracuse 7-1.

Pep Rambert, making his first appearance since July 2, limited the Bears to five safeties for his fifth victory of the season. Tommy Byrne, rookie collegian, started for Newark and was charged with his first defeat.

Jersey City dropped back into fifth place, losing a 6-2 decision to Baltimore Orioles. The Birds got to Hughie East, 20-year-old righthander, for all their runs. Italo Chelini went the distance for Baltimore and allowed only five hits.

The last place Toronto Maple Leafs, although outhit, took advanage of a Buffalo error, good for three unearned runs, to defeat the Bisons 6-5 for their third straight win.

Clyde McCullough slammed out two home runs for Buffalo, his 14th and 15th of the year, to provide three Bison tallies, while Latshaw and Bell each fashioned roundtrippers for the Leafs. Carl Fisher, Toronto starter, was the winning hurler.

WINNING TEAMS GIVEN CRESTS

Members of Ki-Y Championship Clubs Entertained at "Y" by Officials

The winning teams and team members of the various groups in the Ki-Y softball series, completed two weeks ago, were honored at the Y.M.C.A. last evening when the boys convened for the presentation of crests to the victorious teams. After the presentation of the crests, during which time the boys were given some sound advice by Mr. J. E. Short and other members of the "Y", the boys indulged in a shower and swim, afterwards being served ice cream and cake to top off the gala evening.

Following are the victorious teams and team members who were presented with crests:

Winning midget team:

St. Michael's—Bob Shepherd, captain, Allan Meagher, Bob Temple, Frank Cronin, Jimmie Cowan, Joe Whelan, B. Wilson, T. Mascaro, J. Moher, B. Bunton, A. Adams, Jack Doran, manager.

Winning juvenile team:

Smashers—Bob Davis, manager; Arnold Welch, captain; Doug Rosebush, Louie Aselstine, Ralph Parliament, Warren Gannon, Jerry Alton, Lyle Cross, Vern Goyer, Joe Adams, Doug Adams, Vic Williams.

A Bimelech Victory Would Cinch Crown

Chicago, July 20—(AP)—Bimelech, highly-ranked entrant of the venerable E. R. Bradley, has another chance today to prove his claim to turf greatness in the 12th annual running of the $50,000 Arlington classic.

His trainer has pronounced him ready for the mile and a quarter test against a field of five other three year olds. A victory would virtually clinch Bimelech's claim to the three-year-old championship.

Gallahadion, the Milky Way Farms horse which showed Bimmie the way home in the derby upset, again ranks as the Bradley entrant's most dangerous rival for the floral horseshoe in the Arlington test.

Ranked considerably behind both of these starters were four others—Arnold Hanger's Dit, third in the derby; Andy K, the Mills dale stables' in-and-outer; Sirocco of the Dixianna stables, and A. C. Ernest's Alhalon, a true long shot at 20 to 1.

DID YOU KNOW THAT — The Mikel Cup will be raced for off Victoria Park on Sunday afternoon as a handicap challenge sailing race, sponsored by the Belleville Yacht Club? . . . That Broadcaster Ted Husing tacked the monicker "Harry the Horse" on Catcher Harry Danning of the Giants during the 1936 world series and it has stuck ever since? . . . And that in those days Harry worked like a horse and with about as much grace but today Danning is rated as the No. 1 receiver in the business? . . . That the reason for changing the City League softball play-off nights to Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday was deemed necessary because so many of the players have enlisted in the N.P.A.M.? . . . And that George Pepper, Belleville's gift to big-time motorcycle racing, is competing in meets in England over week-ends now, racing having been returned during those periods? . . . That the South Hastings League is seeking affiliation with the O.B.A. with "Doc" Empson and Dr. Harold Welsh, M. P. P. as the heads?

As the "Oilers" and Corby's advance into their O.A.S.A. playdowns and City League semi-finals all in one series of the best four-in-seven, it might be well to analyze these two clubs' averages as against each other. These two clubs met on three occasions during regular league schedule with the Oilers winning two to one. Strangely enough, however, after these two clubs had played three games there is only two runs difference in their score. On opening night, May 22, Johnnie Bawden beat the Corby's 6-5; on June 10 last Connie Harris blanked the Oilers and beat Eddie Schrieder 1-0 and in their last meeting the Oilers won 10 to 8. Thus we find the Oilers have scored 16 runs in three games as against the Corby's 14 counters. Now the big monied series opens on Tuesday and continues Wednesday and Thursday. Take your choice and lay down the peanuts. The Oilers have Johnnie Bawden and Eddie Schrieder to do their flinging, while Corby's have Connie Harris, Lum Carson and Freddie Vasil to do firing line duties.

By mutual agreement the Corby's and Oilers decided to play a best four-in-seven series with dual honors going to the ultimate winner. The team winning this series will advance into the intermediate "A" playdowns in the O.A.S.A. and also meet the winner of the Point Anne versus Uptown Junior playoffs in the Belleville City League finals. While the Oilers and Corby's are battling it out in a best-in-seven series, the Cementmen and Red Townsend's Juniors go at it in a best three-in-five series in the semi-finals. In the City League finals, between the Oilers-Corby's winner and the other series, a best-in-five series will be played with the Bank of Commerce Trophy going to the ultimate winners and champions. No games were played last night as the majority of the league players were training with the Argyll Light Infantry (N.P.A.M.) there being no less than eleven of the two intermediate clubs affiliated with the local military unit.

"Iron-Man Betsy" she's known as today, we mean Betsy Adams, petite pitcher for Zellers, who pitched and won her second game in as many nights when the Big-Z nine beat the Vikings 15 to 13 as the winners rallied offensively and defensively in the last two frames last night. The game was marked with some lusty clouting, notably Norma Maker's two circuit blows and Helen Garrow's mighty homer. However, the orchids go to Miss Adams for her yeoman work on the Zeller hilltop after she pitched and won over the Metres the night before. It was necessary to play the game at Queen Mary School grounds owing to the armouries and the Collegiate campus being utilized for military purposes. Actually the girls' league would be well advised to take a leaf out of the men's city softball loop and call it quits, insofar as their regular schedule is concerned. The girls could move right into their playdowns and play Tuesday and Thursday nights at the armouries and thus eliminate confusion of playing sites.

Do you remember when Tommy Farr, cocky British Empire heavyweight boxing champion, arrived in New York three years ago today to prepare for his bout with Joe Louis for the world title. Pre-fight gossip gave the Welshman little chance against the Detroit negro but Farr crossed critics by staying fifteen rounds. He lost the decision.

By an odd coincidence, the Cardinals' paid attendance at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, the day after the Fourth of July, the nation's birthday, was 1,776, the American independence year.

SPORT SPICE—As was suggested by this corner yesterday—nothing was done about the holding up of the purses of Armstrong and Jenkins. . . . Eddie Mead, Armstrong's manager, was suspended for sixty days, but only in the State of New York. . . . Apparently it doesn't take much to appease Chairman John J. Phelan and Company. . . . And the irony of the whole thing came when the Empire State Boxing Commissioners suggested Armstrong and Jenkins be rematched, tsh tsh. . . . The Yankees have shown their best form of the season since the warm weather descended upon them. This week they've beaten the Indians three straight and with the Tigers beating Boston, it's a real dog-fight in the American League these days. The hockey fans up around Kirkland Lake are endeavouring to make personal sacrifices in order to keep their Allan Cup champions intact for next winter. . . . The Sports Service League, an organization in Toronto to provide sports equipment for our soldier boys, is seeking to become a province-wide body in order to raise funds to meet the demands of the soldiers' needs for sports goods. . . . And Maurice Callaghan just called to remind us of the Mikel Cup sailing race tomorrow.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Babe Dahlgren, Yanks: His two homers highlighted Yankee attack in 16-5 win over Indians.

Tommy Bridges, Tigers: His seven hit hurling downed Boston 4-0.

Thornton Lee, White Sox: Held Senators to five hits as Chicago won, 9-1.

Johnny Berardino, Browns: Hit homer with one on in the ninth to beat A's 9-7.

Eddie Miller, Bees: His seventh inning single scored Johnny Cooney with winning run in 8-7 win over Reds.

Bill McGee and Martin Marion, Cards: Fiddler Bill scattered nine hits to win opener, and Marion singled home winning run in afterpiece, as Phils bowed twice.

WORLD TAKES BATHS

(Brandon Sun)

The American Medical Association News recently reported the discussion of bathing customers over the world, in which the researcher found that Parisians average a bath every four months, while in Moscow—where a bathtub costs more than a grand piano — the average is 18 months. If the people of this country sit smugly, the Nipponese sit snugly. Their equipment consists of a barrel-shaped wooden vat, narrow and round, that permits only of sitting or squatting for those who rail against small water heaters, it is a splendid country in which to bathe, for the usual Japanese bath is heated to a temperature of 120 degrees and cold baths are used only by penitents. In the deserts of Arabia, the researcher says a bath is always handy; one picks up a handful of sand and starts scrubbing. Democracy does have its advantages.

FIRE IN CHAPEL AT PENITENTIARY CAUSES DAMAGE

Blaze Noticed by Passing Guard and Kingston Dep't. Answers Call

INMATES QUIET

Kingston, July 20 (Special) — Sweeping through the Protestant Chapel at the Kingston Penitentiary, fire caused approximately $2,500.00 damage here last night. The fire thought to have started behind the altar, had made considerable headway before it was noticed by one of the guards.

Kingston firemen fought the blaze for three hours before bringing the flames under control. During the first hour, the firemen worked heroically keeping the flames under control so that other buildings would not catch fire.

The first alarm was sent in shortly before nine o'clock and one division of the Kingston Fire Department answered the call. Two lines of hose were played on the flames by the firemen, who fought the blaze until midnight before it was finally put out.

The fire was first noticed by a passing guard, as smoke started to roll from one of the windows. The alarm was immediately given and the Kingston Fire Department answered the summons. Guards worked with the firemen putting out the blaze.

It was reliably reported that the prisoners were exceptionally quiet for such a time. Usually during times of excitement there is a great deal of shouting and noise making but hundreds of spectators who gathered along the sidewalk outside the penitentiary stated that hardly any noise could be heard.

AT THE BELLE

"MY FAVORITE WIFE"

A sparkling treatment of the Enoch Arden story is the delightful basis of "My Favorite Wife", now on the Belle Theatre screen, with Irene Dunne and Cary Grant in the stellar roles.

Described as a sophisticated entertainment bristling with refreshing comedy from the opening scene to the final fade-out, "My Favorite Wife" has Miss Dunne, portraying Grant's wife, returning from a scientific exploration which met a sea disaster in which all members were declared lost. Her return is welcomed by Grant with astonishment, joy and apprehension—because he weds and leaves on his second honeymoon that very day.

By clever connivance, Grant manages to keep the news of Irene's return from Wife, No. 2. He immediately packs up the kissless bride, leaves the honeymoon hotel, and goes home where he again meets Irene, now posing as an old friend of the family.

The plot introduces a handsome explorer with whom Irene spent her seven-year absence on a South Sea island who now wants to marry her; all of which leads to a double skirmish along the romantic front—wife vs. bride for Grant, and explorer vs. Grant for Irene—which builds up to the whirlwind climax after a sparkling stream of exhilarating comedy and exciting romance.

"My Favorite Wife" offers rare opportunity for comedy expression to Miss Dunne and Grant. In the featured brackets, Randolph Scott and Gail Patrick, as the explorer and bride, top an excellent support which includes Ann Shoemaker, Donald MacBride, Granville Bates and two youngsters, Scotty Beckett and Mary Lou Harrington. A production by Leo "The Awful Truth", "Love Affair" McCarey), "My Favorite Wife" was directed by Garson Kanin, famed for his "A Man To Remember", "The Great Man Votes", and "Bachelor Mother". Bella and Samuel Spewack of "Boy Meets Girl" fame authored the screen play for this RKO Radio picture.

The feature comedy is augmented by the exhibition of a funny Edgar Kennedy comedy, "Mutiny In the County" and Walt Disney's funniest Donald Duck cartoon, "The Billposter".

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE WAY OF ALL FLESH"

In one of the most powerful and dramatic roles of his career, Akim Tamiroff is featured with Gladys George, William Henry and Muriel Angelus in the Paramount picture, "The Way of All Flesh", which will open next at the Capitol. In the role of Paul Kriza, happy husband and father, the cashier of a small town bank, Tamiroff is sent by his bank to New York to deliver $100,000 worth of securities to a client due to arrive from Europe. Apprised in advance of his mission, the leader of a band of crooks, greets him at his hotel and, through the allurements of Mary Brown, a beautiful but ruthless member of the gang—played by Muriel Angelus—he is brought to a dive where he is plied with liquor and then drugged and robbed of the securities. When the body of a man is found mangled beyond recognition on a railroad track, it is identified as that of Kriza, as his wallet and watch are lying beside the track. Tortured with remorse and shame he realizes that he must continue to be thought dead, as his return could bring nothing but humiliation and disgrace to those he loves. For fifteen years he remains a broken, despairing wreck, homeless and nameless. How he eventually achieves peace and resignation is dramatically visualized in the closing scenes of the picture.

On the same program is an added feature of action and thrills, "Making the Headlines", starring Jack Holt and Beverly Roberts. A Popeye cartoon closes the bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"ONLY ANGELS HAVE WINGS"

1939's greatest screen adventure—Cary Grant and Jean Arthur in "Only Angels Have Wings" plays a return engagement at the McCarthy Theatre next week. Most patrons who enjoyed its presentation the first time are anxious to again see this massive screen romantic drama, while to those who will see it for the first time . . . they are about to be thrilled as never before . . . as they watch this great motion picture story flash onto the screen. Few motion pictures of the past few years have combined the thrills, romance, emotional conflict and natural spectacle to be found in "Only Angels Have Wings" and for that reason "Only Angels Have Wings" is one of the few motion pictures in the class that offers two hours of perfect entertainment. In addition to the major roles played by Miss Arthur and Cary Grant, notable parts are also handled by a perfect cast of featured players including Richard Barthelmess, Rita Hayworth, Thomas Mitchell, Noah Beery Jr., and Sig Ruman. The program in addition to this feature presentation includes latest Fox News events and an excellent sport subject entitled "There Goes Rusty".

"Alias The Deacon",
"Telegraph Trail"

Bob Burns in the laugh hit "Alias The Deacon" and also John Wayne in the four star western "Telegraph Trail" plus a clever cartoon "Park Your Baby" and "Screen Snapshots" presenting your favorite screen stars at work and play, is the program now playing at the McCarthy Theatre for the last time.

SHINING WINDOWS

by Kathleen Norris ~

INSTALMENT 12.

At one o'clock on the following day, when her father and mother had left for the momentous town visit and when the simple lunch had been cleared away, Joyce found her writing paper and sat down in the kitchen to answer Paul's letter. She spent two hours on the fascinating job, nor did she grudge one moment of it! the afternoon was foggy, cool and quiet; the voices of the chickens sounded oddly significant, even ominous, in the surrounding stillness of the hills. Lissy had gone into town with her parents. Dodo and Ben had been taken as far as the village and were to be driven back by Swede Paarsen, the neighbor on the southeast, who had turned out to be friendly and helpful.

"I wonder if you'd give this little fellow something to eat?"

The unexpected voice, striking across the kitchen silence, brought her heart into her throat. She looked up. A thin shabby young man was standing in the kitchen doorway with a shivering puppy in his arms.

"I've not got anything he'll eat," he said in a pleasant apologetic tone. "I think he needs meat, or milk, or something. He's only a month old and he'll not touch cereals or vegetables."

Joyce was on her feet, had met dog and man halfway across the kitchen floor and had the puppy in her arms.

"Oh, poor little fellow! Are you hungry, puppy? I'll give you something to eat; there are soup bones here, and milk,—shall I put some cream on it?"

"I think perhaps some hot water—he's hardly more than a baby, don't you know?"

Joyce tipped the singing kettle, set a bowl before the trembling little dog, watched his small body quiver with eagerness as he noisily nosed into the warmed rich milk. When she glanced up the man was watching her rather than the dog, a smile on his thin brown face.

"I usually go down with Swede when I need meat," he explained as he and Joyce sat down at the kitchen table to wait for the puppy to finish his meal. "But like a fool I twisted my foot, raking, the other day and it's made me lazy."

"Shouldn't a doctor see your foot, perhaps?"

"Oh no, it's quite all right now. But I've run out of provisions meanwhile."

Joyce glanced at the cupboard.

"Did you have some lunch? There's some cold pork here, and biscuits; they're not very good. My sister and I made them and they sort of spread," Joyce offered in shy eagerness.

"I'd love it," the caller said. Excited and pleased, Joyce brought forth the cold food and the plates; added a tall glass of milk.

"Real food tastes good," the man said, eating hungrily. "I've been living on cereals and vegetables"

"Have you come far?" Joyce sat down opposite him at the table.

"No, about two miles," he said.

"About two miles from where?"

"Shack," he said with a jerk of his head backward toward the hills.

"What shack?"

"There's an old shack way up at the top of your woodlot."

"But do you live there?"

"Oh, kind of."

"Doing what?"

"Well—waiting for the fruit-picking to start," he said in a pleasant fine voice after a moment's hesitation. "Strawberries are about ready, then cherries and so on. They go on right to prunes and grapes."

"Is that what you do?"

"That's what I have been doing. I mean I did it last year, when Chuck Chickering was on this place. He went south when you came and I moved up to the cabin. You're one of the Bullards, aren't you?"

"Ballard. And what's your name?" Joyce asked flatly.

Mike Tallant. His name was Mike Tallant. He was about thirty, Joyce thought, about Archie Ross' age. He had a nice thin face all one tawny color, skin and eyes and hair and eyebrows all brown together. He wore an old brown sweater and worn corduroys and heavy old brown shoes.

Finishing his meal, he told her that he was English and had come to America with a doctor who wanted to work on some special research problems. And then he hadn't gone home because there was nothing much to take him home. He had drifted west. He had meant to write a book about labor conditions, but the world was so thoroughly rotten and people everywhere either morons or corrupt, that he had given it up.

"Which daughter are you—Swede's told me about you all," he ended his story with an abrupt and deliberate change of subject.

"Joyce."

"That's a good English name. I'd a cousin Joyce, once. And where do you come in?"

"I'm the youngest. Had you — back in England—sister and brothers?"

Michael Tallant got to his feet. He answered in a gentle steady tone:

"I had two brothers much older. And a sister Gill. Ronny and George didn't come back, in 'fifteen. Gill died the day her husband was killed. There was to have been a baby and she had 'flu anyway. That was that." He was going; they were in the doorway. "If you'll let me have some milk now and then we'll be eternally grateful," he said.

"Us? You haven't got a wife up there in the cabin?" Joyce demanded, diverted.

"Nope." His pleasant grin flashed again as he answered.

"And don't forget that really and truly we'd love you to use as much milk as you like. Until we get pigs anyway!" Joyce was laughing as she went back into the house to her unfinished letter. "You do have adventures in the country," she thought. "Or at least everything's so dull that you feel as if they were adventures. Somehow the littlest things seem to matter so and time goes so fast! I must write this to Paul!"

When the family arrived home two days later, at sunset, it was immediately apparent that the news was bad. Sally Ballard's face was very white; Lissy came into the kitchen on a burst of nervous tears and William Ballard, although he spoke cheerfully enough to the son and daughters assembled there, was plainly nervous.

Joyce and her father almost immediately went up to the barn for milk; she knew what had happened before he told her.

"It's all straightened out. I think your mother'll see it was wise some day, if she doesn't now."

"Oh, dad," Joyce said actually paling before the expected and yet freshly shocking fact, "did you give it all away?"

"I paid back all I owed!" he said cheerfully, stopping under the soft sunset sky to breathe deep. "Yes, Joyce, I'm free tonight—free as not one man in a hundred is free in this world. I've been in the trap and I'm free again!"

She walked along beside him.

"Then we stay here?" she asked with an odd sinking at her heart. Oh, they were all lovely, the hills and the trees and the orchards, and it was oddly thrilling to eat eggs fresh-laid and to drink milk that had never known a bottle, but it was frightening just the same. There was nothing to do!

"This is home now, Joyce. I get my deed in a day or two. I can't wait to get the old place into shape."

"What does mother say?"

"Oh, your mother'll come into line," William Ballard said comfortably, taking down the milking stool. "In time she'll see that we did a wise thing. We're dodging just what makes old age sad, Joyce. When she sees that — steady, boss, steady! Swede come up and look out for 'em?" he asked, of the cows.

"Oh yes, and always brought something. You'd think we were doing him a favor, not he doing us one. His wife sent up hot delicious fresh Swedish bread and cheese cake. Dad, shouldn't we pay him for helping, and how do you know how much?" Joyce asked, diverted for a moment from the thought of their own fortunes.

"I couldn't pay him a thing; I couldn't offer it!" her father said quickly. "People don't do it that way, here in these country places, Joyce. We'll have to wait until her baby comes, then you girls can go down and help; something like that."

"I—see," she said slowly, her eyes absent. And later, walking back to the house she repeated it; "I see. Things are different here. I can begin to see why older people like it, dad. Only, for young people there isn't much to do, is there?"

"There's everything to do!" William Ballard sang rather than said.

At dinner he told them the details. Sally Ballard listened with a face of sorely tried endurance. Ben's face said nothing but Lissy frowned slightly and curled her lip.

"It seems to me that perhaps your own children have as many rights as the McDonald children or the Cutlers, dad," she said patiently after a while.

"You have to do those things as they appear to you, Lissy," her father said. "You'll have decisions to make in your own life someday; you'll have to make them! Nobody can help you. I could see this only one way and I had to do it that way."

"So we don't have to house-hunt in Piedmont?" Dodo said dreamily. "It'll be funny, living here always. What'll we—what'll we do? There aren't any people we know, no movies and no riding clubs."

"For one thing, I think we ought to have dinner in the dining-room," Joyce said with animation. "Just because we're doing our own work is no reason why we should go native."

"Having dinner in the dining-room doesn't seem to me a life work," Ben said, and every one laughed.

"Frightful amount of work," Lissy contributed. "Carrying stuff in and out and always brushing up crumbs."

"All that can wait until we get some sort of maid," Mrs. Ballard who never could hold resentment or indeed any one idea on any subject long, said impatiently. "We shall just have to camp here like savages until daddy knows exactly what we have!"

Little Benny's Note Book

"I was starting to take a walk with pop, and Puds Simkins started to go passed, and he waved a small wave at me and I did the same thing back without either of us saying anything, and pop said, Well, I must say that was a sedate salute, you looked more like 2 tired old men greeting each other than a couple of effervescent boys.

Well there's a reason, pop, we're mad and we dont speak to each other, and it's only just today that we've got an unwritten agreement to wave at each other, but before that we weren't even waving, I said, and pop said, That's bad news and I'm sorry to hear it. When 2 small boys stop speaking to each other or when 2 big nations call home their ambassadors, the cause is just the same, it's always a case of misunderstanding and failure to see the other fellow's side, he said.

Then why couldn't he see my side? I said, and pop said, Because social blindness is contagious. And furthermore the seeds of bigotry grow like weeds. First you stop talking to your best friend. Later on you'll turn a deaf ear and a frozen face to your own children, and finely you'll be expert enough to refuse to mumble a word to anybody except yourself. So if you want to grow to manhood with a serene and peaceful face instead of a human war map of sour wrinkles, I advise you to speak to Puds as usual and leave him the doubtful satisfaction of not answering. What the dooce caused this break in relations in the first place? he said.

Do you mean what started it? I dont exactly remember, I said, and pop said, Yee gods let's call the whole thing off. I'll reform you some other time. Remind me to bring the subject up again the 2nd Tuesday after the Millenium, he said.

Being sourcastic and meaning what was a use?

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, July 20.—(CP)—Trading action was decidedly dull in the final session of the week on the Toronto Exchange today and prices remained steady on the whole. Only about 40,000 shares changed hands in the two-hour market.

Page-Hersey firmed 4 points to 97, Canada Cement Pfd advanced 5 points to 85 and Simpsons Pfd was up 4 points to 89. Montreal Power firmed a point and the other interlisted leaders, including the senior oils, C.P.R. and Ford A held unchanged.

Base Metal issues also showed slightly more strength than weakness Noranda gained a full point in slow action and Smelters gained 1-4 while Falconbridge advanced 1c cents to 2.45 Nickel and Pend Oreille slipped back narrowly.

Changes in the Gold group were limited to about 5 cents except for a gain of 10 cents for Pickle Crow. Preston and Reno were up narrowly and minor losses were netted by Pamour East Malartic and Kerr-Addison. Dome slipped back 1-2 to 19.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, July 20 (AP)—The buying urge again was too feeble to count for much in today's stock market and leading issues generally followed a narrowly irregular lower route.

Price changes, on the whole, however, were meaningless because of the continued slackness of dealings. The turnover of about 130,000 shares was one of the smallest for a Saturday in more than a year.

On the offside fractions to a point or so during most of the proceedings were Bethlehem, Chrysler, United Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, Eastman Kodak, Union Carbide, American Telephone, International Nickel and Pennsylvania.

Up a bit at one time or another were U.S. Steel, Goodyear, Woolworth, Du Pont, General Electric, Kennecott, Standard Oil of N.J. and Consolidated Edison.

Most issues in the Canadian section were fractions higher. Canadian Pacific, Walkers, Distillers Seagram and Lake Shore gained fractions while Dome lost 1-4. In the bond market Canada 4s were inactive.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, July 20 (CP)—Dressed weight were up 15 cents at Stratford in bacon-hog markets reporting early today. Prices were unchanged at Hull. London reported dressed weight would be quoted at $11.40 plus transportation starting Monday and that the market there would not take any stock today.

Live weigh—Hull $8.25.

Sling of Hay Tripped in Mow Falls on Injured Man

Madoc, (Special)—Thomas Hailstone, a resident of Madoc, while engaged in haying operations on the farm of Mr. John Fleming, Madoc Township, was seriously injured today when a hay fork of hay drawn into the mow tripped, falling on the man. Dr. Eagleson was called and the injured man was taken to Belleville General Hospital and it was found he was suffering from a broken neck and is considered in a serious condition. Hailstone is about 66 years of age and has resided in Madoc village for the past six years.

GORDON ROBERTSON CROWN ATTORNEY

By order-in-council of the Ontario Legislature, S. Gordon Robertson, Belleville barrister, was named as Crown Attorney for the County of Hastings for the duration of the war yesterday. The appointment of Mr. Robertson to this important law enforcing and legal prosecuting post was necessary following the calling for military duty of Lieut. Col. B. C. Donnan, K.C., who was appointed Commanding Officer of the 2nd Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment recently.

Before taking up residence and practicing in Belleville two years ago, Crown Attorney Robertson was connected with one of the largest law firms in Western Ontario, with offices in London and Windsor.

BUYERS SURPRISED TO SEE CORN ON MART

Lovers of corn on the cob, opened their eyes in amazement at the city market today when the first offering of the succulent vegetable made its appearance. Only a few dozen ears were offered by Mrs. Demille, Chatterton grower, and these were rapidly disposed of to eager market patrons.

The early date was said to be a near record by veteran vendors, as other growers will not have any corn available for some time yet.

The crop was planted on high land, and was carefully tended in order that the product could be placed on the market at the earliest possible date. Mrs. Demille was the first city market vendor to offer corn last year.

Eggs Take Sharp Drop As Export Ends

Weakened by surplus supplies, warmer weather and discontinuation of export business, egg prices took their sharpest slump in several months on the Toronto open produce market yesterday, losing 3c within a period of twenty-four hours.

During mid-afternoon Thursday, A-large eggs sold at 25c a dozen. At the close they declined to 24c. Yesterday morning the price had fallen to 23c and in the afternoon it took a further drop to 22c.

Egg production is running much heavier than last year. Until July 1, this increase in output was absorbed by the export market, but dealers now expect no further export business during the summer months. Earlier this year Canada made an agreement with Great Britain for the shipment of 6,000,000 dozen eggs at 25c per dozen, Montreal. This quota was more than filled by July 1, with total exports said to have reached 7,500,000 dozens. Outlook for the autumn was described by dealers yesterday as indefinite.

To clear their receipts, local traders are now dependent on domestic demand, which has almost disappeared because of last week's price advances and the advent of hot weather. Supplies arrived yesterday in fair volume, but trading was so slow that a moderately heavy surplus developed. A favorable factor, however, is that production will slacken as the temperature rises. Lower prices, moreover, may stimulate consumptive demand.

At yesterday's close, A-large eggs were selling very slowly at 22c, A-medium at 21c, A-pullets at 19c to 20c, Grade B at 18c and Grade C at 14c. Quotations to retailers were as yet unchanged. The Dominion Department of Agriculture's Toronto branch reported a slight pick-up in the volume of uninspected shipments to northern points.

The butter market was quietly steady. First-grade Ontario creamery solids sold at 22¾c. Demand showed a slight falling-off, but receipts were not heavy. Trading was on the slow side. Holders of Western butter asked 23¾c to 24c, but no sales were reported at this price.

New, large current-make cheese was unchanged on the wholesale market at 14c. Offerings were light and trading volume remained limited.

The poultry market has shown a little more activity during the current week due to shading of prices in an effort to keep receipts moving into consumer channels.

Veterans' Home Guard To Recruit Company

With the authorization of the Veterans' Home Guard to recruit another Company, of which one platoon of 40 men will be recruited in Belleville and surrounding community, veterans of the last Great War who saw active service in England or France, will be afforded an opportunity to once again serve their King and Country. And it will be a real opportunity that will be offered to veterans as all recruits will come under C.A.S.F. conditions, pay and allowances. It must be understood that this is a full time duty and not to be confused with local training.

Veterans taking advantage of this opportunity will leave for Ottawa during the latter part of next week, where they will go into training camps and will be issued with uniforms and equipment. Upon the completion of their training, Veterans' Home Guard units may be called upon to serve in the defence of Canada anywhere within the Dominion.

All veterans up to fifty years of age will be accepted in the medical categories of A, B or C, and potential recruits who are interested may apply to Captain E. O. Keeler, M.C., at the 34th. Battery, Church Street, Belleville. The Medical Board will pass applicants daily, from 9.30 a.m. until 5.00 p.m. until the complement of 40 men are recruited to complete the establishment.

HITLER READY

Fight to Last Extremity

The Times summed up the issue by declaring that Hitler had admitted the "perfunctory" nature of his offer by failing to mention any terms on which peace is possible, and added:—

"We can do no other than fight to the last extremity."

German planes struck at southeast and southwest Scotland and southwest England early this morning, continuing a series of raids which yesterday produced one of the greatest aerial battles of the war.

Bombs were dropped on several towns in today's raids, and at one point a German plane was reported to have machine-gunned civilians on a railway platform. The Air Ministry said that a number of houses had been destroyed and reported "some casualties" but no deaths.

Two Raiders Shot Down

Two of the raiders were shot down, bringing to fifteen the number of Nazi craft destroyed in the past twenty-four hours.

Ten German planes were shot down yesterday when thirty British fighters engaged an enemy formation of 120 aircraft over the channel, and three others were downed by anti-aircraft fire. At least seven fighters were among the Nazi planes destroyed.

British planes also continued forays against German bases, executing daylight attacks yesterday on barge concentrations near Rotterdam and Boulogne and on warhouses at Le Havre. Naval bases at Emden, Willemsoord and Harlingen, as well as airdromes and oil depots further inland also were bombed, the Air Ministry reported.

German Sea Raider Sought

The Royal Navy was confronted with a new problem when it was announced that a German sea raider is "at large in the Atlantic" after sinking two British merchant ships—the 5,228-ton St. John and 6,433-ton Davisian—near the West Indies. The raider was believed by the Admiralty to be a converted merchantman.

The government meanwhile, designated Lt.-Gen. Sir Alan Brooke as commander-in-chief of the home forces to succeed Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside.

Sir Alan, first Great War hero, who saw action with the British forces in France in the current war is an expert on gunnery and machinery and has played a large part in mechanizing the army.

Gen. Ironside, Field Marshal

Gen. Ironside was elevated to Field Marshal and kept on the active list, it was explained, "to be available either in an advisory capacity or in command." It was his second shift in two months. On May 26 he was replaced by Lt.-Gen. Sir John Dill as chief of staff, a post he had held since the start of the war. There was a general agreement that Hitler's utterances had not changed the situation so far as Britain's attitude is concerned. Said the Liberal News Chronicle:

"Hitler speaks in vain. We expect his 'last appeal to common sense' to be followed by action against this country. We are prepared to meet it and strike back."

The Daily Mail called the speech "pure propaganda," and the Herald, borrowing a phrase used 12 hours before by President Roosevelt in warning the United States not to be caught unprepared, said it was "a false lullaby of appeasement." The Herald also said that Churchill "probably" would comment on the speech in the House of Commons next Tuesday.

POLITICAL CRIME

Only last night Hallett Abend, correspondent for the New York Times, was beaten in his apartment in Japanese-occupied Hongkong by two armed Japanese who seized a number of pieces of manuscript after demanding all his "anti-Japanese writings."

Acting Consul-General Richard P. Butrick of the United States protested today to the Japanese Consul General, demanding an apology, compensation and assurance against repetition of the incident. Abend said it was the fourth time in three years that ruffians had broken into his home.

Refers To Murder.

Keswick's appeal for aid, written before he learned of the attack on Abend, referred to the "horrible murder" yesterday of Samuel H. Chang (Chang Shih-Hsueh), American-educated Chinese prominent in business and newspaper circles, and the bombing last Tuesday of the offices of Shunpao, pro-Chiang Kai-Shek Chinese daily newspaper.

Keswick called attention to the recent order of Wang Ching-Wei, head of the Japanese-sponsored "Central Government of China" at Nanking for arrest and deportation of six Americans and one Briton and also mentioned a "blacklist" drawn up by the Nanking regime.

Chang, one of a number of prominent persons on the "blacklist", was a director of the Shanghai Evening Post and Mercury and superintendent of agencies of the Asia Life Insurance Company, both headed by C. V. Staff, one of the six Americans mentioned in Wang Ching-Wei's order.

Another of the Americans, Norwood F. Allman, is a director of Shunpao as well as a member of the municipal council.

Keswick's appeal declared that municipal authorities were unable to check the terroristic attacks which he said were evidence that "Shanghai today is a prey to warring factions who pay no regard to the sanctity of human life and are prepared to adopt any and every means to attain their objectives."

MANY EVACUEES

Most of the passengers—returning Canadian, English, French, Jewish refugees—were children, babes in arms, toddlers and students in their early teens. There were 125 children of faculty members of Oxford University, where they will spend the duration of the war.

First, however, the youngsters will rest up here at McGill University before continuing their journey. Some of them later will go to Swathmore University in Pennsylvania.

Plans To Study Science

Many of the students brought gas-mask containers—just as a souvenir, you know." The masks were taken by British authorities upon their departure from England.

One of the youngsters, Stephen Handfield-Jones, 12, has decided already how he will spend his time at Yale. "I plan to study science," said Stephen. And he had a microscope along with him to prove it.

Ian Dunn, who is "going on 13" said some of the students thought the voyage "disappointing" due to a lack of excitement. But it was a "fair trip," he conceded.

A desire to remain in Canada because he liked to be in "a country at war" was expressed by 15-year-old Samuel Ellis. Hands stuffed in the pockets of his tweed coat, he told reporters he thought Canadian weather was "typically English." A slow drizzle of rain had began falling as the trains pulled into the station.

Bancroft

Bancroft—Mrs. Archie Harvey, who was confined to the Bancroft Hospital at Bancroft after a major operation returned to her home at Hermon last Wednesday accompanied by Miss Hamilton of Mountain View, who was Mrs. Harvey's special nurse. Miss Doris Williams, of Belleville was Mrs. Harvey's other special, while in the local hospital.

Recruiting in Bancroft commenced this week under the supervision of Major H. C. Babcock of Napanee for the non-permanent militia for Home Defence.

The Right Reverend John Lyons, Bishop of Ontario while in the vicinity of Bancroft last weekend remained over at Maynooth Monday to have a day's fishing. In company with Mr. Daniel Goodwin of Maynooth they proceeded to Papineau Lake and their fishing exploit met with extreme success as the Bishop was fortunate enough to catch and land a twenty-five pound lake trout which measured thirty-seven inches in length and had a girth of twenty-two inches. The fish proved quite gamely despite its size and gave battle for over a half an hour. Three other trout were caught in the day's catch. Bishop Lyons returned to Kingston with his fine exhibit.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Wigmore, of London, motored to Bancroft Tuesday returning the following day after having a short visit with their daughter, Miss Wigmore who is a nurse at the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wiggins and Mr. and Mrs. John Wiggins motored to Toronto Tuesday returning Thursday evening after attending Masonic Grand Lodge.

HITLER IS CALLED

'Pep Talk' to Germans

"As there is no chance that the British will voluntarily subject themselves to the advocate of such policies before they have been actually defeated, and as Hitler must be fully aware of this fact, his speech can only be regarded as another one of his periodic 'pep talks' to strengthen German morale before embarking on the most difficult and costly campaign of the war."

The New York Times said:

"In form and in substance, Hitler's ultimatum yesterday was 'mixture as before'. Is bristled with arrogance and with the worship of brute force. It contained the same falsifications of history which have come from Hitler on past occasions. It professed the same sweet reasonableness, the same 'disgust' with a continuance of the bloodshed and suffering which he deliberately loosed upon the world last September. It was another attempt to undermine the morale of the enemy, to weaken his willpower, to provoke a revolution of opinion in Britain which would give victory to Germany without a long and costly struggle.

"But there is one overwhelming difference between this ultimatum and its predecessors. This time Hitler has proved what even the blindest can see: that his war machine is the most powerful instrument of destruction and terror in the history of modern Europe. He has proved that he can crush more than Poland, more than Norway, more than the little low countries. He has demonstrated that a great power like France can be defeated and broken in a single month of battle. His boasts and his warnings of doom now have a terrible reality which they did not have before.

FIVE CARLOADS OF MACHINERY LAND IN PICTON

Shovels, Caterpillar Tractors and Crushers Being Moved to New Training Field

MUCH ACTIVITY

Picton, July 20—Five carloads of machinery, including steam shovels, caterpillar tractors and crushers, arrived in Picton on Friday and are being set up on the site near the town where a bombing and gunnery school will be located under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

More machinery is expected next week end. Work of clearing and levelling the land, building of runways, will be rushed to completion. The contractor is the King Paving Co. of Oakville, Ont.

At the Mountain View site there is much activity. The contractors, McFarlane Construction Co. of Picton, have machinery set up. Some sacrificing has been done and over a hundred trees felled during clearing operations. Men engaged in the work are living in tents.

It is announced that erecting of buildings on these sites will start soon and be completed by October. They will be numerous when they are erected and house several thousand men.

Succumbing to the wiles of Muriel Angelus, Akim Tamiroff has wandered from the straight and narrow in "The Way of All Flesh," next at the Capitol. Gladys George and William Henry also have featured roles.

Oshawa Youths Land in City After Jumping Freight At Home

Taken in Tow by Trenton and Airforce Police and Delivered to Parents

TIRED AND DIRTY

Trenton, July 20 (Special)—Looking for adventure two Oshawa youngsters found too much yesterday and ended up by being placed in the hands of the local police.

The two boys ages twelve and ten years of age, wanted to have a ride on a freight train. So yesterday afternoon they crept into an open box car in the Oshawa railway yard for a short ride to Bowmanville. They intended to leave the train there and hitch hike back to their home town.

However the train did not stop in Bowmanville nor did it even slow down. The first stop was at the coal chutes east of Belleville and so the boys were forced to stay on the fast moving freight until it reached the coal chutes.

Leaving the freight car, the boys kept out of view of the railway police and made their way to Highway 2, where they obtained a ride with a man going to the Trenton Air Station. Waiting in front of the station for another ride, the boys were picked up by the Airforce police and taken to the Trenton Police Station.

Telephone Oshawa

Weary, dirty and hungry, the two boys informed the police of their adventure and where they had come from. Sgt. Wm. Probert immediately telephoned the Oshawa police who in turn contacted the parents. Later the police journeyed from Oshawa with the parents to return the children to their homes.

Sgt. Probert provided the two boys with a meal and they rested comfortably at the station until the arrival of the Oshawa Police.

Telling of their adventure the boys stated that they had only climbed on the box car for a short ride. "We wanted to see what it was like to ride on a box car but we didn't expect to get this far" said the eldest boy. "The train was going too fast to get off so we just had to stay on until we got to Belleville."

Hardly able to keep his eyes open, the younger of the two, stated that he was through riding the rods. "From now on, I will find something to do at home, without jumping freight trains."

During the ride, the boys had crept in behind some scrap iron to keep out of the wind "It wasn't cold but the wind was hard on the eyes, so we stayed behind the iron" said the elder boy.

R.C.A.F. Scores Win.

Defeating the Benedict Proctor 14 to 3 here last night, the R.C.A.F. finished their league schedule in first place of the Trenton Softball League. The loss put the Benedicts out of the running as they finished their schedule in fifth place and out of the playoffs.

In spite of the fact that this was their fourth game in four consecutive days, the Flyers showed plenty of form and handled the Benedicts with ease. They started in the second frame by collecting six runs, and added four more in the third before the Benedicts could score. In the last of the third, the B. and P. team scored two runs and then added another in the fourth. The Flyers collected a single in the fifth, two in the eighth and one in the ninth.

Farr on the mound for the Flyers allowed but five hits to the Benedicts and struck out five, in one of his best efforts of the year. Free hurling for the Benedicts allowed ten hits and struck out two.

Legris and Caton with three hits, a double and two singles, each, were the most potential batters for the winners. Wannamaker with three singles was easily best for the Benedicts.

GENERAL CRERAR TO ASSUME POST

New Vice Chief of General Staff Has Had Distinguished Career

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 20—(CP)— Plenty of work awaits Maj.-Gen. Henry Duncan Crerar, Vice-Chief of the General Staff, who arrived Friday at an Eastern Canadian port enroute to the capital to take up his responsible duties at national defence headquarters.

In assuming this new post General Crerar brings to defence headquarters the knowledge and experience gained in seven months of intimate contact with the war office in London and the British high command.

Superimposed on a distinguished record in the first Great War, long service in the permament force and studies at the staff college, Camberley, Eng., and the Imperial Defence College, London, this experience fits him for the task of sharing in leadership, organization and training of many thousands of Canadians who will don khaki in the next few months.

Planning And Hard Work

Organization of two divisions of the Canadian Active Service Force, last September imposed a heavy burden on defence headquarters. Mobilization of practically two more divisions within the last few months heightened activity and now the plan to put every able-bodied Canadian of military age through a course of militia training means more planning and hard work.

The post of Vice-Chief of the General Staff is a new one. In it General Crerar will relieve Maj.-Gen. T. V. Anderson, Chief of the General Staff, of much of the onerous detail devolving on him.

General Anderson has been at his desk steadily and often seven days a week since the start of the war. From now on he will be able to devote more time to the primary function of his appointment, advising the Minister of National Defence on technical military matters. He will have more time for the consideration and discussion of matters of major policy.

Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of an army corps in England, who led the 1st division overseas, and General Crerar went through the last war as artillery officers. Both at different times served as counter-battery officer for the Canadian corps.

Crerar Native of Hamilton

General Crerar, 52, was born in Hamilton, Ont. he graduated from the Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., in 1909 and won the Distinguished Service Order for his services in the last war. From that time on he has been in the permament force.

He served as Professor of Tactics at R.M.C. and passed a term as Director of Military Operations and Intelligence at Defence Headquarters.

When the present war broke out he was R.M.C. Commandant and had just inaugurated a series of important reforms there to bring courses more in line with the demands modern war imposes on commissioned officers.

U.S. CAMPAIGN TO BE DIFFERENT

President Roosevelt Not Likely to 'Stump Country' – as in Former Campaigns

Washington, July 20 (AP).—This year the United States election campaign is going to be "different".

Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee, may follow the traditional routine and stump the country. But Franklin D. Roosevelt, on the basis of present plans, will divide most of his time this summer and fall between Washington and his Hyde Park, N.Y., home.

And what the president has to say to the voters will be transmitted, according to existing schedules, more through the press and radio than from the rear platform of a campaign train or in public auditoriums.

Much as Mr. Roosevelt likes to travel, he told the Democratic convention in his speech accepting a third term nomination that "the president in these days" must "remain close to the seat of government".

As to the president's acceptance of the nomination there came continued third term criticism, predictions of Democratic bolts to Willkie, and also assertions the third-term issue would be unimportant.

International affairs and the preparedness program, Mr. Roosevelt said made it necessary for him to remain near Washington, and hence the approaching campaign would be "different" in some respects from the "usual national campaigns of recent years".

No Pretense of Noble Motive.

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 20 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie settled back into his vacation routine today after declaring, in a brief address at Denver, he would "make no pretense of noble motives" in seeking the presidency.

"I frankly sought the opportunity to run for president on the Republican ticket because I have some deep-seated convictions I want to present to the American people and which, if I am elected, I want to carry into execution," the nominee said.

Willkie made the talk while a luncheon guest yesterday at the Denver Union stockyards. He conferred informally with cattle and sheep men and visited a beet sugar plant, the Federal Veterans' Hospital near Denver, and an 80-acre beet, melon and corn farm before flying back to Colorado Springs. He said he planned to get a "good rest" over the week-end.

Cairo Communique

Cairo, July 20 (AP) —The Middle East Command of the Royal Air Force today issued the following statement:

"Mersa Matruh (Western Egypt) and the neighborhood were raided during the day and night of July 18 and 19. An enemy bomber crashed and caught fire. Five of the crew were killed and the wireless operator taken prisoner.

"R.A.F. bombers raided El Gubbi [illegible] and five large fires were started.

[illegible]ing in Tobruk Harbor (Libyan naval base) was bombed. Some [illegible] were registered, but extent of the damage is not yet known.

"In a raid on Neghelli airdrome by the South African air force one incendiary bomb hit an enemy bomber, which burst into flames becoming a total wreck.

"Other bombs did extensive damage to another Italian bomber and two more probably are unserviceable.

"A petrol dump was brown up and a building set alight. Several enemy aircraft were parked near the spot of the explosion.

"Agordat airdrome near Assab Bay on the Red Sea was raided. Three S-81 planes on the ground were severely damaged and direct hits were made on hangars already damaged by a previous raid. When our aircraft left the whole area was obscured by smoke.

"Two raids also were carried out against nearby Macaaca airdrome buildings, direct hits on the camp causing considerable damage. From all operations under review, our aircraft returned without loss."

ONLY GIRL SPORTS CARTOONIST

Until things began to happen in Hollywood, the art of sports cartooning was considered one profession at least, that was the exclusive possession of the male sex, but women in Hollywood have entered many a former masculine stronghold, and Jeane Hofmann, of the movie capital, who works on a newspaper there has the distinction of being the only woman sports cartoonist, sports writer. She is pictured knocking off a story while on the right is a sample of her work.

FARLEY AGAIN IN SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

Confirmation that Postmaster-General James A. Farley, present national chairman of the Democratic party, will take over the world's champion New York Yankees, places the former New York state boxing commissioner again in the sports spotlight. The announcement was made by H. Garrison Silleck, Jr., an executor of the estate of Col. Jacob Ruppert, former owner, who said Farley heads the syndicate to which the ball club is being sold. Farley's picture is superimposed over a photo of the Yankee stadium.

Before passing the wind-swept Atlantic gateway to and from Canada, boats from all parts of the world must undergo a close inspection by officers of the Royal Navy. A lieutenant of the R.C.N. is shown, RIGHT, as he boards a freighter, his brief case slung over his shoulder. Inside the skipper's cabin. UPPER LEFT, the ship's officers tell all about their vessel. When the young examining officer has finished his job there will be no doubt as to whether the visitor is a friend or foe. The formalities of examination completed, the boarding party rolls away while the incoming freighter, LOWER LEFT, slowly moves towards the harbor. Within a few seconds shore batteries, naval authorities and all others responsible for the defence of the harbor will know that the visitor has received a clean bill of health.

Cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni

The Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni, rated as the world's fastest cruiser, was sunk by the Australian cruiser Sydney in a naval engagement in the Mediterranean off the island of Crete. With a speed of only 32.5 knots, compared to the Italian vessel's speed of 40 knots, the Sydney, with an escorting destroyer, attacked the Bartolomeo Colleoni and another cruiser. The second Italian cruiser fled the scene of battle with the British in pursuit.

Umpire [illegible] calls the play. Hale tried to come home on Feller's hit to Henrich in right. Henrich made a perfect [illegible] to nip Hale at the plate and retire the side.

Frossoula is Third Ship Flying Flag of an American Republic to be Sunk in Present War — Frossoula, 220-Foot Freighter, Owned by J. E. Vardavas and Company, According to Lloyd's Register

London, July 22 (CP)—A ship identified as the 1,282-ton Frossoula, of Panama registry, was sunk by German bombers last week, an authoritative source said today, adding it is feared there was a "heavy loss of life."

The ship was bombed the night of July 15, about 258 miles northwest off Cape Finisterre, Spain, in "very bad weather," this source said. Its last port of call was Barcelona.

Eighteen of the crew left in two boats, one in charge of the ship's master, the other in command of the chief officer. Nothing more has been heard from the captain's boat, it was said.

The source also said that those in the chief officer's boat suffered "terrible hardships." Some were washed overboard and others died of exposure.

After four days three survivors reached a British port. They were the Portuguese chief officer, the second engineer, a Greek, and a seaman who is also a Greek.

The Frossoula is the third ship flying the flag of an American Republic to be sunk in this war.

The Argentine freighter Uruguay was torpedoed May 28 within 100 miles of the spot where the Frossoula went down. Another Panamanian freighter, the Santa Margaritta was torpedoed off the Spanish coast by a German U-boat July 2.

Lloyd's register of shipping lists the Frossoula as a 220-foot freighter, owned by J. E. Vardavas & Co.

Rochester, N.Y., July 22.—(AP)—Thirty-five sailing yachts embarked today from Charlotte Harbor on the 123-mile Freeman Cup race of the Lake Yacht Racing Association, a trophy held by White Wings of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club. There was very little breeze.

The course is across Lake Ontario to Main Duck Islands, around a buoy off Stoney Island in Canadian waters and return to the finish line at the Channel entrance to Sodus Bay.

The longer race is preliminary to a series of shorter events scheduled for three days starting Thursday. Last year White Wings made the distance of 130 miles in 30 hours and 27 minutes and 13 second actual time.

Winston Churchill is Called The Incorporation of Britain

British Premier and Hitler Symbols of Struggle Going on in the World

D. THOMPSON HEARD

Montreal, July 22 (CP)—If Hitler has made himself the incorporation of Germany, so Winston Churchill is really the incorporation of Britain, and "those two men are the very symbols of the struggle going on in the world," Dorothy Thompson declared in a radio address last night.

The noted American newspaperwoman and commentator spoke over the National network of The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"On the one side is the furious, unhappy, frustrated and fanatic figure who has climbed to unprecedented power on the piled-up bodies of millions of men, carried and pushed upward by revolutionary forces, supported by vast hordes of youth crying destruction to the whole past of civilized man."

This "fanatic figure" had seized a province here and a province there, climbing ever upward on "the mountain of blood and steel" until he could see all the kingdoms of the world.

"He looked across at Britain, and was satisfied. Britain was ruled by business men and bureaucrats. They were cautious men. The business men thought in terms of conferences and negotiations. They were decorous and they were old . . . . "But in England there was a man."

This man no longer young, although still youthful with the youthfulness of those who have done what they wanted to do and have been happy. He had retired after an active life, and was looking forward to a quiet time, farming and painting.

Mechanized Fire-Fighters and Parachutists Quell 500 Forest Fires

Missoula, Mont., July 22 (AP)—Mechanized columns of fire-fighters, aided by parachutists, gradually quenched more than 500 forest fires in three northwestern states today.

Forestry officials reported "sensational progress" by between 4,000 and 5,000 trained workers disposed by automobile and truck along a 200-mile fire front extending from eastern Washington, through parts of Idaho and into western Montana.

Supply trucks were dispatched from Missoula to hastily established base camps, and other trucks were sent out from Spokane, Wash., to battle 542 blazes set by "dry lightning"—lightning without rain.

Parachutists dropped by airplane extinguished many blazes before they had got well underway. Two-way radios kept the 'chutists informed of new fires and they proceeded rapidly from place to place.

A fire inspector said "we've had remarkably good luck" in quelling the blazes.

"The men were highly successful in reaching many places before the fires had time to envelop huge acreages, and they hit them hard."

J. K. Blair, fire assistant in the Wenatchee National Forest in Washington, said fire-fighters in that region controlled 44 lightning-set forest fires within 24 hours.

"Three fires were started at El Gubbi as a result of the bombing, one being seen over 80 miles away.

"Tobruk shipping was damaged, fires were caused on a jetty and a direct hit was registered on a large crane.

"Military targets at Bardia, eastern Libyan port, also were attacked successfully.

"The enemy carried out bombing raids on Sidi Barrani, Sollum, Mersa Matruh and Fuka.

"There were no R.A.F. casualties and damage was very slight.

"In the Sudan, R.A.F. bombers pressed home a determined attack on the Asmara airdrome and surrounding buildings. Bombing was accurate and direct hits were registered on a group of three hangars and buildings.

All Return Safely

"All our aircraft returned safely

"Barentu airdrome, midway between Kassala and Massawa, also was attacked. An ammunition dump and naval stores at Assab twice were raided with some success.

"Aircraft of the South African air force and a southern Rhodesian squadron carried out valuable reconnaissances over the widest area, at the same time attacking any motor transport or other military targets discovered.

"A formation of Italian bombers, supported and protected by a large force of fighters, raided Malta twice.

"One bomber was believed to have been vitally hit by anti-aircraft fire.

"Subsequently one of our aircraft while searching for a disabled enemy bomber, was attacked by two enemy fighters, one of which was shot down, the other making off."

Britons Dance to 'Swing' Music, Joke Over Bomb Dangers

Even Hold Winner - Take - All Sweepstake Draws on Air Raid Alarms to Relieve Monotony of Nation Under Air Attack—A P Writer Describes Scenes in 'Cheerful' England

By MILO THOMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, July 22 (AP). — Swing music, quips as to the danger of German bomb hits, and winner-take-all sweepstakes draws on air raid alarms are spicing the monotony of England under aerial siege.

While scattered bombers raked the island, I set out to survey the wartime life of Britons whom the Germans describe as "quaking" at Hitler's threats and so fearful of "fifth columnists" that they sometimes shoot each other.

I went into a rural "pub" on the exact spot which was a target of German raiders in the last war. The door opened into a dark vestibule and, drawing aside the heavy blackout curtains, I witnessed a strange spectacle.

Instead of solemn groups huddled in gloom, I saw scores of couples executing a lively form of swing on the dance floor, while a band played jazz hits. Men grouped about the bars were singing vociferously.

I stepped outside, expecting darkness. Instead, the blackedout street scene was brilliantly, eerily lit by a parachute flare drifting to earth.

Far above, I could hear the drone of planes but still came the blare of the jazz band and the sound of stamping feet.

A factory worker told me that his plant nearby has an electric clock system which stops the moment an air-raid alarm sounds, and that the workers have sweepstakes in which they draw the minutes in an hour at sixpence (about 10 cents) each. The winner takes all as they troop to shelters.

At a London private ballroom, I found a gay "flannel dance" in progress—so called because it is permissible to attend in cricket or boating flannels.

An interesting sidelight of the war is the education it is giving ears. Listening for the distinctive heterodyne beat of German motors in the sky, one becomes supersensitive to sounds, and many wagers are laid on the kind of vehicle passing on a distant road or the number of planes in a flight somewhere far overhead.

The slogan of the English is "be ready, keep cheerful." There are plenty of signs they are doing both

TRANSYLVANIAN ISSUE

Bucharest, July 22—(AP)— Rumania's newly-won pledges of support from the Rome-Berlin axis are about to receive their first test, it was reported here today, as a result of a note from Moscow emphasizing Russian interest in a "popular government" for King Carol's monarchy.

NAZI NEWSPAPER BLAMES 'F.D.R.'

Says to 'Gigantic Extent' He is Responsible for 'Adamant British Attitude'

Berlin, July 22—(AP by radio)—President Roosevelt is described by the editor of the Frankfurther Zeitung as "to a gigantic extent responsible" for the present "adamant British attitude."

The newspaper, the radio said today, blames Roosevelt for the "illusions still prevailing" in Britain with regard to foreign reaction to Hitler's speech and said, "The world at large, apart from England, understood correctly the reasons which induced the Fuehrer to make this last and stirring appeal."

"Roosevelt is the man who ought to hang his head if the appeal to reason is to end in the destruction of England," said the newspaper.

"Now that he wants to be elected, he openly admits that he systematically agitated for years against National Socialism. For seven years it (the United States Government) has agitated and nourished many illusions among those whose belief in active help from America has been their strongest hope. France until the day of her collapse, in England still today."

CONGRATULATES GOV'T.

London, July 22 (C).—Prime Minister Churchill today sent the following cable to Prime Minister R. G. Menzies of Australia in connection with the sinking of H.M.A.S. Sydney of the Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni:

"Please accept and also convey to the Australian Naval Board, my warmest congratulations upon the brilliant action fought by H.M.A.S. Sydney in the Mediterranean, which recalls the most opportune exploit of her predecessor in the sinking of the Emden in the last war."

Approval of the petitions was regarded as a foregone conclusion and the Union was accepted as an already accomplished fact.

Festive crowds danced and paraded in the streets of Riga and dispatches from the Estonian and Lithuanian capitals of Tallinn and Kaunas told of similar celebrations.

Three Negroes were involved in the first assault and two in the second. Robert B Smith of suburban Forest Hill said he met the three men downtown and gave them a lift in his automobile. They demanded his money and hit him when he refused. He was treated at hospital for a black eye, cut lip and broken teeth. One dollar was taken from him.

Harold Burk of Bradford, Ont., told police he picked up two Negroes in his car and they punched him, took $8 and his personal papers and fled.

Chief Fraser said in appealing for aid, Desormeau entered the bush near Mattawa carrying a small lunch. Two search parties failed to locate him.

HITLER DISTURBS NAZIS BY THREAT AGAINST BRITAIN

Nazis Show Signs of Fear When They Face Nation That Exhibits No Fear

SUMMERTIME FACTOR

British People Are Not Worrying Over Colossal Problem Facing Hitler Should He Attempt Invasion

By GUY RHOADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Increased evidence of Nazi nervousness over the threat to "annihilate" Britain appeared today in Berlin circles close to the government.

German sources described as "authorized" said Hitler was awaiting an "official" British answer before attempting to launch his blitzkrieg against the United Kingdom.

Germans said also it was possible their chief would delay the assault even after receiving an answer, hoping the British public might disavow Prime Minister Churchill's leadership.

The British press and the people generally considered that Mr. Churchill had answered Hitler's threats in advance when he made his radio address a week ago

Churchill's Last Comments

Mr. Churchill reaffirmed Britain's determination to fight from town to town, from street to street and if necessary from shore to shore across the empire until Nazidom is vanquished and freedom re-established in countries which enjoyed it before the German menace began its sweep across Europe.

Whether the German government actually believed it could influence British opinion favorably by this new "peace offensive" was not clear, but it was considered possible Berlin might think so in view of the complete lack of understanding it has shown toward the British mentality on other occasions.

No Very Effective Damage

The Nazi regime which was founded on terror seems to find itself in a position of acute uneasiness when it is confronted by a nation which shows no exhibition of fear.

Hitler and his colleagues have been fulminating against Britain and threatening her with destruction for months, without being able to cause any very effective damage.

Each time the mailed fist is raised Britain is given "another chance," such as Friday's "last appeal to reason" which was supposed to precede a smashing blow at the little island fortress.

No observer believes these warnings will continue much longer, because if they do the summer will be over and the season for transporting troops across the English channel by the means the Germans say they have devised will be lost.

The channel in the autumn and winter is one of the world's ugliest stretches of water for small craft, and Hitler's high command is reported to have assembled barges, small steamships and tugs for the landing operation.

Rumors Over German Plans

Presumably this flotilla would be preceded by a fleet of minesweepers and supported by aircraft and artillery from the south side of the channel, but artillery and aircraft could not be expected to win and a huge landing force would have to be sent across.

Britain now has a highly trained and well equipped army of roughly 1,500,000 men with a home defence force of about 1,000,000. This force would have to be met by one of equal strength, or by some "secret weapon" which would add striking power to the attackers.

"Britons consider this constitutes a colossal problem for Hitler. They are inclined not to worry about it on the grounds that it is his headache, not theirs.

British is Impregnable Fortress Smuts Declares in Broadcast

Cape Town, July 22—(CP-Reuters)—Prime Minister Smuts Sunday proclaimed the Empire's faith in ultimate victory in a special broadcast to the United Kingdom and the United States.

"Britain will prove to be an impregnable fortress against which Germany's might will be launched in vain," General Smuts declared.

"If that attack fails Hitler is lost," he said.

If he did not venture to attack Britain the Fuhrer also would be lost for "the combination of sea power and air power which balked him at Dunkerque would then be turned in victorious offensive against Hitler.

Against the spectre of a Nazi-dominated Europe which would result from a German victory, General Smuts envisaged a British victory which would mean peace, ensuring "a free Europe, free for the individual and for the nation."

Admiralty Also Announces Loss of 1,360-Ton Destroyer Brazen by Enemy Air Attacks While Being Towed to Port — R.A.F., Although Outnumbered, Beat Off Nazi Air Attacks Over Britain

London, July 22—(CP)—Bomb-and-run German raiders kept up harassment of the British Isles today while Britons anticipated an emphatic "no compromise" reply from their government tonight to Hitler's "last chance" peace overture.

With Nazi bombs exploding in widely scattered areas, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax arranged a speech expected to reiterate what Prime Minister Churchill has said repeatedly—that Britain will fight on to victory.

The broadcast is scheduled for 9:15 p.m. (4:15 p.m. EDT). Mr. Churchill may follow it up with a statement of his own on the same subject when he addresses the House of Commons tomorrow.

Dornier 17 Shot Down

One Dornier 17 was shot down in flames, bringing to 30 the bag of raiding craft downed since Saturday.

The Ministry of Home Security said some casualties were inflicted during incendiary bomb attacks on three towns in Scotland, but that property damage was slight.

The Admiralty announced the loss of the 1,360-ton destroyer Brazen, sunk while being towed to port after being damaged in an air attack. Even as she lay foundering, the Brazen got in some blows of her own. The Admiralty announced her blazing pom-poms blasted three of her attackers from the skies.

London, July 22—(CP) — Labor Minister Ernest Bevin, speaking today at the first "munitions concert" in an English factory, called his audience "mates" and paid tribute to their "marvellous output."

The minister inaugurated a nationwide lunchtime musical concert plan designed to increase munitions production.

PREMIER HEPBURN GOES TO OTTAWA

With Attorney General Will Confer With Minister of National Defence

St. Thomas, Ont., July 22—(CP) —Premier M. F. Hepburn will leave for Ottawa Wednesday, with Attorney-General Gordon Conant, to confer with Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, and Hon. Angus MacDonald, Minister of Defence for Naval Affairs. The conference, Premier Hepburn says, will be regarding the status and jurisdiction of the volunteer civil guard forces in Ontario. It is called for Thursday.

It will be Premier Hepburn's first visit to Ottawa since he and Lieut. Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative Leader, and Hon. Albert Matthews, Lieutenant Governor, conferred with Premier W. L. Mackenzie King and members of the Dominion cabinet last fall, to offer the full resources and co-operation of Ontario in the prosecution of the war.

Premier Hepburn has expressed a desire to get a clear understanding from Ottawa regarding the status of the civil guard units throughout the province, especially the question of arming the guards. The Premier declined to say what other matters might be discussed at the Ottawa conference.

45 Canadian M. P's Go To Sea, Observe Life of Sailors of Today

Parliamentarians Feel Cold Spray Upon Faces as Grey Craft Speeds Up

RETURN TO OTTAWA

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Halifax, July 22—(CP)—A group of naval-minded parliamentarians turned towards Ottawa today, convinced the life of a sailor in the Royal Canadian Navy is interesting but arduous.

After a day of sight-seeing, inspecting the harbor facilities at Halifax and some of the coastal defence units the 45 members went to sea with the navy last night.

Aboard a destroyer they passed through the harbor mouth into the broad waters of the Atlantic and felt the cold spray pour over them as the dull grey craft whooped it up to some 32 knots an hour.

"Bring on that German raider" said a veteran member from the drought area of Saskatchewan as he struggled to keep his feet in the prow of the warship.

"We are ready for him any time" replied a youthful sailor.

A Taste of Life of Sea

The sea was calm but the occasional splash of water over the decks gave the parliamentarians an inkling of what life on a destroyer might be in a rough sea. Many of them met lads from their home constituencies who turned to the navy as a means of doing their bit for the defence of Canada.

Members from British Columbia, the Prairies, Ontario and Quebec kept officers and men on the destroyer busy answering questions about the ship, the guns, the life of the navy.

They were particularly interested in the "pom-pom" guns for anti-aircraft and were given a demonstration as several rounds were fired.

The veteran Conservative member for Yukon, George Black, was one of the few members of the party of 45 who had ridden a warship before. He recalled a visit to the grand fleet during the last war.

While convalescing from a wound received in France he was one of two Canadian officers given a chance to go aboard a warship in the North of Scotland. When word came that the German fleet was out he was asked to go ashore.

"I have no place to go but back to the trenches," he said.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

WHILE BOYS SWAM PANT POCKETS RIFLED

One of the meanest types of robbery was reported to city police yesterday when three local lads, Ross Shoebridge, Jack McCaul and Ross Saunders, informed the police their clothes had been rifled and all of their money stolen. The lads were enjoying a swim in the cooling waters of the Moira River at the rear of the Belleville Creameries' plant on Station Street, during their enjoyment in the water sneak thieves removed between five and six dollars from the lads' trousers pockets. Police admitted the possibilities of apprehension were rather remote in such cases, however.

POLICE CONSTABLES ELIMINATE NUISANCE

Investigating complaints from residents living in the vicinity of the East City Playground, that youths were destroying property and causing nuisance by playing on children's playground apparatus, Police Constables William Evans and Horace Wright, last night severely reprimanded two teen-aged boys discovered creating a disturbance in the grounds.

The young men sheepishly admitted they have been having some fun but promised to behave themselves in future after the officers had pointed out that stern measures would follow a repetition of the acts.

'Behind The Bars' But Not For Long

The unfortunate position of one person occasionally proves the amusement of another. Such was the case in downtown Belleville last evening when pedestrians en route to Victoria Park observed a local young man behind bars, but not jail bars.

As the situation is now understood, it seems the young man in question entered the alleyway leading into the rear of the Ontario-Intelligencer. As citizens, who make a weekly practice of reading the Sunday bulletins in front of the local "great family journal" are aware, a large ironbarred gate guards the sanctuary of the mechanical end of the local newspaper offices.

Last evening readers of our Sunday bulletins were surprised to see a local reporter standing behind the barred gates and apparently in difficulty. It seems the local "newsboy" had entered the Ontario-Intelligencer property and locked the iron gate padlock behind him, forgetting he had left his office keys elsewhere. After many minutes of embarrassment, during which he was the tarket of many a wisecrack regarding his being "behind the bars," the young man's employer hove on the scene and released him from his embarrassing position.

Lot of Rubbish Being Circulated In U. S. About Canada

There is one American, at least, who believes in Canadian hospitality and vacation possibilities, but did not take any chances on being caught unawares. The victim, apparently of Nazi propaganda "south of the border" he arrived at a well-known Algonquin Park summer resort the other day, bringing with him drums of gasoline, and tubs of butter.

"I know now," he said, "what a lot of rubbish regarding Canada is being circulated in border cities and towns. We were told that gasoline could not be obtained only at exorbitant prices and butter was practically a non-existent commodity. However," he laughed, "I should have known better, but I did not take any chances, and here I am, gasoline and butter included."

Tourist traffic in this part of Canada's vacation spots, at least has fallen off at a tremendous rate according to travellers who spent the week-end in the National Park. The majority of the larger tourist resorts are closed and others are barely managing to carry on. Private cottages are still available in the majority of places, a condition unusual for this time of the year. One large resort, which carries a summer staff of college students has cancelled all its staff engagements and are doing business with a skeleton personnel.

REV. A. L. GEEN NINETY-ONE TODAY

In Remarkably Good Health and Appears Down Town Nearly Every Afternoon

The Rev. A. L. Geen, Belleville's grand old man, is today receiving the felicitations of a large circle of friends on the attainment of his ninety-first birthday.

Until a few days ago, Mr. Geen has been in remarkable good health but of late has not been feeling as well as usual. This fact, however, does not deter him from coming down to his work every afternoon.

He was born in Belleville on July 22, 1849, and has resided here practically all his life. Well-known in fraternal circles, he has held high offices in several societies, and today is the oldest living member of Eureka Lodge, No. 283, A.F. & A.M., and of the Sons of England branch as well.

Mr. Geen is a well-known and popular figure among ministerial and other circles of the city and district. He is mentally alert and takes a great interest yet in the things that he loved and worked for during a long and useful life.

This newspaper, in conjunction with the many organizations with which Mr. Geen is associated, and a host of friends, conveys its congratulations, and wishes for many years of continued good health.

Assisting Motorist Soldier is Injured

While showing the "courtesy of the highway," that is to say, assisting a fellow motorist in distress, Gunner Melvin Donaldson of the 34th Battery in Kingston, sustained leg and facial lacerations as the result of a unique motor crash on Highway No. 2, three miles west of Belleville early Saturday evening. Gnr. Donaldson and other passengers in his motor car were assisting to push a stalled automobile, driven by Miss Marie Collar of Glen Miller, off the highway into a nearby garage, Miss Collar's car having exhausted its supply of petrol.

At the time Marwood P. Lucier, of the Air Force, was proceeding easterly and failed to observe the situation, his motor car colliding with the Collar vehicle and resulting in Gnr. Donaldson being hurled to the pavement, where he sustained his injuries. The injured man was removed to the surgery of Dr. W. C. Morgan, where his wounds were dressed.

Motorcycleman J. Hatch investigated and today revealed that minor charges were pending against Lucier.

GEO. MARKLAND DROWNS IN BAY SUNDAY EVENING

Goes Down in Forty Feet of Water and Body So Far Has Not Been Recovered

THROWN FROM BOAT

Picton, July 22 — (Special) — Search parties intensified their efforts today looking for the body of George Markland, 34, well-known local trucker, who was drowned in the Bay of Quinte near Glenora shortly after 6.30 p.m. Sunday night when he was swept overboard from a launch carrying a fishing party.

Markland lost his life in forty feet of water. In company with Carl Smith, R.C.A.F., Toronto, a brother-in-law, James Lighthall, William Jones, Jr., and Frank McManus, of Picton, he had been cruising on the bay all afternoon and a few minutes previous to the tragedy had been standing in the bow alone.

Suddenly the boat lurched to starboard and Markland was hurled into the water. As he fell he clutched at poles supporting an awning that covered the deck of the boat, but these gave way and fell into the water with him. Markland failed to come to the surface, and although Lighthall dived into the water several times in an effort to rescue him, no trace of the body was found.

Members of the party tied a boat chair to an anchor to mark the scene of the fatality and immediately left in search of help. The water in the vicinity and in a large surrounding area was dragged by searching parties all night but thus far their efforts have been futile.

The drowned man is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Markland, Ridge Road residents, and was unmarried. Mrs. Carl Smith, Toronto is a sister as is Mrs. Bert Alger, Picton. Sherman Markland, Picton, is a brother.

Music Lovers Treated

Music lovers were given a treat on Saturday and Sunday when the band of Brock Avenue Salvation Army Citadel of Toronto gave a number of programs. This fine organization was heard twice Saturday evening at Wellington and Picton. Sunday was also a busy day for the visitors. They took part in the morning service at the local S.A. citadel when Adjutant Willis Pedlar spoke. The citadel has been recently re-decorated and a service of dedication was held. In the afternoon, a concert was given at the Sandbanks and in the evening a large crowd gathered at the Regent theatre for the final program.

The Girl Guides went into camp today (Monday) at Waupoos. The camp mother is Miss V. McLean, with Miss Doroty Keep as Captain and Miss Lillian Dawe, Reg.N., as camp nurse.

A large quantity of canned goods for use in the hospitals and by soldiers overseas was collected Saturday, when barrels were placed in all local grocery stores. This was arranged by the Picton Post of the Canadian Legion and there was a fine response. The canned goods will be shipped to Toronto to the Red Cross Society and from that point sent overseas.

Piper is Silenced For Fourteen Days

Citizens were entertained to the swirl of the bagpipes in downtown Belleville Saturday afternoon and evening when a transient piper plied his musical traits in true Highland fashion as he paraded in front of local beverage rooms seeking solace to his musical soul. All went well, however, until this transient piper paraded in front of the Belvedere Hotel late in the evening and piped so long and loudly that his efforts became a nuisance. Walter Allore, manager of the hotel, politely requested the man to discontinue his piping, especially in front of the Belvedere, but the piper ignored the request and continued his playing with gusto. Later, however, P. C. Taylor discouraged the undesired musical parade, but only after a tussle, during which the officer was forced to use physical efforts and bring his handcuffs into play. The sequel of the story is merely this: the bearded player won't play for at least fourteen days, he pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication in today's police court and was sentenced to serve a fortnight in the county jail, during which time Gaoler G. H. French will have possession of the bagpipes. The man gave his name as John Sutherland, no address. In court this morning Chief Kidd slyly remarked, "and he's a Scotchman."

Pensions Not Affected By Joining Unit

War veterans and ex-service men receiving pensions for disabilities incurred through service in the last Great War, will not have their pensions affected if they join the Veterans' Home Guard companies, officers of that organization announced today.

Captain E. O. Keeler, M.C., officer commanding the platoon, now being recruited in the 34th Battery headquarters, Church Street, stated today that there are still vacancies for veterans in the platoon. However, he warned, potential members should join at once for as soon as the required number of forty are attested, recruiting will close. Captain Keeler's platoon is the second unit of its kind to be recruited here, the first having left the city some time ago under the command of Lieut. R. B. Cooper.

Immediately the veterans are attested and pass their medical examination, they will be sent to Ottawa, to undergo training for the sterner duties ahead.

BOARD WALK ON CAMPBELL ST. HILL IS TAKEN UP

Only One Stretch of Wooden Sidewalk Remains— One Hundred Feet on Brock Street

The last of the wooden sidewalks remaining in the city, with the exception of one stretch of approximately one hundred feet on Brock Street, was torn up last week when it was decided that the wooden walk running up the hill past the Corby Library on Campbell Street had outserved its usefulness and will be replaced by a modern concrete walk.

The steepness of the grade at this point on Campbell Street, had been instrumental in the wooden sidewalk being left in position long after other like walks in the vicinity had disappeared as it was felt with a wooden tread there would be less danger of pedestrians slipping during icy conditions. With the stringers having almost completely rotted however, it was decided that it would be cheaper to replace it with concrete. The grade is being considerably lessened through a fill being placed at the bottom and appropriate measures will be taken to roughen the surface of the walk so that any added danger of slipping will be overcome.

PLAN FOR SCHOOL FOR EVACUEES

Empain Interests Represented by Special Committee

St. Marguerite, Que., July 22—(CP)—Plans for the establishment of a residential boys' school for British evacuees and Canadian students on "Domaine D'Esterel," Baron Empain's modern Laurentian estate near here, were considered Saturday by a special committee of the Compagnie Mobiliers De St. Marguerite, a branch of the Empain interests in Canada.

After the meeting, Col. Wilfred Bovey, chairman, said the committee had formed a "favorable" opinion of the preliminary survey of the $3,000,000 resort's grounds and facilities, submitted by Prof. Ross Winter of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

The committee consists of Col. Bovey, Prof. Winter, Prof. Gilbert Jackson of the University of Toronto, and Pierre Roche, general manager of the Empain interests here.

If adopted, the plan would call for the conversion of some of the resort's lavish cabins and part of the commercial building overlooking Lac Masson, into residences and classrooms for about 250 guest students, most of them from Britain.

SWITZERLAND IS "ON THE SPOT"

Country Hard Hit by War and President Says Citizens "Must Tighten Their Belts"

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berne, Switzerland, July 22 (AP)—Switzerland, rugged little island of democracy in a totalitarian Europe, is on the spot—and knows it well.

Once before, in Napoleon's time, the Swiss were cut off, as they are now, from all but one side of a war.

Napoleon titled himself "mediator of Switzerland" then and the government of Switzerland fell for a few years into the hands of the Emperor's men.

The Swiss government, backed strongly by the Swiss people, is determined not to let that happen this time—if it can be prevented.

With his country hard hit by the war, President Marcel Pilet-Golaz summed up Switzerland's immediate future in these words:

"We must tighten our belts . . . We must take up again the healthy habit of toiling hard for small rewards."

After the Napoleonic era the hardy mountain folk built national prosperity by toil and frugality. Switzerland's valleys are not naturally fertile. There are few mineral resources. There is no seacoast. So the Swiss toiled with their hands and filled the world's markets with watches, tools, embroidery — whatever skill and patience could make better and cheaper than their neighbors.

On that international trade—augmented by a healthy tourist business—was built Swiss prosperity. Now the trade overseas is cut off sharply, products manufactured by neighboring France are without buyers, and the tourist hotels are empty of paying customers.

Switzerland's tough little citizen army of 500,000 has been demobilized and sent back to farms and factories.

For a while there was some profit from the war to counter-balance the loss of other trade. Arms industries were expanded. The largest orders, however, came from the Allies—and now that trade is lost.

THIEVES REMOVE SAFE AND $3,000

A. & P. Branch Store at Lindsay Entered Some During the Night

Lindsay, Ont., July 22—(CP) — Thieves last night forced entry at the rear of the A. and P. Stores branch in Lindsay and removed a safe said to contain from $2,000 to $3,000, all of Saturday's receipts. The robbery was not discovered until this morning when employees of the store found the back doors wide open and the safe, which had been hidden under a number of bags of sugar, missing.

The thieves, according to Police Chief Ralph Lawler, forced a padlock on the outside rear door with a bar and had then removed a panel from the inside door which would allow a very small person to enter the store and turn the spring lock. The safe, weighing approximately half a ton, was rolled out, he declared and apparently placed in a truck or in the trunk of a car. Tire marks were visible at the rear of the store, he said.

Oswald Dagenais told police he saw a grey car with three young men parked at the rear of the store last night and that it was still there at midnight.

Raw Material Position Of Britain Improves Exports Are Maintained

London, July 22— (CP)—An authoritative parliamentary source said today the cabinet has decided that improvement in Britain's raw material position warrants restoration of full allocation of raw materials for exports. Restriction of home consumption is "necessary to maintain these exports" the source said.

Police Blotter

Residents in the district surrounding the East Belleville playgrounds complained to police yesterday regarding undue noises and disturbances emanating from the playgrounds. City police investigated and found several teen-aged lads utilizing the playground equipment on the Sabbath and shouting loudly. The lads were dispersed and warned not to repeat such actions. The playgrounds are for use on week days, not to be a public nuisance on Sunday, residents of that area believe.

Jack Sweet, Station P.O., reported to police he had run over a dog on East Bridge Street yesterday. P.C. Evans, investigated and later removed the injured canine to a local veterinary where it was discovered the dog's injuries were not as serious as at first anticipated. The animal was returned to its owner, Mr. Joseph Porritt, 172 Foster Avenue.

Crashed Into Rear

Considerable property damage resulted to the front part of an automobile, driven by Edward Gormer, Kingston, on Front Street, Saturday afternoon. Mr. Gormer was following a truck southerly on Front Street when the heavier vehicle stopped in order to make a left-hand turn into Campbell Street. Mr. Gormer's car crashed into the rear of the truck, damaging the headlights, fenders and grill of his car. The truck was driven by G. A. Soule of this city. Traffic Officer Doug Ellis investigated but found no blame attached to Mr. Soule. "Just an unfortunate occurrence" reported the officer.

Frank Godfrey, Bancroft, was arrested Sunday by R.C.M.P. on a charge of being found in possession of illicit liquor. He was remanded in custody by Constables Beatty and Edge.

Leo Caul, 152 1-2 Church Street reported the theft of his bicycle yesterday. Leo was attending divine service at St. Michael's Academy and during the service his parked bike was stolen.

Teen-Aged Girl Held

While patrolling police beats long after midnight Saturday night, Constables Wright and Evans apprehended a teen-aged girl loitering in the vicinity of the east end of the lower bridge. After being questioned at the police station by Sergeant Arthur Booth the lass admitted she had run away from her Picton home. Later her parents were notified of her whereabouts and she was returned safely home.

Eight inebriates were apprehended by city police in Belleville over the weekend and all were charged in city police court today.

POLICE COURT

City police were apparently kept quite busied over the week-end, at least one would judge such to be a fact when attending today's session of city police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., when no less than eight men were arraigned before His Worship on charges of intoxication. Without comment and apparently accepting their fate the entire octette admitted their guilt and the conventional "ten and costs or 14 days in the jailhouse" was imposed in each individual case.

The only comment heard during the proceedings came when one of the individuals, who was apparently hard of hearing, remarked: "Well, I guess it's 14 days on the hill for me this time."

Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson, who was appointed to the position of County Crown Attorney by order-in-council on Saturday last, made his initial appearance in court today in his new official capacity. Mr. Robertson was appointed to the office of "C. A." to fill the vacancy left when Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, K.C., was called to take command of the 2nd Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

R. D. Arnott, K.C., was also present on behalf of a local youth who was charged with assault and given a suspended sentence and warned by the court to be of good behavior in the future.

ADMINISTRATION COSTS ESTIMATED $5,250,000 YEAR

A. A. Heaps, Who Assisted in Drawing Unemployment Insurance Bill Says Cost Will be $2.50 a Year Per Person

COMMITTEE MEETS

Ottawa, July 22—(CP)—Annual cost of administration of the proposed unemployment insurance plan is estimated at $5,250,000, A. A. Heaps, former co-operative commonwealth member of Parliament for Winnipeg, north, told the special commons committee on the Unemployment Insurance Bill today.

Mr. Heaps, temporarily employed in the Dominion Labor Department as an expert assistant in drawing up the bill, figured the administrative cost of this insurance at $2.50 a person a year, compared with a yearly average of $1.70 a person in the United Kingdom between 1933 and 1938 and compared with $2.10 a person in the United States.

It was pointed out that the United States figure covered 27,980,000 insured persons. Estimating the Canadian cost on the basis of the United States figures, Mr. Heaps said it had been considered that the addition of about 20 per cent should be made in view of the scattered population and other factors which might add to the work.

Under the Unemployment Insurance Act of 1935, he noted, the cost of the administration a person has been about $4.78 and the total $8,759,000 a year.

Increased Staff by 15

Referring to the statement of Gerald Brown, assistant to the Deputy Minister of Labor, in which he had told the committee that it was proposed to set up a very comprehensive employment service throughout Canada, Mr. Heaps expected an increase in the number of full time employment offices from 75 to 90 with a large number of part-time offices.

At present he estimated the cost to the Provinces and Dominion of employment services at $500,000 a year. He thought this might be increased to $1,000,000 but pointed out that inasmuch as this would be borne by the unemployment insurance plan it might be accounted a saving.

As to the personnel necessary to carry out the scheme he referred to the British figure which was now one for every 500 persons insured. In the United States it was one for every 735 and he thought that the figure for Canada would be somewhere between these.

Advantage to Canadians

The provisions of the bill will fall easier on the workers and employers than similar measures in the various States in the United States, Mr. Heaps said.

In Canada a worker will have to wait nine days after he becomes unemployed before he is entitled to unemployment insurance, whereas in most States the waiting period is 14 days. This is an important advantage to Canadian workers.

The average payment by worker and employer for each person under the bill will be $13 a year. In the United States it is $38, including old age pension. The pension begins at 65 years in United States and 70 years in Canada.

Under the chairmanship of Labor Minister McLarty, the committee moved rapidly through its preliminary business. An innovation was an invitation from the committee to the Senate to send representatives who might ask questions. Several Senators accepted the invitation.

The committee will sit this afternoon and tonight as government leaders press for action.

Believe Thieves Escape By Speed Motor Boat

Marine City, Mich., July 22.—(AP)—State Police notified the Canadian Mounted Police today to be on the lookout for burglars who rifled the safe of the C. A. Westrick & Son Builders Supplies Co., here Saturday, and escaped with $13,000 and cash and securities, possibly by speed boat on St. Clair river to Canada.

Officers accounted for part of the loot when they pieced together several shares of stock from scraps of paper found along the bank of the river behind the building. Discovery of the scraps led officers to believe the burglars came to the scene and left it by boat.

Trenton and District

Recruits Will Be Able To Retain Civil Jobs

Major Angus Mowat Gives in Detail Conditions Under Which Recruits Sign Up

NUMEROUS ACCIDENTS

Trenton, July 22 (Special) — Recruits for the Second Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment are needed at the Trenton Armoury, stated Major Angus Mowat, Officer Commanding the Headquarters Company.

This battalion will be for home service only. The recruits will be drilled on an average of two nights per week and will spend two weeks in camp.

All recruits who sign up with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Second Battalion, will be able to retain their civil jobs, as the military training will be held so that there will be no conflict between the civil positions and the military work.

"A great number of men think that by having to go to camp for two weeks, they are liable to lose their jobs," stated Major Mowat. "This is not so. The government guarantees that the jobs will be retained for the men until they return from camp."

Battle for Right

Wooler and the Miller Bros. will battle it out tonight for the right to continue in the Trenton District Softball League playdowns. Both teams are tied for third place and the winner tonight will enter the playdowns on Wednesday night, against the Canadian Doughnuts.

The second and third teams will play a three-out-of-five series for the right to meet the R.C.A.F. Flyers for the Cobley Cup.

Good Influence on Boys

The Royal Canadian Air Force station, one mile east of here, is having considerable influence on the young boys of Trenton. During the past month, large numbers of boys have been engaged in building model aeroplanes and every evening the boys can be seen in the fields and parks playing with their aeroplanes.

Late Norman Easterly

The funeral of the late Lewis Norman Easterly, of Wooler, was held here yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Franck Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 127. The Rev. A. Poulter, of Madoc, conducted the service.

The late Mr. Easterly was in his 77th. year and had only been ill a short time.

Interment was held in Friends' Cemetery. The pall bearers were all fellow members of the Masonic lodge.

Charge Pending

Two members of the Royal Canadian Air Force were injured and taken to the R.C.A.F. hospital early this morning, following an accident seven miles west of Trenton. The injured men are Sgt. E. Zakko, and Cpl. A. Montain, both of Trenton.

The two injured men were injured when their automobile driven by Sgt. Zakko collided with a westbound automobile driven by Mrs. Freda M. Griffiths, 243 First Street, Ottawa. The impact threw the Zakko automobile into the path of a car driven by Jack Davidson, 8 Edgewood Grove, Toronto. All three cars were badly damaged in the collisions.

William Luscombe and Allan Luscombe both of Toronto, passengers in the Davidson automobile suffered slight cuts and bruises.

Traffic Officer J. Hatch of Belleville, investigated the accident and stated that charges were pending.

Damage to Automobiles

Three minor accidents were reported in the district over the weekend, but no one suffered serious injuries. In every accident considerable damage was done to the automobiles.

George Boyd, Toronto, narrowly escaped injury on Sunday night when his car collided with a horse five miles east of here. The horse owned by George Rush, Belleville R.R. 3 escaped from the pasture and was wandering on the highway.

Pte. Melville Donaldson, Kingston, suffered lacerations of the face and leg in an accident four miles east of here on Saturday night. Pte. Donaldson was helping to push a car driven by Marie Collar of Glen Miller that had run out of gas. In some manner an automobile driven by Narwood Lucier, R. C. A. F., Trenton, collided with the rear of the Collar car and Donaldson was thrown to the pavement.

Proceeding east on Highway 2, four miles west of Trenton, this morning, a car driven by Leon Fram, Detroit, Michigan, collided with a cow on the highway causing damage estimated at nearly $200 to the automobile. The cow owned by W. J. West, Brighton, was injured so badly that it had to be destroyed.

Traffic Officer Hatch, Belleville, investigated all three accidents. Charges are pending in the first two accidents.

21 REPUBLICS SEE U.S. POINTING WAY TO DEFENCE

U.S. Secretary Hull Declares Western Hemisphere Has Become 'Trustee for Rest of Betrayed Civilization'

PROBLEMS TO BE FACED

Havana, July 22—(AP)— An emergency meeting of representatives of the 21 American Republics looked today to the United States to point the way for concrete measures to bolster Western Hemisphere economy and defence against any totalitarian thrusts.

As the business of formally organizing the conference began, delegates of the Latin American countries, anxiously waited for State Secretary Cordell Hull to indicate how far the United States is ready to go in helping to solve their problems.

Hull planned to address the conference after the first private plenary session devoted to designation of committees.

The stage for his address was set yesterday by President Federico Laredu Bru of Cuba who, in a speech of welcome, called upon the American nations to take concrete measures to defend their "common rights" against dangers which "increase day by day."

Broad Agenda

He warned the delegates they must approach the "difficult" problems before them in the full knowledge that the western hemisphere has become "the trustee for the remainder of betrayed civilization—a civilization pushed to the edge of a precipice."

The agenda facing the delegates was described as one of the broadest ever tackled by a pan-American conference and many of those present considered that its very broadness made it susceptible to pitfalls.

Wide Range of Issues

The problems to be discussed ranged over this field:

1. Examination of western hemisphere neutrality in the light of such unpredicted recent development as the capitulation of Holland, Belgium and France to German armed forces.

2. The attitude of the Americas toward western hemisphere possessions of conquered European nations.

3. "Fifth column" activities in the Americas—their extent and possible precautionary measures to be taken.

4. Re-settlement of refugees, prisoners and other victims of war.

5. Economic cooperation—or what possibilities exist for [illegible] United States [illegible] to [illegible] advantage in [illegible] Latin American states [illegible] being drawn into the barter system of totalitarian powers.

Hitler 'Waiting' For Authorized British Answers To 'Peace Ultimatum'

Berlin, July 22. —(CP)—German sources described as "authorized" today said Hitler is waiting for "official" British answers from Lord Halifax and Prime Minister Churchill to his "peace proposal" before starting a threatened offensive on the British Isles.

(Lord Halifax is scheduled to speak at 4.15 pm. E.D.T. today. So far there has been no indication that Prime Minister Churchill will reply to Hitler's Friday speech. In Britain it was considered that Mr. Churchill's reiterated determination to fight to the end had answered the Hitler address before it was made.)

German sources said it was likely that Hitler would wait even after receiving a negative reply—which it was taken for granted here he will get—in case the British people should disavow Mr. Churchill's leadership.

(Hitler's Friday speech apparently was an attempt to distract Britain from her defence drive, designed to beat off Nazi invasion and ultimately to take the offensive.)

CONGRESS REJECTS MOTION

Washington, July 22—(AP)—The House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee today rejected a resolution by representative Hamilton Fish (Rep. New York) calling on President Roosevelt to inform the House whether there was any secret agreement between the United States and Soviet. Committee action followed a letter from State Secretary Cordell Hull saying Washington had no secret understanding with Russia.

EXTRA

Text of Lord Halifax's Radio Broadcast

London, July 22 (AP)—The text of Lord Halifax's broadcast today follows:

Many of you will have read two days ago the speech in which Herr Hitler summoned Great Britain to capitulate to his will. I will not waste your time by dealing with his distortions of almost every main event since the war began.

He says he has no desire to destroy the British Empire, but there was in his speech no suggestion that peace must be based on justice, no word of recognition that the other nations of Europe had any right to self-determination, the principle which he has so often invoked for Germans.

His only appeal was to the base instinct of fear, and his only arguments were threats.

His silence as to the future of nations whom on one false pretext or another he has subjugated is significant.

Quite plainly his picture of Europe is one of Germany lording it over these peoples, whom he has one by one deprived of freedom. Our picture, drawn once again in bold outline by the President of the United States and General Smuts, is quite different.

With them, we see Europe a free association of independent states; and because of that contrast we remain unmoved by threats unaccompanied by any appeal to our sense of right or justice.

Indomitable Resolution

Hitler has now made it plain that he is preparing to direct the whole weight of German might against this country. That is why in every part of Britain, in great towns and remote villages alike, there is only one spirit of indomitable resolution.

Nor has anyone any doubt that if Hitler were to succeed it would be the end, for many besides ourselves, of all those things which, as we say, make life worth living.

We realise that the struggle may cost us everything, but just because the things we are defending are worth any sacrifice it is a noble privilege to be the defenders of things so precious.

We never wanted the war; certainly no one here wants the war to go on for a day longer than is necessary. But we shall not stop fighting till freedom, for ourselves and others, is secure.

What do we mean when we say that we are fighting for freedom? We want to be able to live our own lives as we like; and not have to look over our shoulders all the time to see if the Gestapo is making up a case that will land us in a concentration camp.

We want to worship God as we like and this religious freedom based on conscience we will not let go. For conscience is not something that you can hand over to anybody else.

But in Germany the people have given their consciences to Hitler so that they have become machines, merely fulfilling orders without considering whether they are right or wrong. And what has been the effect on Hitler?

Whenl he first gained power, he was at pains to explain that his aims were strictly limited. He was only concerned with the welfare of Germany. He had no claims against her neighbors. But steadily his appetite grew, until today he assumes the role of a supreme protector.

Already we see him ruling through creatures, pale shadows of himself, that he has established in Central and Northern Europe. Further south, Mussolini, flushed by his triumphs over a France, whom he has not fought, may be allowed the role of master of a Mediterranean which he has not conuered.

For Hitler force has become the final rule of the destinies of men and of nations. Germany has the force. Hence Germany alone must decide how the nations are to live together. What matter if they do not like it?

Man is a frail creature, fallible and made to obey, and will soon learn to obey his master. According to Hitler, old-fashioned respect for the pledged word is a sign of weak fibre and unworthy of robust masterminds.

Berlin Communique

Berlin, July 22—(AP)—The German high command today issued the following communique:

"German fighting planes again attacked airports, harbors, oil tanks and factories in England. Explosions and big fires were observed.

(The British Ministry of Home Security announced that "little damage was done" in these raids. There were no casualties.)

"During a raid on a convoy in the channel we succeeded in sinking by bomb hits one tanker and four merchant ships totalling about 40,000 registered tons.

(No ship was sunk in this raid.)

"Bombs dropped by the enemy the night of July 21-22 in northern and western Germany as well as occupied territories caused property damage only.

"One plane was shot down by the navy's anti-aircraft artillery and another plane by a night chaser. The enemy's losses yesterday were eight planes, among which was one Sunderland flying boat shot down at Trondheim.

(Yesterday's losses of the R.A.F. have not been announced.)

"Four of our own planes failed to return among which was one sea rescue plane which the English shot down over the North Sea."

SYDNEY MARKS SYDNEY'S VICTORY

First Flag Broken Australian Ensign Flown on Sydney's Predecessor Which Sank Emden

Sydney, Australia, July 22—(AP)—Following announcement that H M. A. S. Sydney sank the Italian cruiser, Batholomeo Colleoni, in a Mediterranean naval engagement last Friday, Navy Minister A G. Cameron today announced the sinking of an Italian submarine by an Australian destroyer.

Sydney was ordered decorated with flags and bunting today at the request of the Lord Mayor in honor of the Sydney's victory. The first flag broken was the Australian ensign on the mast of the Sydney's predecessor, the light cruiser Sydney which destroyed the German raider Emden Nov. 9, 1914 at Cocos Island. The mast now serves Bradley's Head signal station in Sydney harbor. Other relics of the old Sydney are distributed throughout Australia.

Lord Gowrie, the Governor General, Premier Mair of New South Wales, the Lord Mayor of Sydney, Prime Minister Menzies and Mr. Cameron all cabled congratulations to Captain Collins of the Sydney, regarded as Australia's most foremost gunnery expert.

Lord Gowrie said the magnificent exploit of the Sydney was unachieveable without the combination of thorough training, strict discipline, accurate shooting and masterly ship handling.

Rome Communique

(The Italian information on the ships claimed to have been hit also is inaccurate. There is no "Warspite type" of battleship. H.M.S. Warspite 30,600 tons, is of the Queen Elizabeth class. The cruiser Gloucester displaces 9,100 tons and the Arethusa 5,220. The Hood is a battle cruiser, not a battleship.)

"An enemy airplane which tried to machine-gun the crew of one of our planes during rescue operations when it was forced down at sea because of engine trouble was shot down in flames by our fighter planes. An officer of its crew who came down on the sea by parachute was rescued and taken prisoner by one of our seaplanes.

(There was no confirmation of this claim from British sources.)

"In North Africa the bases of Sidi Barrani and Mersa Matruh were effectively bombed. In East Africa our planes bombed and machine-gunned troop concentrations and military objectives at Buna and Wajir. On enemy plane was shot down. All our planes returned safely. An enemy raid at Asmara caused neither casualties nor material damage".

(The R.A.F. in Cairo said damage was very slight in the raids on Sidi Barrani and Mersa Matruh. In the R.A.F. raid on Asmara airdrome "direct hits were registered on a group of three hangars and buildings".)

"Not Stop Fighting Until Freedom For Ourselves, Others Secure" Lord Halifax Says in Broadcast

London, July 22 (CP)—Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, answered Hitler's peace offer today with a declaration that Great Britain will "not stop fighting until freedom for ourselves and others is secure."

"We realise the struggle may cost us everything," the Foreign Secretary said in a broadcast," but just because the things we are defending are worth any sacrifice, it is a noble privilege to be the defender of things so precious."

Hitler made plain in his July 19 speech to the Reichstag, Lord Halifax declared, that "his picture of Europe is one of Germany lording it over these peoples whom he has one by one deprived of their freedom."

Britain's picture of Europe, Lord Halifax said, is one of "a free association of independent states and, because of that contrast, we remain unmoved by threats unaccompanied by any appeal to our sense of right or justice."

Declaring that in every part of Britain there is a "spirit of indomitable resolution," he asserted that the "peoples of the British Commonwealth, along with all those who love truth and justice and freedom, will never accept this new world of Hitler's."

"Across the wide Atlantic there are mighty nations which view his works with growing detestation, he continued. "The people of the United States did not build their new home in order to surrender it to this fanatic. . . We take heart from the certain knowledge that that great people pray for our victory."

Ottawa, July 22—(CP) — Commenting on Hitler's "peace" speech, Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the Commons today that "Canadians are prouder than ever to share with the men and women of Britain the rigors of the conflict, and to stand shoulder to shoulder with them in the defence of social justice and of human liberty."

BRITISH MERCHANT MARINE

The British merchant marine is said to be as large as or larger than it was at the outbreak of the war. This is one of the factors in the Empire's strength and therefore one of the forces that Adolf Hitler must dread as he threatens to do the British Empire to "destruction" if it does not harken to his "peace" offer. There are many great forces that will work to turn back any attempt of the foe to invade the British Isles, the spirit of the people, their unanimity of purpose, the strength of their army, the Royal Navy and the air force, the iron will of the civilian population and the determination and astuteness of Prime Minister Churchill. And to these is added, of course, the merchant fleet of ships which ply the Seven Seas and carry the trade of Britain with the flag, and bring home the food that the islands require besides her own production which has been magnified along the lines of agriculture, munitions and many other forms of industry.

The British shipyards are working night and day constructing all classes of ships of war as well as merchant ships. Britain has upwards of a million tons of new defence naval construction on the way, it is believed.

Estimates have placed German shipping losses high, while British losses from German U-boats have been made up by new building, purchases and ships captured from the enemy.

The might of the navy and the freedom it gives are seen in the fact that the enemy's sea effort is limited to raiding, not given to wholesale effort, so potent is the British blockade.

The ships of Britain bring their cargoes home, but a mere fraction having been sunk by the Huns.

Despite their blitzkrieg, the nazi leaders must feel grave anxiety over the fact that Germany is blockaded, for since Italy went into the war the blockade has been more stringent while British ships proceed to home ports under the protection of the navy.

GAYDA'S FOREWORD AND HITLER'S SPEECH

Italian editor Gayda, the voice of Mussolini, was chosen by Hitler apparently as his own mouthpiece to make the announcement that the Fuehrer was about to make a peace offensive against Britain, intimating that an armed attack would follow. Gayda's advance statement took as it were the edge off Hitler's utterance, it drew the comment of the press of Britain and other nations.

Britain has been adamant against any peace with Hitler and that stand was taken long ago. Not Gayda's word nor even the Fuehrer's prediction of a struggle to the death with Britain which Hitler prophesied would be the sufferer—has made the slightest difference.

Britain will not talk peace with the German Fuehrer for Britain and Mr. Churchill know Hitler as an international figure and could not accept any pledge he would give.

There is a feeling abroad that Hitler may have a desire to get the war in the west ended for the time being so that he can devote his attention to solidifying the lands he has overrun and to other parts where the course of events may not be altogether to his taste. But even if he wants peace, he must surely be convinced that he cannot have it for by this time he should know the people he is fighting against.

Gayda, in making the pre-announcement, could hardly have expected success from the move, nor could Mussolini nor Hitler himself.

Peace is nearer to the world through the British method of carrying on the struggle to the end of Hitlerism and nazism than by any offer of Hitler's which would not mean peace but a prolongation of the woes of humanity. The two dictators themselves know that very well. They have learned to know Britain. Hence they could hardly have expected anything but ignoring of the offer though Hitler has tried to make it piously in the name of the distress he feels at the suffering that might come upon the world with the war continuing.

CANAL TRAFFIC IN JUNE

Total traffic through Canadian and United States locks of the Sault Ste. Marie Canals in June increased to 13,455,390 tons from 8,622,405 in June, 1939. Downbound iron ore was particularly heavy, increasing to 9,808,831 tons, or by 67 per cent.

Traffic on the Welland Ship Canal rose to 1,912,622 tons from 1,580,403 a year ago. Corn, petroleum and oils, iron, pulpwood, bituminous coal, and ore, other than iron and copper, were shipped in heavier while wheat and wheat flour showed substantial declines.

On the St. Lawrence Canals, traffic declined to 1,055,279 tons from 1,161,230 a year ago. Chief increases were in corn, petroleum and oils, pulpwood, hard coal and soft coal, while wheat shipments declined somewhat.

The Dictators

(Ottawa Journal)

The latest totalitarian expansionist is Dictator Franco of Spain, who announces that Spain must hold Gibraltar. Which, if it means anything for Spain, means first war with Britain. This would be another sample of the beauty of dictators.

Spain has twenty-five million people; and probably it does not matter much to 25 persons among the twenty-five million whether Spain holds Gibraltar or somebody else holds it. But when racial or national mania or ego comes into play, neither logic nor common sense seems to matter greatly; a dictator or a demagogue can usually win for himself by appealing to the racial or national vanity.

However, Franco is not really important in the international turmoil. He has no navy, little air force, no money, his army is not utilizable outside Spain, he has no industrial power. He is internationally a false alarm who just seems to contemplate following Mussolini's example, aiming to play the jackal to the malodorous German beast.

But it is rather disheartening to reflect upon the horrible evil to humanity that single individuals of the Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, Franco brand can do.

Tourist Dollar is Need

(Montreal Star)

As the world moves into another critical phase, Canada's strength in men and materials is rapidly being organized into an efficient, integrated whole, but on the financial side it still remains necessary to build up reserves of capital, particularly of foreign exchange. Tourist traffic enters the picture as one of the most important factors, capable of returning $300,000,000 a year. If such a substantial amount can be raised by this easy means, the Canadian taxpayer will be relieved of an additional burden of taxation, for—and the point cannot be emphasized too strongly—the money must be raised somehow, and if it is not forthcoming from tourist traffic returns, it will be obtained by new taxation of one kind or another.

For a time, before the Nazi invasion of the Low Countries, there was grave danger that tourist traffic would be discouraged by too critical an attitude of Canadians toward Americans. United States pledges of help to the Allies have cleared the air, but there are still a few who will be satisfied with nothing less than an immediate American declaration of war, and these few, however unwittingly, are capable of working a great deal of harm during the tourist season. Expressions of feeling born of the tension of the moment must be curbed. There has been a decided change of attitude in the United States in favour of the Allies. But this change will not be encouraged if Canadians accuse American visitors of things for which, individually, they have no responsibility. It is not at all helpful to us to find warnings given to Americans by a few of their own papers not to spend their holidays in Canada because they are likely to meet with discourteous treatment here.

THEY ALL KNOW LORD HAW HAW'S BAG OF TRICKS

Nazis Tried to Revive Interest in Broadcast by Injecting Names of War Prisoners in Germany

HELD UP LETTERS

By D. E. BURRITT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London—(CP)—German propagandists formulated a new plan to "compel" Britons to listen to Nazi "news" broadcasts. It was to intersperse propaganda with names of British prisoners of war and thus "force" the folks at home to listen nightly to Lord Haw Haw, the mysterious German voice believed to come from at least four different announcers.

For months all Britain had heard with amusement the radio voice of Lord Haw Haw who used to prove "so entertaining" with his subtle titbits of news which always contained suggestion that Germany knew exactly what was transpiring in Britain at all times.

Each night the repeated plaintive bars of Haw Haw's "signature" advised British listeners that he was about to start unpacking what later became described as his "bag of lies." Still, prior to and even in the earlier days of the war his nightly broadcast proved entertaining. "Of course we know," people would say, "it's a pack of lies but he is funny. And some times there may be something in what he says."

That belief was just what Haw Haw had been endeavoring to establish. It began to appear that listeners were not laughing as much at Haw Haw's jokes. In fact his jokes were weakening if not disappearing. Strict propaganda was fast becoming his theme. And that is what started to turn people against him. Today, Haw Haw's audience is reduced to those curious enough to hear "what lies they have on hand tonight."

Campaign Spread

Newspapers began to admonish the public to ignore Haw Haw. Under the sponsorship of the London Daily Mirror, anti-Haw Haw groups were formed. In many parts of England the campaign spread with rapidity. All kinds of dodges were suggested to avoid Haw Haw. In Cardiff, Wales, a girl walked the streets days on end, carrying a signboard "don't listen to Lord Haw Haw. Give him the air. He's full of wind anyway."

In other parts of the United Kingdom, school children went from door to door, getting neighbors to sign pledges that they would ignore the broadcast. Many other means were formulated to make the German "news" broadcast unpopular. Haw Haw was losing ground rapidly.

But the German propaganda officials quickly thought up other plans to demand attention. The German radio began broadcasting names of prisoners of war. In each nightly "news" broadcast they would announce a few names of British prisoners.

British propaganda authorities became aware of the fact that people were spreading the word that names of their relatives might be heard if one listened nightly to the German broadcast.

So inquiries were made and the British propaganda bureau discovered that instruction had been given to German radio announcers to "compel listeners abroad to tune in" in the hope of hearing prisoners' names and learning the fate of their relatives.

Held Up Letters

To make sure people did listen, German authorities ordered that letters written by prisoners were not to be posted until after the writer's name had been announced on the radio; that foreign correspondents must not be allowed to interview prisoners until the radio had announced the names and that prisoners' names were not to be forwarded to the Red Cross until the radio had fulfilled its work.

But to counter this stroke, the British advised listeners the propaganda department would have "official" listeners to copy down the names of all announced prisoners and then would notify the next-of-kin.

Where Xrays Films Should Be Kept

A friend stopped me on the street recently and he was certainly mad. He could hardly wait to tell me what he thought about a certain hospital and the specialist in charge of the Xray department.

"I had some Xrays made there some time ago and I called to get the films and was told they did not belong to me or to my physician".

I told him that the physician who had had films taken could examine the films at the hospital or could really borrow them for a time but the films were a part of the history of his case and belonged to the hospital or Xray specialist. The Xray specialist must always have them at hand. Should he be called upon to testify before a court, the judge, the opposing lawyer, the physician for the opposing side just why he gave his opinion on the case in his report to the patient's physician. Without the films he would make a sorry picture in a courtroom.

While most of us will agree that the Xray specialist is the logical owner of the films, it would be a real hardship financially and otherwise should the patient, after consulting another physician, be asked to have another set of Xray pictures taken. It may be very important that the patient's exact condition at the time the Xrays were taken be known, rather than his present condition.

The fact that he wants to change to another physician should not prevent the second physician from seeing the films. The patient notifies the first physician that he will not be consulting him any more. If the second physician suggests Xrays, the patient can inform him of how recently some were taken. If this is not too far back, the second physician calls up the first physician and asks permission to look at the Xrays. Except in rare cases or under most peculiar circumstances, this permission is readily given.

While there may be different interpretation of Xray films, the fact remains that the films record the condition of the part at the time they were taken.

QUEBEC MINISTER IS MADE CHIEF

Hon. T. D. Bouchard's New Title Means 'Beautiful Road'

Montreal, July 22—(CP)—Honorary Chief Io Ha Hi Io of the Pipe of Peace clan of the Mohawk tribes was installed Saturday in ceremonies at nearby Caughnawaga Indian Reserve. He is Hon. T. D. Bouchard, Quebec Minister of Roads and Public Works.

"Beautiful Road" is the English translation of Mr. Bouchard's new title, bestowed upon him after he underwent close scrutiny by several tribal leaders attending the pow wow. Among the dignitaries examining the new chief was Dr. C. A. Kirkland, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly, initiated two days earlier.

After a shawl was placed over his shoulders and a head-dress decorated with feathers and colored beads on his head, Chief Io Ha Hi Io took the pipe of peace, from which Chief Poking Fire had just blown smoke to the four corners of the world.

The fire in the tobacco bowl was out when the new chief got it. This was just as well, he suggested, since there were already too many fires in the world and, anyway, "this is not a time to smoke a pipe of peace, when the great God brings us peace, we will send smoke to him in thanks."

ITALIAN AIRMEN HAVE 30 TYPES

Several New Names in Aircraft With Nation's Entry Into War

London—(CP) — After learning names of such German aircraft types as Heinkel and Messerschmitt, prepare for these names receiving prominence following Italy's entry into the war: Fiat, Macchi, Breda, Savoia, Marchetti, Caproni and Cant.

Altogether the Royal Italian Air Force employs about 30 different types, including a half-dozen seaplanes and a flying boat. Many, however, are obsolescent, and it seems probable that as the war progresses, insofar as they use Italian and not German aircraft, Italy will concentrate on one or two of the most advanced types in each category.

The Fiat G. 50 and the Macchi C. 200 can be reckoned foremost among Italian fighters. Both are modern, single-seat monoplane types with a single radial engine. Each carries two heavy machine guns, firing forward. Their wing span of about 35 feet is two feet less than Britain's smallest fighter, the eight-gun Spitfire. Their speed — 305 miles per hour for the Fiat and 313 m. p. h. for the Macchi — is definitely low as modern fighters go.

Italy's best-known bombers are of the three-engine type. The Savoia-Marchetti 79 and 81 are examples. The S. M. 79, powered with engines of the Bristol-Pegasus type are the more successful. This aircraft, with a wing span of about 66 feet and a top speed of 270 miles per hour is roughly comparable in size and speed with the British two-motor Hampden.

Newer are the two-motor Savoia-Marchetti 85 and 86 and the Fiat BR 20. This plane has a speed of about 260 miles per hour and besides carrying a useful load mounts four guns. Most of Italy's bombers are lightly armed.

Of the 2,100 Italian first-line aircraft, there are 340 seaplanes and flying boats. Many are out of date but this high proportion of seagoing craft indicates Italy intends to take advantage of her many island bases. The fastest seaplanes are the little Caproni Ca 312 and the big three-motored Cant Z 506B. None compared favorably with the British Sunderland and Lerwick flying boats.

"GOOD WEED YEAR"

Harrisburg, Pa. (AP)—What crop experts call a "good weed year" is building Pennsylvania hayfever sufferers up to a bumper crop of sneezes and wheezes. Flagrant weed conditions, caused by heavy spring rains, practically insure a heavy swirl of ragweed pollen next month, authorities said. The season is already open for persons susceptible to timothy and rose pollen.

CRERAR APPOINTED CANADA'S CHIEF GENERAL STAFF

Succeeds General Anderson Who Becomes Inspector General of Central Canada

ASHTON TO RETIRE

Ottawa, July 22—(CP)—A promotion, coming almost before he had time to sit at his desk as Vice-Chief of the General Staff, raised 52-year-old Maj. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar to Chief of the General Staff during the week-end.

His appointment to succeed Maj-Gen. T. V. Anderson was announced last night. General Anderson becomes Inspector General for Central Canada, assigned also to undertake special inspection duties. He succeeds Maj.-Gen. E. C. Ashton who returns to retirement which he left last fall.

The shake-up in the High Command placed artillery officers of the first Great War in the Dominion's top-ranking army spots at home and abroad. Both General Crerar and Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former Chief of the General Staff and now Commander of army corps in England, served at different times as counter battery officers for the Canadian Corps.

Senior Combatant Officer

Until just recently General Crerar served as senior combatant officer at Canadian military headquarters in the United Kingdom. He arranged overseas for the arrival of the 1st division and was in close touch with the War Office and the British High Command.

General Crerar reached Canada only last Friday. He set to work immediately as Vice-Chief of the General Staff, and conferred with Defence Minister Ralston.

The new army chief is a native of Hamilton, Ont. He graduated from Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., in 1909 and later obtained a non-permanent active militia commission. At the outbreak of the war he was called from his post as R.M.C. head to defence headquarters for special duties and then assigned overseas.

During the first Great War General Crerar had a distinguished record as did General Anderson, a 59-year-old native of Ottawa and also a graduate of R.M.C. General Anderson served as Chief of the General Staff since November, 1938.

General Anderson will start immediately important inspection duties in connection with the Atlantic coast defences with special reference to Canadian activities in the Newfoundland area.

23 NORWEGIANS LAND IN CANADA

Flee from Norway in Nine-Ton Herring Smack in Face of Low-Diving Nazi Bombers

By ROBERT DALDORPH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An East Coast Port, July 22 — (CP)—A band of 23 Norwegians reached a haven of safety here Sunday in the nine-ton herring smack in which they fled from Northern Norway in the face of low-diving Nazi bombers that sprayed their vessel with bullets.

The captain spoke for the group that included his wife and children, his 74-year-old father, five brothers and their wives and children. Through an interpreter picked up at St. John's, Nfld., he recounted calmly the trials and tribulations through which they had come since they fled from Tromso June 9.

The herring smack found no trouble during the 3,000-mile voyage which began two days after the cessation of hostilities in Northern Norway.

The captain said Nazi airplanes attacked the vessel after he gathered up the other 22 members of his family crew and nosed out of Tromso. The Norwegians were forced to leave behind on the wharf approximately $10,000 worth of fishing equipment.

Carried Food For British

The captain declared he carried food and munitions for the British and Norwegian forces during the conflict in Norway. He also transported gold and silver for His Majesty's banking institutions and said Germany had marked him for "liquidation" because of his activities for the Allies.

From Tromso, the Norwegians raced through a rough crossing to the Faroe Islands. There they obtained provisions for the 10-day voyage across the Atlantic. A. Johnson was assigned to the boat as interpreter, when she put in at the Newfoundland port.

Johnson said that "all they want is an opportunity to rehabilitate themselves once again and to follow the peaceful, daily pursuits to which they have been accustomed."

Red Cross officials provided assistance to the Norwegians and hundreds of spectators gathered along the wharf as the herring smack moved alongside. Immigration officials at Ottawa have been notified of the situation and authorities at this port are waiting for arrangements to be made in connection with the Norwegians by the Canadian government officials.

SOVIET INTEREST

King Carol, shortly after receipt of the note, was said to have met with Vice-Premier Jen. Mihail Ionescu, War Minister Gen. Constantine Nicolescu and Chief of Staff Florea Tyenescu.

Observers assumed here they discussed the new Rumanian defence system in the east, set up since Russian occupation of northern Bucovina and Bessarabia June 28.

'Popular' Government

These sources said Premier Ion Gigurtu's pro-Nazi government was advised by Moscow that Russia wished to improve her relations with Rumania and felt this could by accomplished by formation of a "popular" government.

Under Russian auspices and following Russian military occupation of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania, so-called "peoples' governments" were set up in the three Baltic countries. Their parliaments voted yesterday to seek admission into the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile Bucharest newspapers carried reports that the Moscow radio, after numerous attacks on Rumania, suddenly had swung to support of Rumania in her territorial dispute with Hungary over Transylvania.

(In Tarnono, Bulgaria, Premier Hogdan Philoff announced yesterday that Bulgaria hoped to realize her territorial claims, which include part of the Rumanian Province of Dobruja, "not by war or arms but by peaceful means and through accord.")

Bloodless Invasion June 17

Russian domination was completed June 17 when the Red Army staged a bloodless invasion after demanding the right of passage through the three countries.

Absorption of the states into the Soviet Union will eliminate them as buffers between Russia and Germany in the Baltic area.

The decision to unite with Russia was taken by the three parliaments at simultaneous meetings in halls decorated with red flags and portraits of Joseph Stalin. Russian representatives attended the sessions.

Cries of "long live Stalin" rang through the halls as the parliamentarians voted to join their countries again to the nation from which they won independence only 22 years ago.

The three nations have a total area of 65,243 miles and an aggregate population of about 5,500,000 divided as follows: Lithuania, 2,500,000; Latvia, 1,900,000 and Estonia 1,100,000. Since the partition of Poland all have had common frontiers with Russia.

STATE CONTROL

Actually the three sister republics have been under Moscow's thumb since last fall when Russia demanded and obtained military bases and other concessions from them prior to the beginning of the Russian-Finnish war Nov. 30.

WEDDINGS

GRANT—CUDDY

Marmora, (Special). A pretty wedding of local interest took place in Whychwood Presbyterian Church on Saturday, July 13th., when Eileen Myrtle Cuddy, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cuddy was united in marriage to Wilfred A. Grant, youngest son of Mr. Edmund Grant and the late Mrs. Grant of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Harold J. Balsdon. The bride is a sister of Mrs. Thomas Cousins of Deloro and of Phillip and Wesley Cuddy of Marmora.

HOLMES—DECARLO

A lovely mid-summer wedding took place at St. Michael's Church at eight-thirty this morning, when Helen Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic DeCarlo, became the bride of Mr. Harold D. Holmes, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holmes.

Gaillardia and snapdragons made a colorful setting for the ceremony performed by Rev. C. E. Baker in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives of the young couple.

The bride given in marriage by her father was a charming picture in her gown of white satin and Alencon lace fashioned on simple classic lines, with puffed sleeves, high neckline, and long flowing skirt ending in a slight train. Her veil of embroidered tulle illusion was caught to her dark hair with orange blossoms and she carried a bridal bouquet of bouvardia and roses.

Miss Mary Ferraro was maid of honour, wearing a lovely gown of net in rainbow colors, with three-tiered skirt, and tiny hat caught with matching ribbon. Misses Nora Armstrong in blue, and Norma L'Esperance in pink, were bridesmaids wearing similar frocks of net over taffeta with long, full skirts, and matching hats. The three senior attendants carried muffs of sweetpeas, in pastel tones, with wrist frills of net.

Little Misses Dora Marie Lloyd and Mary Lupinette were flower girls in orchid organdy frocks in Kate Greenaway style. They carried nosegays of sweetpeas. Master Ronald Lupinette, nephew of the bride, wearing an Eton suit, was trainbearer.

Mr. Francis DeCarlo, brother of the bride, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Charles Holmes, Toronto, brother of the groom and Mr. Bill Boyle. Wedding music was played by Mrs. James Grant.

Following the ceremony, wedding breakfast was served at the Hotel Quinte, Mrs. DeCarlo, in gown of moss crepe in British blue shade, with white hat, and corsage of roses, and Mrs. Holmes wearing Queen's blue crepe with corsage of roses received with the bride and groom.

After a motor trip, for which the bride donned a frock of Elizabeth blue with matching accessories, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes will reside in Toronto.

Guests were present from Eldorado, Toronto, Stirling and Oshawa.

Muriel Angelus is the siren who tricks Akim Tamiroff, in Paramount's "The Way of All Flesh," now playing at the Capitol Theatre with the thrilling murder mystery, "Making the Headlines," starring Jack Holt as comanion feature.

Cooperation Of The School And The Home

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

At the annual convention of the Association for Childhood Education, recently, at Milwaukee, there was great emphasis on the home and family. At this convention a daily conference, largely attended, was conducted on school-home cooperation. In this conference, hundreds of leaders in kindergarten-primary education sought light and exchanged suggestions on ways by which the school might better win the home's cooperation.

The most important emphasis at this conference, as I saw it, was the very general recognition that the school can learn much from the home and that if the school is to make its best contribution it will have to learn more and more from parents.

Mother's Room

At another convention, that of the American Library Association, which met in Cincinnati, I observed a strong emphasis on the home and family, there being a section devoted to this purpose. It was my privilege to speak before this section on "The Mother's Room of the Youngstown Public Library as seen by a Psychologist." Judging from the manifest interest in the conference and from the numerous columns, editorials and magazine articles concerning the Mother's Room, the first of its kind in the world, I concluded that this project has helped greatly to stimulate libraries in that country and abroad to a growing interest in widening library service for parents.

There was a marked humility in the attitude toward parents and their needs. Mrs. Caroline S. Hughes, of the library of Washington, D.C., insisted that in choosing books for parents the library needed the aid of representative parents and of parent groups. What books parents think they need was emphasized. Humility is the beginning of wisdom.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, July 23

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A MODEROTE degree of routine activity may be expected on this day, according to the lunar and mutual transits. By keeping the nose industriously to the grindstone, with resolution, patience and perseverance, there is quite likely to be a surprising turn of events, either in stumbling upon something radically new or in attracting the recognition of capital ready to cooperate.

Those whose birthday it is may plan for a year of diligence and perseverance, especially in the development of some project of a new or ingenious type—something at once practical and novel. Unexpected influence may be impressed for promotion, which may culminate in a pleasingly unlooked-for denouement, although subject to some sort of treachery or opposition. It is also suggested as advisable to let the other interested ones put pu the funds for experimentation and promotion.

A child born on this day may be steady, persistent and hardworking, with definite ambitions of a practical kind. It may be disposed to squander its substance unless trained in thrift.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on Sid Hunt's front steps talking and arguing with him about different subjects such as whether a mosquito would get blood poison if it bit the meanest person in the world, and Sid's little brother Bert came out of the house with a top balloon on a string, and he sat down on the top step holding it.

Being a red balloon saying Hookbinders Doller Day on it, and I said, G, I wonder if that balloon would go straight up to the stratosphere if Bert left go of the string.

Sure, G, what would stop it? Sid said, and Bert said, Me.

Meaning he was going to keep right a hold of the string, and Sid said, Aw go ahead Bert, just imagine how it would feel to see it sailing straight up to the sky out of site forever.

That's just what I'm imagining, Bert said, and I said, It's only a avvertizement, Bert, you wouldn't be losing much.

I'd be losing this balloon, Bert said.

Proving he has an answer for everything, being what makes him so hard to argue with, and Sid said, Now listen, Bert, it might not even disappear all a ways, it might just go part ways up and come back, why dont you try it and see?

Why dont you throw your cap up a tree and se if it stick up there or falls back? Bert said, and I said, Well G wizzickers, Bert, haven't you got any curiosity?

I've got a balloon, Bert said.

Meaning he was sattisfied, and me and Sid took a walk in diskust.

Proving if you want to do anything for science the hardest thing to get is help.

Swim To Acquire A Good Figure

"Swimming strengthens the muscles of the back and abdomen."

By HELEN FOLLETT

Get in the swim, lady. Be a water baby. Do the mermaid act. Don't just play around in the water or loll upon the beach. Swimming is the ideal exercise. It is good for the short and the tall, the fat and the thin.

It strengthens the muscles of the back and the abdomen. Goodness knows the modern girl needs muscle toning, what with the slouchy posture that is being affected by those who want to appear arty. There's not as much interest in physical education as there should be. And the nice thing about swimming is that it is good fun. Not like standing on one's hind legs doing arm swinging stunts or bending exercises which do not appeal to the lazy girl.

End of Summer

Before going to the beach, oil shoulders, face and arms so you will protect the skin surface from the sun. Plunge in, don't wade out. As soon as you feel chilled, come out of the waves for a sunning, don't continue to swim after the first signs of fatigue.

Join up with the bathers. Figure improvement in the form of strong fibers and a neat outline will be apparent when the good old summer time comes to an end and the leaves begin to fall.

Thick, glossy hair beautifully arranged is a big item in the sum total of good appearance. The brain thatch won't qualify unless it is shampooed frequenly, brushed often, the scalp frictioned to keep the blood streams stepping along.

Physicians claim now that healthy hair is depenedent upon a varied diet, that certain vitamins will keep it from going dull and grey. Experiments have been made with rats, their coates watched, changes noticed. Dog fanciers give their canine subjects cod liver oil to keep their fur silky and shining. Something in the idea. So don't be a finicky eater. Your diet should include meat (especially liver), fish, poultry, eggs, cheese, cereals, vegetables, green salads, fruits and fruit juices. If you have those no vitamin will escape you.

Ideal Hostess Makes Invitation Specific

"Won't you come to visit us?" is one of the happy theme-songs of these vacation days. So let's consider some of the amenities of the invitation that the hostess sends to her guests.

First, and very important, it is the mother of the family (or if there is no mother, whoever is the hostess of the home) who must send the invitation to a guest to spend a week-end or longer in the house of that family. We should receive a direct invitation from the hostess. An indirect invitation from some member of the family is not enough.

For instance, a girl should never go to visit at a man's home, even if he is her fiance, without an invitation from his mother, or whoever is the hostess of his home. If this direct invitation seems not to be forthcoming, it is simple enough for her to say graciously, "I would love to go, Tom, if your mother would be so kind as to tell me that she would like to have me come".

The invitation written by the hostess, which will register hospitality, should also be definite. The invitation, besides naming the date, tells the approximate hour when the guests are expected to arrive. Very often a time-table is enclosed in the letter, with the suggested train, or choice of trains, marked. Information is given as to when and where the guests will be met. Or, if the guest is coming by car, the best route is explained.

"What kind of clothes shall I take?" This is one of the first problems to solve when we receive an invitation to visit, especially when it is the first visit we are making to this particular house. A thoughtful hostess realizes this, and gives in her invitation an idea of what we will be expected to do, and therefore what kind of clothes we will need.

"We're going to a dance at the Country Club" . . .it's one of the gala dances of the season . . .on Saturday evening, and a dear friend of ours has invited you and Tom to come with us to a dinner that they are giving at their house on Friday evening, and on Saturday afternoon we are having some friends in at tea-time to meet you and Tom". This definitely gives us the cue to take some dress-up clothes.

Or, "We live a very simple, back-to-nature life here . . . so bring walking-clothes and walking-shoes. No evening clothes . . .they aren't 'done' here", which makes us pack quite different types of clothes. And your hostess may also tell you about swimming clothes, golf clubs tennis rackets, riding clothes.

Some poeple unmistakenly think that it is rude for a hostess to tell a guest the length of time for which the guest is invited. It is far from rude, it is the essence of politeness. For with this definite information, both hostess and guest make plans according to the time set; there need be no awkwardness or misunderstanding. "I hope you can plan to come on Thursday, August eighth, and be with us for a week. There is an excellent express train from here at ten o'clock".

When the invitation is for a week-end, the hostess might write, "Do if possible, plan to come on the train that leaves the city on Friday, at four-thirty, and we'll meet you at the station here. And do plan to stay until Monday morning. There is an early Monday morning train that the men here take to get to their offices at nine o'clock.

Courtesy Tip

The world "child" is such an attractive and endearing word that I wonder why anyone ever passes it by in favor of the harsh and unattractive word "kid". People who have no regard for words or for courtesy, say "kid", "kids", "my kids". But those who value the rich quality of words and of courtesy say "child", "children", "my children".

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Would Like to Wear Veil at Second Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My first marriage had no poetry. I eloped with a man old enough to be my father. I wore a coat and skirt I'd been wearing to school all winter. We had no reception, no presents or any of the lovely things that make marriage beautiful.

I'm only 20 now, and am marrying the real love of my life. Why can't I have a veil and a wedding dress, and all of those things I missed when I married the first time? My mother and older sister say that if you've been married once, you can't wear a veil or a white dress. I feel that half the pleasure of my marriage will be spoiled if I can't look like a real bride his time.

Just Twenty

I hate to side with your mother and sister, but they're quite right. A bridal veil and white satin wedding dress for a girl who's been married before, even if she's only 20, would be distinctly bad form. Why not wear a smart coat suit or one-piece dress off-white in color? Palest beige, blush pink, maize, or faint blue? These colors come in shades hardly discernible from white. Then wear a big picture hat with flowers, and white accessories. You'll find these things sufficiently bride-like.

Willing to Face Hardships

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 23 years old. About a year and a half ago a boy (Jack) with whom I had been going "steady" for two years broke off with me rather suddenly. I made up my mind I'd forget about him, although I was deeply in love. I started dating and had all the dates I wanted.

I started going with Ted. He says he loves me and wants to go "steady". But I can't get my mind off Jack. Ted comes from a fine family, has a good job, but I'd rather face hardships with Jack than a life of luxury with anyone else. Jack says he'll always love me, but right now would rather go around with the boys. He doesn't seem to care for girls, so I know that isn't his reason.

We had really planned to marry, and now it seems as if everything is over. How can I get over loving Jack? I'd like it better still if you could tell me how to get him back.

Connie

In this great game of loving and falling in love, as in medicine, there is what is known as the counter-irritant treatment. In love this mean deliberately fastening your attention on someone other than the one you wish to forget. Force yourself to take an interest in Ted rather than accept the excuse of a boy who says he will always love you but prefers the society of other young men of his own age. That's not the most promising type on which to waste your affection.

How to Become Acquainted

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two girls of 15 and live in a neighborhood where there are no boys of our age. We attend a school exclusively for girls, and therefore cannot get acquainted with boys.

Near our home, however, there are some boys whom we should like to meet. Will you please tell us how we can go about it without seeming too forward? Now that school is over for the summer we'd like to make some new friends.

Puzzled

The most sensible way of becoming acquainted with boys you'd like to know is to get someone to introduce you. Perhaps you belong to the same church or your families belong to the same club, or political party. There may be picnics, lawn parties, boat rides, and such things, where you will find yourself with these youngsters, and some kind friend to introduce you.

Without what is known as being "fresh", you can hardly introduce yourselves or go in for such crudities as dropping belongings which these young men will return with a smile. Have you no brothers or cousins through whom you may become acquainted? Then, of course, if the boys wanted to know you as much as you want to know them, they'd find the necessary ways and means.

FEET

Since I wrote about children's feet and proper fitting shoes some time ago, I have received a number of letters from men about my observations. Of course, I never pretended to be a foot specialist, but I thought I knew something about feet. Apparently, I still have a lot to learn.

One of the men who wrote me enclosed some figures. I can't vouch for their veracity, but I rather imagine they may be pretty close to the mark. He states that surveys disclose that 65 per cent of boys and 80 per cent of girls in schools show serious foot defects, which, if neglected, may prove disabling in later life.

When a child is born, his feet are made up of 52 bony masses which don't appear united. As the child grows, these masses enlarge, and assume proper shape. Your child is ten years of age before the general structure of the foot is complete——and it is another ten years after that before the heel bone is completely formed. Just think, it takes twenty years to grow a foot. And a couple of ill-fitting pairs of shoes will cause them to grow in such a way that they will always give trouble.

While a baby's foot is growing, the bones grow the way they are bent. In such baby feet, there is no muscular development; the various arches are held in position by fatty pads. That is why a baby's foot appears flat for the first year.

As the child begins to crawl about and stand, these pads of fat are absorbed, muscles form, and the foot begins to have arches.

During this time when the bones are forming, it is very important for parents to watch the growth of the baby's feet. If the child is over weight when he stands he will put pressure on the soft bones that is greater than they can bear, and they will be bent out of shape. If the child is under nourished, the same thing may happen. If his shoes are too small, or too stiff, his foot bones will be thrown out of shape.

Of course, I think the majority of mothers know about these things and watch them. But there is another common cause of foot cramping in children that does a lot of harm. I refer to ill-fitting stockings. If the stocking is too small, it cramps the toes just as a tight shoes does. So your child may have the best fitting shoes in the world, but if his stocking is pulling his foot up into a clump, then damage is being done just the same. Sometimes a stocking that is too large is put on a child and then there is a lump of stocking gathered up at the toe. This is nearly as bad as the stocking that is too small.

I think a great deal of damage is done to tender feet through the use of stiff shoes. I know many parents who favor sturdy shoes for their children. I have no quarrel with sturdy shoes so long as they fit properly. But too often they don't, they are too stiff, and so they over-exert delicate foot muscles.

Rugged shoes have another fault. They are apt to look bigger than they really are with the result that children go on wearing them after they are really too small for them.

The child's foot is plastic. Without shoes, it bends easily at the ball of the foot. The shoes you get your child should allow this function without hindrance and this isn't the case if the sole is too stiff, or if the uppers are too stiff either.

First Aid For Summer Clothes

By ELEANOR ROSS

Summer is hard on clothes and one has to be constantly on the job to combat grass, alcohol, mildew and grease stains, as well as all the other stains that seem to gang up to spoil dispositions as well as clothes. It's all very nice and well to shoot off things to the dry-cleaner, but it is not always possible or practicable.

Here is "spot news" on how to give first aid to stained clothing and household articles.

Fortunately, the best stain removing agents aren't expensive. But one must expend much care and effort if a successful job is to result. Javelle water, potassium permanganate, two tried and trusty friends. Drug stores make a concentrate of oxalic acid, a reagent that does not affect fabrics if they are thoroughly rinsed after each application. Carbon Tetrachloride, a non-inflammable but volatile reagent, works on fats and oils. It may be used on many kinds of fabrics and will not affect color.

For Whites

Javelle is a chlorine bleach that should be used on white cotton or linen, but never on woolens or silks. If used full strength, apply with a glass dropper and wash out well with clear water. It is generally used in a solution of one cup Javelle to a gallon of water, but for a very stubborn spot, use a cup of Javelle to one quart of water. Let stained portion of material soak in a bowl of the solution until the spot disappears, then rinse well in clear water before soaping. Fruit and mildew stains on cottons and linens generally yield to this procedure.

Coffee and tea stains on linen usually yield to washing, if handled before they have had a chance to dry into the fabric. Place over a bowl and pour boiling water through the stain. Use Javelle on a stubborn stain.

Beware The Poison Ivy

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

A number of weeds will cause a skin eruption on contact and this also is true of at least one domesticated plant—the primrose. The most frequent and, of course, the arch-enemy, is the family of Rhus — poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac.

Not everyone is susceptible to these eruptions. And apparently all those who are sensitive acquire their sensitiveness by a single contact which renders them liable to severe eruption later. Baffin Bay Eskimos do not react when given patch tests to poison ivy, which does not grow north of the St. Lawrence River. Newborn infants are not sensitive to poison ivy. But 50 percent of young adults in the vicinity of Dallas, where the plant grows abundantly, react positively.

Primrose dermatitis is said to occur in 5 per cent of adults. But 250 medical students with no history of exposure showed negative patch tests, while 8 per cent of Dallas florists who handle the plant reacted positively.

The Rhus family prepares its poison in the form of an oily sticky resin or sap that runs through channels in the stems and the leaves. Neither the pollen, the bark, the plant hairs, nor the surface of the branches or uninjured leaves cause poisoning when touched.

Beware Breaking

But if a stem is broken or a leaf torn or a flower or berry broken off, a milky juice comes out in small drops and this is the poisonous sap that does the damage. A set of small tubelike canals runs up the stems, out the stalks of the leaf, breaking up in the veins of the leaf and in the flowers and berries. Each canal is surrounded by glandular cells which secrete the poisonous sap.

Every spring as the old stalks come to life, new canals and poison glands are formed, and the new young plants have very delicate leaves, easily broken by those who are picking wildflowers. The plants are dangerous all through the year, even in the winter when the light gray, smooth, brittle stemmed plants growing along fences may be misjudged: but the easily broken stems will exude the irritating sap just the same.

Recognition is indeed the key to the whole question of poison ivy prevention. "Leaflets three, let it be." Beware of reddish leaved plants before autumn has come.

Injection Aid

Poison ivy grows in rich damp soil, shrub-like or climbing up trees, over rocks, or walls, or fences. It is found all over the United States except on the Pacific Coast where its cousin, the poison oak, supplants it. Most vicious of all is the poison sumac which grows almost entirely in bogs.

Prevention and treatment of poison ivy is now done quite successfully with poison ivy extract. To prevent, it is given in two hypodermic injections at two week intervals. For treating, one injection gives marked relief in 24 to 48 hours.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. E. T. — "(1) Will removing moles cause cancer? (2) Are pickles good substitutes for food when you are hungry between meals? (3) Does drinking water with your meals cause you to fatten?"

Answer — (1) The removal of moles is really valuable in preventing cancer. Such removal will not cause cancer. (2) Yes, pickles allay hunger to a certain extent but paradoxically do not spoil the next meal. They are not fattening. In Furnishing The Bedroom

By ELEANOR ROSS

With the nest-building season in full swing, the budget arouses new interest. One question that remains a perennial deals with what share of the home furnishing budget should be spent on the bedroom, and what should it buy. Home economics experts in a recent conference have estimated that in a two-room home the bedroom should be allotted 33 per cent of the total furnishing budget. In a three-room home the percentage should be 25 per cent. In larger homes the allowance for the master bedroom is as follows: four-room, 22 per cent; five-room, 21 per cent; six-room, 17 per cent; seven-room, 16 per cent.

Once it is determined how much is to be spent on bedroom furniture, the decision must be made on the apportioning of this money to cover all necessary purchases. Wise budgeting will avert the tragic results of buying a cheap mattress to balance the enthusiastic but extravagant purchase of costly boudoir lamps. It should be remembered that the function of the bedroom is to provide a place for comfortable sleep. The mattress, the bedspring[illegible] the pillows, have the most to [illegible] with determining the quality [illegible]est, so these should be provi[illegible]r the first thing.

Suggested Outlay

If the furnishings budget for the bedroom has been determined at $250, it might be spent as follows: Bedroom furniture, $124; spring and mattress, $79 chair, $12; floor covering, $15; curtains, $10; lamps, and accessories, $10. When funds are limited it is wise to go carefully on lamps and accessories. These can always be acquired later, especially if sales are watched carefully, making it possible to purchase fine merchandise at reduced prices.

The main thing is to select the best type of basic equipment possible for the money, sleeping equipment that will give excellent service for many years, and bring rest and relaxation to the sleeper. Even the handsomest drapes and lamps, the most beautiful pieces of furniture, do not make a bedroom. It is the springs and mattress that determine the room.

Stripes Are Starred This Summer

By ALICE ALDEN

It's stripes rather than plaids or dots this summer. If the frock or ensemble is of solid color, the chances are that it will be accompanied by striped accessories. Vertical stripes are kind to the not-so-slim, and so are very popular. Stripes give color and dash to the ensemble, as you can see from this handsome bag and hat.

The very smart little sailor is of crepe in Roman stripes, using blue, red, green, white and yellow. The draped crown continues into a flat bow and a streamer under the brim at the side. The large matching bag has a gilt metal frame with nobs topped with the fabric. A nice freshener-up for the town wardrobe.

The Wearing Of The Green

By ALICE ALDEN

Fashions may come and go, fads may ebb and flow, but the classic wool sports jacket goes on and on, ideal for town or country wear. Lately we've seen ever so many smart women wearing wool jackets in green and in lavender tones, and both colors are cited for autumn promotion.

Peggy Moran, as befits her Irish name, sponsors green and chooses it in a dark shade for the classic wool sports jacket barred with beige. It is of the popular longer length and is meticulously tailored with a deep lapel line with two button fastening, and flap pockets.

With it is worn a tailored blouse of white crepe and the flared skirt is of beige wool. The casual, brimmed hat is of white hopsacking, so smart this summer.

"I Spy"

Today's models are lovely but not glamorous, according to a member of the fashion press attending a luncheon and show yesterday. She recalls in particular Jean Lamont, the brunette with hazel eyes, who has married and is a stylist for one of Manhattan's stores, and, incidentally, still a beautiful woman . . . Comment when beautiful blond Georgia Carroll appeared: "How do you suppose you'd feel if you woke up in the morning and saw THAT in the mirror?" . . . Judgment, heard by me before, on a model who shall be nameless — "She needs a good smacking."

Georgia's prettiest costume for the runway was a brown chiffon frock under a brown chiffon coat, the latter splashed on one rever with a huge, full blooming white rose, and a large, thin straw picture hat.

The complaints about maids which I hear most often are that they stack dishes at the table . . . and don't wear the same size uniform as their predecessors . . . A favorite trick of my own maid is to turn a man's coat inside out on a hanger, button it, and let the sun get at the entire lining . . . She is after me, at the moment, to get some glass-handled silverware she saw uptown. . . . I'm more interested in the individual table ash trays I saw yesterday, gold washed snail shells.

Baby Needs To Cry

Nature has a way of making small lungs big lungs, and weak voices into strong voices. She says, "One, two, three—ready, yell, for all you're worth." Baby simply has to have his daily dozen in voice culture. So he cries sometimes for nothing at all — except exercise.

Of course, if mother comes a-running at every little yip and he discovers that the tiniest noise brings unexpected blessings, he turns blackmailer at once. He uses his racket as a racket. Why stay put if you can bribe some excitement?

Babies are afraid of things. Loud sudden noises, dread of falling, tight places, all are "born" fears and will make them cry. And of course, being too hot and uncomfortable, will cause a flood of tears.

If your infant cries overtime, take him to the doctor. If the doctor says he's fine, then charge it up to some of the reasons mentioned.

Household Hints

If you like a tart taste to your fruit sauce, add several slices of whole lemon or orange to a saucepan of stewing prunes.

Why not can cranberry sauce now to be used as a refreshing, ice cold dish next summer?

When peeling oranges for salad or dessert, peel off the outer thick skin, plunge the orange into boiling water for a few seconds and the white pulp and thick membranes will peel off very easily without breaking the sections. After peeling place orange sections in refrigerator for a few minutes to rechill for use.

Attractive and Roomy

National Plan Service, Inc. (Chicago)

● THIS FIVE room cottage has been finished with an English exterior, but the same floor plan looks just as attractive if its exterior is given a Colonial aspect.

There is an unusually large attic space in the house, which means that basement space can be turned over to rumpus room activities, rather than completely filled with furnace and stored household articles. Ceilings are eight feet high, and the main building measures thirty by thirty-two feet.

The little dining foyer will take a good deal of wear and tear off the living room, and it can be made into a very pretty spot as it has its own window making it more like a separate room than a nook.

In a house this small, the knowing housekeeper will have curtains which match in every window of each room, getting interior variety by hanging differing drapes in each room.

Pick Pique Frock For Smartness

By ALICE ALDEN

Darling of the country club set, ideal for summer evening at the seashore or at any resort, that's pique. The girl who wants to show off her tan will choose a white pique evening frock which will increase her chances of being the belle of the ball.

Here's a glamorous model fashioned of birdseye pique, done on simple lines, as befits a simple fabric. The fill, gored skirt contrasts with the snugly fitted bodice.

Color Schemes For The Wedding

It's hearts and flowers these days as wedding bells sound and households all over the land are in the throes of preparations for the great day. While her mother is busy with maids and the caterers, the bride-to-be is thinking up an original scheme for her wedding entourage. No matter how modern a girl is, she wants to walk up to the altar clothed in traditional beauty even if she includes little touches of her own. Time-honored white satin and tulle with its garnish of orange blossoms is still the choice of many a lovely bride, but there are many accepted variations on the traditional theme.

All White Theme

One bride worked out a pretty idea for her flowers. She carried a prayerbook with a white satin and lilies of the valley marker. Her bridesmaids carried fans of the lilies with camelias, a beautiful combination. The fans had long white satin streamers. The bride wore her mother's wedding dress and for her bridesmaids chose dresses of white dotted muslin, with enormously full skirts worn over crinolin. One dress had a lilac grosgrain sash, another a primrose, another pale pink and another turquoise blue.

The popularity of the skull-cap has extended to bridal costumes. White orchids attached to loops of pearls is to be the choice of one beautiful bride. Romantic and beautiful for the beautiful blonde bride is a dress of layer on layer of misty blue tulle with a cluster of pink clovers in the hair and another as a bouquet.

A knowing florist suggests a garland of violets, hyacinth and fresias woven into one long chain for the bridesmaids to carry. One bride has chosen a filmy white dress with a dawn pink satin slip glinting through the skirt. Her bridesmaids will wear pale pink with pink tulle hats and from their wrist will dangle heart-shaped frames of flowers.

Novelty Colors

There is a growing popularity for creamy beige as a wedding dress color. One bride, addicted to this shade, is having her dress of pale beige satin and her bridesmaids will carry out the theme with dresses in deepening beige tones. Pink hats, pink gloves and bouquets of pink roses and pink camelias will complete an exquisite color scheme for a girl who will always be remembered as "that beautiful bride in beige."

A necklace and bracelet of tuberoses is the alternative to the traditional bouquet selected by a recent bride. She is wearing aquamarine tulle and her bridesmaids are wearing tulle in deepening blue with skullcaps of tuberoses worn far back on the head.

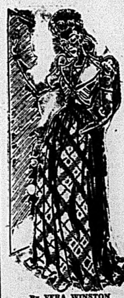
Seersucker Steps Out



By VERA WINSTON

Seersucker plaided in red, green, black and white makes this delectable little evening dress ideal for resort wear. A white pique bolero covers the simple bodice with its tiny gathered sleeves. A bright green velvet belt with a tailor-made bow encircles the waist from which point the dress falls in full folds. Slit pockets hidden by the gathers.

FASHION FLASHES

GET INTO PRINT while the shops are showing such handsome print suits. Gray silk crepe with a small flower print in wine and white makes a smart frock with draped bodice and sunray-pleated skirt. Little wine red velvet bows trim the frock. The bolero has a ruffled edge.

THE CRYSTAL reveals much sleek black for autumn. An advance dinner dress is in black satin back crepe with a draped halter neckline, and a tunic slit in various places to disclose the very slim, sheath-like underskirt. A heavily jewelled belt trims this frock.

Detroit Tigers Increase Margin By Whipping Yankees Twice Before 68,590 Fans on Sunday

Tigers Put Together Five Consecutive Wins Over Yanks and Boston and Are Really Hot

UMPIRE JOSTLED

Cincinnati Reds Defeat Giants Twice to Pull Further Away from Brooklyn Dodgers

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

Detroit Tigers may not be a perfect ball club, but they're a red hot one, and that's what it looks as though the American League is going to pay off on.

The Tigers have just succeeded in winning five consecutive contests from the world champion New York Yankees and the rich Red Sox of Boston, both of them contenders in this whacky merry-go-round.

The Yankees were as warm as the weather until the Tigers came to town and turned on some real heat. Detroit scored four runs in the ninth inning to win the first game of a doubleheader yesterday 4-3 and then battled back again to take the nightcap 3-2.

It was a stirring show in which 68,590 fans participated, staging one of the worst exhibitions of rowdyism Yankee stadium has witnessed. They threw pop bottles, fruit and an assortment of other missiles at Umpire Joe Rue in the second game after he ruled a liner by Tom Henrich landed foul.

Homer Decides Game

When the Tigers came to bat again Pete Fox hit a home run that decided the game in their favor. A pinch homer by Bruce Campbell with one on climaxed the rally that won the first game. Joe DiMaggio remained out of both games, complaining of a sore back.

Cleveland Indians completed a sweep of a three-game stand in Boston by whipping the Red Sox 3-2 and 2-0 in a twin bill. The first triumph was the five-hit achievement of Bob Feller. In the second game Joe Dobson and Fritz Oestermueller tangled in a hurling duel and Dobson won, although he gave seven hits to Fritz' four. Three doubleplays helped Dobson get a shutout.

In the National League Cincinnati Reds mopped up New York Giants 6-1 and 4-2 to make their score 20 victories in the last 25 games, certainly a championship pace.

Paul Derringer pitched a two-hitter in the first fracas, having a perfect game (no hits and no man reaching first) until the eighth inning when Babe Young homered. J. Turner kept eight hits well spread in winning the second session.

Dodgers Give Ground

Brooklyn Dodgers gave ground again by dividing a doubleheader with St. Louis Cardinals. The Dodgers captured the opener 3-1 with Fred Fitzsimmons pitching seven-hit ball and Joe Medwick and Joe Gallagher nicking Clyde Shoun for home runs. But in the second affair Enos (Country) Slaughter punched out two round-trip tickets off Luke Hamlin, one with two on, to lead the way to a 5-2 triumph.

Pittsburgh Pirates again demoralized Boston Bees, sweeping a bargain bill 5-3 and 16-2 on top of Saturday's 17-6 bombardment. The rout was so complete that Manager Frank Frisch took a leaf out of the football coaching book and substituted a "second team" in the midst of the second game to rest his veterans from the heat.

Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies split two games, the tail-enders winning the first 8-2 on Hugh Mulcahy's six-hit hurling and Chicago coming back to win the second 8-5 with a 15-hit offensive topped by Hank Leiber's two home runs.

Chicago White Sox finished off a sweep of their series with Philadelphia Athletics with 10-8 and 7-2 verdicts in a couple of free-swinging affairs. Mike Tresh made three hits in the first game and Bob Kennedy four in the nightcap to lead the blasting.

St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators divided two games. George McQuinn and Joe Grace hit home runs as the last place Browns pounded out an 8-4 decision in the first game and McQuinn hit a three-run homer as St. Louis outslugged the Senators in the nightcap, but lost 5-4. Washington got only six hits to St. Louis' 11, but one of them also was a three-run homer by Sam West.

New York, July 22 —(AP)— Diamond dust: We're not sure whether Umps Joe Rue was a hero for bravely standing there and letting those cowards heave pop bottles at him yesterday—or whether he's a dunce for not ducking . . . Thank the Lord the throwers' arms were as feeble as their brains . . . Harry Craft, the Reds outfielder, has yet to make his first error of the year while Joe Moore of the Jints, tops among the 1939 fielders, already has more bobbles than he had all last year.

THREE NEW MARKS AT POLICE GAMES

Detroit Policemen Set Two New Records and Otherwise Dominate Meet

Toronto, July 22—(CP) — Three meet records toppled at the 58th annual Toronto police games here Saturday, despite a rain-soaked field and a muddy track. Conditions were so poor all the women's events were cancelled.

Detroit policemen set up two of the new marks and generally dominated the meet. H. Van Nortwick heaved the 56-pound weight 16 feet, six inches, several inches higher than the previous mark and husky George Huber put the 16-pound shot 47 feet, 6 1-2 inches.

The third record was established by Toronto's J. Attfield with a toss of 159 feet, 10 inches in the 16-pound hammer throw. Attfield also took individual meet honors. He won first place in the standing broad jump, the hammer throw and the hop, step and jump, and second honors in high jump, running broad jump and pole vault.

Detroit's team garnered 41 points to lead the international competition, followed by Toronto with 32 and Montreal with 26. Toronto took first place in the Canadian section with 56. Montreal had 45 and Hamilton one.

I. Hume of Montreal gathered most of his team's points, capturing the pole vault, javelin throw and 120-yard low hurdles. Montreal's burly tug-of-war team outpulled Detroit and Toronto in that order to take that event—one of the most coveted in the meet.

MONTREAL WINS A DOUBLEHEADER FROM THE WINGS

Good Pitching for Royals Enables Team to Beat League Leaders

TORONTO WINS

Leafs Score Five Runs in the Fourth to Beat Syracuse Chiefs 9-3

(By the Associated Press)

Rochester Red Wings are human after all. They can be beaten by good pitching.

Just when it began to appear a hopeless task for the rest of the teams in the International League to do anything about stopping the powerful surge of the league leaders, Montreal Royals took two games from them yesterday.

Both were close, the Royals winning the first 4-3 behind Kemp Wicker's fine hurling and the second 1-0 as Bill Crouch wore the hero's toga.

After Mike Ryba fed Gus Suhr a homerum ball in the second, he kept them in hand until the eighth while his mates made two hits, one of them Scheffing's triple, count for two runs in the fifth. Two singles in the eighth routed Ryba and the Royals added another pair against John Berly.

Hank Gornicki, who like Ryba was after his 14th victory, gave only seven hits, Staller's triple and Ross' single in the seventh costing him the decision while Bill Crouch was limiting the opposition to five hits.

Bisons End Losing Streak

Buffalo Bisons ended their string of losses at seven by taking the second game of a double bill from Newark 6-1 after the Bears won the opener 7-5.

The Bears tallied four homers in the first game to hand pitcher Hal White his second defeat after a string of seven victories. Floyd Giebell held Newark to four hits in the afterpiece and helped win his own game with two doubles which drove in two runs. Outlaw's 13th homer of the season was one of Buffalo's 10 hits.

Jersey City and Baltimore divided a doubleheader, the Little Giants winning the opener 6-4 and the Orioles the nightcap by 4-1.

Johnny Dickshot's triple with three on in the seventh featured a five-run Jersey rally that ruined Orlin Collier, starting Baltimore pitcher, in the first game. Hy Vandenberg, who pitched seven innings gave up eight hits and three runs got credit for the win.

Relief Hurler Gets Credit

Elmer Burkart who came to the relief of Guy Johnson and stopped the Little Giants with two hits, got credit for the second game, his second victory of the season.

By splitting the twin bill, the Jerseys captured the series, three games to two and kept a half-game margin over the fifth place Orioles.

A big fourth inning that netted five runs enabled Toronto Maple Leafs to score a 9-3 victory over Syracuse Chiefs. The Leafs got a total of 14 hits off three Syracuse hurlers while Jim Walkup and Pretzels Pezzullo, who shared the mound for the Leafs, scattered 12 blows.

HOGAN LEADING MONEY WINNERS

Revolta and Hogan Tie for Second Place in Chicago Open Tourney

Chicago, July 22—(AP) — Ben Hogan, the Texan who now registers out of White Plains, N.Y., was leading the field today in the race for professional golf's top honors for the year—leading money winner and best scorer in the Harry Vardon Trophy contests.

Hogan tied for second place with Johnny Revolta in the Chicago open championship which ended yesterday with Dick Metz, Oak Park, Ill., in possession of the title and $1,500 first prize money on a brilliant 72 hole total of 278 strokes, 10 under par.

The tie for second place—Revolta and Hogan finished with aggregates of 279—earned Hogan $575 and sent him into the leadership of this year's money winners with a total of $8.788. He replaced another Texan, "Smiling Jim" Demaret, who did not play in the Chicago event and who now is in second place with earnings of $8,477.

Just what the technicality was at the time we've forgotten, but a couple of months ago or so the Chicago White Sox beat the Yankees 1-0, but the world champs protested on some technical point and were awarded the protest and President Harridge ordered the game replayed in Chicago. Ever since the cheroot-smoking Jimmie Dykes, manager of the Pale Hose, has been seeking revenge upon the Bronx Bombers. He now has the solution ....When the New Yorkers invade Chicago late this month he's going to play off that protested game as part of a doubleheader on Saturday, July 28....That means that the Yanks will have to play a night game on Friday night, a doubleheader on Saturday and another doubleheader on Sunday.... Then they move on to Detroit.... "Heh, heh, heh," chortled the deep-thinking Mr. Dykes when he had thought it all out, "that'll fix em" ....On the other hand it may fix the White Sox for, after all, James, you know that it still takes two teams to make a ball game and it is not likely to prove any three-day picnic for your White Sox.

The "hottest thing in town" in the way of softball is slated for Tuesday night when those arch enemies of the diamond, Corbys A.C. and the Shell "Oilers", open their best for-in-seven series for the right to not only represent Belleville in the intermediate 'A' playdowns of the O.A.S.A., but also to gain the right to advance into the City League finals. Naturally both squads are anxious to get the jump by winning that initial contest, which means a considerable advantage to the winners. There is little doubt but that Coach Harold Bawden will give brother Johnnie the Oilers' pitching assignment, saving Eddie Schrieder for Wednesday night. Skipper Gerald Barriage has Connie Harris, Lum Carson and Freddie Vasil to send to the firing line, but Harris has been his mainstay of season and unless the Corbys feel they don't want to battle Harris against Bawden, we expect to see Connie in there Tuesday, although it might be possible that Harris could be saved for the second game on Wednesday. Otherwise the squads will be at full strength.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb, holder of many records and generally admitted to be the foremost ball player of all time, feels that night ball is a good thing and predicts it will not be long before the arc-light pastime is accepted throughout the entire big league belt. While on a recent visit with friends in Salt Lake City, Utah, Cob bsaid he is satisfied the fans want night ball and they are the people who pay the freight.

In all probability there'll be plenty of fireworks at tonight's meeting of the Ladies' Softball loop. General Chairman Ted Schwabb has called the girl "mushballers" together to talk over the withdrawal of the Woolworth entry and what is to be done with several of the "five and ten" squad lassies, who are being sought by two other teams in the loop. There was an unwritten agreement between the girls teams to the effect that no additional players would be added to the teams' roster after July 1st. However Stub Barrett's K-Nines trotted out a new 16-year-old hurler since that date and now Coaches Lum Carson and Chuck Barnett are after their pound of flesh. Also there is the question of changing the venue of the league's playing field to possibly the East Belleville playgrounds. Whether this move would interfere with the playground program is another matter which would have to be ironed out tonight, but from this corner it would seem much better diplomacy to copy the men's lead and commence the girls play-off at the Armouries tomorrow.

Maurice Callaghan's After You III, crossed the finishing line well in advance of all other sailing craft in the annual Mikel Cup handicap punt race yesterday. Harold Kellar's Scrapper lead for the initial half of the race, but suddenly decided to cease hostilities and the race was then on between those veteran aquatic enemies, the After You III, Joka and Alaska. At the finishing line it was Callaghan's After You III, Duke Smith's Joka, sailed by Harry Whalen, and then along came Harry Semark's Alaska. Ah, but although the race is all over, or is it, these puntsters are back at their old tricks and sure enough there's been a protest lodged. Skipper Harry Whalen, of the Joka, claims a foul, stating that the After You III, forced him to luff and ultimately lose. The protest was handed officially to Chairman "Derb" Jeffery last night and the fun will now be heard in the committee room.

SPORT SPICE—Remember good old Ray Schalk, who was the mainstay of the Chicago White Sox for many a year? . . . Well, Ray has returned to baseball as manager of the Milwaukee "Brewers." . . . Freddie Vasil just won't be pitching for Corby's nine in the O.A.S.A. playdowns this year, at least not too soon. . . . Freddie is enjoying a "forced holiday" at Wasaga Beach, we hear. . . . Is it quite a drastic week end for the Yankees, those tail-twisting Tigers slapped McCarthy's gang down for three losses, one on Saturday and two yesterday, when nearly 69,000 fans saw the world champs lose both sides of a doubleheader. . . . The Gotham fans staged an oldtime baseball donnybrook and littered the field with everything handy in protest of an umpire's decision, which prompts us to add—"that's unadulterated baseball" as the old ball game should be played. . . . In the meantime the Red stockings from Cincinnati are making baseball hay while the summer sun shines and are forging towards another flag.

Two and a half minute interview: Doc Painter, Yankee trainer: "Know what's the matter with the Yankees? Well, no team ever was under a nervous strain for as long as the Yankees were. For four years they couldn't let down even in exhibition games because they had to keep in mind the fact they were the Yankees and people expected great things of them. This spring they just had a reaction."

AUSTRALIA FEELS THRILL OF PRIDE

Newspapers Gratified That H.M.A.S. Sydney Has Struck Swift Blow at Huns

Sydney, Australia, July 22 (CP Cable)—The victory in the Mediterranean of the cruiser Sydney of the Royal Australian Navy which sank the Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni has sent a thrill of pride throughout Australia.

Newspapers expressed gratification that another H.M.A.S. Sydney, like the one in the last war that finished the career of the German commerce raider Emden, has struck a swift blow, enabling Australia to offer a fresh token to Britain that the Dominions will fight beside her until real peace is achieved.

Naval commentators welcomed the fact the engagement occurred in the so-called Italian belt of the Mediterranean, proving the navy is not adopting a mere defensive belt around Alexandria.

Flags were flying on government buildings today to celebrate the "gallant naval exploit."

3 1-2 POUND SHAD CAUGHT IN LAKE

Shad Caught in Fresh Water Usually Weigh Only a Few Ounces Apiece

South Bay, July 22—A fish of rare size, was a three and one-half pound shad caught by Elmer Bongard, Point Traverse commercial fisherman. Shad caught in fresh water usually weigh only a few ounces each, but a few years ago one was landed that weighed five pounds, being the largest on record.

Unhurt in Fall

A large Holstein bull on a Point Traverse farm fell a distance of 30 feet over a rocky cliff there and escaped without serious injury from the fall. The animal landed on the rocky shoreline and appeared none the worse from its experience.

SHINING WINDOWS

INSTALMENT 12.

"I think I'm joining Nelson and driving down to Hollywood; he's going to get into things there," Ben observed. His father raised interested eyebrows.

"Is that so?" he asked. "Nelson got anything definite?"

"Kind of. I know it seems crazy to you, but we'll get away with it," Ben said.

"It doesn't seem crazy at all," his father answered cordially.

"Oh, mother, I had an adventure the day you left!" This was Joyce. "A man—he looked more like a wolf—is living in a shed way up back of the canyon. He's an Englishman; he came down to borrow some food for his dog, and he was starving himself, so I gave him some lunch here in the kitchen and he was ravenous!"

"How d'ye mean he's living up there?" William Ballard passed his cup for more tea. "What's he doing: squatting?"

"Oh, no, he's not that sort. He looks like a gentleman fruit-picker."

"Oh, I know who he is," her father said. "Swede spoke to me about him. He said this feller would help with the cherries next week. He'll probably come down and talk to me about it."

"But what's he doing in one of our cabins?" Sally demanded. "I call that pretty cool!"

"I don't believe that cabin's on our place, mommy. It's a good way south, on the ridge. I'll walk up there in a day or two and see him."

"Well, whosever place he's on he's not paying any rent!"

"That may be county property, you know. I doubt if it's on the map. It's all pretty wild back there."

"Where'd you see a map, dad?"

"Buying this place. I paid the whole thing down yesterday, but there are taxes to catch up. Four or five hundred dollars."

"Funny to own a ranch, and chickens and cows," Joyce mused. "It gives you a funny feeling under your feet. Firmness."

"We owned 'ninety-nine'," her mother reminded her sharply.

"I never thought of cherries as coming so thick," Dodo said. "You can go out there and stand under the tree and just stuff, and yet you see masses of them way up above you and you can't even tell where you've been picking!"

"What do people do when they have too many, dad? I mean, Swede's got cherries, and over at Cooley's they have tremendous lots of cherries."

"Sell 'em! What did you think farmers did?" William Ballard said with a nervous chuckle and a placating glance at his wife. "I'm going to pay six dollars a year to belong to the Farmers' Institute. They send a truck to the gate every morning and whatever I've got—cream or eggs or fruit—they pick up. At the end of the month I get my cheque."

"Why, dad, I never knew that!" Joyce said. "Why don't we give them our extra milk? Mike—this man I was talking about—says it's gold!"

"I'm just joining the Institute, Joycie. We've not begun to tap the possibilities of this place yet!" her father said. "A ranch like this might easily be self-supporting."

Sally said nothing. She compressed her lips, shrugged; her breast rose and fell in a long sigh.

Later she said to her youngest daughter in a somewhat grudging tone: "You're taking all this beautifully, Joyce, and your father and I appreciate it. But nothing will ever make me feel that it's the right solution for Ben or for Dodo. Dodo ought to be coming out this winter, poor child!"

"Ben seems happy enough now," Joyce observed. "And maybe if he goes south with Nelson he'll get work in the movies."

And for a brief interval there was domestic peace on the ranch.

The Ballards were getting settled and while that activity lasted they found time flying too fast for introspection or blues. Every inch of the house had to be washed; every room aired, every bit of paint renewed; fresh curtains had to go up; a load of handsome furniture came down from storage in the city. Bits of fine china embellished the rather bare hopeless dining-room; a blue-flame kerosene stove was placed in the kitchen.

The days grew hot; the sun rose at five and by breakfast time the world was dazzling with dry shadows. Two calves were born and sold to the butcher; cherries were gone, and blackberries and apricots in full glory.

A plumber came up from the village and installed a bath in the room off the kitchen. The room would never look like a real bathroom it was; too big and it was not the right shape, but it was an undeniable comfort.

"I shall get off this place the first second I can," Sally told her daughters. "Daddy knows that. In the meanwhile I suppose we had all better make the best of it!"

Joyce helped her father in the yards and barn. They raked down hay, hunted eggs, whitewashed the chicken house inside and out, spread apricots on wooden trays to dry. With this last job Ben helped Joyce and her father and Mike Tallant. Mike was pretty regularly employed on the ranch now and Joyce had heard him at the farmer's telephone ordering feed from the village and identifying himself as "Ballard's hired man".

On the day they split and spread the apricots Joyce was in wild spirits and would have laughed at anything. Paul was going to stay overnight, which meant games and fun at the table and a thrilling walk in the moonlight afterward, and the next day she was to drive to Burlingame with him for a Friday-to-Monday visit with his father and stepmother. It was too much bliss!

Paul was to sleep in the boxlike upstairs bedroom that had recently been equipped for Lisy, and Lisy was to have a cot in her sisters' room. Lisy preferred any sort of room of her own to sharing with her sisters. Of the four bedrooms that were squarely set on the upper floor, without imagination or variation, this was perhaps the least desirable, but the curtains were fresh and the bed comfortable. The other rooms were the front and largest chamber, where the senior Ballards slept, the room back of it for the two younger girls, and the fourth corner room, just a shade larger than Lisy's where Ben was established.

Dinner was in the dining-room and the four women changed their clothes for the event for the first time since they had moved to La Perdita. Four green candlesticks, purchased at what Thelma Volkmann, down in the village, called simply "The Dime", were set on the table, with four green candles burning in them. A certain beauty and grace that the kitchen meals had somehow lacked made pleasant this meal to which father, mother, guest, son and three daughters sat down.

After supper there was a riot of dishwashing. Presently every one else had seemed to melt away from the scene and Joyce and Paul could walk through an orderly kitchen and step out into the white world of the moon.

The night was chilly. But Joyce had Paul's big soft coat belted about her and she was not cold. They walked across the transfigured yard. Every leaf was tipped with silver; the barns and sheds and fences were made magical in white light and velvet black shadows.

"It's everywhere!" Joyce said. "There's so much of it! How wonderful fields are in moonlight!"

"Where'd Mike disappear to?" Paul asked.

"Oh, he never dines with us! He lives up there on the ridge and he always goes home to dinner."

"Is he in love with my girl?"

"In love with me!" She laughed. "Girls don't seem to mean anything to him," she said. "But if he were you wouldn't be jealous of a hired man?"

She used the phrase as Mike himself had used it at the telephone a few days earlier. But instantly she regretted it; it didn't seem fair to Mike.

"He's not like most of 'em. But I'd be jealous of any one who liked you! Listen, there's something I want to tell you—"

They were at the bars, looking down at the moon-washed world of the valley. Close to the fence on the other side Joyce saw something stir; a man's shadow down on the green grass; a man with a pipe got to his feet, was facing them, Mike!

Instantly her senses were in complete confusion. He had been right there within a few inches of them while they talked; he had heard everything they said.

"Hello, Mike, didn't see you!" Paul said. And she knew from his tone that he was as completely embarrassed as she was.

"I'm sorry. I was hoping you'd move along and not see me! I often hang around here a bit and see that the cows are fed, and tonight I told your father that I'd go up to the dairy with him after supper. I'm really sorry.

"Nothing to be sorry about!" Joyce interrupted the somewhat halting sentences gallantly. "Only you've not had any supper."

"Oh, that!" he said carelessly. "I shall have something to eat when I get home."

They were all walking back toward the kitchen door now, before they reached it William Ballard's substantial figure suddenly blocked it and he called, "Mike!"

"Here you are, sir!" Mike answered joining him. Paul and Joyce walked away into the moonlight again. Joyce was in a state of youthful agitation not unmixed with rueful laughter.

"Oh, wasn't that awful! I said—he wasn't three feet away, he couldn't miss it! What on earth did I say? That I wouldn't marry—no, that you oughtn't to be jealous of a hired man! I did say 'hired man', Paul. Oh, I could die! He's so nice. How'll I ever look him in the face again!"

"What of it?" Paul asked. Back at the fence again now, he had his arm about her and her head was on his shoulder. "It was all true enough and if a man takes a job like this he ought to be sensible about it."

"Yes, you're quite right, except that it sounded so cheap!"

"Oh, well, you should worry about him" Paul said. "No one knows anything about him. He's probably been married three times!" They began to talk of themselves.

She stepped down from the train at Gilroy late in the languid hot June afternoon a week later, her linen suit crumpled, her face flushed and dirty from the heated cars.

"Oh, Ben, you were a darling to meet me!" she exclaimed joyfully.

"Have a good time?"

"Oh, good time!" Words failed Joyce. "You'll hear about it until you're sick of it," she recommenced. "There never was such a good time."

AT THE McCARTHY

"Only Angels Have Wings"

Every emotion you can feel demands that you see this picture... Cary Grant and Jean Arthur in "Only Angels Have Wings" now playing a return engagement, at the McCarthy theatre. Excitement thunders across the screen to answer your craving for adventure. Danger holds in its tensest grip ... and never lets you go. It's 1939's greatest screen adventure! Back to thrill the world anew.

"Only Angels Have Wings" is the story of a group of reckless pilots who daily face death in their flights over the fog-filled Andes Mountain passes in South America. To their home airport, a picturesque little South American village, comes a stranded American showgirl. The adventures of the fliers are immediately complicated by the presence of the girl, so that thrills, heart-throbs and drama occupy the screen. To further enhance the stirring narrative, a newcomer to the small circle of birdmen is discovered to be a renegade who once, on a test hop, parachuted from his failing ship allowing his mechanic to crash to death. The renegade's wife, in addition, is the former sweetheart of the swaggering, devil-may-care airport manager with whom the showgirl has fallen in love.

Honors are about equally divided in the matter of "Only Angels Have Wings." Director, cast, story, settings, camera work .... all are perfect.

Hawks' work is splendid in its pace and maintenance of suspense, and the story which he himself authored is a tightly-woven drama that depends as much upon the beautiful South American mountain country, with its tropical tempests and equatorial climate, as it does upon the humans who live and fight and laugh under the constant threat of crashing death.

Grant's work as the swaggering airport manager who feels he cannot afford romance because of his occupation is easily his finest performance to date. Miss Arthur, as the showgirl, contributes another of her scintillant characterizations to make "Only Angels Have Wings" another shining feather in her cap.

Barthelmess makes a welcome return to the screen as the discredited flier who redeems himself after a particularly thrilling flight. Mitchell, seen in the difficult role of a fellow-pilot slowly going blind, virtually highlights a memorable picture.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Way of All Flesh"

During the filming of Paramount's dramatic picture, "The Way of All Flesh," which is scheduled to open at the Capitol Theatre now, the script called for a number of important sequences to be shot in a "hobo jungle," one of those camps that comprise the only homes available to the legion of peregrinating tramps who roam the country from coast to coast following the railroads, their usual medium of transportation.

While plans were being discussed to build such a camp in the studio location men ran across a real one just outside Chatsworth, California, so the players who were to appear in these scenes were taken there for the shots.

Initial attempts to persuade the hoboes to evacuate their jungle, even temporarily, met with flat refusals. Their dinner — a mess of fish, frying on discarded automobile license plates being the entree, with vegetable soup in a scoured-out five-gallon gasoline can as an added attraction—was just ready to be consumed, the biggest moment in their day.

But when Director Louis King dangled some real "folding money" before their eyes, they eagerly capitulated, and agreed to throw in the cooking food as props for good measure. But they stuck around just outside the camera range, vastly interested in seeing, for the first time, a movie being made.

"The Way of All Flesh" is a powerful and human drama of regeneration through sacrifice, in which Akim Tamiroff gives one of the finest characterizations of his career.

The companion feature is the murder mystery, "Making the Headlines," in which Jack Holt as the grim police captain traces down the criminal through suspense filled reels to a brilliant and surprising ending.

AT THE BELLE

"My Favorite Wife"

"My Favorite Wife," which is on the all-comedy program now playing at the Belle Theatre, brings back Irene Dunne and Cary Grant to the screen in a gay sophisticated romantic comedy in which these Hollywood luminaries hit a stride which should carry them to top comedy awards for the year.

A large share of their success in this breezy film is due to the hilarious story which was especially designed for the star's talents by Bella and Samuel Spewack. Miss Dunne is cast as a wife presumably lost at sea whose husband, Cary Grant, has her declared legally dead after seven year's absence and then marries Gail Patrick. The newlyweds no sooner depart on their honeymoon than the first wife returns, very much alive. She was rescued from an uncharted Pacific island on which she had been marooned all these years with Randolph Scott, portraying a handsome scientist.

She overtakes the honeymooners at a Yosemite hotel, and presents herself to her startled husband. Unable to blurt out the truth to his bride, Grant tries to keep his first wife hidden—with some hilarious and disastrous complications. Now starts a mad pace which is heightened until the uproarious climax. The kissless bride and her distraught husband flee home only to find Miss Dunne awaiting them and posing as an old friend of the family. And soon after the double groom learns that his first wife and the virile explorer were alone on that island for seven years.

Contributing lavishly to the laughs are Gail Patrick as the bride who can't comprehend her husband's sudden aloofness and Randolph Scott, whose desire to marry Grant's first wife after being stranded with her for seven years aggravates the burden the jealous husband is already carrying. In other fine performances are Ann Shoemaker, Donald McBride, Granville Bates, and two youngsters, Scotty Beckett and Mary Lou Harrington, who portray the Dunne-Grant children.

"My Favorite Wife," was produced by Leo McCarey, who guided the stars in "The Awful Truth" several years ago, while Garson Kanin, responsible for "Bachelor Mother," directed.

The feature comedy is augmented by the exhibition of a funny Edgar Kennedy comedy, "Mutiny in the County," and Walt Disney's funniest Donald Duck cartoon, "The Billposters."

20 P. C. RISE IN FERTILIZER PRICE SEEN AS POSSIBLE

G. S. Peart, Dominion Agricultural Official, Expresses Opinion on Increase of Cost

Ottawa, July 22—(CP)—The possibility of an increase of at least 20 per cent in the prices of fertilizer in Canada was seen Saturday by G. S. Peart, plant products division, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Addressing a Dominion-Provincial agricultural conference at its concluding session Mr. Peart said the expected price rise might start next month and was caused by the war.

About one half of the potash used in Canada is almost totally dependent on the United States for this material. The discount on Canadian exchange together with the 10 per cent war exchange tax will tend to boost prices, he said.

Prof. H. R. Kemp, economic advisor to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, outlined the wool situation and told how the British Wool Control Board had restricted exports of crossbred wool for civilian purposes from the British Isles.

Australia's Wool Clip Bought

Great Britain also has bought up the Australian clip for the war's duration at prices 30 per cent above pre-war prices but Prof. Kemp saw no prospect of a shortage of merino wool, the bulk of wheat comes from Australia for use in making cloth of finer textures. Low and low medium wools are most needed under war conditions.

A. A. MacMillan of the Dominion Department's Production Service suggested farmers take advantage of the demand for wool by adding a few extra ewes to their stock.

F. W. Walsh, director of marketing for the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture told the conference the feed situation in Canada is reasonably good from the standpoint of the livestock feeder. Lower grain prices and drops in the cost of mill feeds aided feeders, he said.

FOUR DESTROYERS BEING FITTED OUT

U.S. to Create 'Minute Man' Expeditionary Force Ready for Any Hemisphere Emergency

Washington, July 22—(AP) — The United States Navy disclosed today that four destroyers were being fitted out for use of the Marine Corps, evidencing efforts for any hemisphere emergency.

The destroyers are ships left over from the first Great War recently recommissioned after years of idleness. Naval circles understood they would be converted into high speed transports, specially armed and equipped to put ashore advance forces at any hemisphere point where hostilities threatened. At the same time officials said the Marine Corps has rapidly been increased to a strength of approximately 28,000 officers and men, with the 34,000 goal in sight.

The fleet marine force, subject to first orders for overseas service, is being expanded one-third by the formation of two new heavily armed defence battalions.

In addition to the destroyer-transports, converted commercial vessels are to be made a part of the overseas force, informed congressmen understood. The liner Iroquois and the cargo-passenger ship Mormacpenn were acquired last week by the navy for undisclosed purposes.

44 BUSH FIRES FOUGHT

Nelson, B.C. (CP)—Forty-four new forest fires, 21 of them in the immediate Nelson area, were being fought by fire crews today after Saturday's electric storm. All the new outbreaks were believed under control.

SALLY WAS A HOT-WEATHER OFFENDER

SCIENTIFIC FACTS ABOUT "B.O."

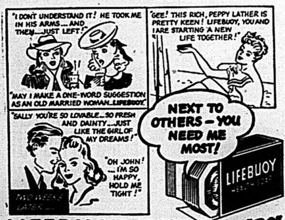
The adult skin has 2 to 3 million sweat glands which act as a cooling system, giving off from 1 to 3 pints of perspiration daily—even when we are sitting still. If perspiration stopped, we would die from hyper-pyrexia (heat stroke).

Because much of the water in perspiration evaporates, we do not see or feel it. Summer heat, nervous excitement, heavy clothes or warm rooms quickly decompose this sweat deposit—turn it stale—cause offensive "B.O." (Body Odor).

SALLY'S mirror told her she was pretty; but it didn't tell her that she was often repulsive to others: It is surprising how many otherwise smart people are Hot-Weather Offenders—when they think they are immune!

This is a mistake—especially during this hot; sticky weather: Perspiration; left on the body; under the arms; around the waist; soon goes stale—decomposes: Then YOU have "B.O."

Don't let "B.O." ruin your romance, business and social chances: Check it before it starts with Lifebuoy: For Lifebuoy contains an exclusive deodorizing ingredient not found in any other leading toilet soap: Used in your daily bath; Lifebuoy stops "B.O."—its peppy; purifying lather washes stale perspiration deposits away. In addition, it is kind to the skin—20% milder than many so-called "beauty" and "baby" soaps:



"I DON'T UNDERSTAND IT! HE TOOK ME IN HIS ARMS... AND THEN... JUST LEFT!"
"MAY I MAKE A ONE-WORD SUGGESTION AS AN OLD MARRIED WOMAN...LIFEBUOY."
"GEE! THIS RICH, PEPPY LATHER IS PRETTY KEEN! LIFEBUOY, YOU AND I ARE STARTING A NEW LIFE TOGETHER!"
TWO WEEKS LATER...
"SALLY YOU'RE SO LOVABLE... SO FRESH AND DAINTY... JUST LIKE THE GIRL OF MY DREAMS!"
"OH JOHN! ...I'M SO HAPPY, HOLD ME TIGHT!"
NEXT TO OTHERS — YOU NEED ME MOST!

WALL STREET

New York, July 22—(AP)—Inertia continued to grip the stock market today as guessing on the next war move tended to obscure domestic business and political news.

Scattered issues, led by Steels, managed to post slight improvement in the forenoon, but these subsequently were erased in many cases. Near the fourth hour prices were slightly mixed.

Among resistant stocks were Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Air Reduction, General Electric, Anaconda and Great Northern.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem backed down after a fairly good start. Loft inclined to lag, along with Woolworth, Du Pont, U.S. Rubber, J. C. Penney and American Smelting. Bonds and Commodities did little either way.

Most issues in the Canadian section were inactive. Canadian Pacific lost a fraction while Walkers gained 1-4. In the bond market Canada 4s. were unchanged.

Eggs Stage Comeback Ending Friday's Slump

Although trading was inactive on the Toronto open produce market Saturday, eggs levelled out of Friday's price nosedive and even firmed slightly. Butter and cheese were quietly steady.

A moderate firmness on the Montreal egg market was reflected here in the upward price spread of A large and A medium eggs. Sales were so few, however, that quotations were really nominal. Receipts were normal, but due to the discontinuation of export business for the summer, a slight accumulation of supplies remained on the local market. A large eggs sold at a range of 22 cents to 23 cents, and A medium at 21 cents to 22 cents. Grade C also advanced slightly, moving to a range of 14 cents to 15 cents. Selling prices to retailers were down 1 cent on A large, A medium and B grades.

Demand for butter weakened slightly, but first-grade Ontario creamery solids were steady at 22 3-4 cents. Offerings were light, and trading was draggy. There was no pressure on brokers to sell, but buyers appeared to have enough stock on hand to meet current needs. Holders of Western butter asked 23 3-4 cents, but no sales were reported.

New, large current-make cheese was firm at a wholesale price of 14 cents. Offerings were few, and buying was slow.

HEAVY FOG CAUSE OF CAR ACCIDENTS

A heavy fog settled over the Bay of Quinte area shortly after 2.00 a.m. today and resulted in several minor motor accidents, according to Motorcycle Patrolman Harry Caldwell, who patrolled the adjacent highways until the fog lifted shortly before dawn.

One woman, Mrs. Alphonse Hebert of Kingston, sustained severe head lacerations in one of the accidents. Mrs. Hebert was riding in an automobile driven by her husband, when the vehicle failed to negotiate a curve at Marysville. The automobile crashed into the guard rail and Mrs. Herbert sustained head lacerations as the result of flying glass. Motorcycle Patrolman Caldwell reported that the fog was quite heavy at the time and perhaps attributed to some degree to the accident. The injured woman was treated at the Belleville General Hospital by Dr. G. H. Stobie.

Mrs. Larry Shoener, Trenton, also received injuries in another motor crash near Shannonville earlier in the night.

PLAYFAIR BROWN IN ARMY

Toronto, July 22 (CP)—Playfair Brown, Toronto fight promoter, has joined the Royal Regiment of Canada here and is now taking a Sergeant's instructors course.

Promoter or many of the outstanding bouts in Canadian boxing history, Brown has been endeavoring to join the armed forces ever since war was declared. A veteran of the last war and much overweight, he has just recovered from a bout with ill-health.

FOREIGN MINISTER

Destroyer Shot Down Three

"It is now known that H.M.S. Brazen, whose loss was announced this morning, shot down three German aircraft during the engagement," an Admiralty communique said.

"One crashed alongside, the second received a direct hit in the nose with a three-inch shell, while the third received a direct hit abaft the port engine.

"In another engagement H.M.S. Beagle (Lt.-Commander R. M. Wright, R.N.) destroyed a Junkers 87 by pom-pom fire."

The Beagle is a sister ship of the Brazen. There originally were eight in the Beagle class, completed under the program of 1928. H.M.S. Blanche was lost early in the war.

Swift Royal Air Force fighters climbed from an altitude of 2,000 feet to 18,000 feet to tackle the high-flying Dornier off the southeast coast. The big bomber quickly shot into a 3 1-2 mile dive to sea level, the attackers pouring bullets into its tail.

The flame-enveloped German ship splashed to the water's surface. One of the German crew escaped in a rubber boat and was rescued by a motor torpedo boat directed to the scene by a Hurricane pilot circling overhead.

Authoritative sources said the Foreign Secretary probably will stress the moral issues of the conflict, a reiteration of Britain's stand she is warring against Hitlerism and there can be no question of peace until British or Nazi arms and ideology have won out.

The Halifax broadcast was planned before Hitler's Reichstag address last Friday. Therefore there was a possibility that Prime Minister Churchill, who arranged to meet his cabinet today, might decide instead himself to declare anew the government's stand when he appears before the House of Commons tomorrow.

The British press, which already has rejected the Nazi Fuehrer's ultimatum, found a new target today in German radio propaganda of the last few days advising Britain to get rid of Churchill and the "war mongers."

The London News Chronicle's Vernon Bartlett said:

"Either he (German Propaganda Minister Goebbels) is very ignorant of the only grounds of criticism of the British government—namely, that the vast majority of Englishmen want more, and not less, drastic efforts to win the war—or he must go to unparalleled lengths to deceive his own people....

"It is incredible that such absurd lies should be told unless the internal situation in Germany and Italy were so bad that the people had to be misled at all costs."

Fresh Developments

The war of words was accompanied by fresh developments in the war at sea and in the air.

Outstanding among these were:-

1. An air battle over the English channel yesterday afternoon in which six British Hurricane fighters, outnumbered 13 to 1, succeeded in driving off 40 Dornier, 17 bombers and 40 Messerschmitt fighters without loss to themselves or to conveyed merchant ships which were the Nazi raiders' objectives.

2. Destruction of 21 German raiders Saturday, three yesterday, and two and possibly three more this morning when they appeared near a town in southwest England.

3. Week-end Royal Air Force raids on the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven and on other targets in Hamburg, Bremen, the Ruhr district and Nazi-occupied Norway, Holland and Belgium, at a cost of 11 British planes.

4. Loss of the famous 670-ton submarine Salmon, which last Dec. 12 sighted the homeward-bound German liner but let her escape "out of regard for International law" because she was at such a distance that only a shot without warning could have hit her.

5. Loss of the 367-ton minesweeping trawler Crestflower with two of her seamen. She was sunk by air attack.

6. Loss of the 1,360-ton destroyer Brazen, damaged during an air attack. The Admiralty said she sank while being towed to port but without loss of life.

Forced Germans to Turn Tail

Most inspiring event was the engagement over the channel, in which the six hurricanes, despite the disparity in strength shot down one Messerschmitt and drilled a number of other Nazi planes "full of holes" before forcing the German air fleet to turn for home.

This morning's raiders ran into heavy fire from ground batteries. The first two bombers were picked up by searchlights and immediately enveloped in bursts of shrapnel. Flames poured from the tail of one of them as they went into a dive and observers said it seemed certain at least one had crashed into the sea.

A third bomber also was caught in the searchlights, ran into a heavy curtain of fire and suddenly nose-dived and crashed. These planes dropped no bombs, but the Ministry of Home Security announced others loosed theirs with "little damage" in the midlands and on the northeast coast.

Lost Sub One of Shark Class

The Salmon, one of the shark class with a normal complement of 40 men, was commanded by E. C. Bickford, who was promoted to Commander and decorated Dec. 21 for the Salmon's sinking of a submarine and scoring hits on the German cruisers Leipzig and Blucher on the same day she sighted the Bremen.

(E. K. Bickford, Kingston, and Gen. H. C. Bickford, Buffalo, were uncles of the gallant officer.)

As the air war continued today, Royal Air Force fighters drove off a lone bomber over a Scottish town. The raider dropped incendiary bombs which started small fires. Damage was reported slight.

Other planes believed to be German appeared this morning over the southeast coast.

T. CLARKE LAPP LAID TO REST AT BRIGHTON, ONT.

Rev. Dr. James Semple Delivers Tribute at Belleville Funeral Home

BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTES

(By Staff Reporter)

In the slopes of Mount Hope Cemetery, Brighton, overlooking the town of his boyhood, the remains of the late Thomas Clarke Lapp, former advertising manager of the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer, who died suddenly at his home, 233 Dundas Street, East, Belleville, on July 19th, were laid to rest today.

On the sun-swept hillside, next to the remains of his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lapp, the brief committal service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville. By the flower-banked graveside sorrowing relatives, and representatives of many walks of life with whom the late Mr. Lapp was associated, paid a final tribute.

The service held in the chapel of the Belleville Burial Company, Campbell Street, was conducted by Dr. Semple, assisted by the Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard, minister of Bloomfield United Church, and the Rev. L. S. Wight, former minister of Brighton United Church.

It was a crossroads of the business, industrial and social life of the city with whom the late newspaperman enjoyed a well-merited popularity that paid last tribute in the crowded chapel. Service clubs, business and industry and the professions were represented. Individuals who had known and loved him were present.

Life Measured by Deeds

"Life is measured by deeds and not by years," Dr. Semple said in a brief, impressive funeral address following a beautiful personal eulogy to the departed by Mr. Blanchard, an intimate friend.

"Many brilliant men," the speaker said, "had died when comparatively young in years, but their accomplishments have lived on."

"The late Clarke Lapp," he said, "had an unusual mind, alert and trained in special channels. He rendered a great service not only to his fellow man but to his country as well. His body bore the scars of the last Great War, which in all probability hastened his end."

"He was a familiar figure in the church," the speaker continued, "and with his family was a regular attendant. He was a familiar figure on the street, in business and industrial offices and in many other places where his business took him. He inspired confidence and respect from all with whom he came in contact. All think of him as a valued friend.

"Death never comes to men or women of his calibre who leave behind them such inspiration and confidence. There is no death to the Christian," Dr. Semple concluded.

Burial at Brighton

Out-of-town attendants at the funeral were: Mr. Donald Lapp, Kingston; Miss Margaret Lapp, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lapp; Cobourg; Mr. C. A. Lapp, Bradford; Miss Alida Lapp, Ottawa; Mr. Clark McColl, Wooler; Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Nelson, Wooler; Mrs. W. P. McCaughey, London; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Campbell, Ottawa; Mrs. Walter Latham, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Watts, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Charlie McColl, Wooler; Miss Ruth McColl, Wooler; Miss Barbara McColl, Wooler; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McColl, Wooler.

The pall bearers were: Mr. Roy Watts and Mr. Donald Latham, representing the family; Mr. George Carver and Mr. James Cordes, representing the Ontario Intelligencer, and Mr. M. P. Duff and Mr. W. J. Morrison, representing the Belleville Rotary Club.

Grain Cutting Will be General Before Weekend

With the approach of another harvest season, the cutting of fall grains, such as wheat and rye, will have become general before the present week is out, with some farmers already having their rye cut, which is usually ready for the binder one full week before wheat. Owing to the lateness of the spring and to the backward weather during May, all fall grains are late this season, as ordinarily wheat and rye are ready for harvesting during the second week in July.

Owner of Launch is Killed As Boat Somersaults Over Falls

Two Other Occupants Unhurt in Accident Watched by Many Witnesses

MOTOR STALLED

Minden, Ont., July 22—(CP) — Two Toronto men continued on their holidays near this Central Ontario municipality today after surviving the experience of going over a waterfall in a power launch.

The two, Ernest Rostron and Mathew Lewton, were unhurt in the accident, but John Rose, a retired pensioner from the Royal Navy, died. Rose owned and operated the launch and was either crushed to death or drowned when it somersaulted Sunday down the 10-foot fall into the rapids of Twelve-Mile Lake in Haliburton County.

None of the three could swim, but Lewton clung tenaciously to the overturned launch while Rostron managed to grab hold of a bridge and hang there until help arrived. Rose disappeared into the rapids with a broken skull. His body was recovered two hours afterward.

Witnesses said the three men in the boat were churning their way up Twelve-Mile Lake when the motor stalled and the craft started spinning crazily down the narrows toward the falls. It was a 16-foot boat powered by a twin outboard motor and when the motor died, the combined strength of the three men wielding oars was not enough to release the boat from the strong current.

One of the men shouted and people on shore, seeing what was about to happen, raced toward the falls with a rope. They didn't get there in time. The boat, spinning wildly and approaching first one shore and then the other, splashed to the very brink of the falls. It jarred on a rock for a moment and then pitched over with a splash and a lone shout from the dying rose.

The boat seemed to hop over the falls sideways, but water so cushioned it that it was not crushed. This permitted the one Toronto man to hang on and he continued to cling while the boat drifted. The other man was soon pulled from the water unhurt and joined in the search for Rose's body

No inquest is to be held.

WOULD EVACUATE CHILDREN IN U.S. SHIPS

New York, July 22—(CP)— The New York Times urged again today that Congress revise the United States neutrality law to permit the use of American ships in evacuating children from Great Britain.

It added editorially: "The safest way—indeed the only reasonably safe way—of getting refugee children out of Great Britain is to take them on American ships, lighted at night and beflagged by their identity impossible."

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Extremes of temperature! From about 100 degrees above to 40 degrees below is about the range of temperature most people in temperate latitudes may experience. But life in some of its forms can exist at temperatures 300 above and as low as 459 degrees below zero which is as low as temperature can go and where all motion of molecules ceases. The highest recorded free air temperature is 136 degrees, that on the surface of the sun is about 10,000 degrees, and in its interior 70 million degrees. The highest temperature believed possible and obtained by calculation is 5 trillion degrees which is, of course, only a theoretical value as is that of the sun's interior.

Losses among the enemy crew were considerable."

(These Italian claims, repeated with slight variations almost every day during the past week, have been denied by the Admiralty in London, which stated that no British ship was damaged in the actions referred to.)

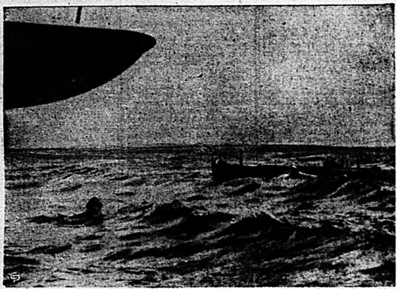
TWO LIVES SAVED BY NEW COAST G UARD PLANE



Here is one of the most dramatic photographs ever made of a rescue "at sea." The photograph was snapped from the U.S. coastguard's new life-saving amphibian plane, as it picked up two fishermen whose craft was wrecked in the rough Straits of Mackinac. Five minutes after this photograph was made their boat — which can be seen in the background — went to the bottom. The new plane is being tried out as an experiment in aiding great lakes shipping and yachting, and proved its value in this rescue. The shipwreck victims, who can be seen swimming towards the plane, are Joseph Schley, Jr., and Ernest Anderson, both of Cheboygan, Michigan.

WINSTON CHURCHILL

Late When he Took up Fight

"It was very, very late, when Churchill took up his last fight for Britain. He inherited an unholy mess. Let us tell the truth. He inherited all that the men of little faith, the money-grubbers, the windy pacifists, the ten-to-five o'clock bureaucrats had left undone. . . . He took up the fight for the world-wide commonwealth of men, held together by the most slender thread of common language and a common way of life—and he fights his last fight, for the ways and the speech of men have never known a master."

The whole force of German propaganda in the immediate future would be concentrated in trying to break down Britain by removing her leadership, Miss Thompson predicted.

The British Empire had become "the only world-wide stabilizing force for law and order on the planet," she said. If it is brought down, "the planet will rock with an earthquake such as it has never known. We in the United States will shake with that earthquake, and so will Germany.

Unknown Spirits Around Adolf

"I think that often in your sleepless nights you realize this, Mr. Hitler, and sweat breaks over you, thinking for a moment not of a Nazi defeat but of a Nazi triumph."

Unknown spirits surround Hitler, "I do not hear the great harmonics of Beethoven, but only the music of Wagner, the music of chaos. I do not see the ghost of Goethe nor the ghost of Bismarck, the last great German who knew when to stop.

"But around you Winston Churchill, is a gallant company of ghosts. Elizabeth is there, and sweetest Shakespeare. Drake is there, and Raleigh and Wellington. Burke is there, and Walpole and Pitt.

"Byron is there, and Wordworth and Shelley. Yes, and I think Washington is there, and Hamilton, two men of English blood whom gallant Englishmen defended in your parliament. And Jefferson is there, who died again the other day in France. All the makers of a world of freedom and of law are there. . . .

"The master of the dyke against world chaos is you, Winston Churchill, you gallant, portly little warrior."

ONE WAY YOU CAN HELP

HOW often in these days of world stress do we hear people say: " . . . . but there isn't anything I can do about it." Mostly they are people precluded by age or sex from military service, who contemplate with bewilderment the possibility of disruption of the even tenor of their lives.

There is something that they — and everyone else not serving directly in Canada's war effort — can do about it. THEY CAN CONTINUE THEIR NORMAL EXPENDITURES.

People who curtail expenditures at this time wouldn't like to be called "Fifth Columnists" but, in truth, they are doing harm to their country and the cause of the Allies.

Our ability to carry on normal domestic trade during the war period will contribute much towards the final victory of Allied arms. Further, it will help to keep this country on an even keel in the reconstruction period following the war.

★ ★ ★

Stop and consider briefly some of the effects of your curtailment of normal expenditures:

1. You deprive yourself needlessly of things of necessity, utility and comfort.
2. Your local merchant finds his business restricted, may have to lay employees off, and is unable to contribute his normal amount for government and other patriotic purposes.
3. The wholesaler and the manufacturer similarly are affected.
4. Government revenues decline, necessitating more borrowing, with an added interest burden on the taxpayers.
5. Contributes to suggestions of lack of confidence in our ability to win this war.

★ ★ ★

There is every reason to believe we can and will win this war — but it cannot be done with wishful thinking or deploring our lack of ability to do something about it. Even if it is only to

BRITISH FLIERS INTENSIFY RAIDS ON GERMANY

Tax on British Incomes Increased One Shilling to 42 1-2 P.C.

Vastly Increased Taxes Called for To Meet Outlay

Estimated Annual Expenditure of $13,350,000,000 Revealed by Sir Kingsley Wood

INCREASED WAR EFFORT

Britain Has Vast Reserves and Will Continue in Field of National Finance as in Field of War, in Her Course Unceasingly and at Any Sacrifice Until Victory Has Been Achieved, Says Wood—Increase in Taxes in Many Fields Detailed

London, July 23.—(CP)— Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the Exchequer, today announced a one shilling increase in the income tax to eight shillings six pence in the pound, or 42 1-2 per cent.

The Chancellor announced compulsory deduction of income tax from wages and salaries.

Sir Kingsley also announced withdrawal of the proposed sales tax.

In this connection the Chancellor said a new measure will be introduced involving fundamental changes.

$13,350,000,000 Outlay Expected

In presenting his first emergency war budget, Sir Kingsley called for vastly increased taxes to meet an estimated annual expenditure approaching £3,000,000,000 ($13,350,000,000).

The Chancellor said the tax yield in the current year would be £1,234,000,000 and the deficit to be covered by savings or other means £1,433,000,000.

Sir Kingsley said it was plain that Britain's war expenditure for the current year would be considerably greater than the estimate of £2,000,000,000 made in April, with the current rate of expenditure £57,000,000 weekly.

Rate May Increase For Rest of Year

At this rate, he said, war expenditures for the current year would approach £2,800,000,000 and the rate might increase during the remainder of the year.

He placed the total budget at £3,467,000,000 which, he said, "we all welcome as a real and tangible evidence of a greatly accelerated war effort."

The excess of expenditure over revenue, estimated at about £2,200,000,000 he described as "formidable but not alarming".

The exigencies of war were compelling Britain, for reasons not connected with domestic finance, to make considerable use of overseas resources, he said.

British Destroyers More Numerous Than in Sept 1939

Growing Strength of British Destroyer Group Marked by British Naval Correspondents

London, July 23—(CP Cable) — Naval correspondents, noting that H.M.S. Brazen is the 26th destroyer lost in the war, agreed today while the losses have been heavy the navy's destroyer strength is greater now than it was last September.

The Daily Express said that in the spring of last year 44 new vessels were building or about to be constructed and that six ships for Brazil were building here. A clause in the Brazilian contract said these latter group could be taken over by the Admiralty in an emergency.

Therefore, it added, apart from the wartime building program, even if 26 have been lost, there must be 24 more destroyers now than when the war started.

It is known from Winston Churchill's speeches when he was First Lord of the Admiralty that a big program of new emergency construction was put under way last September.

The naval correspondent of the Daily Telegraph said that when the war began there were 175 destroyers in service but that this was increased to 183 by the completion of two ships of the Javelin class and the acquisition of six destroyers built for Brazil.

French-Canadian Couples Observe First Anniversary of "Mass Marriage"

Twenty Babies Born and 57 Are Expected Soon—Death Breaks Two of Marital Knots

ALL DOING WELL

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, July 23—(CP)—Twenty babies gurgle today, and 57 are expected to join the chorus soon, in the homes of young French-Canadian couples observing the first anniversary of their 'mass marriage" here.

Death has broken two of the 105 of the martial knots tied simultaneously in a big ceremony just a year ago at Montreal's baseball stadium.

La Jeunesse Ouvriere Catholoque, youth organization of which the 210 brides and grooms were members, has kept in close touch with the progress of the "little families" in their first year.

"All in all—the marriages have been a happy success," declared Father Albert Sanschagrin, assistant-chaplain at J.O.C. headquarters.

Father Sanschagrin's files show that one of the 105 husbands died soon after the wedding and one of the wives died last April.

Seventy of the couples own their homes, 91 of the husbands have permament employment and in 13 cases the wives work too though it's mostly at sewing or dress-making at home.

Majority Satisfied

A questionnaire sent out by the assistant-chaplain brought the information about the domestic situation. Replies told too that 96 of the couples are satisfied with their family income.

Letters to Father Sanschagrin from the dozen towns in Quebec and Ontario where the "little families" are established tell a more intimate story:

"....I am very happy. I have a good husband and I am expecting a baby. We are very eager to see it...."

"....We have had our troubles but we know that God will not abandon us. We would like to go back to the country. We don't like the city...."

"....I am a 'mama' since yesterday. An eight-pound boy who will be a good J.O.C. prospect. Paul is very proud...."

"....Things are going well in our home. My husband is working and I am making hats at home. I love my little house. Our happiness would be complete if we had a baby...."

"....My baby was christened by the J.O.C. chaplain...."

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Latitude and twilight! Many people in visiting Norway about June 22 used to make trips to the northern part of that country to witness the midnight sun This was a pleasant thing to do because the northern Atlantic Ocean is warmer for its latitude than any other place in the world. In North America, journeys for such a purpose are not popular, in part because of colder climate. However, twilight lasting all night may be experienced at 60 degrees north latitude, or about at Juneau, Alaska, from April 23 to August 22. The shortest twilight is at the equator about March 22 and September 22, when it lasts only slightly over an hour.

TWELVE MUNITION PLANTS WILL COST NINETEEN MILLION

Munitions Minister Howe Announces Plants Will be Erected at Once

BREN GUN DOUBLED

Production from All Plants in Canada, When Completed, Will Run $400,000,000 Annually

Ottawa, July 23 (CP)—Munitions Minister Howe Monday announced the immediate construction of 12 munition plants at total cost of approximately $19,000,000.

This in addition to an $11,000,000 plant for manufacture of chemicals for explosive purposes announced last week.

Largest of these plants will be located "somewhere in western Canada," where existing facilities are being extended to produce a large tonnage of ammonia and ammonium nitrate. Work has also begun on a plant to produce the chemical used in making smoke screens. It will be in operation in about four months.

Work has started on erection of a plant for manufacturing of bombs which will be completed in six months, and another plant will produce chemicals required in production of gas masks, the Minister said.

First Mercury Shipped From Mine in B. C.

Prince George, B.C., July 23 (CP) —First shipment of mercury from a British Columbia mine that may produce enough of the vital war mineral to supply Canada's needs and a portion of the Empire's, was en route to Montreal today.

The shipment — 400 flasks—was flown from the reduction plant at Pinchi Lake to nearby Fort St. James, historic Hudson's Bay post in the north central part of the Province. From there they went by truck to Vanderhoof, B.C., for loading for Montreal.

Rome Communique

Rome, July 23 —(CP)— The text of the communique issued today by the Italian High Command:—

"In North Africa our effective bombing actions were continued along the Egyptian border with attacks an Mersa Matruh and the Sidi Barbani zone. All our planes returned.

"In East Africa we again successfully bomber Wajir. The enemy repeatedly bombed Diredawa, killing one native, but without causing damage."

(There was no comment from British sources on the above claims.)

Churchill Declines To Commit Britain On Reprisal Question

British Prime Minister Mildly Reproves Member and Makes No Statement Whether Britain Would Make Reprisals on Rome and Berlin if London Were Bombed — Sentences on 'Chatterbugs' for Careless Talk Will be Reviewed at Once, Premier Says —Free Discussions Welcomed Provided There is No Disclosure of Official Secrets, Troop Positions or Future Operations

London, July 23 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill declined to commit Britain today on whether she would make reprisal raids on Rome and Berlin if London were bombed.

The Prime Minister, answering questions in the House of Commons, mildly reproved Oswald Lewis, Conservative for asking.

"If the answer were in the negative, it would remove a deterrent upon the enemy. If it were in the affirmative, it might spur him to increase his preparations and add to the difficulties of our airmen. If it were non-committal it would not add to the enlightenment of my honorable friend.

"Although the enemy frequently volunteers statements of his intentions through various channels, these are nearly always found to be untruthful and given for purpose of misleading. I should be very sorry if my honorable friend, by making inquiries about future military operations, were to tempt me into a course of that character."

Sentences On "Chatterbugs" To Be Reviewed

His announcement that every sentence imposed on "chatterbugs" for careless talk would be reviewed immediately.

He said the government had no desire "to make crimes out of silly vaporings" and welcomed free discussion of the war provided there was no breach of official secrets and no disclosure of troop positions or future operations.

The movements to establish a "silent column" has passed into what "is called in the United States 'innocuous desuetude'," Mr. Churchill said.

(The movement was to band civilians in groups which would discourage rumor spreading and loose talk).

FRENCH SOLDIERS REACH FRONTIER OF SWITZERLAND

Troops Using "Underground Railway" to Reach Their Destination

TRAVEL AT NIGHT

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ, JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berne, Switzerland, July 23 — (AP)—Making use of an "underground railway" said to be spreading slowly through France in all directions, 13 French soldiers reached the Swiss frontier before dawn today still bearing arms after a month's flight through German-occupied regions.

The soldiers, led by a Captain and a Lieutenant, said they were part of a company which split into small groups and started for Switzerland when hemmed in by the Germans near Metz June 19—a few days before the Franco-German armistice.

Like other isolated groups of French, Polish and British soldiers who have drifted across the border in recent weeks, the fugitives said they travelled mostly at night on their 120-mile journey They surrendered their arms to a Swiss partrol after crossing the frontier near Porrentruy.

The story of their flight coincided with reports of other travellers that thus far the Germans have been unable to prevent night movements of thousands of French soldiers seeking to make their way to Switzerland or ports in the unoccupied zone of France.

RECLUSE DEFIES EMERGENCY LAW OVER PRODUCTION

Had to be Shot Out of His English Farm to be Made to Conform to Food Production Measures

WOUNDS 3 OFFICERS

Basingstoke, Hampshire, England, July 23—(CP)—A 66-year old bachelor recluse who had not left his farm in 50 years had to be shot out of it today to be made to conform to the government's wartime emergency measures for food production.

The farmer, Raymond Warden, finally was evicted, seriously wounded, after holding off a posse of armed police and firemen for 18 hours.

Constable P. C. Draper was shot in both legs as he approached the house to serve an eviction order yesterday. The order was based on government action over fields not in maximum production. Draper retired and called for armed reinforcements—a rare thing in British police work

Farmer Uses Gas Mask

At dawn today they threw tear gas bombs into the house, but these had no effect whatever. Warden simply put on his civilian gas mask.

Then the police smashed in two rear doors. As they did so five shots rang out, and two more police officers were wounded, in arms and legs. They threw more tear gas, but still Warden remained inside, egic withdrawal' and brought up egic withdrawal' and brought up still more reinforcements, this time men armed with service rifles. An entry was forced through the previously smashed doorways.

Warden was found locked in a room. He replied three times with shots when police in an adjoining room promised they would not shoot him on condition that he drop his gun.

Then police heard heavy breathing from Warden's room. They entered and found him bleeding from wounds in the right eye and temple, gun in hand.

Melbourne, Australia July 23 — (CP-Reuters)—Defence Minister G. A. King Tells House it is Perogative of Liberal Party to Take Full Responsibility

Ottawa, July 23—(CP)—An appeal to the government to inform the House of Commons publicly of the actual status of Canada's war effort at present was made yesterday by Conservative Leader Hanson.

Parliament had been told of machinery set up, of huge contracts placed, of vast financial obligations, of what the government proposes to do, he said.

"We are never told what the performance is. The proposals on paper look impressive; but it is results which count," he declared.

For the last two weeks he had refrained from making demands on the government for information. There had been only silence by the government, for which there might be reason, but he did not know what it was.

CANADIAN TROOPS PLAYING ROLE OF RESPONSIBILITY

First Canadian Division in England Brought to High State of Efficiency

SETTING THE PACE

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the Canadian Forces Somewhere in England, July 23—(CP) — In the supreme task of bolstering the British Isles against the menace of German invasion, Canadian troops are playing a role of ever-increasing responsibility.

The 1st Canadian Division has been brought to such a high state of efficiency that it now forms the very spearhead of the nation's defensive shield. Behind this powerful striking force stand other well-drilled units of the C.A.S.F. at the ready, in reserve.

The Canadians have been setting the pace for the Empire's modern army in the new technique of mobility and defence, an assignment allotted them by the "highest authority in the land." According to those best able to assess results, the Canucks are making a first-class job of it.

For reasons of security it is impossible to recount movements of the Canadians. But this much can be said: They have become more familiar with rural England, its natural protective barriers, cities, towns and villages and winding roads, than most natives.

Supplementary Budget to be Introduced Will Greatly Increase Taxes on Income With Wage-earners of $9 a Week Being Included

London, July 23 (CP)—Royal Air Force bombers and Viscount Halifax's words today provided Hitler with an answer to his "last appeal to reason" in which he sought to undermine British courage and obtain armistice terms in the war against Nazidom.

British fliers intensified their attacks on Germany after Hitler's Friday speech and the Foreign Minister last night told the world Britain "will not stop fighting until freedom for ourselves and others is secure."

In a speech that rang around the world Lord Halifax attacked Hitler on behalf of Britain and the United States, saying: "The people of the United States did not build their new home in order to surrender it to this fanatic."

The Foreign Minister said also of all the Americas: "Across the wide Atlantic there are mighty nations who view his works with detestation" and of the United States alone he added: "We take heart from the certain knowledge that that great people pray for our victory."

General Crerar Addresses Appeal To Canadians to Serve Overseas

Enlistment Can Prevent Canada Being the Front Line Trenches of North America Says Speaker

NO PANICKY VIEW

Ottawa, July 23—(CP)—Canadian manhood by offering to serve and to go overseas "as required" can help prevent the possibility of Canada becoming front line trenches of North America, Maj-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar told the Canadian people.

The newly-appointed Chief of the General Staff warned in an address over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation national network last night that should Hitler destroy Gerat Britain Canada would become the front line in what he said would be a "final single-handed struggle on this continent against the domination of the would-be dictator of the world."

That, he said, was no "panicky superficial statement of future possibilities for in truth the technical military and political means would then be at Hitler's disposal. It is based upon knowledge which I can claim to possess."

Situation No One Can Exclude

General Crerar said it was a situation which no Canadian who holds regard to his family, his country, his religion and his King can possibly exclude from his thoughts.

Hitler's "burning ambition" was to overthrow "this continent's front line defence, that island fortress of Great Britain. The garrison of which comprises some tens of thousands of the Canadian Active Service Force."

But the possibility of Canada becoming the front line in the event of Hitler succeeding in his plans can be "decisively" prevented if "every man amongst us, rising above self, offers himself for service and, as required, goes overseas to meet the enemy, and to defeat him as he strives to emerge from that unhappy Europe now so largely the victim of his aggression," said General Crerar.

R.A.F. Dive Bombers Sink Anti-Aircraft Ship Off Bergen

London, July 23.—(CP)— British dive bombers were reported today by the Admiralty to have made an attack yesterday on the German base at Bergen during which they sank an anti-aircraft ship, though hampered by adverse weather conditions.

The attack on the Norwegian port was carried out just before dawn, the Admiralty indicated, but because of poor visibility the raiders were unable to score hits on all of their objectives.

The communique said:—

"Early yesterday morning Skuas (dive bombers) of the fleet air arm made an attack on Bergen. Owing to low visibility and unfavourable weather conditions the main objectives were not in all cases attained.

"Bombs were, however, dropped on the seaplane base and an enemy anti-aircraft ship was sunk".

NEW CALEDONIA'S POSITION 'UNDEFINED'

London, July 23—(CP)—A Reuters News Agency dispatch today from Sydney, Australia, quoted Paul Vois, a special envoy from the French Pacific colony of New Caledonia, as saying that the island's position was "clearly undefinable" since the French-German armistice. Vois arrived in Sydney, the dispatch said, to discuss with the Australian government the economic future of New Caledonia.

British People's Courage 'Unbroken' 'Heads Held High', Says N. Y. Times

New York, July 23—(CP)— The New York Times, discussing editorially last night's address by Viscount Halifax, British Foreign Secretary, said today the important thing now is that the courage of the British people "is unbroken, their spirit strong, their heads held high."

The Times added:

"It is the important thing because will power of this kind will prove to be a terrible weapon in the great battle which will soon begin. Hitler does not understand the British people. But he is a good enough tactician to know that he faces a formidable enemy when, in an hour such as this, a British Foreign Minister can quietly assert, as Lord Halifax did yesterday: 'We realise that the struggle may cost us everything, but just because the things we are defending are worth any sacrifice it is a noble privilege to be the defender of things so precious'"

ALL SPRING GRAINS ARE HEADED OUT

Indicative of the splendid growing conditions which have been prevalent throughout the spring and early summer, spring grains that were sown reasonably early have now attained more than the ordinary growth and are completely headed out. Last evening Mr. Russell Christie of Foxboro, cut a small sheaf of oats from a field on his three inches in height. The oats three inches n height. The oats were sown early and although the straw is exceptionally rank, very little lodging was noted.

While playing in a swing at the home of her uncle, Mr. Fred Charlesworth of Frankford, 9-year-old Shirley Ralph, 38 Delloraine Avenue, Toronto, was severely injured Monday evening and was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital where an examination proved that the little girl was suffering from a badly fractured skull.

The little girl had been visiting her uncle and aunt in Frankford and while swinging in the yard last evening in some manner lost her hold in the swing to fall, striking her head on the ground to sustain severe injuries. NEWSPAPERMAN IS BUTT OF JOKE

Newspaper reporters meet all kinds of people in all kinds of places, are rarely the recipients of complimentary remarks and more often the target of more or less humorous "wise-cracks". For instance on Sunday night in a Front Street restaurant, a swarthy gentleman of apparent foreign extraction was displaying a pet money to patrons. The little animal went through his bag of tricks and became a favorite with the midnight "lunchers". Everything went along nicely until a wag shouted to the gentleman in question "Hey, buddy, be careful, there is a newspaper man in the house".

The swarthy gentleman grinned, placed his pet on his shoulder and enquired as to which of the restaurant habitues the scribe was.

Whereupon the wag remarked, "He is sitting near you, but he's the one without the tail".

JUNGLE ATHLETICS SOON QUIETED

There was plenty of "monkey business" in the city over the week end. Attempted emulation of the famous comic strip figure "Tarzan" nearly got a group of young boys in trouble and only the timely arrival of a policeman prevented what might have been injuries to the youngsters.

They had attached ropes to trees in the St. Thomas Church cemetery and were attempting to swing in true Tarzan fashion from tree to tree. Their yells of approval as one of their number successfully negotiated a thrilling "take-off" and further cries of encouragement as one of their number less agile than the others failed in several attempts, brought complaints from nearby residents, and a policeman soon put the quietus on the jungle athletics of the youngsters.

OBITUARY

LATE PERCY E. McCOY
(Goderich)
(Contributed)

Goderich — Goderich and Huron County mourns the passing of one of their best-known citizens, Provincial Constable P. E. McCoy. He had been ill since June 21, and seemed to be making satisfactory) progress. While brightly conversing with Mrs. McCoy and friends about four o'clock he was seized with a heart attack and passed away suddenly.

Distinguished as one of the most efficient officers on the Provincial force, Huron County under his supervision, reached a high state of proficient policing. He combined with the strict performance of his duty a rare judgment and kindliness. His good sense and wise counsel won for him an enviable place in the hearts of all young people with whom he came in contact both as police officer and friend.

Mr. McCoy lived quietly devoted to his duty and home. He had been with the Provincial police since 1924. While stationed in Northeastern Ontario, he enlisted and served with the 21st Battalion. He had been High Constable of Huron since 1932. He was a member of the Masonic Order and of the Canadian Legion. He was born in Madoc. He is survived by his wife.

Constable McCoy's last police assignment was the investigation of the alleged murder of James Kilpatrick, near Exeter, on June 20, of this year, for which Sam Dodge, an Indian, is now awaiting trial in Huron county jail. The preliminary trial must of necessity be postponed indefinitely as Constable McCoy was the crown's chief witness in the presentation of evidence expected to be purely circumstantial.

Said Crown Attorney D. E. Holmes: "He was one of the most conscientious and capable officers I have ever met. Not only had he ability, but he used rare tact in dealing with the public."

Constable McCoy's hobby was hunting and fishing and it was on this subject that he was "at home." He spent his annual holidays and spare time in the bush and at fishing streams, and had a rare collection of firearms and fishing tackle and took great pride in it.

Constable McCoy was a brother of Mrs. Simeon Fo.: of this city.

Picnic Ground Victoria Park Draws Crowds

Victoria Park is the scene of many a happy picnic party these days as residents of the city take advantage of the cool breezes from the bay and of the shade afforded by large shade trees to get what relief they can from the sweltering heat wave that has suddenly sent the mercury up near the nineties.

From early morning until late at night the park is visited by residents both young and old. At all times of the day can be seen the younger children disporting themselves in the bathing tank while the more expert older ones enjoy themselves in the cool waters of the bay from off the raft and diving tower at the lower end of the park.

The advent of the holiday season has been noted locally by the decided influx of strange sailing craft tied up in the local harbor with several strange motor launches, all spic and span in their gleaming coats of paint, lending a cosmopolitan air to the waterfront.

First Drill of Regiment Sees 100 Recruits on Parade

SEAT NOT VACATED

Trenton, July 23—(Special)—Almost a hundred recruits of the Second Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment turned out for the first drill at the Armoury last night. The drills are to be held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings.

During the drill, large crowds of citizens gathered to watch the men being put through their manoeuvres. Sgt. Major McCoy, connected with headquarters company, was in charge of the training.

Following nearly two hours of intensive drilling, Major Angus Mowat, Officer Commanding the Headquarters Company stationed here, commended the recruits on their excellent work.

"You men have the tradition of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment to uphold," he said. "The First Battalion, now serving overseas, has already made itself famous in its engagements with the enemy. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was the first county regiment to be picked for the First Division—a singular honour.

"This regiment was formed in the year 1922 and from the 49th Hastings Regiment and the 16th Prince Edward Rifles," continued Major Mowat. "Since its formation the regiment has been classified among the leading regiments of the Dominion.

"During the next few weeks and at camp, you men will, I have no doubt, put your best into this military work. I would like you to live up to the reputation of the First Battalion and to uphold its honour over here.

"To be brave soldiers," continued the Major, "you must be well-trained soldiers. Soldiers who are well-trained, can stand up under fire much better than a brave soldier. I ask you men to pay attention to your Sgt.-Majors and Sergeants and get the most out of each drill that we have."

Has Not Vacated Seat

Reports that Captain George S. White, M.P., Adjutant of the Second Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, had left his seat in the Dominion Government, were declared to be false yesterday by Lt. Col. B. C. Donnan, E.D., Officer Commanding the H. & P.E.

Captain White was elected Conservative member of the Federal Government for the riding of Hastings-Peterboro during the elections held this year. In the first session of parliament, Captain White distinguished himself on a number of occasions, with his speeches.

At the outbreak of war, Captain White, who served in the Great War and was wounded, offered himself to military authorities to serve with the C.A.S.F. in any capacity but was turned down. With the formation of the Second Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Captain White again offered his services and was taken on strength as the adjutant. He is stationed at regimental headquarters at Madoc with Lt. Col. B. C. Donnan.

In order to serve with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Captain White was granted leave of absence from his seat in parliament for the duration of the war. The member did not leave his seat permanently as it is reported throughout the northern section of this county.

Wooler Moves Into Second Round

The Wooler softball team moved into the second round of the Trenton District Softball League, last night, after defeating Glen Miller 13 to 7, before one of the largest crowds to witness a softball game.

Wooler will meet the Canadian Doughnuts here on Wednesday in the best three-out-of-five series, for the right to continue into the finals with the R.C.A.F. Flyers for the Cobley Trophy.

The Woolerites started in the first frame to gain an edge on their opponents and netted three runs on a walk and three singles. Glen Miller evened the score in the second frame with three runs but were unable to keep on even terms with the winners during the remainder of the game. Singles were scored in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh by the losers.

Travel By Trailer

Trenton, July 23 (Special) — Travelling in a trailer is both economical and educational stated Art Baragar of Belleville, addressing the Rotary Club here yesterday, during his talk on "Trailer Topics."

"Thousands of vacationists are attaching trailers to their automobile and are seeing the world," said Mr. Baragar. "During our trip through the southern states last winter, we would pull our trailer in parks where there would be from 800 to 1000 such trailers."

"Practically every city throughout the southern states has a special park for the trailers and thousands of wandering nomads take advantage of them. Some of these travelers might stay for months in the same park. There is a small fee for parkings on the lot but it is so small that vacationists find this means of travelling very economical."

Plans were completed at the Rotary Club dinner, held in the Gilbert House for the annual Street Carnival, on Thursday, August 1. The funds collected from this enterprise will be used for the underprivileged children.

Ladies' night will be held on Wednesday, August 14, at the Presqu'Ile hotel.

VASTLY INCREASED

Income Question

"The incomes of many persons are seriously reduced by war conditions, but on balance there has unquestionably been an increase in the incomes of the British people reckoned in term of money," the Chancellor continued.

"The more we succeed in expanding our large production the larger is this total of money incomes likely to become."

Sir Kingsley said direct restrictions on materials for the home market had been necessary.

"It is by our exports that we must obtain the means of payment to the greatest possible extent for our imports of munitions, raw materials, food and other essential goods," he explained.

Export Trade Second Only to Military Necessities

The government intends to extend restrictions on home consumption on a wide range of goods, the Chancellor disclosed.

"The export trade must come second only to overriding military necessities.

"Considerably increased taxation is essential from both the financial and economic standpoints in our present situation. We must secure widespread and drastic retrenchment in forms of personal expenditure not absolutely necessary."

Confidence Inflation to be Avoided

Inflation might be fatal to successful prosecution of the war, he said, adding "I am confident we shall be able to avoid that."

"Here is the crux of the economic problem: the larger and increasing total of money income and a smaller and diminishing supply of consumable goods,' he said.

"I do not hesitate to say that this is a fundamentally dangerous situation. Behind it here is always the danger that prices might rise, no matter what action is taken to check them and that rapid inflationary movement might develop in which people would come to distrust money and try to turn it into goods as soon as they get it and in which prices and wages would chase one another up."

Ordinary Income Tax Raised

He announced the ordinary income tax would be raised from seven shillings six pence to eight shillings six pence in the pound, or 42 1-2 per cent.

The surtax on income in excess of £2,000 was increased from one shilling three pence to two shillings in the pound and the reduced rate of tax upon the first £165 of taxable income, less personal allowances, was increased to five shillings.

The peak rate of surtax of nine shillings six pence, a total of 90 per cent was placed on income above £20,000 a year, a reduction of £10,000 in the base.

Sir Kingsley estimated the increase in the standard income tax would produce £84,000,000 in a full year and £60,000,000 in the current year.

Estate Duties Raised

Estate duties on estates exceeding £10,000 were raised 10 per cent.

A married man with two children and an earned income of £400 a year who at present pays £11 07s 6d will now pay £15 10s 8d.

A married man with £3,000 a year would pay altogether £1,238 and a married man with £10,000 a year would pay £6,113.

Increases in income tax and surtax were estimated to produce £639,000,000 annually, and the increase in estates duties to 65 per cent to produce £8,000,000 annually.

Deduction From Salaries and Wages

The Chancellor said deduction of income tax from salaries and wages would be made compulsory, thus speeding collections.

Direct taxation he said, had been estimated to produce £62,000,00 a year but the increase in the rate of the excess profits tax to 100 per cent was expected to yield a further £40,000,000 annually.

Penny Increase Glass on Beer

He announced increases of one penny a glass on beer and two shillings a pound on tobacco.

He estimated the full year's increase in direct taxation would amount to £203,000,000.

He estimated the beer tax would bring £13,000,000 annually and tobacco £9,000,000.

The duty on light wine was raised from three shillings sixpence to five shillings sixpence a gallon and the duty on heavy wines was increased four shillings a gallon.

Duty on Entertainments Up

He also announced the duty on entertainments would be increased and adjusted to produce £4,000,000 in a full year.

He said income tax deductions from wages and salaries would be made "month by month or week by week."

The increase in duty on light wines makes the total duty eight shillings and on heavy wines 16 shillings a gallon, producing an additional £2,000,000 annually.

The increased entertainments tax was estimated to produce £2,000,000 annually.

The Chancellor said the purchase tax bill will be withdrawn and added he was not adopting suggestions for taxation of land or capital values.

New Purchase Tax Bill to be Brought in

A new purchase tax bill embodying fundamental changes will be introduced, he said.

Preference for Empire wines will be retained with a duty of six shillings for light wines and 12 shillings for heavy wines.

National Income is 5 Billions Estimate

Estimating the national income at 5,000,000,000 pounds, he placed the taxable field at 640,000,000 pounds.

He assured the nation there would be no tax on public services, gas, electricity or water, children's clothing or shoes, certain medicines and farm machinery.

The new Purchase Tax would have two sharply differentiated rates. Luxuries such as furs, silk, lace, china, porcelain, cut glass, fancy goods, jewelry, cosmetics, haberdashery and furniture would be taxed one third of the wholesale value, representing 24 per cent on retail prices.

The Sales Tax on personal and household goods requiring fairly frequent replacement such as clothing, shoes other than children's, newspapers, books, periodicals, certain medicines and drugs would be 12 per cent of retail prices—half that on luxuries.

Collection of the Sales Tax would be made when goods pass from wholesalers to retailers, he said.

Registration requiring a month or two to complete would have to precede application of the Sales Tax, Sir Kingsley said.

Cigarette Tax

Cigarette manufacturers estimated the increased tax would mean a penny increase in the price of a package of 20 cigarettes. He estimated the new Sales Tax would produce 40,000,000 pounds this year and 110,000,000 pounds in a full year.

An additional 239,000,000 pounds revenue was expected from the present budget which the April budget's estimated 128,000,000 pounds would mean an additional sum of 367,000,000 pounds imposed in the last three months.

Urges Redoubling Savings Efforts

Sir Kingsley announced 28,000,000 savings schemes during the week ending last Tuesday. He urged redoubling of savings efforts:

Already during the current year, he said, 300,000,000 pounds had been raised by the three per cent war loan, 250,000,000 pounds from savings certificates since last November and 110,000,000 pounds from new 2 1-2 per cent National War Bonds.

"We Have Many Resources"

"We have many resources and of our determination and capacity to use them to the utmost there can be no doubt," he concluded.

"As in the field of war, so in the vital field of national finance we are determined to continue in our course unceasingly and at any sacrifice until victory has been achieved."

The chancellor spoke 74 minutes.

300 Civilian Soldiers Take First Route March in Training

Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) Battalion Swings Through City Streets Behind Band

FINE PROGRESS SEEN

Evidence of the seriousness with which members of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank), local home defence unit, are taking their training was seen in city streets last evening, when over three hundred of the week-old civilian soldiers swung along to the tempo of martial music on their first route march of the training period.

The shirt-sleeved volunteers, appeared to care little for the humid atmosphere as they merged from the armouries in ranks of threes to the music of a military brass band and the scarlet-coated Belleville Kilties.

Arms swinging, bodies swaying slightly to the march tempos, the battalion made a splendid appearance as they turned east along Bridge Street to Charles Street, then north to Victoria Avenue to Front Street) down the main thoroughfare to Bridge Street thence to Church Street and the Belleville Collegiate campus. Here the battalion was divided into its respective units and were drilled until darkness set in.

Veterans of the last war, as well as a large number of civilians who lined streets as the boys marched by were loud in their praises of the fine showing made by the battalion. True there was an occasional one who missed the step but on the whole the ranks showed a fine knowledge of marching, and their behaviour on parade as well as on the march reflects not only credit on their adaptability to things military but on the instructional ability of officers and non-commissioned officers of the unit.

Fine Response

The Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) like other units of its kind throughout the Dominion, reflects the fine response of every walk of life to the Dominion's appeal for volunteers for home defence duty.

Its officers, for the most part, are seasoned veterans with years of military and great war experience. Its non-commissioned officers and instructors are also veterans with a sprinkling of youth, but all "know what it is all about" and this was seen in the fine showing of the battalion last night.

Lieut. Colonel A. B. Gribble, officer commanding the battalion expressed keen satisfaction with the results of the first route march.

"For men who have had such a short period of training, the showing last night was splendid," he said. "The men marched like men who have had a much longer sojourn in the army, and if last night's march can be used as a criterion, the unit will soon rank with the best of them."

Despite the fact, that the battalion is nearly up to war strength, recruiting is gong on apace and many residents are enlisting, he said. Drills are being carried on on the nights set aside for training, and all ranks are showing a marked enthusiasm in the work although the weather during the past few days has been conducive to anything but serious training.

BRITAIN WILL NOT BUDGE FROM HER STAND

Hitler and his Reich have met the race that will not budge from the face of the horrible Hun. The ranting Fuehrer, whose guttural notes make raucous his wild imaginings when he is pounding home those mad dreams of his to the people of Germany who are as much slaves as was ever any group of people that ever lived, rages on the air, or sends various warning messages through the byways of Europe to reach the British in a devious manner—all true to the Hitler technique which cannot pursue the open road and the straight line. Hitler has painted something of the horrors of the war which he has created and now tries to terrify a race that thinks more of its freedom than life if it should be a choice between life and freedom. Hitler has admitted the horrible things that Germany has done. True to his old form he has manufactured out of nothing the most prodigious lies so that he has become the world's greatest liar in the opinion of everyone but a German, for even an Italian must see through his hollowness. But he cannot budge the British with lies or with the word painting of the things he says he will have to do if the war should go on.

Stories from the land of freedom show that the British pass the hours in a way that has earned for the nation the praiseworthy epithet "cheerful."

What is a violent dictator like Hitler to do with a people who do not tremble before him? A people who prefer death to him and those vile creations of his, the Gestapo and such like, which will attach themselves to things German for many generations and will only be removed when the Germans are thoroughly purged of nazism and the notion that they can impose their civilization and narrowed, enslaved ways of life upon a free British people and Empire.

Hitler may ponder what he could not do if he had an empire like Britain's. But that is vain thinking for Hitler could never have an empire that is like Britain for the British Empire is the creation of freemen, the British people, and serves not only Britain and the Empire itself but the rest of the world. Hitler never can exercise control of any kind as Britain does for the latter rules with a benign sway and Hitler has tried the violent bludgeoning way that leads to disintegration and decay. Hitler's sway cannot grow on slavery, lies, wholesale theft of the riches of lands he has overrun, only to leave them barren and waste. The British Empire thrives on the freedom it allows those many millions who are favored by possessing British citizenship and it has shed its kindly influence over a world where things British are looked upon with favor and kindred interest.

It is no wonder that Britain does not tremble before the fanatic seizer of free states by ways of lies and the fifth column. He has built no Germany of importance to the world, he has tried to make her a wrecker of everything that is good. He has robbed his own nation for his mad dream.

That fanatic cannot shake the equanimity of the British. They are not fanatical. In the words of Viscount Halifax in a broadcast Hitler's appeal "to reason" was only to the base instinct of fear. That appeal does not reach British hearts. He has made nazis by fear, and nazi, as he is, he has, whatever else may be said, fear in his own heart, to think that he can frighten all mankind. That is one of Hitler's weaknesses. No man truly brave himself could have imagined so vain a thing. And what would an empire of grovelling slaves, if he could gain such, be worth to any brave man? He has one empire of subjects which are ground into the mud, his own German people, who have, many believe and are convinced, adopted the essence of Hitlerism because it appeals to their vanity and desire for aggression, and who have to be crushed in the only way Hitler can be crushed by the very force of war which he has called into action. He has conquered nations but not their hearts—they hate him and everything German with a hatred that can only be cured by the purge of nazism and Hitlerism.

Hitler in his folly thought all men subject to the same fears and ambitions as himself and so has trodden the way that soon or late will take him to destruction.

He does not know the soul of Britain. That is to be his undoing. No one thinks of a Hitler defending with all his might things righteous and just.

Against him stands the champion of the world, Britain, who fights in the fine words of Lord Halifax because "We realize the struggle may cost us everything but just because the things we are defending are worth any sacrifice, it is a noble privilege to be the defender of things so precious." These words ring true on the lips of Lord Halifax. No one believes, even the Italian who has a wholesale fear of the German leader and a desperate greed for something that does not belong to him, that Hitler would sacrifice all for the things most precious.

Hitler tries to terrorize—what a man to seek world control by fear! He has pounded the weak and expects all men to abject. But the very mass of the weak or weakened nations promises too great a task for Hitler. He becomes weak in his gluttony for power and aggression and is himself becoming the prey of fear that he may not be able to achieve what his dire thoughts conspired to do. He has blitzkrieged a number of nations in central and northwestern Europe but he has also blitzkrieged himself into vast problems too great for his voracious appetite. What would be in the mind of Hitler the use of being a Hitler if he did not find every man subervient to him? And that he won't find. The divine light of freedom burns and will relight the fires of freedom across Europe in the days ahead. To Britain has been given the majestic task of leading the vanguard of mankind to down the monster of nazism at Berlin.

The Gastroscope a Great Help in Locating Cause of Stomach Disturbances.

Just a few years ago the physician learned the difference between gastritis—inflamed stomach lining—ulcer of the stomach, and cancer of the somach by various symptoms told by the patient and what could be found out by test meals. A small amount of food such as toast and tea was given and then this was pumped out of the stomach and the degree of digestion of the food and the amount of hydrochloric acid present in the stomach digestive juice were noted. This gave valuable information. Later came the Xray which showed the presence of ulcer and cancer.

Despite the great help given by the Xray in finding the cause of stomach disturbances, it was not until the latest device—the gastroscope—was discovered that practically complete examination of the stomach became possible. The gastroscope enables the physician to see the "inside" of the stomach and to see particularly well the locations where ulcer and cancer are usually found.

At times there are cases where the test meal and the Xray do not give enough evidence to enable the physician to tell the patient definitely what is causing his symptoms. The gastroscope gives one more method of getting at the cause.

Some of the conditions that may be present and can be readily found by the use of the gastroscope are recorded by Dr. R. J. F. Renshaw in the Cleveland Clinical Quarterly.

1.—Patients in whom the Xray shows no evidence of disease yet they have one or more of the following conditions—chronic pain or distress in the abdomen, vomiting of blood, and dark blood in the stools, loss of weight, nausea and vomiting, diarrhoea, unexplained slight rise in temperature, loss of appetite, and anaemia—thin blood.

2.—Patients in whom the Xray shows some defects of the workings of the stomach and duodenum (first part of the small intestine) and yet symptoms do not correspond with what these defect usually produce.

3.—Ulcer of the stomach and cancer of the stomach can be seen directly by means of the gastroscope.

The gastroscope is considered the best method of learning if gastritis—inflammation of the lining of the stomach— is present.

Many Toys Confusing

(Montreal Gazette)

Little Eleanor could not get started at play in her backyard, although most of her toys were there. Repeatedly she went to the screen door and peered through to see what mother was doing and talk to her. If mother disappeared into the front of the house, Eleanor either called to her or went into the house after her. With such a lovely garden to play in and so many beautiful toys, the mother could not understand why the little girl could not keep busy and happy out of doors. She could see that her little girl did not know how to play. But what she failed to notice was equally obvious—that the child had too many toys.

In the backyard was a sandbox with various sand toys in it. If there were nothing else to distract her, at a suggestion from the mother and perhaps with a little help in getting started at pie making or tunnel digging, Eleanor would have been able to amuse herself alone for a while. But it is well nigh impossible for a youngster to concentrate on a single pursuit for long when a tricycle stands only three feet away, suggesting that she go riding instead; with a doll carriage, toy rabbit, rag doll and numerous other toys all adding to her general distraction and boredom beckoning her to come and play.

Little children are dependent upon parental leadership in play matters and an attempt has to be made at constructive guidance. A well-rounded play plan includes toys for active outdoor play; toys for dramatic play, a doll, dishes, etc.; crayons, paints, picture books for creative play; for active indoor play (in rainy weather) blocks, rocking horse, broom, etc.

MORE RUBBER MONEY

(Windsor Daily Star)

Hitler must have a terribly short memory. He is being very kind to the French people, trying to win their favor, and is not levying heavy taxation on them, as most people expected he would do. He has chosen a more subtle version, and is issuing money to them which looks like a good bargain on the basis of its exchange rate for marks. But, the money can be used only in trade with Germany. In other words, it is just rubber money.

Adolf certainly should remember what happened when Germany tried to get along with rubbish for currency. It did not exactly make the people contented. In fact, it caused so much discontent that it paved the way for the overthrow of a regime and the coming into power of a fellow called Hitler.

Good Old Days

(New York Times)

Everywhere the rebels who are out to make an end of our democratic and industrial civilization are eager to get back to the good old times and to simple things.

Hitler from the very beginning prepared for today's mechanized war but at the same time the Germans were regaled with memories of Arminius and the gods of Walhalla. Mussolini wants to get back to the Roman Empire.

And almost everywhere else people want to get back to the farm, back to the spinning wheel and the hand loom, back to the precapitalist, preindustrialist, pre-"money-economy" simplicities

This process of going back to the good old days very often involves going back to a number of things that are seldom if ever mentioned. If people really want to go back to the Samurai, or to the pre-Norman tribal system in Ireland, or to the free Germanic tribes at the beginning of the Christian era, they must be prepared for other things too; back to famine and epidemics and high death rates back to infant mortality; back to illiteracy; back to a sixteen hour working day for the peasant; back to the kitchen stove and the washboard for women; and for women, too, back to the primal task of bearing warriors for the tribe, soldiers for the modern state.

The Ultimatum

(New York Times)

In form and in substance, Hitler's ultimatum was "the mixture as before". It bristled with arrogance and with the worship of brute force. It contained the same falsifications of history which have come from Hitler on past occasions. It professed the same sweet reasonableness, the same "disgust" with a continuance of the bloodshed and suffering which he deliberately loosed upon the world last September. It was another attempt to undermine the morale of the enemy, to weaken his will-power, to provoke a revolution of opinion in Britain which would give victory to Germany without a long and costly struggle.

But there was one overwhelming difference between this ultimatum and its predecessors. This time Hitler has proved what even the blindest can see: that his war machine is the most powerful instrument of destruction and terror in the history of modern Europe. He has proved that he can crush more than Poland, more than Norway, more than the little Low Countries. He has demonstrated that a great Power like France can be defeated and broken in a single month of battle. His boasts and his warnings of doom now have a terrible reality which they did not have before.

The British know what the rejection of this ultimatum will mean. They know that it will subject their island, their homes, their lives and their children's lives to the most fiendish assault which the mind of man has ever contrived. But they know, too, what it would mean to accept any peace which deprived them of their strong weapons of defence and forced them to rely upon the word of a man in whom there is no honor.

Finance Minister Grilled In House on Two Direct Taxes

Members Have Clearer View as to How Direct Taxes Will Work

ALL PAY INCOME

By CARL REINKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 23—(CP)— The House of Commons has a clearer idea today of how those two direct taxes on income, the war income tax and the two per cent national defence act, are going to work.

Finance Minister Ilsley received a thorough grilling from every angle last night as he obtained their readings for the incomes measures and customs and excise changes.

In the process of the questioning, members learned that everybody but the Governor-General must pay income tax—if his income is above the minimum.

Dollar-a-year men will pay on their living allowance ($20 a day in some cases). Cabinet Ministers will pay on their salaries but not on their $2,000 car allowances. Even inmates of "this family vault"—as T. L. Church (Con. Toronto-Broadview)described the Commons Chamber—must pay on their $4,000 sessional indemnities.

National Tax Universal

Collection of the national defence tax is even more universal. Members cross-examined Mr. Ilsley for more than an hour on it, although he insisted it was simple enough.

You merely deduct two per cent from the pay of every employee earning "at the rate of" $600 a year, single, or $1,200 married. At the end of the year, if a single man has not netted $600, he applies for rebate. Single men earning more than $1,200 pay at the rate of three per cent and all persons with dependents receive a $400 exemption for each dependent.

Members from many parts of the House protested against the "red tape" of going about getting this rebate when it was obvious the employee would not earn $600 in a year.

"There will be a lot of trouble," Mr. Ilsley admitted, "but in the end we will have accomplished what we set out to accomplish; we will have a non-discriminatory tax."

Too Much Curtailing

Mr. Church protested that every good citizen wanted to pay his taxes promptly but there had been too much curtailing of the rights and powers of parliament.

"Members of the House of Commons are ready and willing to pay their taxes. They are just employees, that is all they are today. This government is creating boards and commissions and members of the House might as well go home," he said. "They are just employees of the government."

Robert Fair (N. D. Battle River) protested against employers having to deduct the two per cent defence tax from farm laborers. Not a farm laborer in his constituency earned that much, he said. They worked four or five months in the year.

Allowance For Board

The Minister pointed out that an allowance for their board had to be included. Mr. Fair asked whether this should be $10 or $15 a month or $20 a day. The Minister replied that the Labor Department would provide a guide for each province.

Where children earned at a rate of more than $600 a year doing a few days of holiday farm work, tax deduction would not be necessary, the Minister said.

The defence tax applies to half a person's total income for the whole fiscal year, so members of parliament will pay one half their sessional indemnity, the Minister said.

The Finance Minister took charge of things after a half-dozen items had come before the House. Prime Minister Mackenzie King opened proceedings with a stirring statement commenting on Hitler's "peace" offer.

"Deception has run its course. Resolute action alone will decide how suffering and misery can be ended, whether tyranny or freedom is to be annihilated, whether civilization is to be destroyed or survive," he said.

Old Merchant Isn't Worried

(Montreal Star)

"Some people think that tax money is something that is buried in a hole in the ground. They think that it vanishes from circulation because it vanishes from their pockets. They forget that it goes into the pockets of other men and women; that in these times it often goes into pockets that have been a long time empty . . ."

These are the words of the old merchant. They are the words of a Montreal merchant with something over a hundred years of experience in retailing in this city.

Over a hundred years of retailing experience? That doesn't sound right? Well, the old merchant is not a single individual. He is a conglomeration of merchants. For the purposes of this article he is the embodiment of several merchants of several men who know something about the retail trade of this city because their total experience covers well over a hundred years of it.

They are the opinions of men who are not dismayed by their own added burden of income tax; not scared by the thought of customers who may have to budget in order to pay for their share of Canada's war effort. Their views when studied together show a remarkable unanimity of conclusions. So remarkably close together are these that they might all be the opinions of one man—of the old merchant with over a hundred years of experience in advertising and retailing.

x x x

And so—

"No, I'm not frightened by what the new income taxes will do to the buying public," says the old merchant. "Why should I be afraid? The new taxes create new employment. They mean fat pay checks where there were thin ones before. They mean entirely new payrolls too. . . . That tax money will be spent just where it was spent before. It will be spent on rent, on food and in the stores. Other people will spend it—that's the only difference!"

The old merchant is not worrying about whether people will buy as before. He knows they will. His one worry is whether he will be able to get all the goods he needs delivered in time. War affects transportation. War affects some of the factories which must turn out military supplies.

"There's a solution to that," he says. "We have to buy ahead of time. We have to put in our orders early, particularly for things from Britain. We have to look around for alternative sources of supply in case there may be difficulties in transport or in filling civilian orders.

"That does not mean that we're gambling," he hastens to add. "We're not stocking up for next year. Our public is not doing any anticipatory buying and neither are we.

x x x

"D'you remember how some people went crazy after sugar when the war broke out? D'you remember how some of them paid fancy prices for it because they thought that there would be a sugar shortage? Well, that taught an awful lot of people a lesson about anticipatory buying.

"The fact is that prices have not gone up so very much as a result of the war. They have not gone up enough to make anticipatory buying worth while.

"During the last war we thought we had prosperity because the money volume of sales kept on increasing. But when you studied the figures you found that the reason the money volume was rising was because prices were rising. The actual number of transactions dropped slowly.

"So far in this war our money volume of sales is also increasing. But there is an important difference. The increase is due to a greater number of transactions and not to increased prices. That, I think, is extremely significant. . . ."

No, the old merchant is not worried about the future. He is not worried about whether he will be able to sell enough goods. All he is worried about is whether he will be able to get his goods in time for the seasonal demand.

Definitely he is not worried about the effect of increased taxation on the buying public. That public, he believes, will be bigger than ever.

LUXURIES HIT BY NEW BUDGET IN GRT. BRITAIN

Sales Tax on Sliding Scale at Rate of 33⅓ Per Cent on Wholesale Value Imposed

BEER TAX UP

Whole Tendency of Budget is to Restrict Public Spending

(By J. F. Sanderson Canadian Press Staff Writer).

London, July 23 (CP Cable) —A sales tax on a sliding scale, which will hit luxuries at a rate of 33 1-3 per cent on the wholesale value features the supplementary budget presented to the House of Commons today by Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in which he added 238,000,000 pounds ($1,063,550,000) in new taxes.

The Chancellor increased the income tax, the surtax, estate duties, and the indirect taxes on beer, tobacco, wines and entertainment.

Sir Kingsley added a shilling to the basic income tax rate, making it eight shillings sixpence in the pound, and made adjustments in the competition of the tax so that wage-earners and low-salaried persons will pay more.

Surtax on Incomes Increased

In addition to surtax on all incomes exceeding 2,000 pounds was increased from one shilling threepence in the pound to two shillings and the peak rate of nine shillings sixpence in the pound was applied to all incomes exceeding 20,000 pounds, instead of 30,000 pounds.

The increase on beer amounted to a penny on a pint; on tobacco two shillings a pound or a penny and a half on an ounce. The increased taxes on wine were graduated but the Empire preference—and this applied also to tobacco — was safeguarded.

Sales Tax Big Feature

The big feature of Sir Kingsley's budget—which he emphasized was merely an interim budget, suggesting that another should be expected soon—was the imposition of a sales tax for the first time.

The tax will be in two grades: On luxuries 33 1-3 per cent on the wholesale value, representing 24 per cent on retail prices, and a lower rate of 16 2-3 per cent on wholesales, or 12 per cent on retail price on a wide range of necessities.

The higher rate will apply to such articles as furs, silks, jewelry, cosmetics and furniture, and the lower rate to clothing, boots, shoes, drugs, newspapers and books.

There will be many exemptions to the tax, including food, drinks, electricity, fuel, tobacco, farm machinery and such drugs as insulin.

In a full year the Sales Tax is expected to yield 110,000,000 pounds.

3,467,000,000 Pounds Expenditure in 1940.

Faced with war expenditures which now are averaging 57,000,000 pounds weekly, Sir Kingsley estimated that Britain will spend 3,467,000,000 pounds this year. The present scale of taxation would produce 1,234,000,000 pounds, leaving a deficit of 2,233,000,000 pounds.

The chancellor proposed to bridge this gap by adding 239,000,000 pounds in new taxes, borrowing as much as possible and utilizing to the full Britain's foreign resources and credits.

He estimated that Britain would need 2,800,000,000 pounds to cover war costs in the current year but emphasized it is impossible to make accurate forecasts of this nature.

Restrict Public Spending

The whole tendency of the budget was a continuation of Britain's basic wartime financial policy of restricting public spending and restricting home consumption so as to build up individual savings which can be loaned to the state and divert raw materials to the export trade and armaments production.

BRITISH RETURN TO FRANCE—IN BOMBERS

Abbeville, one of the valiantly defended key points preceding the historic Battle of Dunkerque, is now in German hands, and hence fair game for a visit from these British bombers, as far as military objectives go. Such an objective is the airport. On TOP the British bombers having the range, let go the missiles of destruction, seen in their downward flight. Welles Says Absorption Of 3 Baltic Republics Deliberate Annihilation

Washington, July 23—(AP) — Sumner Welles, Acting United States Secretary of State, today denounced as "deliberate annihilation" the absorption of three Baltic republics—Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania—by Soviet Russia.

In a formal statement given out at his press conference, Welles declared:

"The people of the United States are opposed to predatory activities no matter whether they are carried on by the use of force or by the threat of force."

Although the Communist parliament of the three small nations have voted to seek union with Soviet Russia, after Red troops had moved into their countries, the Acting Secretary of State said the United States would continue to recognize the ministers of the Baltic Republics as the ministers of sovereign governments now under duress.

Soviet Air Base In Bering Sea, Report Confirmed By U. S. Coast Guard

Seattle, July 23 (AP)—Reports that a Russian air base is being developed on Soviet-owned Big Diomede Island in the Bering Sea, only a mile from American-owned Little Diomede Island were confirmed by the United States coast guard cutter Perseus on a visit to the Far North.

This was learned when the cutter arrived here en route to its base at San Diego.

Only 10 days ago officers of the cutter talked to the four whites and leaders of the native population of Little Diomede, learning definitely of the presence of a small detachment of Russian soldiers and construction of a large airplane hangar and field on the Soviet Island.

OPPOSED VIEWS PRESENTED ON INSURANCE BILL

Canadian Manufacturers Urge Measure be Not Passed at This Session

WANT SAVING SCHEME

Ottawa, July 23—(CP)—Diametrical opposed views on the unemployment insurance bill were presented today to the Commons Committee studying the measures under the chairmanship of Labor Minister McLarty.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association urged the measure be not passed this session because of the importance of the bill, the need for full consideration, and the substantial amount of novel and troublesome administrative work it would entail on the part of employers when they were focusing their attention on war production.

The C.M.A. urged that a saving scheme be instituted instead, in which all contributions in respect to an employee would be earmarked for that employee.

The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada accepted the bills as a "splendid start," offering but two small amendments. It contended this was an opportune time to start the scheme when employment was plentiful because of war orders.

The Canadian Hospital Council pressed that hospital workers be not included in the scheme because there was scarcely any unemployments in this class and the amount contributed to the unemployment insurance fund by the hospitals and their employes would be of relatively little benefit to hospital workers.

The C.M.A. said the savings scheme was more preferable in Canada than the British or "pool" type of plan.

The present proposed unemployment plan is based on the pool principle in which all contributions are paid into a common pool to be paid out to those who become unemployed. Under the savings scheme all contributions in respect to an employee are ear-marked for that employee.

Outline Opposing Views

A brief outlining of the C.M.A.'s views on unemployment insurance was presented by W. C. Coulter, chairman of the association's industrial relations committee, to the special Commons committee considering the bill.

Mr. Coulter said that among the differences between Canadian and British conditions which have led the association to favor the savings scheme are:

1. The fact that Canada, due to climatic conditions, has a far greater degree of seasonal employment;

2. The fact that, while labor conditions in Britain are markedly static, for example in the great coal industry, the same families work generation after generation, labor in an industrially expanding country like Canada is by comparison highly fluid and it is desirable that it should be;

3. The fact that the distances are so great and that the centres of employment are widely scattered tends seriously to increase both the difficulty and the cost of administration as compared with a country with a dense industrial population concentrated in a small area.

Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, said his association represented 200,000 workers throughout the country and that the voice of the skilled workers represented to a degree the opinion of the unorganized worker.

Workers in Favor

The workers were in favor of unemployment insurance, he said.

Mr. Moore urged that the salary limit to come under the scheme should be increased from $2,000 to $2,500. He insisted a $2,500 top salary would eliminate many difficulties in administration which would be present if the limit is kept at $2,000.

He cited as an example that a printer with a steady job such as is common in the Government Printing Bureau might earn more than $2,000 but less than $2,500. Printers in commercial plants would generally receive under $2,000 so if the top is left at $2,000, some printers would be under the scheme and others out of it. "A man working a 44-hour week at one dollar an hour would earn more than $2,000, whereas it would be under $2,500."

SEEKS RELIEF FOR CAR DEALERS

H. B. Moore Asks Exemption of All Cars from New Taxes Which Were in Hands of Dealers Before Midnight June 24th

Ottawa, July 23.—(CP)—Howard B. Moore, general manager of the Toronto Automobile Trade Association, Limited, expressed the hope that some relief for automobile dealers would come as a result of a talk with Finance Minister Ilsley yesterday regarding budget taxes affecting automobile industry.

"We realize that the government must obtain all the money possible for the war effort and we do not quarrel with the taxation of new cars," Moore said, "but what we asked the Minister was to exempt from the new taxes all the 'cars which were in the hands of dealers prior to midnight, June 24 last, when the new budget taxes became effective".

A memorandum submitted to Mr. Ilsley also stressed the feeling of the trade that the 40 per cent and 80 per cent imposts on new cars were higher than was necessary to obtain the results desired by the Budget.

Delegation included representatives of the industry in Toronto, Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa.

'The Big Week For Cherries'

Toronto, July 23 — (CP) — George Wilson, Marketing Director of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, said today: "This is the big week for cherries," and he advised housewives to get their cherries for canning this week.

Ontario has produced only a half-crop this year, Mr. Wilson said, the reason being excessive rainfall in the blossom time which reduces pollination in some districts.

The season normally lasts ten days to two weeks but this year the weather is causing the cherries to swell and ripen rapidly, Mr. Wilson said. The bulk of the Niagara district crop is going to canning factories, he said, but heavy shipments are going to the west.

Recruiting in Canada Beyond Expectations, Says Hon. J. L. Ralston

Halifax, July 23—(CP)—Defence Minister J. L. Ralston told a press conference today that response to recruiting in Canada had been "even beyond expectations" and that the response of Canadians to the nations war effort in general had been unstinted.

Mr. Ralston flew here to inspect coastal defences and will visit other centres in the Maritimes, including Saint John.

"I think every appeal to the public has been met. There has been no shirking, no holding back. Sometimes the public has taken upon itself and carried out what really was only a suggestion".

He warned, however, more demands and greater sacrifices were ahead.

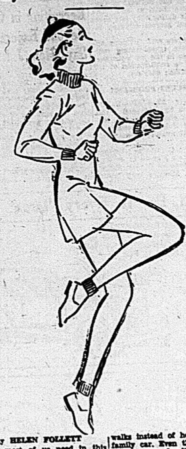
Play if You Want To Keep Young



By HELEN FOLLETT

What most of us need in this daffy, upset world is more fun and more play, especially those of us who are digging for the rent money and the grocery bill. If a woman doesn't know how to play she is getting along in years, no matter if her birthdays don't count up to half a hundred.

Health giving recreations qualify us for work, zest for the job, strength to carry the hod up and down the ladder every day. They make us forget a lot of things that we don't want to remember. They revive youthful spirits, put the rosy glow in the cheeks, sparkles in the eyes.

Avoid Ditches of Monotony

Get out and play when the neighborhood kids assemble. They'll let you be one of them if you show the friendly, interested manner. Romp with the dog. Take long walks instead of hopping into the family car. Even though you stay in your own locality you'll see a lot of things you haven't noticed before. If you have a bit of ground, play with the shovel and the hoe and grow flowers.

Does the tap measure report that the waistline is thickening? You'll have to go on a bender twice a day and get back the svelte lines.

Place the hands on the hips. Pull up your spinal column. Keep the head balanced, chest up. Bend forward as far as you can. You should be able to get your head on a straight line with your hips. Keep the legs rigid. Slowly, stretching the muscles of the abdomen, bring yourself up and tilt backward. Keep the tummy flat. Back to first position and repeat.

Lift the hands high, swing from side to side, pivoting at the waistline. No lazy movements mind you. Make your muscles work.

HOLSEY—HENDRICKS

The United Church, Brighton, was decorated with blue delphinium, white hydrangea and masses of ferns for the marriage of Miss Mabel Elizabeth (Betty) Hendricks only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Day, to Mr. James Murney Holsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holsey of Trenton. Mr. Ray Freeman was at the organ, and Miss Norma Snider sang. Rev. P. G. McLennan officiated.

A long graceful gown of white brocaded satin trimmed with seed pearls was worn by the bride, whose father gave her in marriage. A cluster of orange blossoms held her long tulle veil, and she carried shower of roses, baby's breath and lily-of-the-valley. Her bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Duncan of Belleville, wore a gown of turquoise sheer with shoulder veil and carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses. Mr. Jack Taylor of Trenton was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Ralph Weaver and Mr. Harry Foster.

MARFLEET—SMITH

Miss Edna May Smith, daughter of Mrs. E. Smith Murphy, became the bride of Brian H. Marfleet, R.C.A.F., Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marfleet, Marwayne, Alta., the ceremony being performed in Christ Church, Belleville, by Rev. B. Payne, on Saturday, July twentieth.

The bride was given in marriage by Sheldon Smith of Glen Miller, and wore a dress of old rose, made on fitted lines with full circular skirt and large white hat. She wore a corsage of sweetpeas and roses. Mrs. L. Mason, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a dress of Queen's blue, with navy accessories, wearing corsage of roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. Leonard Mason of 32/34 Batteries of Kingston.

A reception for the immediate family and close friends followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's sister, who received assisted by Mrs. E. Smith Murphy, mother of the bride.

The bride and groom left later for wedding trip. After their honeymoon, the groom will return to service, at a western point of transfer, the bride following later.

EMBURY—WALKER

Madoc, (Special) — A quiet, but pretty wedding took place in Madoc on Saturday afternoon, at 2 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Walker and the late Roy Walker, when their youngest daughter, Vera, became the bride of Mr. Percy Embury, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Embury of Madoc. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Robison.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her eldest brother, Mr. Arnold Walker, looked charming in a gown of baby blue sheer organdy with a small halo of blue flowers and carried a bouquet of blue delphiniums and pink roses. She was attended by her niece, Miss June Walker of Bancroft, who wore pink taffeta with a small halo of white flowers and carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

Mr. Lionel Asselstine of Toronto, cousin of the groom, was groomsman.

During the signing of the register Mrs. Embury, mother of the groom, played "I Love You Truly".

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served after which the happy couple left on a short honeymoon trip to Toronto and points west. The bride's travelling costume was Arcadia blue crepe with white accessories. On their return they will reside in Madoc.

The house decorations were blue and white bridal decorations, Madonna lilies, pink roses and blue delphiniums.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Walker, Bancroft; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Walker, Bancroft; Mr. and Mrs. James Huxtable, Oshawa; Mrs. W. Huxtable, Mrs. Fields, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Asselstine, Toronto; Miss Audrey Garnet, Toronto; Miss Marie Radman, Montreal.

Babies Rate More Fondling From Parents

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

"Kiss and cuddle the baby, of course. Don't hesitate to put your arm around the run-about or teen-age child who welcomes such expression of affection."

So I spoke before the foster parents and staffs of the child-caring agencies of Allegheny County, Pa., recently.

Most children need more fondling by their parents, not less. Out of this more primitive expression of affection can be built a wider and more lasting atmosphere of family love, tenderness, of tones, smiles, sympathy and an increasing regard for the sacredness of the growing child's personality. As evidence of this more enduring love is the mother's ability to put herself in her imagination in the child's place, seeing more and more as he sees, understanding more and more as he understands, and feeling more and more as he feels.

Almost the most upsetting doctrine ever preached to parents came some twenty years ago when a few psychologists warned parents against show of affection to their children. Typical were these words from a psychologist's book: "There is a sensible way of treating children. . . . Dress them, bathe them with care and circumspection. Let your behavior always be objective and kindly firm. Never hug and kiss them, never let them sit on your lap. If you must, kiss them once on the forehead when they say good night. Shake hands with them in the morning."

False Guilt

As a result of this machine-like doctrine, ever so many mothers felt worried and guilty when they did indulge in petting the baby. Others didn't allow themselves to express affection at all to the baby.

Fortunately, today, this doctrine is losing out. Mothers are being urged to show their babies and young children more affection as the basis of their needed feeling of security. Recently, the psychiatrist, Dr. David M. Levy, has emphasized the importance of early cuddling experiences in making for security. Likewise, Dr. Lawrence K. Frank writes: "Contacts are soothing and primitive but highly necessary forms of reassurance. We never outgrow the need for them, but it is especially great in infancy and childhood." When your infant or tot gets crabbed and contrary, one of the best things you can do is to drop your work, take him on your lap and rock, cuddle and sing or read to him.

Social agencies are placing homeless children in families instead of orphanages so these children might gain what no orphanage can give so well.

To the foster mothers I said: "You bighearted, gracious wives who are mothering children that were homeless are doing a grander human service than you will ever know. You are giving these children the warmth of heart and hearth they otherwise would be denied.

Any couple willing to make some personal sacrifice in order to give family life and warmth of heart to a homeless child is making possible a vast deal of abiding satisfaction. Blessed is the child who is welcomed with open arms into an understanding, loving family atmosphere."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Persons With out Appreciation of Own Value Act as 'Doormats' for Greedy Friends

People who are natural doormats—and the woods, flats and farms are full of them—could turn over a new leaf by following collectors' sales.

At a glance, they'll see it's the difficult-to-acquire items that bring the highest prices. An old stamp you'd probably not bother to pick up if you didn't know it's worth, may sell for thousands of dollars. Antique furniture, much of which was thrown out of the mansion houses to discontinued slave quarters after the War between the States, is today priceless. It's the same with old glass, wrought iron and other treasures hitherto disregarded because their value was unknown.

True also of people. Egoists, if not offensive, go for high prices, while human beings who put no value on themselves take the mud and dirt off other peoples' shoes. The following letter is typical:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am 24 and the man to whom I'm engaged is 29. We haven't been able to marry because he has to look out for his old parents. Both of them are bedridden. Now, I love this man devotedly, and to save him the price of bringing in help I've been getting up for the past year before six o'clock, going to his house, cooking the breakfast and making the old couple comfortable before going to the drugstore where I am employed as a cashier.

"After my eight hours' work, I go to his home, cook supper, and help put the old people to bed. Then I return to my home so tired I can't even read the newspaper.

"I have several times told my fiance that I would be willing to marry him, keep my job and look after his old folks, but he has always put me off with some excuse.

"I rent a furnished room in a boarding house and my fiance's family seem to think that because I have my meals with them that I'm well repaid. Lately my fiance bought a new automobile and very often he takes other girls out to drive while I'm caring for his father and mother. We never go to a movie because he says he can't afford it.

"Now, Miss Fairfax, I find myself completely fed up with this man, his family and the drudgery I have put in for them. I have determined to break my engagement, leave this town and go to New York where I have an aunt willing to let me stay with her until I find a job.

"When I broke this news to my fiance and his family, I was overwhelmed with reproaches about my ingratitude. What do you think of the situation?

"Reformed".

Better late than never, and here's hoping you've cut your eye teeth and will never again allow yourself to be made a drudge and a doormat. It's a very unlovely streak in human nature but many people have this grasping quality to the last degree spurring them on to take advantage of a generous person like yourself, only too willing to give.

Love seems to make its own rules, or to break all rules, even that of self-preservation. Nothing could have been more ill-advised than for you to have gone into this young man's home and worked as an unpaid domestic. But as long as you have done this thing, charge it up to experience and never again permit yourself to become a doormat for anyone else.

Thank goodness, you've got the aunt willing to receive you. All good wishes for a profitable job in the big city.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Show Hostess Your Appreciation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband, my two-year-old baby, and I are about to go to spend a week-end at the home of an old friend of my husband's. I have not met these people, and my husband does not know the wife.

1.—Should I take the wife a gift when I go for the visit? Or should I send it after I return home? Should I take gift for their baby?

If you do suggest that I take a gift, what type of gift, under the circumstances, would you suggest?

2.—Also if you do tell me to take a gift, when would be the proper time for me to present it? Also the baby's gift?

Marian

1.—This is such a particularly hospitable invitation that I think you should be thoughtful about the bows that would show your appreciation.

So I suggest that you not only take gifts with you, one for the hostess and one for the baby, but that you also send a gift with the thank-you letter that you will write after you return home. The gift that you take with you would have to be on the impersonal side—a box of candy or a box of assorted hors d'oeuvres or crackers or small jars of jams and jellies—something that would be in the category of a gift to the household.

Then, during your visit, keep your eyes open to choose something either for her personal use or for her home. This gift should be an important gift, as consequential as you can afford. And it should be sent with your "bread-and-butter" letter.

Also take some toy or other appropriate gift for the baby. Perhaps have this wrapped in white glossy paper, and attach to it a white card, on which write a message to the baby, as if your baby sent this gift to their baby.

2.—Give both gifts to the hostess soon after you arrive.

Sunday Afternoon Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer these questions concerning an informal church wedding to be held on Sunday afternoon sometime this summer?

1.—We had thought to have the bridegroom and best man wear white suits and for the ushers to wear white flannel trousers and blue coats. Is this proper?

2.—What flowers would be suitable for the boutonnieres of the bridegroom best man, and ushers?

3.—Is it correct for the bridegroom to present gifts to the ushers and best man?

4.—Does the bridegroom buy the flowers for the bride, maid of honor, and bridesmaids?

F. A.

1—For an informal mid-summer wedding this plan of attire for the bridegroom and his attendants is proper. The bridegroom and his best man may wear white suits and the ushers white flannel trousers and blue coats.

2.—The bridegroom's boutonniere may be of a few small flowers. Or he an his attendants may all wear boutonnieres made of bachelor buttons the most appropriate boutonniere-flower for summer.

3.—Yes, the bridegroom gives a gift to each attendant, gifts suitable to his budget. Sometimes he gives the best man a more consequential gift than those given to the ushers.

4.—Usually the bridegroom buys the bouquet or corsage for his bride. And usually too the bride's parents buy the flowers for the bridal attendants, since these are planned to be appropriate to the general plan and color-scheme of the wedding. However, very often the bridegroom asks for the privilege of sending the flowers for his bride's attendants, and if he asks to do this, the flowers are planned by the bride.

FLIES AND GOOD HEALTH CANNOT EXIST TOGETHER

The diseases and maladies that can be attributed to the common house fly can hardly be overstated. It has been proven through laboratory tests that more than thirty different disease organisms are carried by these pests. Also, that the bacteria on the hairy body of a single fly is sufficient to infect an entire household. Yet, in spite of warnings by medical authorities, many people far too often accept the fly's existence and tolerates its presence as an inevitable nuisance during sunny days and warm weather.

Every year, unfortunately, we pay dearly for this indifference with outbreaks of infectious diseases for the simple reason that these germ carriers, born and matured in filth, eventually transmit this filth to drinks and food left uncovered. Summer dysentery and other infant maladies can often be traced to ordinary house flies.

While several methods have been devised to control this deadly menace to our national health, it is practically impossible to completely eliminate it. As individuals, however, we can accomplish a good deal towards stamping out the danger in our homes by getting rid of any flies that happen to get in.

A very effective, convenient and inexpensive method is to trap the flies with Wilson's Fly Pads. Three or four of these, placed in strategic points throughout the house, will work quickly, cleanly and kill all the flies. This protection should start with the first sign of the fly season and continue throughout the summer months.

If every home and eating place adopted this precautionary measure, much would be accomplished in banishing the menace to our health—and thus make our community a safer, cleaner place to live in.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Mother's Nerves

I have a letter from an exasperated mother who tells me that it is all very well for me to sit here in my office and be so free with advice. "But, if you were a mother with three or four small children to look after as well as a home, you'd find your ideas weren't so workable".

I know something of the mother's job, for I have attended thousands of them. I was the eldest child in a family of nine. The mothers in this section of the country where I have practised for more than thirty years really do have large families—anywhere from five to twenty children.

I have the greatest sympathy for the high-strung woman whose health is none too good and whom the burden of caring for a couple of babies has made the victim of nerves and tempers. I hope that such mothers who write me criticising me find a release for their feelings that way instead of taking them out on the children.

Often in my practise I have watched two mothers with large families. One would be calm and wise in handling the children. The other would be short-tempered shrill and her children would show it. They in turn would be nervous, irritable, resentful of their mother's outbursts. She lost control over them because she had no control over herself.

In almost every such case, where a mother loses control of her children it is a matter of nerves. She has let herself get run down. The result is a vicious circle. And the children are the real victims of it. The tired, over-strained mother, unconsciously works on the nerves and temper of her child. The child responds by being fretful, or naughty or stubborn. This, in turn, only adds to the over-wrought condition of herself. She screams at the child, or is impatient or unfair.

Her child naturally resents these outbursts, and so more and more, as I say, that run-down, nervous mother loses what she should cherish most—control over her child. Then she is likely to forget that she herself is to blame for this, and to think parenthood is always a thankless, hopeless job.

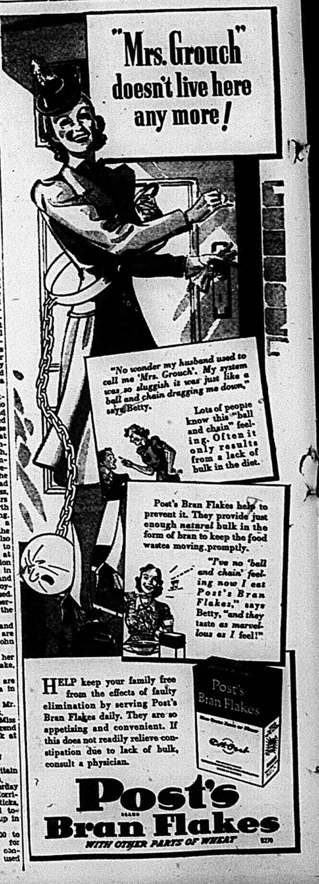
BID ADIEU TO TIN CAN

London, July 23—(CP)— Britain is bidding adieu to the tin can.

Under an order issued yesterday by Supply Minister Herbert Morrison, face powders, shaving sticks, soups, fruits, cigarettes and tobacco may no longer be put up in tin containers.

Britain hopes to save 40,000 to 50,000 tons of tin annually for armament production. Paper containers will be more widely used when feasible.



"Mrs. Grouch" doesn't live here any more!
"No wonder my husband used to call me 'Mrs. Grouch'. My system was so sluggish it was just like a ball and chain dragging me down," says Betty.
Lots of people know this "ball and chain" feeling. Often it only results from a lack of bulk in the diet.
Post's Bran Flakes help to prevent it. They provide just enough natural bulk in the form of bran to keep the food wastes moving promptly.
"I've no 'ball and chain' feeling now I eat Post's Bran Flakes," says Betty, "and they taste as marvelous as I feel!"

Get in the Swim for Health, Fun

But Don't Try to Challenge the Submerging Hippo, Dr. Clendening Advises

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Swimming is accepted as the best form of all-round exercise. For the non-professional athlete, it has many advantages. There is no strain on the feet and it, therefore appeals to many who cannot play golf, tennis or go on walking tours on account of flatfoot, arthritis or other pedal disability And swimming exercises practically every muscle of the body.

Beware Infections

Swimming has some health hazards of its own. One that is constantly debated is the possibility of nose and ear infections. These are generally blamed on dirty and contaminated water—pools, springs, lakes or rivers- but Dr. H. Marshall Taylor, of Jacksonville, Florida, has been calling our attention to other mechanisms.

Dr. Taylor had a number of patients with sinuses and ears infected as a result of swimming, in which contaminated water could hardly have been a factor, because they frequented a swimming pool fed by a spring having a flow in excess of 165,000 gallons of fresh water a minute. These pools had a very low bacteria count, and they contained no irritating chemicals.

We're Landlubbers

The other factors which bring about these infections are structural in man's anatomy. Man is not adapted to an aquatic existence. As in all air-breathing animals, the epithelial cells which line the nose are admirably adapted to resisting air-borne infection, but are not capable of dealing with water-borne infection.

Air-breathing animals who lead a semi-aquatic existence, according to Dr. Taylor's extensive studies, are capable of closing the nose and ears while under water, and so protect their respiratory mucous membranes. The alligator has a muscle around the openings of the nose so that they can be closed while he is under water. Semi-aquatic birds have no nostrils—the pelican and the cormorant.

The hippopotamus is a mammal, like man, but unlike man an aquatic mammal and its under-water mechanism is perfect. Did you ever see a hippopotamus with sinus trouble? No, and your never will! The reason is the nostrils of the hippopotamus are a pair of slits which can be opened and closed by the action of circular muscles surrounding them. They close when the hippopotamus submerges.

Breathing Protects

The lesson is that the protection you have against respiratory infection under water consists in proper breathing—exhale through the nose while under water and inhale through the mouth while swimming on the surface and you maintain a positive air pressure in the nasal cavities which protects the nose and ears from infection.

Use Ear Drums

Aquatic animals also have means of closing the ears under water. We can imitate this by using ear drums, but this is of less importance because ear infections from swimming come almost exclusively from nose and throat infection, which invades the ear by going up the Eustachian tube.

Questions and Answers

Mrs. B.—"Will you please tell me whether using fresh lemons diluted with water for a rinse after shampooing my hair will do any harm to it? It is blonde and I would like to keep it that way."

Answer—On the contrary, it is generally considered that a lemon rinse is a good thing after a shampoo. I have no reason to believe that it will change the color of the hair.

She Started Glamor

By ALICE DENHOFF

Glamour is an oft-quoted of much disputed word but those who knew the fabulous Rita de Acosta Lydig agree that the word might have been coined for her. Few other women of modern times have ever expressed its quality as did this lithe, lovely creature whose life, romances and clothes are still remembered.

Rita Lydig died in 1929, and currently the Museum of Costume Art in New York is making fashion history with its exhibition of her wardrobe. One stands amazed before trunks made of Russian leather, lined with Italian plush velvet, each trunk built to hold thirty-six of Mrs. Lydig's one hundred and fifty pairs of shoes. Antique velvet and lace, damask and embroidery, the rarest leathers, all styled with long pointed toes and very high heels tell a story of a woman with queenly carriage, at home on gleaming ballroom floors.

Chantilly lace mantillas and Spanish fans give a clue to Rita Lydig's Spanish origin: Her handkerchiefs of priceless lace — she was a connoisseur of lace —an umbrella with a diamond-topped platinum shaft reveal the incredible magnificence of their owner's scale of living; it seems without counterpart today. A love for the rare, the beautiful, the antique, a taste that dared to be different, characterize the wardrobe of this lovely woman whose way of living furnished food for gossips in the fashionable world of both hemispheres in her day.

Mrs. Lydig was immortalized by Sargent, Boldini and Helleu, and her portraits wearing black velvet, with magnificent jewels to set off her jet black hair, dark eyes and camellia skin are extraordinarily beautiful.

The Lydig boudoir apparel must have been something judging from the lace skirts that she wore beneath her negligee. One skirt is of the most magnificent Brussells and rose point lace, the joinings of the laces invisible except under a microscope. Lingerie was of incredibly fine fabrics, filmy and rich, with yard-wide bands of Valenciennes, rose-point or point de Milan laces that today are to be found exclusively in museums or private collections.

Nightdresses of French mull, finer than any silk, magnificently embroidered, are of equal rarity. There are coats of priceless point de Venise as well as petticoats of this lace. Handkerchiefs fashioned of two-inch squares of the finest linen have four-inch borders of exquisite lace.

There are over a hundred belts in the Lydig wardrobe, some woven of silver or gold, others with magnificent jeweled clasps. There are scores of black velvet coats, many trimmed with laces or fabulous embroideries. Trousers of antique Persian brocades were worn with tunics of lace.

A picturesque quality and a fastidious taste, plus love of the lavish and beautiful characterize every time in this exquisite collection. Here was a woman who set fashions, who originated ideas, but who never copied.

Pinafores And Jumpers

Pinafores are moving up into the front row again for class days this fall. We note the first pinafores to appear are not ruffled and that the style that looks quite new for campus is the pleated pinafore, though the flared and dirndl-skirted style over dress or blouse is given a new look by being in light-weight woollen in solid color contrast shades or combination of classic sports pattern with solid color. "School house" red with green or navy contrast is smart in these.

Just where a pinafore style stops and a jumper style begins is in these days a little difficult to decide when jumper dresses that do not fasten down the back are nevertheless spoken of as pinafores. We merely mention this to emphasize the fact that the pinafore fashion has started interest in kindred fashions and that jumper dresses come under this head and are spoken of for fall favor.

Summer Meals Need at Least One Hot Dish

By BETSY NEWMAN

At least one hot dish should be served at every summer meal, we are told. I am giving you two in this menu and you can use the cold roast meat from a previous meal or assorted cold meats in the platter.

Today's Menu

Cold Meat Platter
Creamed Potatoes
Hot Cabbage Salad Bar le Duc
Spiced Cup Cakes Iced Tea

Hot Cabbage Salad

2 cups finely shredded cabbage, 1-2 cup hot vinegar, 1-2 cup water, 1 tbsp. sugar, 2 tbsp. melted butter, 1 tsp. salt, 1-8 tsp. pepper, 1-2 tsp. dry mustard.

Warm cabbage slightly and mix together other ingredients. While hot, pour over cabbage and serve hot.

Bar le Duc

1 qt. red currants, Sugar, 1-2 cup nut meats, 1 cup raisins, Rind, juice and pulp of 2 oranges, Juice 1 lemon.

Mash currants, put orange, rind skin and pulp, and nuts through food grinder, add juice of lemon, add 3-4 cup sugar to each cup of mixture and cook until it jells — about 15 minutes.

Spice Cup Cakes

2 cups raisins. 2 cups water. 1-2 cup shortening, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 2 1-4 cups all-purpose flour, 1 tsp. nutmeg, 1-2 tsp. ground cloves 2 tsps. cinnamon, 2 1-2 tsps. baking powder, 1 tsp. salt. 1 cup chopped nuts.

Cream shortening, add sugar and cream well, blend in well-beaten eggs. Sift flour before measuring sift again with spices, baking powder and salt. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons flour over raisins, add remaining flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with liquid drained from raisins. Then add nuts and raisins and pour into greased muffin tins. Bake from 25 to 30 minutes in 350 degree oven. This will make 2 dozen cup cakes.

Molded Salad Is Simple

Don't decide hastily that this molded salad is too elaborate and fussy for a first course at your dinner some hot night. It really is very simple and inexpensive, and you'll like it.

Today's Menu

Molded Norman Salad
Potato Chips Creamed Cabbage
Caramel Custard
Iced or Hot Tea

Molded Norman Salad

1 pkg. salad gelatin, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup cold water, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, 1-2 tsp. salt, 3 whole stuffed olives cut in half, 1-3 cup mayonnaise, 3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped, 2 tbsp. chopped stuffed olives, 1 tbsp. minced onion, 1 can (3 3-4 oz.) Norwegian sardines.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water, add cold water, lemon juice and salt. Pour 1 cup into ring mold and chill until it begins to thicken; then arrange whole sardines in gelatin with olives, cut side down between. Chill until firm. In the meantime chill remaining gelatin until it begins to thicken, then add remaining ingredients and pour on top of first layer. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with parsley or other green.

Caramel Custard

4 cups scalded milk, 5 eggs, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. vanilla.

Put sugar into pan over low fire and stir constantly until melted to light brown color. Add gradually to milk, being careful that milk doesn't bubble over, as it is likely to because of the high temperature of the sugar. When sugar is melted in milk, add mixture gradually to beaten eggs, then add salt and flavoring, and strain into buttered baking dish. Put dish into pan of hot water and bake as custard at 350 degrees F. for about 1 hour.

"I Spy"

By JANET GOFF

The battle of the sexes over a man's old clothes still goes on. Overheard on a Madison Ave. bus this A.M....."You are NOT going to wear that old Palm Beach jacket again this summer.....we'll give it to the first tramp who comes to the door....or to the Red Cross, if they'll TAKE it."

Why can't we let the men alone? Why does a moth-eaten robe or a shiny pair of pants or an old hat bother us? Next to his dog, a man would rather part with his wife than his old clothes, even if he never intends to wear them — and he always does.

Two gifts in jewelers' collections impress me as reasonable for ushers, who usually expect little more than a kiss from the bride. One's a really masculine looking ring with two-letter monogram in bold gold.....the other's an alligator wrist-watch band in caramel or brown.

What to do about a fishing boat partially filled with rain water — sop it up with the largest sponge you can buy.....What to do about fish you catch and can't use right away, this provided you live near a lake or river—construct a good-sized cage of wire with a screen door opening and anchor it right in the lake. Beware, though, of too small a cage, as the fish are inclined to rub off their noses and tails against the wire.

Birthday Book Will Save Worry

Boston—There's no great trick to remembering birthdays. And there is a lot of pleasure for you and your friends if you don't forget them. But maybe you're one who lets birthdays go by unnoticed.

Spare yourself worry and embarrassment by getting a pocket calendar or notebook in which to jot down the names of friends and relatives along with their birthdays.

You can avoid monotony by also writing down the gift each year. And mothers and fathers as well as sweethearts appreciate gifts that remind them of a pleasant occasion.

Another thoughtful thing to do is to give mother a favorite trifle even if it's only a few sticks of striped candy like the kind she bought two for a penny when she was a child. If possible, present your gift in a pretty package or an unusual box. There's no excuse any more for sending a gift that has that store-bought no personal touch, especially when stores are willing to help you pretty up the package.

Whatever the remembrance, see that it arrives on the birthday or beforehand; never late.

Odd Facts

Bananas have a lengthy history, although they have only been imported into Western lands within the last 60 years. The ancient Egyptians are said to have eaten this fruit and it certainly was known to the Persians centuries ago.

The Queen Elizabeth clock at Castle Rishin, Isle of Man, recently ended a 300-year record of time-keeping without repairs when it had to go to the shop.

Bathing Beauties Get In The Swim In Fashion's Newest

It's splash! splash! splash! as bathing beauties dive into the cooling depths of swim pools, lakes and rivers for that refreshing swim that makes one forget the existing heat of the city. And beaches are alive with color as the trim suits makes their appearances.

Ever popular is the classic suit, streamlined and ready for action, such as the bevy of beauties above seem to find the most appealing of this season's styles.

However this type of suit has a strong rival in the dressmaker version that is making a strong bid for popularity this season. The flared skirt of the model on the left hides the trim shorts which are attached. The material is a silk jersey that dries very quickly and is ready for that second dip long before its wool rival has dried out. You can get such suits in many picturesque floral designs, such as the one shown.

Unfair To Career Women

Next time you are tempted to observe that Career Women are a toughskinned sisterhood as a lot—stop, and ask yourself how they got that way.

No one thinks less of the chameleon because he can change his color to protect himself from attack; people have always welcomed the rose despite the thorn. But career women, who have to withstand regular attacks from critics all over the land, aren't supposed to build up any defenses to ward them off. Thrown headfirst into the bubbling cauldron of big business, the woman who comes up instead of going down for the third time—holding a nice contract between her teeth—has to answer her critics before she can dry off and get her pencils sharpened.

Now it's Dr. Eric Matsner, famous gynecologist and New York physician who has a word to harry us. Speaking at a luncheon of women executives who belong to the Fashion Group, he recently said: Career women can't evaluate their time—they can't make up their minds. They are inclined to take themselves too seriously, and to the detriment of their appeal, bring their jobs home at night to husbandh and beaux.

Husband and Beaux

Of the husbands and beaux, Dr. Matsner somewhat paradoxically then remarked: The average man in the life of a modern career woman is somewhat of a disappointment. In most cases he don't seem to measure up to the woman. But I don't know whether business women have set too high a standard and have just given up, or whether they never set the standard high enough.

There, pal, you have both cause and cure.

In every domestic setup there is one who brings home the most bacon; the rest of the family falls into the helpmate category. Fifty percent of our light fiction deals with the pretty but dumb little helpmate who almost lost her bacon-bringer because she wouldn't let him mention the office after hours, at home. This is known as the Not Growing Along With Your Husband plot. She talks babies and the servant problem; he wants to dwell on crude rubber, cloaks and suits, short wave therapy or whatever else his career involves, to a sympathetic helpmate audience of one—the Only One.

The bacon-bringer deserves his audience; reversing the sexes doesn't alter the fact. And few of us, whichever the sex, capture a career for pure love of having one. We have to live, and it's an expensive whim. The adult who comes home every Saturday night with a pay envelope has at least made up his mind —or hers—to one thing: Survival and success: That has to be taken seriously.

Sound Criticism

Dr. Matsner is an attractive and friendly medico who is not in the brickbat business on the side, you can be sure. There is considerable sound sense in much of the criticism he doled out to his audience of lady go-getters:

The average career woman's failure—not inability—to delegate authority gracefull to her associates causes more than anything else bad cases of business jitters. Diagnosed, the underlying cause of this appears to be an "importance" complex about doing a man's work — a gallant flying of feminine banners in the face of the opposing sex.

When a woman executive is headed for the greased skids and jitters, here are two advance tips: Her heels will be run-over. She will need a permanent and not realise it.

Career women don't guard their health. They have a peculiar attitude when they see another woman ill and disabled —they say: "That will never happen to me." The irregular schedules of eating and sleeping and mid-day cocktails which appear to be part of many feminine careers created a health hazard.

The dramatically successful career woman will quarrel with most of Dr. Matsner's findings — they don't apply to her, which is perhaps why she is so outstandingly successful. Mary Lewis, who has her own Fifth Avenue shop, and who acts as a stylist consultant to a big mail order house and to the World's Fair in New York, is an example. Dorothy Shaver, another Fifth Avenue success; Margaret Cuthbert, a power in radio; Elizabeth Arden and Helena Rubenstein, cosmetic merchant princesses. Dorothy Liebes, San Francisco decorator, are also representative of Big Business.

Sit Right Down To Correspond in Latest Styles

By ELEANOR ROSS

Stationery isn't stationary any more. Stylists have gone to work on it, and each season there's something new in the way of note paper, correspondence cards, self-sealing envelopes and such. Which is quite a long way from the one type of stationery that most of us used to consider sufficient.

And look what's happened to the penny postal card. Once it was considered fit only for an impersonal message to the cleaner, to a maid or store, and one never used it when writing to a friend. Of course, the picture postal was quite all right with its "X marks my room" and "wish you were here" scrawls. But now it's correct to send a postal which has been personalised and appears with one's name and address printed along the top. It is an easy and accepted way of communication, geared to our acceptance of anything that will render life and all its workings more simple. A supply of these personal postal cards at hand is a boon for the busy woman.

Machine Age

Using the typewriter for personal correspondence has had an important effect on the changes in stationery. Large single sheets, much thinner than the usual bond paper, with the writer's name or initials in contrasting color with perhaps a very fine border to match, take all the sting out of a typewritten personal letter. Most shops show handsome papers for personal typewritten social correspondence. We saw a beauty in gray with simple engraving in dark maroon and another in palest beige with dark brown block letters.

Large single sheets in light blue with initials in very dark blue make a handsome medium for personal correspondence by typewriter. A typewritten letters looks well only when it is written on large single sheets; is in poor taste on small folded paper, meant for the script letter.

Air Mail Weights

Another reason for transformations in personal stationery is air mail. Those of us who use air mail a great deal want a paper that is not only easy to write on and easy on the eye, but easy on the pocketbook as well. That is why the shops are showing handsome, very light weight papers specially designed for air-mail correspondence. There has always been onionskin paper, so liked abroad, but it has never been popular over here. One motion picture actor uses air-mail stationery of single sheets in very light weight pale gray paper with initials in dark crimson. Another star uses pale beige with initials in dark green. Still another paper is white, with the name in dark blue and the address in dark red to tie up with the air-mail envelopes with their narrow red, white and blue edging.

The main thing is to select the right type of card or stationery for each type of communication, and then to personalise it. For a letter, even an impersonal communication, represents us. It acts as our ambassador, and as such we want it to be indicative of good taste.

Cincinnati Reds And Dodgers Bump Headlong into Another "Showdown" Series Today

Teams Will Play Three Games With Double-header and Night Game Scheduled

REDS IN HIGH GEAR

Brooklyn is Five Games Off the Pace and Not Likely to Improve Position

(By Judson Bailey)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cincinnati Reds and Brooklyn Dodgers bump headlong into another "showdown" series today with the National League championship wavering in the balance.

For Brooklyn at least, the double-header today and the night game tomorrow night looms as the most vital tests of the season. The Reds are racing along at an almost unbelievable pace with 14 victories in their last 16 games.

If Cincinnati is going to be kept from repeating in the Senior circuit, this winnng streak will have to be curbed quickly and the Dodgers can't count on much help from the other eastern clubs whom the Reds will be playing in the next two weeks.

The two rivals have met in five series this season, dividing the first four evenly, and when the scales finally tilted, it was in Cincinnati's direction. The Reds beat Brooklyn two games out of three in Crosley Field a few days ago, helping put the Dodgers on the skids that brought them home today five games behind the lead.

The Dodgers won only six games and lost eight during their recent western invasion and finished with fat old Freddy Fitzsimmons carrying the load as the team's surest winning pitcher.

In contrast the Cincinnati staff has been functioning so perfectly that the starting pitcher has worked the complete game in 10 out of the last 11 contests.

Both major leagues shifted scenery yesterday an open date and come up for new Intersectional stands today.

$200,000 SPENT TO GET PLAYERS

President of Pirates Still Looking for Couple of Starting Hurlers

Pittsburgh, July 23—(AP)—Bill Benswanger, president of the Pirates, disclosed today that since last Fall he has spent $200,000 for players alone to put "new blood" into the team whose morale was upset for a whole year by its 1938 debacle.

And he's ready to put more cash on the line to get the Pirates back into the pennant class.

"Right now give us two standout starting pitchers and we'd be hard to beat. We're trying our best to get those two," he said.

After letting the National League championship slip out of its grasp in 1938, the club had a defeatist complex in 1939 and Benswanger realized he would have to rebuild the line-up to get going again. So he hired Frankie Frisch as manager and started spending.

The "new blood" includes first baseman Elbie Fletcher, whose 63 runs-batted-in lead the league; Frankie Gustine, 20-year-old second baseman batting .319; catchers Spud Davis and Al Lopez; outfielders Maurice Van Robays, Vince DiMaggio and Bob Elliott.

Tigers Pinning Pennant Hopes On 'Bo-Bo' Newsom

Detroit, July 23—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers are pinning a big portion of their pennant hopes on the boasted and proven recuperative powers of the bones that form big Louie (Bo-Bo) Newsom's stature.

Involved this time are two small bones in the thumb of his right hand—the hand that pitched 13 of the 52 victories which make the Tigers leaders of the American League — and Newsom promises that the double fracture he received July 17 at Boston will be mended enough to pitch by Saturday.

"When Bo-Bo wants a fracture to heal, it's going to heal in a hurry and no doctor is going to say how long it was to take," says Newsom. "Bo-Bo wants to get back in there and pitch the Tigers to the pennant."

Physicians disagree on how long it will take, but the boys in the bleachers believe if old Bo-Bo says he can pitch by Saturday, he can.

New York, July 23.—(AP)—Henry Armstrong tells close friends he's about ready to hang 'em up . . . Incidentally, the reason Henry looked so poor in training for Jenkins can't be told here, but it's a good one . . . Buddy Knox of Dayton, perhaps the busiest heavy in the U.S., tries for his 12th victory of 1940 against Chuck Crowell in Chicago, next Monday.

Frankie Frisch tells the story that if Stan McGinnis, now one of the biggest restaurateurs on Broadway, had beaten him out of a berth on the Fordham team, he (Frisch) probably never would have continued in the game and become one of its brightest stars. . . .There are only 1,800 stalls at Saratoga and track officials have received requests for almost twice that number . . . Last of Fighters Of Bare Knuckle Days, Peter Maher, Dies

Baltimore, July 23 (AP)—Peter Maher, 71, one of the last of the fighters in the old bare knuckle days more than 40 years ago, died here Monday.

Maher was born at Galway, Ireland, in 1869 and began fighting when 13. When still in his early 'teens, he fought exhibitions with the famed John L. Sullivan and Peter Jackson, and it was at Sullivan's suggestion that Maher came to the United States.

"What's wrong with the fighters of today?" Maher asked once. "They don't go down when they are hit.

"In the old days many of the matches were short and sweet. You either hit the other fellow in the chin, or was hit yourself. And they were the good old days, too."

Maher knew what he was talking about, because Bob Fitzsimmons knocked him out in one of their three battles, Kid McCoy kayoed Maher in the fifth round in 1900, Gus Ruhlin stopped him in the second round in 1902 and Joe Choynski knocked him out in the second round in 1903. He went 20 rounds to a draw with Ruhlin in 1899.

He fought for the last time in 1905 when Joe Butler won by a knockout in the first round in Philadelphia.

Detroit Tigers Once Again in Scramble For Pennant of American League

Buck Newsom

Barney McCosky

Manager Baker

(By Walter L. Johns, Central Press Canadian Sports Writer)

The Tiger roar from up Detroit way is getting louder and louder. While not too distinguishable as yet, the roar seems to echo but one word, "pennant."

At the moment, the Tigertown club is hot. Very hot. Baseball observers see the team as a real contender and perhaps the choice in the American league.

Detroit always has been a rabid baseball city. The world series days of 1934 and 1935 already are being visioned by the fans. When the Tigers play at home now the stands are filled. In a recent series with the Indians, thousands were turned away after a full house had been reported.

"If" Team, Too

Like the Giants of the National league, Detroit was a question mark team in pre-season dope.

Biggest "if" of all was Charley Gehringer at second base. The veteran infielder suffered an ailment early and was expected to sing his swan song. Instead, Gehringer has come through with the same brilliant defensive play of old and has kept his batting average in the decent class.

Big Hank Greenberg was shifted to the outfield to make room for Rudy York at first base. It was a delicate experiment, but it has been proved a success, for Hank's play has sparkled enough to recently get him an all-star game assignment—as an outfielder. Of course, his big bat is giving the Tigers an offensive weapon second to none in the league.

In March, Schoolboy Rowe still was a mystery although he had won 10 games last year. But Schoolie came back and has pitched good baseball. For a time he was undefeated.

Barney McCosky, the fleet outfielder, was a second-year man and some of them are jinxed. But not Barney, for he ranks today as one of the best outfielders in baseball. His bat has been pounding out hefty averages and his fleetness on the base paths has given Detroit many scoring opportunities not otherwise available.

The catching has held up. Birdie Tebetts is the sparkplug of the team. Billy Sullivan, cast-off from other clubs, makes a good understudy.

Bartell Stars

Shortstop was a bad spot. The aging Dick Bartell, a $20,000-a-year man with the Cubs last year, was believed to be dead weight. Instead Bartell is the big man of the Tiger infield, a defensive demon and an offensive threat.

Young pitching help has come from two boys expected to be only rookie memories. Hal Newhouser, only 19, has won five games. John Gorsica, from Beaumont, also has won several.

The veterans Buck Newsom, Tom Bridges and Archie McKain have kept up the good work. Newsom, with a remarkable string of wins, particularly is to be given credit.

This, then is the Detroit club which was a fifth place team last year and which underwent a housecleaning of farm club talent the likes of which has never been seen before in baseball history.

LEADING WINGS AGAIN BACK ON VICTORY TRAIL

Defeated in First Game With Syracuse, Herschel Lyons Puts Them Back on Feet

TORONTO LOSES

Buddy Blair of Newark Hits Homer With Mate Aboard to Beat Leafs 3-2

(By the Associated Press)

The leading Rochester Red Wings were back on the victory trail today, thanks to some spirited pitching by Herschel Lyons.

After dropping a pair to Montreal Sunday, the Wings were clipped again 3-2 in the first game last night at Syracuse and the rest of the league was starting to take a delighted interest. But at that juncture Lyons stepped in to blank Syracuse with three hits while his mates slugged out an 8-0 victory in the second game.

John Bottarini's single in the seventh with two out and the bases loaded gave the Chiefs their victory in the seven-inning opener. It was the 14th straight game in which the Syracuse catcher had hit safely. In addition to his brilliant pitching in the second tilt, Lyons slammed two singles and a double and knocked across two runs.

Max Macon allowed only two infield singles as he hurled Montreal to a 3-0 victory over Jersey City in the first game of their twin bill. It was Macon's first victory of the season, and he made it a good one while he was about it. The Little Giants delighted a crowd of 5,000 home fans by coming back and slugging out an 11-9 triumph in the second game.

Buddy Blair of Newark supplied the day's biggest thrill when, with one out and a mate aboard in the ninth inning, he belted Pat McLaughlin's figst pitch out of the lot to beat Toronto Leafs 3-2. It was Blair's fourth homer of the year, and a tough break for McLaughlin. Homers by Eric Tipton and Fred Chapman gave the Leafs both their runs.

Nick Etten hit two homeruns and two singles and Bill Nagel produced a pair of homers and a double to lead a Baltimore assault that buried Buffalo 14-2 for the Bisons eighth loss in nine games. Dick Midkiff held Buffalo to eight hits and fanned six.

It seems that the proletariat is not above going for the sport of kings in a big way. Here is a view of the grandstand on the opening day of the racing season in Moscow. The Russian caption tells us that the horse in the foreground is the winner, but fails to give any figures on attendance.

Did you know that—it's merely a matter of viewpoint? For instance in world history June 14th, 1940 will stand as the date of Fritzie's entrance into Paris, but in Brooklyn it's the date of Joe Medwick's entrance into the Dodger batting order....And that Chairman "Derby" Jeffery has a protest on his hands in the first race staged by the Belleville Yacht Club since he assumed office?....It just seems as though the local punt sailors can't race without arguments which we believe is mainly responsible for the present state of doldrums in which the sailing sport finds itself locally?....And that diminutive "Peg" Hurst, veteran Oshawa fly-chaser, is leading the Intercity senior ball loop with a batting average of .477? ....And that Walt Gerow, Jr., is cuffing the pellet at the .373 clip? ....And that the Quinte Club netsters haven't lost a series in the Trent Valley tennis loop this year? But, Trenton tied 'em at three sets each.

Manager Bawden and Barriage, of the "Oilers" and Corbys respectively, are quite concerned regarding this week's softball play-offs, which open tonight at the Flats. It seems that no less than at least a dozen of the players from both squads are "in the army now." Harold Reid hard-hitting third baseman with Corbys, joined the permanent service and is with the 47th Battery, while shortstop Cy Barriage hopes to follow in line. Jimmie Barriage, Alex Simpson, Jack Moon and Connie Harris are with the Argyll Light Infantry from the Corby camp, while John Rensky, Stan Amo, "Wimpy" Reynolds, Eddie Schrieder and Alfie Rowbotham of the Oilers are also in the same unit, while Art Cole is with the 2nd H. & P. Regiment (N.P.A.M.) as a commissioned officer. With six off each team in training it is important that this week's game be grabbed off in case some of the boys are called to military camp. Incidentally Reid will only be with Corbys for no longer than a fortnight. However, for the first three games of the local O.A.S.A. playdowns, which opens tonight, both teams will be at full strength.

Larry MacPhail's latest innovation is likely to have him run out of the major league baseball club presidents' association any day now.

His fellow baseball officials kicked when he introduced night baseball. They frowned at his ballyhoo methods to draw the crowds. And they squirmed over accounts of how he hands out bonuses at certain times through the year.

But wait until they hear how he has decided to cut in the players for a share of the gate at exhibition games. That one probably will then declare the Dodgers' fiery boss out of the union. However, the players and the fans are for him so Larry won't worry about his brother officials.

Greyhound, trotting champion, wears suspenders even as you and I. The gray gelding wears them to keep his knee boots from falling down, however, instead of using them to keep his pants up. Knee boots are used as protection so that the champ won't strike his front legs with his hind legs while he is turning on the speed which made him world's trotting champion.

SPORT SPICE:—If any local athletes are interested in competing in the 1940 National men's track and field championships at Hamilton, Aug. 10th., we are in possession of several official entry blanks, that are available . . . Apparently the management of the Chicago Cubs didn't take Charlie Grimm's approach any too serious . . . Charlie offered to fill in at first base for the Cubs while their regular initial sackers were recovering from illness . . . Yesterday the Cubs laid out 10,000 iron men for old Zeke Bonura, formerly of the Senators, so Grimm needn't worry about returning to his old post . . . Incidentally Charlie works out with the White Sox every day the Pale Hose are home and says he can field as good as ever . . . Wooler pushed Glen Miller out of the Trenton softball play-offs as the former won 13-7 last night and earned the right to meet the Trenton "Donuts" in the next round. . . .

The first ball was tossed into the diamond of a new baseball park just inaugurated in Mexico City last week, when two local teams met for a series of games. The park, called "Claveria," seats 10,000 persons and was constructed at a cost of 50,000 pesos.

The grand old game of baseball is one of the major forms of entertainment in Mexico, and has taken thousands of spectators from the bullfights, which do not attract the rank and file of the people as they used to do.

At present Vera Cruz is leading the teams of the Mexican league, which includes Monterey, Vera Cruz, Mexico City, Santa Rosa, Torreon, Tampico and Nueva Laredo.

When it comes to originalities and downright inability to operate or legislate in an orthodox manner, trust the heads of the ladies softball to fetch a new trick out of the hat. First they held an executive meeting under the canopy of the heavens and on the market square and drew up league play-off arrangements. Later this idea was scrapped, simply because the management of the Mets failed to heed the meeting and now we find Corbins and the Mets meeting in a sudden death game at the armouries tonight, the winner to advance into the league semi-finals versus Zellers. In the meantime the K-Nines and Vikings have been drawn in a best two in three series, which barring additional changes of heart should get under way tomorrow. In the meantime Chairman Ted Schawb may soon be forced to find a new playing field as military training may be featured nightly at the Armouries soon. In the meantime the girls will play there as long as permitted.

Bryon 'Whizzer' White Will Wait on Table To Pay For Course

Boulder, Colo., July 23—(AP)—Bryon (Whizzer) White, who paid income tax on $15,000 for one pro football season with the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be waiting table in a co-ed boarding house if he can get the University of Colorado summer school courses he wants.

"I waited table for my board when I was in school here and when I came up to see about registering for the summer session I was offered a job again," explained the Whizzer, all-American halfback at Colorado in 1937 and the nation's leading collegiate football scorer.

White was forced by the war to give up Rhodes Scholarship study at Oxford in England. Leaving the war zone last fall, he entered the Yale University Law School.

FRENCH SOLDIERS

Ordered to Assist Germans

Comparatively few of these men have been entering Switzerland, but tens of thousands were said to have travelled southward through what the French newspaper Le Temps calls "the Chinese wall" separating the occupied and unoccupied French regions.

The Petain government was said to have ordered its guards to assist the Germans in keeping out of the unoccupied zone any French soldiers fleeing from Nazi prison camps. Anxiety over food supplies and agitators was believed to have dictated the Vichy government's order.

The Germans were said to be concentrating their efforts on keeping escaped war prisoners out of the channel ports where the Nazi are reported preparing to attack Britain.

A few of the French reaching Switzerland reported that some of those making the attempt were said to have been rounded up by German patrols. In coastal areas, all Frenchmen of military age travelling without papers issued by the Germans are arrested and interned on sight.

In Central France, however, where the Germans are leaving the administration largely to local authorities, both officials and private persons were said to be adding escaped prisoners in their flight toward unoccupied areas or the coast.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost. CANADIAN TROOPS

People Threw Open Homes

Wherever the Canadians halted the people threw open their homes to the boys and flocked to supply refreshments.

After winter training at Aldershot, the men have found life in the open anything but a hardship. In a summer of record sunshine they have taken on a healthy tan and get plenty of nourishing food.

Entertainment, however, is something of a problem. Some units have their own concert parties, but pressing duties give them little opportunity for rehearsal. The various auxiliary services provide special performances when they manage to catch the boys on a few days' stand in the same area.

When camp is set up near a town, there is usually a rush for the movies, but most of the entertainment is provided by the men themselves through impromptu singsongs in their tents, or listening to the portable radios donated some months ago by Garfield Weston, former Torontonian, now member of the British House of Commons.

Spraying On Eau de Cologne

The desirability of spraying an eau de cologne has never been questioned but perfecting the practicality of atomizer attachments has been an harassing problem. One answer has been found in a completely new type of atomizer consisting of a dome-shaped rubber bulb attached to the top of the flacon. By holding the flacon in one hand, you press the dome top directing the cool fine spray of fragrance over your body. The bouquet is drawn through a glass tube and released in a fine mist from an opening in the metal rim around the neck of the flacon. This opening can be protected to prevent leakage by replacing the heavy rubber band provided for that purpose.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Way Of All Flesh"

Theatregoers in search of entertainment of a different order should find it in the Paramount drama which is now showing at the Capitol theatre. This picture is "The Way of All Flesh," and features Akim Tamiroff, Gladys George, William Henry and Muriel Angelus. In three distinct cycles the tragedy of one man's life is graphically portrayed. Paul Kriss, trusted and respected cashier in a small town bank, a loving husband and fond father, in a weak moment succumbs to temptation, and is responsible for the loss of a fortune in securities entrusted to him by his bank. Believed to be dead, he determines to become a nameless outcast, rather than subject his family to the disgrace which would be inevitable were he to return to them. How he wins eventual regeneration makes for a most unusual and dramatic finale.

On the same programme a feature filled with thrills, action and mystery is "Making the Headlines" starring Jack Holt and Beverly Roberts.

A Popeye cartoon completes the show.

AT THE BELLE

"The Ghost Breakers"

If you never saw a hair-raising comedy before don't miss bubbling Bob Hope and sparkling Paulette Goddard in Paramount's "The Ghost Breakers" which opens next at the Belle theatre. It's thrilling and spoofing in just the right proportions with ghosts and gags following each other in rapid succession. One minute you hold your breath in suspense, and the next moment you let it go in a side-splitting laugh.

Bob Hope is at his best. Even the skeletons rattled in the closets from laughter when they weren't busy scaring people half to death. And, as an aside to the girls—and the boys—Paulette is something to see.

"The Ghost Breakers" is based on a play by Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard. George Marshall, who directed, and Walter DeLeon, who wrote the screen play, spaced their titters and jitters in just the right proportion to make a happy combination that keeps the audience alternately in suspense and surprise.

Hope and Miss Goddard don't keep the picture entirely to themselves. They have plenty of expert help. Richard Carlson, who plays the part of a play-boy who doesn't play so well when he's cornered, gives an excellent account of himself. Paul Lukas, whom we haven't seen often enough lately, hides his identity behind a flowing beard that makes a menace out of a former handsome leading man. Willie Best, who has been nicknamed "Syracuse," not because it's near "Rochester" or anything like that, is an excellent foil for Bob Hope, whose colored man-servant he plays. Anthony Quinn, well—you'll have to see him for yourself.

"The Ghost Breakers"—and in case you don't know what ghost breakers are, they clean out haunted houses at the drop of a hat—starts off with a bang. Not a moment is wasted in getting into the story.

Paulette Goddard plays the part of a wealthy girl who perfers to live alone in a New York hotel. She suddenly finds that she has inherited a famous old castle on Black Island in Cuba. Ignoring warnings of the Cuban Consuls and the attorney for the estate not to visit it, she prepares to go. Bob Hope, as a gossipy radio commentator, hides in her trunk in the hotel after escaping from a threatening gangster he had offended on the air.

Delivered to her stateroom on the boat in the trunk he frightens her nearly to death when she opens it. Having heard the conversations he convinces her he is a ghost breaker of national reputation and insists on going with her on her adventure which turns out to be a romance.

Ominous threats punctuate the trip but the real adventure doesn't start until they arrive at the castle. Here they fight their way through a veritable chamber of horrors before they arrive at the reason for the great interest in having her give up the castle. They find it in the sub-cellar, but it wouldn't be fair to tell about it now. It is sufficient to say that the hero and heroine, having been through so much together, can't get along without each other.

Altogether, it's good entertainment for everyone.

"My Favorite Wife"

A legally dead wife who returns home on the night of her husband's honeymoon with his second wife, lays the foundation for the hilarious situation in the new Irene Dunne—Cary Grant starring film, "My Favorite Wife," now playing at the Belle with lovely Gail Patrick and Randolph Scott in feature roles.

"The Billposters" is the title of Walt Disney's funniest Donald Duck cartoon presented on the same program with an all star comedy, "Mutiny in the County." Don't miss this "Get a Laugh Week" program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Only Angels Have Wings"

Co-starring Cary Grant and Jean Arthur, Howard Hawk's mighty screen production "Only Angels Have Wings," is now for the enjoyment of Belleville and vicinity theatre-goers playing a return engagement on the screen of the McCarthy Theatre.

"Only Angels Have Wings" is set in a colorful South American village, where Grant is manager of a struggling little airplane transport line. Miss Arthur, as a show-girl, stops off in the village and becomes enamoured with the reckless, cynical flier and his devil-may-care crew. She decides to remain. A major conflict develops—this, in addition to the ever-recurrent battle of man against nature as the aviators take obsolete planes over mist-covered, storm-filled mountain passes—when Richard Barthelmess comes to work for Grant. Barthelmess is seen as a discredited aviator who once, during a test flight, had allowed his mechanic to fall to his death while he himself had "bailed out."

Grant is completely the daring pilot and, more, a representative of that breed of airmen whose restlessness and cockiness have contributed so much to aviation. He brings to his role all the swaggering, heart-warming adventurousness that made his work in "Gunga Din" so memorable; all the carefree, casual whimsy of "The Awful Truth." Miss Arthur, co-starred, is ideally seen in a role which demands that she be at once simple and sophisticated, reluctant and eager for romance.

Barthelmess scores a brilliant triumph with his sympathetic interpretation of the renegade flier. Mitchell's performance as the aviator whose eyes are failing but who continues to take his ship up is one of the histrionic highlights of a brilliantly acted film.

In comparatively smaller roles, with each performance a shining vignette of perfection, are Miss Hayworth, as Barthelmess' wife; Noah Beery, Jr., Allyn Joslyn and John Carroll, as fliers; Sig. Ruman, as the gentle - mannered Dutchman, who owns the airline; Victor Kilian, as an harassed radio operator and Manuel Maciste, singer of native songs which he himself wrote.

Few motion pictures of the past few years have combined the thrills, romance, emotional conflict and natural spectacle to be found in "Only Angels Have Wings, a film which when seen more than once becomes even greater in entertainment merit.

Police Blotter

A few short minutes after he had parked his automobile, opposite the Belle Theatre on Front Street yesterday, Ben Shiers, 360 Ashdale Ave., Toronto, returned to find his motor car had completely disappeared. The car was locked at the ignition, while the car thieves stole the vehicle in a daylight robbery.

Mr. Shier reported the incident to the police yesterday afternoon, stating that his car was a 1929 model Ford coach bearing licence plate numbers 72-Z-85.

Earl Thompson, Cannifton Road, reported the theft of his bicycle to the authorities last evening. The bike in question was left parked on Victoria Ave. That marks the second bicycle, in as many days, that has been, stolen in this vicinity lately. In the meantime a silver-colored bicycle, which was found abandoned by the police, is awaiting its owner at the police station.

Chief J. C. Hayes of Tweed, informed Chief Kidd here today by long distance telephone, that he was in possession of a warrant for the apprehension of one Andrew Masterson of Tweed. Masterson is charged with the theft of a bicycle.

Not since Saturday night has a single transient sought shelter at the police station, slumbering in the wide open spaces being the order of the night for the few transients who remain operating in Ontario.

BARN HIT BY LIGHTNING

Athen, Ont., July 23. —(CP) — Lightning struck the barn of Thomas Toohey, 22 miles from Brockville yesterday, and destroyed the structure containing the hay crop and some farm implements.

British Communique

London, July 23—(CP)—Far-flung German air raids during the night extending from the Thames estuary on the east to Wales on the west and from England to Scotland caused little damage and no fatalities, the government announced today.

A communique issued by the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home security follows:

"During the night enemy aircraft dropped small numbers of bombs at many coastal points, including the Thames estuary, South Wales and Southeast Scotland.

"No fatal casualties are reported, but in one Scottish town several persons were injured and damage was done to house and shop property.

"Farm buildings were also damaged in southeast Scotland.

"In England and Wales, little damage was done but in one southeast coast town an unoccupied house was demolished and an electric cable damaged—which was soon repaired."

An eye-witness at a southeast town said the raiders apparently were attacking shipping and British fighters were "continually racing out to sea."

Along the Thames estuary, most of the bombs fell in marshland or on rocks on the shore.

A dozen planes appeared over Wales simultaneously—the largest number to visit that area since the war began. In the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire, most of them fled, dropping their bombs on the countryside, largely in open fields.

German planes flew over towns in southwest England during the night. High explosive bombs dropped on the outskirts of a northeastern England town damaged three houses and caused minor injury.

This morning a single raider dropped four bombs on a southeast town. No damage was reported.

Planes, believed to be German, flew over southwest Scotland this afternoon.

A twin-motored German fighter plane was shot down in the southeast coast and the two crewmen were captured.

Gladys George, as a happy mother, and wife of Akim Tamiroff in the Paramount drama, "The Way of All Flesh," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. Muriel Angelus and William Henry are also featured.

FOOD SUPERSTITIONS

In my boyhood, when the choke cherry season was on, no youngster was allowed to drink milk. If you were brought up in the country you have been made aware of the old superstition, for I believe it is widespread, and is believed pretty generally even today.

Choke cherries were very, very plentiful in season, and I suppose every boy filled himself with them even though they were tart to the taste, and shrivelled up the mouth till it felt like a piece of blotting paper. Well, it was and still is a common belief, that if milk is taken into the stomach with choke cherries, the victims will choke. That's how those harmless wild cherries got their name. Every old grandmother or grandfather in those days would tell of many, many hearsay cases of boys who had choked to death when they ate choke cherries and drank milk.

Of course, there were no such cases, and no basis for the belief unless it is that a youngster who has overloaded his stomach with a couple of quarts of choke cherries will very likely become ill if he tops them off with milk—or anything else.

In some sections of the country there is the same superstition about drinking milk after eating tomatoes, or fruits such as oranges, or grapefruit. Eating potatoes and tomatoes at the same meal is supposed to be very injurious is some communities. Celery and fish is another combination people are warned against in old wives' tales.

Don't believe them,—any reasonable combination of food in moderate quantities will cause no digestive troubles. Of course, you may get into trouble if you eat too many extremely rich foods at the same meal. But it isn't the combination, necesarily, for you'd probably get the same effect if you ate too much of just one very rich course. I know, for instance, that a mixture of lobster and ice cream is popularly supposed to poison the eater. Well, two such rich foods won't poison you, but they're quite apt to feel as though you were poisoned.

One old idea that has been pretty well disproved in recent years is that oysters can be safely eaten only during the months that have an R in their spelling. Years ago oysters shipped in hot weather would often go bad. Oysters do become inedible more quickly than ordinary foods for they live in shallow water where bacteria abound. These bacteria multiply with great rapidity unless the oysters are kept cold Today, however, there is no problem about keeping oysters fresh in shipping; government regulations govern it. Special refrigeration is used with the result that oysters can be eaten the year around.

There is a saying: "One man's meat is anothers man's poison" that is true because of allergies some persons have. For example, some cannot eat strawberries without breaking into a rash. Children often have these allergies and parents are wise to keep this in mind when young Johnny or Mary shows a marked distaste for a certain food.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on Puds Simkins's front steps talking to him about different subjects such as the beginning of vacation, and making some money. Puds saying, How would it be if we get a job during vacation and make a lot of money?

Sure, G, lots of fellows work during vacation, I said. Gosh, I wouldn't mind, if it was some kind of a good job like helping a painter to paint doors and things, I said, and Puds said, If I could find a job riding ponies to give them exercise I'd take it in a minute.

Wich just then the paper boy went passed and handed Puds their paper, and I said, Why dont you look at the Help Wanted avvertisements right now? Look under Boys, that's the place to look, I said.

Wich Puds started to, saying. Here's one for a boy to make himself genrelly useful around a box factory. I wonder what you have to do to be genrelly useful around a box factory? he said.

You proberly have to carry boxes, I said, and Puds said, Here's another one for a boy to make himself genrelly useful in a hardware store.

See if there's one for a boy to make himself genrelly useful around a candy store, I said.

Wich there wasn't, Puds saying. Here's some for strong boys, strong boys to start at the bottom in the wholesale grocery business, strong boys wanted as sheet metal apprentices.

Is there any for strong boys to join a circus? I said, and Puds said, I dont see any. I wish there was one for a boy to learn to be a usher in a movie where they change the picture every day, he said.

Only there wasn't, and I said, O well, what's a difference, the best thing to do during vacation is proberly just rest and grow.

Wich it properly is.

WALL STREET

New York, July 23.—(AP)—Efforts to steam up the stock market today were again handicapped by war influences and definite trends were lacking. Dealings were inconsequential throughout.

Domestic business and politics were almost ignored in board rooms as waiting traders watched overseas bulletins for news of the long-threatened Hitler smash at Britain.

Among resistant stocks were Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler Douglas Aircraft and United Aircraft.

Backward were Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Can, Kennecott, Youngstown Sheet and Philip Morris.

Select issues in the Canadian section ranged unchanged to fractions higher. Dome, McIntyre and Walkers gained fractions. In the Bond market Canada 4s lost half point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 23 (CP)—Stocks registered a small advance on Toronto exchange today. Base metals were stronger and western oils off narrowly. Volume was small at 37,000 shares.

Senior oil and steel stocks were a bit stronger and the utilities were down slightly. Other industrial groups held steady. Coniarium, Aunor and Preston were strong issues of the gold group. In the base metals Noranda was a leader on the up side at 48, showing a gain of ¾. Nickel weakened a small fraction.

A loss of 6 cents to 1.30 for Calgary Edmonton was the main change in western oils.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, July 23—(CP)—Dressedweight were up 25 cents at Brantford in Bacon-Hog Markets reporting early today. Hull and Stratford reported unchanged prices.

Liveweight: Hull $8.25.

Dressedweight: Brantford $11.50 Hull $11.25; Stratford $11.40 plus transportation.

Peterborough reported dressedweight down 40 cents there at $11 plus transportation.

Bacon hogs, fed and watered brought $9. Selects drew $1 per hog premium with the regular cuts on off grades. Sows ranged from $4.75-$6.25. Hogs sold on rail grade brought $12 hot weight.

Small Losses Recorded By Eggs, Butter

Eggs and butter moved to slightly lower price levels on the Toronto open produce market yesterday, while cheese gained a fraction in moderately quiet trading.

During the morning eggs were quietly steady. Receipts were on the light side but appeared ample for buyers' requirements. In the afternoon, with trading fairly slow A-large eggs eased to 22c, A-medium to 21c and A-pullet to 19c. A premium of 1c was obtainable, however, on Government-inspected lots. Selling prices to retailers declined 1c on A-large, A-medium and B grades and dropped 2c on A-pullet eggs.

Buying interest was lacking on the egg market. Offerings were light and trading was very slow. First-grade Ontario creamery solids eased to a price range of 22 1-2c to 22 3-4c, with undergrades showing a corresponding decline. Holders of Western butter asked 23 3-4c but no sales were reported.

VOLUNTEER CORPS FOR U. S. CITIZENS

Americans in Britain Forming Own "Home Guard" to Protect "Second Home"

London, July 23—(CP)—Americans who have lived for a long time in Britain are forming their own "home guard" to help Britain's defence volunteers fight off any attempted invasion.

Because many American residents already have gone back to the United States it is unlikely that a large force can be raised, but it is expected to be a well equipped unit.

Plans call for a highly mobile, mechanized force, ready for duty at any point where it may be needed.

So far about 60 Americans who consider this country their "second home" and want to do their bit toward defending it have joined up. Recruiting offices have been established in London to enlist others.

Members of the American unit are not required to enlist in the British army and it is understood that the question of carrying arms, prohibited to aliens, is yet to be worked out. Because of American neutrality laws the exact status of the force has not yet been determined.

Among the Americans helping to organize the unit are Brig. Gen. Wade H. Hayes, who served on General Pershing's staff in 1918; A. P. Buquor, inventor of mobile military equipment and Charles Sweeney, the golfer.

MOTORSHIP KARSTEN SUNK OFF CHINESE COAST

Shanghai, July 23 (AP)—The 1,000-ton motorship Karsten, flying the German flag, was reported today to have been sunk off Ninpo, presumably by Chinese artillery fire. The ship had been plying between Shanghai and Ninpo for three years.

FARMERS WHO FLED CALLED BACK BY VICHY GOVERNMENT

Vichy, France, July 23 (AP)—Farmers and farm workers who fled to unoccupied France from areas occupied by the Germans must return to their homes immediately, the National Defence Ministry announced today. The Ministry said the order, carrying out an agreement with high German authorities, also applies to personnel of the Ministry of Agriculture and farm co-operative officials.

TWO FILMS BANNED

Melbourne, Australia July 23.—(AP)— Announcement was made toay by the Commonwealth film censor of banning of two Hollywood movies. They are "Susan and God" starring Joan Crawford and Frederick March and "Strange Cargo", in which Miss Crawford appears opposite Clark Gable.

WOMAN SENTENCED TO 21 DAYS' TERM

Glasgow, July 23—(CP)— Mrs. Matilda Forsyth, 47, was sentenced to 21 days' imprisonment today after she admitted she had made these statements about the war: That the Germans had landed in southern England and destroyed the docks, and that President Roosevelt had sent a ship to remove Britain's poor children to safety, but that it had been monopolized by persons such as Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information.

AIRPLANE

Tackle New Problem

Meanwhile the government tackled the problem of raising an additional 750,000,000 pounds ($3,300,000,000) to pay the increasing cost of fighting the war, and the public was ready to meet half the sum with heavy increases in taxes.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was scheduled to present a supplementary emergency war budget to the House of Commons this afternoon. It was thought the income tax might be extended downward to men earning as little as $9 a week, and cigarettes were expected to be taxed additionally to make an ordinary package of 20 cost one shilling, eight-pence, or about 35 cents.

Lord Halifax's flat "no" to the Hitler overture may be emphasized again by Prime Minister Churchill in Commons this afternoon. Although no speech was scheduled, a brief statement in answer to a question was possible.

Britain and Germany exchanged air raids again last night and today.

100 Incendiary Bombs Dropped

German bombers attacked Britain this morning from the Thames estuary to south Wales and north to Scotland, but the government said little damage and no fatalities resulted. About 100 incendiary bombs were dropped on one Scottish town, where "several persons" were injured and damage was done "to shop and house property."

Britain announced raids on Germany Sunday night and Monday morning in which 37 tons of explosive bombs were dropped on "two of Germany's principal airplane factories," identified as the Dormier works at Wismar, on the Baltic Sea and the Fieseler airplane factory near Kassel.

The problem of the Chancellor of the Exchequer was to raise an additional 750,000,000 pounds to meet the $2,000,000 a-day increase in war costs which has developed since approval of the budget last April fixing expenditure at 2,667,000,000 pounds for the year ending March 31, 1941. Britain is now spending 9,500,000 pounds, (about $41,000,000) a day to fight the war.

The traditional British way to raise funds is to get half by taxation and half by borrowing.

Lord Halifax Plain-Spoken

As the House of Commons assembled to hear Sir Kingsley's new supplementary budget it was with the knowledge the British public already was paying a record income tax of a basic rate of 7 1-2 shillings to the pound, a rate equal to about 40 cents to the dollar.

Lord Halifax was plain-spoken in his rejection of the new Hitler "peace" gesture.

"The people of the British Commonwealth," he said, "along with all those who love truth and justice and freedom will never accept this new world of Hitler's."

"We realize the struggle may cost us everything, but just because the things we are depending are worth any sacrifice, it is a noble privilege to be the defender of things so precious."

Lord Halifax declared in his world-wide broadcast: "We want to be able to live our own lives as we like and not have to look over our shoulders all the time to see if the gestapo is making up a case that will land us in a concentration camp."

"We want to worship God as we like, and this religious freedom based on conscience we will not let go."

He described Hitler as ruling central and northern Europe "through creatures, pale shadows of himself." In the south, he said, "Mussolini, flushed by his triumphs over a France whom he never fought, may be allowed the role of master of a Mediterranean, which he has not conquered."

He declared the British nation remained "unmoved by threats unaccompanied by any appeal to our sense of right and justice."

HANSON APPEALS

"I am no longer given any information by the Minister, although I think I am entitled, as a matter of right, to know what is going on, as I made clear on a previous occasion, for my own guidance in the House. That information has been denied me.

"In viewing that fact, I am constrained to demand that the situation be clarified and remedied."

Opposed to Secret Sessions

Mr. Hanson said he was opposed in general to holding secret sessions of parliament but if there were parts of the war effort which were confidential, they should be given members in that way.

This should be done, he said, "in order that we may be informed and take such intelligent action, or refrain from action and criticism, as patriotism, loyalty, good judgment and common sense shall dictate.

"The Prime Minister and the members of his government are apparently content, having made our war effort the prerogative of his own party, to keep within their own bosoms the story of our war effort, of our performance as distinguished from promises."

Mr. Hanson urged the government not to prorogue when present work was concerned but merely to adjourn to a definite date.

The Prime Minister said he was in accord with the proposal that parliament, before prorogation, should be given a full statement on the war effort, and it had been the intention of the government to make such a statement during discussion of the estimates.

Planned to Give Statement

Information was being given the people from day to day on the government's war achievements and undertaking but he realized, Mr. King said, that this would be more comprehensive if presented in a single statement, and this was planned.

With reference to Mr. Hanson's statement that the government was restricting responsibility for the war effort to the Liberal party, Mr. King said he had gone out of his way to offer the opposition leader a place on the War Committee of the cabinet in an associate status but they had rejected it.

It was not only the prerogative of the Liberal party to take full responsibilities for the war effort but it was its duty, Mr. King said.

M. J. Coldwell (CCF Rosetown-Biggar) endorsed the plea of the Conservative Leader for a complete statement on the government's war accomplishments and an opportunity to debate them either before the open house or in a secret session.

TWELVE MUNITION

One plant will produce thousands of special glass and fire control instruments, and the capacity of the Bren plant in Toronto is being doubled.

Capacity of two gun plants—one producing anti-aircraft barrels and the other complete field guns—is also being doubled.

Two firms at present producing machine tools will expand their plants substantially, while the automotive plant facilities are being expanded to permit, among other things, production of 200 trucks daily and greater productive capacity of universal carriers.

Some of these expenditures are for British account. But all are being carried out under the supervision of the Department of Munitions and Supply.

All told, the Minister said, plant expansion now under way or completed in Canada and financed in whole or in part by the two governments amounts approximately to $80,000,000, involving about 50 firms. The estimated production from these plants will run to well over $400,000,000 annually.

The 12 new plants will increase substantially the capacity of Canada to produce war material and will augment a munitions plant construction program which already includes two explosive plants, equalling in size any development in a similar nature in the Empire, a large shell filling plant, and a large scale chemical development, Mr. Howe said.

MARMORA MAN FINED $50

Bruce McInroy Found Guilty of Making Subversive Statements

Stern warning to the public that subversive utterances and those purporting to show disaffection to His Majesty, King George VI, will meet with punishment, was issued in Marmora Police Court yesterday by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., following the sentencing of Bruce McInroy, Marmora resident, to pay a fine of $50.00 and costs of $35.75. McInroy was found guilty by the bench of making statements contrary to the Defence of Canada Regulations.

In default of payment, the convicted man will spend three months in the county jail.

Following the passing of sentence Magistrate Butler stated that he hoped the findings of the court will impress upon others that such language cannot be tolerated.

MUGGY WEATHER NOT RELIEVED DESPITE STORMS

Toronto Area Lucky as Thermometers Drop After Early Morning Showers

DAMAGE IN EAST

Several Buildings in Gananoque Area Struck by Lightning but No One Injured

By The Canadian Press

Showers or thunderstorms in parts of Ontario early today brought relief from the muggy heat of a July hot and humid spell. In other districts the uncomfortable weather continued unabated.

Toronto area was one of the lucky ones with temperatures dropping after early morning showers from Monday's high of 86 to a comparatively cool 75. Throughout the night the mercury lingered around 72, indicating the hottest night of the year.

In Northern Ontario, North Bay turned in a 73 at 8 a.m., the tops for that time for the year. Two hours later the temperature was at 77 and rising steadily with skies clear and sunny. Conditions, however, were reported less sultry than yesterday.

Windsor district had had no rain since Friday, topped by an unofficial temperature of 96 monday which made the slightest movement a burden.

Thunderstorms in East

Eastern Ontario was visited by thunderstorms late Monday. Several buildings in Gananoque district were struck by lightning, including the home of Peter Laverty. The lightning ripped through the roof and passed through a bedroom in which were Mrs. Laverty and her two-year-old daughter.

Gananoque also reported damage to grain, corn and potato crops. Brockville experienced a less severe storm which failed to dispel the intense humidity of the past three days.

Six inches of rain ran in the streets of the Lake Erie resort of Port Stanley when a downpour struck last night. Beach-front concessions were forced to close.

Pools Crowded

Stratford residents looked at the 80 degrees posted by the official thermometer early today, two higher than at 8 a.m. Monday, and looked for another scorcher. Youngsters crowded a municipal pool and the Avon River for the first night of the season.

An official temperature of 78 early today and an absence of any breeze brought little hope to people of Welland of relief from the present heat wave. Yesterday the thermometer registered a high of 88. A general exodus to the beaches continues while city wading and swimming pools are filled with children and youths.

Two Fatalities Registered

Winnipeg, July 23 (CP)—Two more fatalities were recorded in Manitoba last night as wind, hail, and lightning swept over the province and brought relief from high temperatures which had prevailed since Friday.

Latest additions to the death toll were James Steven, 18, of suburban St. James, who drowned at Clear Lake last night, and Mrs. James Frost, 69, of East Selkirk, who was killed last night while crossing the highway. Three others were drowned during the week-end while seeking relief from heat.

In Winnipeg a government greenhouse attendant was injured when lightning struck and damaged the building. Wheat crops were reported standing up well, but damage was noted in coarse grain crops in some areas.

Chicago, July 23 (AP)—Scattered thundershowers giving only temporary and slight relief from the heat wave was the best the weatherman could offer sweltering North America today.

Virtually all the United States east of the Rockies suffered from the sizzling heat. Temperatures of 100 or higher were reported yesterday from such scattered points as Montana and Washington, D.C., Minnesota and Arizona.

180 Deaths Due to Weather

At least 180 deaths were attributed, directly or indirectly, to the torrid weather. Thirty-one persons in 12 States were listed as heat victims. In 31 States there were 149 drowning victims among the millions who sought relief at the beaches.

A. E. Anderson, State-Federal Agricultural Statistician at Omaha, Neb., said the heat wave was creating a serious crop situation in that region. He reported that even Sudan, a drought resisting sorghum, was beginning to suffer.

Phoenix, Ariz., reported a high yesterday of 112 degrees, and Yuma, Ariz., 110. It was 105 at Rapid City, N.D., and 103 at Minneapolis and St. Paul. Five Montana cities had readings of 100 or above, Miles City topping the list with 105.

Detroit's 96 was an all time record for July 22.

The 11,000 soldiers in the military district at Winnipeg, were granted permission to suspend training between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. for the duration of the heat wave. The order was issued as the temperature climbed to 99.8 degrees.

21 World Speed Records Smashed By Ab Jenkins On Bonneville Salt Flats

24-Hour Speed Grind Completes His Conquest of All World's Land Speed Records from 50 Kilometres to 3,000 Miles and from One Hour to 24 Hours—Average Speed for 24 Hours 161.18 M.P.H., Nearly 4 Miles Above His Own World Record

Bonneville, Salt Flats, Utah, July 23 —(AP)—Ab Jenkins braked his Mormon Meteor to a stop here today leaving behind on the deeply rutted tracks of three saline race courses the shattered remnants of 21 world's speed records.

The Salt Lake City mayor flashed across the finish line of his 24-hour speed grind at 10.33 a.m. E.D.T. to complete his conquest of all the world's land speed records from 50 kilometres to 3,000 miles and from one hour to 24—most of them his own.

Nearly Four M.P.H. Faster

This average for the 24-hour grind during which he was occasionally relieved at the wheel of the Mormon Meteor was 161.18 miles per hour nearly four miles faster than the world standard he set up last year of 157.27 miles per hour.

During those 24 hours while his car slithered in soft salt and his tires cut deep ruts in the once hard-packed courses he flashed around the 12 1-2 and 11-mile track at speeds reaching 183 to 185 miles per hour.

Six hours after the start he switched to the 11-mile course and timed it one at a speed of 189 miles per hour—the fastest lap ever made on a circular course.

During the 24 hours the Meteor thundered over the heat-softened salt it covered at almost airliner speed the distance from San Francisco to New York and back past Pittsburgh—a total of 3,888.32 miles.

TOTALITARIANISM MAIN OBJECTIVE

Large Share of Burden to Fall on Japanese Militarists Says Premier

Tokyo, July 23 (AP)—The first task of Japan's new cabinet is strengthening of totalitarianism at home, Premier Prince Fumumaro Konoye declared today, but he said it would be paralleled by "reform" in Japanese policy with a large share of the burden falling on militarists.

In an interview with Japanese newspapers, however, the premier said he was not in a position to define foreign policy definitely pending further discussion with the cabinet council and imperial headquarters, the war policymaking board of the army and navy.

He parried questions concerning basic south seas policy with the answer that "this matter is having my serious attention."

But his ministers envisioned Japan as sharing world rule with Germany and Italy and mapped a diplomatic policy patterned on Adolf Hitler's "blitzkrieg" measures, designed to satisfy Japan's expansionist hopes through closer collaboration with the Rome-Berlin exis.

"In a broad sense, foremost importance will be attached to national defence," the new premier declared.

"The total strength of the national will be mobilized and controlled toward this objective, which necessarily brings hardships to the people who are called upon to bear them, but a minimum standard of living will be assured."

SHINING WINDOWS

by Kathleen Norris~

INSTALMENT 14.

As the shabby Ballard car took the hill road, sweet restful airs fanned Joyce's hot face the infinite peace of the hills enveloped the nerves that had been jangled by too much happiness, too much amusement, too much noise.

"Dad gave Mike the kicking heifer," Ben said. "He was going to pay Mike for June, and Mike asked him what he intended to do with the kicking heifer. Dad said he was going to try to sell her for a milker, and Mike said he'd like her!"

"He's crazy!" Joyce said with an affectionate laugh.

"And if I don't sound like the prize hick," Ben drawled. His sister's joyous laugh broke out again.

She burst into the supper-time kitchen kissing, embracing everyone in turn, noting rather tardily that Mike Tallane was dining with them.

"Hello, Mike, I didn't see you. Dodo, darling, if you knew what a good time I've had!"

It bubbled from her all through the meal. Every one had been simply marvellous, and the fun, and the way they had laughed.

"And then, mother, I was all packed up to go, and this Alice Goldthwaite who was staying there—we roomed together, and she is just a darling!—Alice had gone down to tell Paul I was ready, and then his mother—his stepmother, you know, but she's simply adorable, and crazy about his father. He says his father and mother got on each other's nerves terribly, so why stick together if you're completely wretched?—his stepmother came in and said, 'Joyce this is Monday and Paul is going Thursday; why don't you stay and see him off with the rest of us? I'll wire your father.' Oh, she was simply wonderful! So I knew you wouldn't mind—"

It was all jumbled together; she couldn't keep the pattern straight but it all had been bright.

"The first time we all went into town Alice Goldthwaite and I changed outfits and mine was so becoming to her she asked to keep it, and, mother, hers is from Blainstyne, designed for her by Onda, and dates and everything, wait until you see it—

"And in the mornings we'd all wander over to the club and watch the golf or sit on the porch. We rode before breakfast nearly every morning—

"Oh, and it's so good to get home and be telling you all about it," every section of the narrative ended.

Lissy and her parents and Mike Tallant played bridge after dinner. This it seemed was almost a nightly custom now. It was when they were all going to bed that Joyce had her first opportunity to tell Lissy an important bit of news.

She went into Lissy's room, sat on the foot of the bed at Lissy's feet. The older sister was comfortably established against her pillows.

"Liss, I saw Archie Ross," Joyce began.

"Home again?" Lissy asked trying for a natural tone. She had colored deeply, painfully, but she was not feeling proud, Joyce noticed with relief, she was not repelling confidences. Instead there was an odd look in her eyes, a look that made Joyce's heart ache with sudden fierce loyalty and pity. How helpless a fine proud lonely girl was, when a man chose to be cruel to her!

"Let me tell you about it, Liss. It was at the country club on Sunday," Joyce began her narrative briskly. She talked for twenty minutes with no interruption from her sister. Archie, she reported, had been placating and friendly and simple. "He seemed sorry. He wants—the next time you go into town, to have you telephone him, Lissy," Joyce finished.

"I'll see him," Lissy said suddenly. "I've wanted to have one talk with him for my own self-respect. And perhaps I'll tell him what I think of him! I'm glad you told me this. I'll never like Archie again—not that it matters! but I'm glad he has the decency to feel that he has to see me himself, not write me."

But somehow Joyce suspected that Lissy felt a little happier about it than she would admit.

The days went by, cloudless summer days burning hot and dry over the valley and the mountain ranches, days that ripened peaches, pears, apples, prunes. The world began to smell deliciously of ripening fruit. Trucks laden with fragrant globes of color went up and down the road; Nye's packing plant was working overtime.

A day or two after her return from the memorable Burlingame visit, Joyce had seized an opportunity to speak to Mike Tallant in an aside. It was when he had asked her to go up with him to one of the unused sheds to "see something".

Joyce had found the something to be a long narrow table, half buried in broken farm machinery, old ladders and hopes.

"You were saying the other night it would be nice to eat in the yard," Mike suggested.

"Oh, Michael! It's perfect! I'll tell you, let's wait until tomorrow, when mother and dad have to go up and sign those last things, and then move it down and put the candles on it and have supper outside!

And then quite suddenly, with lowered eyelashes and in a little confusion she added: "Listen, Michael. There was something I wanted to say to you; it's been on my mind since that night before Paul and I went away. I feel terribly about that—that dumb thing I said—out by the fence, you know — that night?"

"I suppose I ought to say that I didn't hear you," he said. "But as a matter of fact, I did. The first thing I heard let me into it so," he confessed, coloring and laughing "that I thought—if I thought at all, that I'd much better sit still and let you wander away. But you didn't wander away!"

"I didn't mind your hearing the stupid thing I said," she began bravely. "But it was calling you the—I mean I never think of you as—"

"The hired man?" he supplied with a grin as she floundered.

"But you see, this was truly it," Joyce hastened to say, her cheeks red. "You'd called yourself that at the telephone the day before. You were ordering feed and called yourself that, and I stupidly—dumbly—"

"Why, it was nothing!" he said. "My only embarrassment was that I'd been listening."

They walked toward the house.

"You were in great spirits that night," the man commented.

"I'm terribly happy, Joyce told him.

"So I gather. Why Joyce," Michael Tallant said, "you oughtn't to worry about what I think, or any one thinks. You're nineteen and you're in love. And yet nineteen's awfully young."

"Twenty. I was twenty last week, you know. I feel tremendously old. It seems years ago that I used to fool around with Margaret Pierce and Eileen O'Shea—those were my friends. We used to talk and go to movies and sometimes we'd make a resolution to walk or to give up candy; we just wasted our time. And then Paul came along," she added simply, for somehow it was easy to talk to Michael, "and that made me feel older. And then the bad times changed everything, and dad was worried, and we came down here, as much as she missed him. Missing can't think how old I feel! I really feel like a woman, cooking, and deciding things, and hearing mother and dad talk—"

"And holding them all together," Michael added pleasantly as she paused. "I don't know what they'll do without you!"

Letters, telegrams, little presents from Paul arrived almost daily; he wrote as he talked, joyously, irrelevantly, cleverly. Joyce could not but believe that he was thinking of her all the time, referring everything that happened to her; missing her ed lunch in his tidy little shabby her more, he assured her. "Because gosh, you have all the others!" he wrote.

It was hot in the east. He did not like the man with whom he was tutoring; no matter, it would be all right as soon as school opened. Only it was deadly dull now and he could not help thinking of the fun they could have had down on the ranch.

Ben had gone away now to try his luck in Hollywood. Joyce's father was up at five every morning and off for a round of the barns and to milk the cows. She set her alarm for half-past six and was the first of the four women to go noiselessly downstairs and start the long day by starting the kitchen fire.

Whole families moved up into the orchards to pick the Ballards' and the Paarsens' and the Cooleys' prunes. All day long they worked, but in the cold fresh nights phonographs and banjos sounded under the trees and there was singing.

Joyce and Dodo and Ben walked up with their father to Michael's house on Sunday and the girls cookbeen away for a long time, trying domain. That day when they came home late and dusty and happily weary they were met by Sally, mysterious and solemn, who announced that the smart car parked in the yard belonged to Archie Ross and that he and Lissy were walking up by the spring.

"How things happen!" Joyce said in enormous satisfaction. The kitchen was warm and bright and friendly; Dodo began tea preparations; Ben lighted the dining-room stove and the girls spread a fine Italian linen square and set out blue cups that had come from "The Dime" in Merrivale. There must be some hospitable recognition of Archie's return to the fold.

When Archie and Lissy came in both girls welcomed the deserter with friendly dignity; Archie was nervous, but admiring and interested, and Lissy looked lovely. She said little, and even after Archie left was rather silent. That evening Lissy and her father and mother talked long and seriously in the warm dining-room while the younger members of the family, with Michael, who was a great lover of games, played at all sorts of nonsense in the kitchen. Ben had got home only this afternoon. He had been away for a lon gtime, trying his luck in filmland; he had little that was cheering to say of the chances that awaited an unknown and inexperienced beginner in the big movie market, and seemed glad to get home.

"As long as they'll talk in there, we oughtn't to disturb them," Dodo said.

"Are they friends again?"

This was Ben. Dodo shook her head, her eyes round and serious.

"Oh, heavens, no! He just came down to explain."

"You mean he's going on with the marriage to his cousin?" Ben demanded, outraged.

"Oh, yes! He goes back for her in Scotland in December."

"Maybe she won't love him in December as she did in May," Joyce suggested and they all laughed.

Bowlers Dedicate Flag Pole, Plaque To Deceased Members

Honouring their deceased members a memorial dedication was held at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club last evening when a flag pole and bronze plaque were unveiled and the Union Jack run to the masthead for the first time.

Upwards of 75 members of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club were present and assisted in the unveiling and dedication. Fluttering in the evening breeze at the masthead was the Union Jack, while at the bottom of the 45-foot steel flag pole was a bronze plaque upon which was inscribed the names of six former members of the club whose efforts were largely responsible for the success of lawn bowling in Belleville of recent years, but who have died. The names inscribed were those of the late Thos. J. Hurley, F. E. Houston, H. H. Holland, J. F. Houston, W. S. Trask and W. A. Walshe.

President Frank Correll, assisted by Fred Harper, C. J. Symons, Geo. T. Woodley and R. J. Wray conducted the dedication program and spoke of the splendid example the six deceased men had established into the annals of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club. "It was men of the type of our former members here recorded, who made the great game of bowling on the green a pastime for real sportsmen and we today honour their memory," stated President Frank Correll as he unfurled the flag atop the newly dedicated flag pole. Inscribed on the large steel ball that is resting on the very top of the 45-foot flag pole, are the names of the members of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club of 1940, who subscribed to the purchase of the new Bowling Club flag pole, which has been erected in the centre of the club greens.

Following the dedication an evening of delightful bowling was enjoyed by both the ladies and gentlemen members.

52,032 Tons Shipping, British, Allied, Neutral Lost Week of July 14

London, July 23—(CP)—The Admiralty announced today that nine British merchant ships totalling 23,963 tons, four Allied ships totalling 7,335 tons and six neutral ships totalling 20,734 tons were sunk by enemy action in the week ended July 14.

An authoritative source denied German claims to having sunk "an enormous total of merchant shipping" and said the Nazis had "purposely used vague terms" and mixed naval with mercantile losses.

This source recalled a German communique of July 12 which, he said, declared that 4,329,213 tons of "enemy shipping or shipping useful to the enemy" had been sunk since the beginning of the war.

If this claim included British, Allied and neutral ships it was more than 2,000,000 tons in excess of actual losses, the source declared, while if it included only British ships it was nearly four times the true figures.

60 Nazi, British Planes Fight Terrific Battle Over English Town

R.A.F. Fighters More Than Hold Own With Enemy

German Losses During the Day Given at Six Planes, Four of Which Were Bombers — Raids Reach as Far as Wales and Southwest Scotland

SHIPPING ATTACKED

Pilot of One Plane Killed When His Parachute Broke After Bailing Out —Enemy Uses Incendiary Bombs but Only Slight Damage Reported

London, July 24—(CP)— More than 60 German and British planes engaged in a terrific battle over a town on the southeast coast today.

Two German fighters were shot down in the combat, bringing German losses for the day to six planes. Four bombers already had been shot down in raids which reached as far as Wales and southwest Scotland.

More than 100 bombs were dropped by six planes swooping down upon shipping off the southeast coast.

One of the fighters crashed in the middle of a road near some cottages. The other was forced to land in a cornfield.

Striking at shipping off the southeast coast, German bombers were engaged by British fighters and one of the bombers plunged into the sea. The others fled.

The Germans attacked a convoy in the Thames estuary.

While they were bombing the merchant ships, squadrons of the Royal Air Force swooped and the raiders fled toward the coast where watchers saw the British planes dive on them.

The pilot of the plane which nosedived into the street was killed when his parachute broke. The other pilot was seriously injured by machine-gun bullets.

An Air Ministry communique announced "an enemy bomber was shot down early today by anti-aircraft guns near the northwest coast and, in a series of engagements near the southeast coast shortly after mid-day, four enemy aircraft were shot down by our fighters and one by anti-aircraft guns."

One raider dropped high explosive and incendiary bombs on a southwest Scotland area, damaging buildings.

An 86 - year - old woman was wounded in the arm by a machine-gun bullet when a raider flew over a hospital on the outskirts of a northeast England town.

The third raider was brought down in southwest England. One of the crew was killed one wounded and the other two were taken prisoner.

Reports that a bomber was brought down by fighter planes in the night off the southeast coast of Scotland and another downed by anti-aircraft fire off northwest England raised the total to five.

A steamship was attacked by raiders this morning off the southeast coast. Other ships were standing by.

VICE-REGAL FALL TOUR WILL BE RESTRICTED

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Air sciences! Flying sciences have expanded rapidly, due to new applications and greater outlook. Now, there are students of the highways of the air—a new kind of geography. Physicians examine men and women to ascertain their fitness to become pilots, and they also study new ailments peculiar to flying. Agriculture makes use of the airplane to dust the crops against pests. Airplanes are used by geologists and explorers to map the earth indicating all details such as rivers and intricate shorelines. Underwater obstructions and even schools of fishes may be located. Weather science also has been greatly expanded and its usefulness increased.

House in Khartoum Given Haile Selassie

Cairo, July 24—(CP-Rueters) —The British government has placed a house in Khartoum at the disposal of Emperor Haile Selassie. The Emperor had expressed a desire to be near the frontier in order to move in when a suitable occasion arose to lead his people against the Italians.

The approaching rainy season in Abyssinia is likely to be dangerous for the Italians Their military operations will be restricted and with the prospect of liberation and knowledge that their Emperor is close at hand the tribesmen will lose no opportunity of extending the revolt which has already broken out in a number of districts.

EDOUARDDALADIER HELD IN CUSTODY BY PETAIN GOV'T

Former Premier of France, Who Declared War on Germany, 'Marked' for Investigation and Possible Punishment

SEVERAL OTHERS HELD

Vichy, France, July 24—(AP)— Former Premier Edouard Daladier, whose government declared war on Germany last fall, was confined within the city of Marseille today under orders of the new Petain-Laval regime, marked for "investigation" and possible punishment for alleged responsibility for France's entry into the conflict and for her defeat.

Also confined to Marseille pending "investigation" with Daladier were several other former government leaders and members of parliament who arrived at the southern port yesterday from French Morocco, whither they had sailed with Daladier on June 20. This was two days before signing of the French-German armistice but, according to the present government, three days after that armistice was asked for.

The government of Premier Marshal Philippe Petain and Vice-Premier Pierre Laval was described authoritatively as "entering a new and more vigorous phase" of activity and it was added that "punishment will come for those responsible for the war."

POWER OF R.A.F. GAINS STEADILY OVER GERMANS

Germany, it is Estimated, Has Lost Between 4,000 and 5,000 Planes Since War Began

BRITISH PRODUCTION

Reuters News Agency Says Evidence Shows German Air Force Has Not Equalled Work of R.A.F.

London, July 24—(CP)—Experts, digging into records, estimated that in the most active department of the war Britain is gaining on the Germans. They said the Royal Air Force is overhauling its German opponent in strength and estimated Germany has lost between 4,000 and 5,000 aircraft since the war started.

The Royal Air Force is gaining power steadily through more than doubled home production plus increased American deliveries these sources said, although conceding that German mass production probably has raised the Nazis' numerical strength higher than at the outset of hostilities.

Estimates last September placed the German air force of first line warplanes at 5,000 to 8,000, as compared with Britain's 3,000 to 4,000.

Nazi Production Estimated

Reuters news agency said well informed London circles figured German production of planes is being maintained "at around about 1,800 a month" and added:

"That is a figure which Britain may be said today to be rapidly approaching, although she has yet ....to overhaul it"

Authorities admitted that by the end of summer the air battles so

British Troops Published Newspaper In Northern Norway

New York, July 24—(AP)—British troops fighting the Germans in northern Norway had time to publish at least one issue of a newspaper, "The Midnight Sun," it was revealed today when a copy reached here from England.

The paper dated May 18, was the first—and perhaps only—issue and contained news items, okes and soldiers' poetry, as well as a "hello and goodbye" forword from the then British Commander, Maj.-Gen. Pierse Joseph Mackesy.

Apparently Mackesy had been recalled to England or was just then preparing to withdraw his troops and their French and Polish allies.

The Sun was a 4-column, 4-page tabloid edited by Canon J. C. P. Hood. Among its items was one: "Good news! Beer is on the way." A soldier's poem on air raid shelters went:

"I like my cellar cool and dry.
"I like it full of beer....
"I hate my cellar dark and drear,
"I loathe ta air-raid habit,
"I see no reason why a man
"Should immitate a rabbit."

R. A. F. Bombers Score Direct Hits On Submarine Jetty At Tobruk

Four Explosions Follow in Harbor — El Gubbi and El Adem Airdromes Are Attacked

S.A.A.F. ATTACK ENEMY

Cairo, July 24 (AP)—British bombing planes scored direct hits on a jetty at which some submarines were moored in Tobruk Harbor, Italian Libya, on Monday night, the Royal Air Force reported in a communique today.

Four explosions followed, the statement said

The text of the communique follows:

"Bombing aircraft carried out a successful raid on Tobruk Harbor on the night of July 22-23. Direct hits were registered on a submarine jetty, followed several minutes later by four explosions.

"Some submarines were moored at the jetty.

"El Gubbi and El Adem airdromes also were attacked. One of our aircraft is missing.

"A low level bombing attack was made on Umm Hgar airdrome in Italian East Africa and considerable damage was done. During another raid on the Massawa area, one enemy fighter, which attempted to intercept our bombers, crashed. All our aircraft returned home safely.

"Bombers of the South African air force attacked an enemy military formation on the Takabbabuna road, damaging lorries and machine guns.

"Four raids were carried out on the Diredawa airdrome and surrounding buildings, many bombs bursting on the target. One hangar was damaged badly, direct hits also were registered in other buildings. One enemy aircraft on the ground was set afire

"Although many enemy fighters intercepted, all our aircraft returned safely.

"A Sunderland flying boat, during reconnaissance, sighted an enemy convoy consisting of three merchant vessels, three tankers and one destroyer It is believed two merchant vessel were hit and badly damaged."

Straser, Grynszpan Reported Captured By Huns in France

Berlin, July 24.—(AP)—Otto Strasser, exiled foe of Nazism who is charged by the Gestapo with organizing the Munich bomb plot on the life of Hitler, and Herschel Grynszpan, a young Polish Jew who killed a member of the German Embassy staff in Paris, were reported today to have fallen into German hands.

They were said to have been taken in the German conquest of France.

Found in La Sante Prison

A well-informed German source said Grynszpan was found in La Sante prison in Paris, where he had been held pending trial for the 1938 slaying of Ernst Von Rath, a secretary of the German Embassy there.

Grynszpan now is held for trial by German authorities on a charge of murdering Von Rath, this source said. Von Rath was shot November 7, 1938, by Grynszpan, then 17 years old, and died two days later.

Widespread anti-semitic disorders, marked by looting and the burning of synagogues, broke out in Germany as a result of Von Rath's death and Nazis assessed German Jewry $400,000,000 in fines.

The source, describing the taking of Strasser as a "valuable haul", did not give details of his capture.

Strasser was deprived of German citizenship in March, 1934 and thereafter his anti-Nazi Black Front organ, "Deutsche Revolution", appeared secretly in Berlin.

Strasser Anti-Nazi

He carried on anti-Nazi activities from Greece and Switzerland until he was forced to leave and finally took up residence in Paris. In an interview in Paris last November, he declared that Heinrich Himmler, head of German secret police, himself had organized the Munich bomb plot on Hitler's life.

Tight Little Isle's Courage Wins Tributes of New York Press

New York, July 24—(CP)—Great Britain's steadfast courage and resolution in the face of the threatened German attempt to invade and subjugate the tight little isle formed the leading subject of editorial comment in New York's morning newspapers today.

Commending the British attitude, all agreed that Hitler faces the stiffest test of his career and one that may well lead to his downfall. As The News put it: "We still have a hunch that the British have a good chance to beat back Mr. Hitler and hand him his first reverse."

"Words falter," said The Times as it depicted "this unparalleled spectacle of the nation rising, as by a single impulse, to defend this blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England."

Saying in a companion editorial that "nothing could more convincingly demonstrate the determination of the British to throw the last ounce of their strength and fortunes into the defence of their country than the new emergency war budget presented yesterday." The Times concluded its leading article:

"Words falter. There are no phrases for the obscene ambition that attacks, for the magnificent mobilization of a people that defends, unshaken and unafraid. We can only pray that soon the time will come when the vultures no longer defile the British skies and the cry goes out from John O' Greats to Land's End: "Twelve o'clock and all's well!"

The Herald Tribune quoted extensively from Monday's speech by Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, and said the British people "will go forth to battle with a measure of determination which will make the German's task difficult in the extreme."

SALVAGE CREW TRIES TO RELEASE TANKER

Brockville, Ont., July 24.—(CP) — A salvage crew tried today to release the British-American tanker Britamolene from the rocks at the entrance to the head lock of the Cardinal Canal 22 miles east of here, where she ran aground in fog Monday.

The boat, travelling light westbound, went hard aground at the bow in swift water and she was unable to pull clear under her own power. She stuck about 250 feet offshore and it has been impossible so far to get a line aboard. The crew, however, is in no danger.

The attempt is being made by the Pyke Salvage Company of Kingston.

Tass Denies Soviet Suggested Popular Gov't.

Moscow, July 24.—(AP) —Tass Soviet News Agency, said today it was authorized to deny a report which came from authoritative sources in Bucharest that a Russian note had suggested a "popular government" for Rumania.

Tass said the report circulated Sunday, was "devoid of any foundation".

Bucharest informants had said that Rumania received a note from Moscow Saturday expressing a desire for better Russian-Rumanian relations and stressing the belief that a "popular" government could be set up in Rumania.

HUSBAND, WIFE DROWN IN RIVER AT BANCROFT

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Rumleski Victims of Double Fatality Late Tuesday Evening

BODIES RECOVERED

Husband Caught by Undertow Calls for Help and Wife Rushes to Rescue

Bancroft, Ont., July 24 (Special) —A wife's heroic attempt to save her husband from death here last night ended in a double tragedy, when Mr. and Mrs. Tony Rumleski, Bancroft residents, were drowned in the York river shortly after nine o'clock.

Rumleski had gone swimming in the river at the rear of his home on Alice Street and apparently had been drawn beneath the surface of the water by the strong undertow. He called for help, and his wife hearing his cries, threw off her shoes and plunged fully-clad into the water.

Hampered by her clothing, the brave woman made an ineffectual attempt to rescue her husband but was herself overcome by the undercurrent. Both disappeared beneath the surface.

The screams of 12-year-old Teresa, daughter of the couple, attracted the attention of neighbors and an intensive search for the bodies was started under the supervision of Provincial Police Constable S. W. Palmateer. The body of Mrs. Rumleski was recovered at ten o'clock, while that of her husband was found one and one-half hours later about 30 yards from the scene of the tragedy.

The drowned man was a garage mechanic employed with the Department of Highways and formerly lived in Barry's Bay. Surviving are a daughter Teresa and a three year old son, Leonard. Officials stated that no inquest will be held.

MALTA RAIDED EIGHTY TIMES

Civilian Casualties Comparatively Heavy but Little Damage Done to Military Objectives

London, July 24.—(CP)—Italians have raided Malta, big British naval base in the Mediterranean, more than eighty times, inflicting at the start "comparatively heavy" civilian casualties but with little damage to military objectives, military circles said today.

"Now that civilians have learned the art of taking cover, their casualties are greatly lessened", these sources said.

Malta is defended by artillery, infantry, strong anti-aircraft batteries and Royal Air Force fighters.

Italian air losses from anti-aircraft fire are estimated at two planes shot down and four severely damaged. R.A.F. fighters have destroyed 12 Italian raiders and severely damaged nine others.

Oil Commissioner Appoints Deputy To Run Company

Astra-Romane Oil Company Jointly Owned by British and Dutch Interests— Rumania Will Likely Ship Oil to Germany

FLIMSY PRETEXT

Government Order Says Oil Company Seized Because Officials Refused "Information on Production"

Bucharest, July 24—(AP)— The Rumanian government today confiscated the largest British Oil Company in Rumania. The confiscated concern was the Astra-Romane Oil Company, which is jointly owned by British and Dutch interests.

A government order asserted that the concern, a subsidiary of the Royal Dutch Shell, had failed to supply "information on production" as required by Rumanian law

Under the terms of a recent oil decree the Rumanian government now may send the company's production to Germany for use by the Nazi armies.

Since the start of the war the Astra-Romane Company refused steadfastly to ship oil to the Reich.

PERMANENT HUTS FOR ALL MEMBERS OF C.A.S.F. UNITS

Condition Will Exist by End of July According to Army Officials

TAKEN OUT OF TENTS

Ottawa, July 24.— (CP) — All members of the Canadian Active Service Force training in Canada will be housed at their training centres in permanent army huts by the end of the month it was stated today at defence headquarters.

Up to now a large proportion of the force has been under canvas and the change is being made possible by a hurry-up job of hut building by the engineering service which will have completed 802 huts during July with accommodation for 36,732 soldiers. These huts added to those previously built will be sufficient to house the entire force.

Confronted with a shortage of tents sufficient for the C.A.S.F. and the rapidly expanding non-permanent active militia, Brigadier E. J. C. Schmidlin Quarter-Master General co-operating with the munitions department on June 28 wired instructions to the engineering officers in the various military dis-

10,000 Parishes in Britain Mobilized to Provide Scrap Metal

Saving and Salvaging Not Dictated by Poverty of Resources

'DIG FOR VICTORY'

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 24—(CP)—A rag, a bone or an old tin can—all are demanded for Britain's mighty war effort. The country is borrowing a leaf from the dictators' system of economic self-sufficiency.

Here, however, the campaign against the waste by saving and salvaging is not dictated by poverty of resources Britain wants to produce as much food and recover every bit of scrap so valuable shipping space may be reserved for essential war material and foreign exchange be conserved to buy it.

In this country, you don't toss away that silver paper from a pack of cigarettes. The old iron sink or bedstead in some dark basement corner has definite scrap value. A regiment of women called "salvage sallies", has been recruited to tell the housewife what to save.

'Low Heels For Victory'

The "dig for victory" campaign brought results in thousands of vacant lots turned into small gardens and now a "low heel for victory" appeal to women appears destined for success. The higher the heels the greater the amount of wood and leather required. Timber is scarce now in wartime Britain and one timber control official estimated 50,000 tons of wood a year are used for women's shoe heels.

Billboards everywhere are plastered with such signs as "let your shopping help our shipping" and "help win the war on the kitchen front." The idea is for the housewife to cut down on purchases of imported goods and guard against waste

Use of Foodstuffs

The Ministry of food helps her by periodically publishing advertisement on what foodstuffs can serve the desired purpose. An advertisement for potatoes praises their food qualities, notes they are

HUNS' BACK DOOR SEEN AS LIKELY TO DELAY HITLER

Representatives of Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania Invited to Berlin on Friday

By GUY RHOADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Indications were seen today that Hitler's attempt to send an invading force across the English Channel may be delayed further while his diplomats seek to insure that he will have no trouble at Germany's back door.

Germany will play host Friday to representatives of Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania, but to the Rumanians the invitation looked much like that from the spider to the fly.

In return for Germany's "protection," it appeared likely, Rumania would have to surrender Transylvania to Hungary and southern Dobruja to Bulgaria.

That was the situation on the diplomatic front.

On the war front jittery Italian anti-aircraft gunners let loose a shower of metal on their own citizens in Rome, responding to an alarm, apparently false, that British raiders were going over the city. Numerous persons were hurt.

Experts said Britain's sky fleet was being expanded at a rate comparable to that of the Germans, but they explained the British planes and those bought in the United States are of superior quality and more durable.

It is believed the mortality among German pilots and other crew members is considerably above that of the British partly because of rush training methods.

Too Hasty Nazi Training

If the Germans have lost 4,000 planes they probably have lost around 15,000 crew members. This means speeding up training, something the British refuse to do unduly.

It is the British contention that too hasty training is wasteful, as it results in increased accidents and does not produce crews possessing the fighting qualities of those who know their jobs thoroughly.

This argument appears clearly supported by known casualty figures and by the evidence of air tactics.

R.A.F. planes almost always reach their objectives and carry out their mission. The German air force, ever since it started raiding Britain, had adopted hit-and-run tactics, resulting in poor aim and waste of large quantities of ammunition.

De Gaulle Appeals To All Frenchmen To Fight the Nazis

London, July 24.—(CP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the "French National Committee" in London, appealed to Frenchmen everywhere to continue the fight against Germany.

"It is your duty to do so", he declared in a broadcast address last night. "Do not place the orders of a discredited authority before your sacred obligation to fight for the salvation of France".

He said French operations on land and sea would be resumed soon.

British militay leaders watched German operations closely for a hint that Adolf Hitler is about to launch his promised blitzkrieg. Everywhere belief was apparent that the final test of strength may come at any moment.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

HARD TO PROVIDE MEN ACCOMMODATION

Recruits flocking to Belleville from outside points to enlist in the various companies being formed in this city have caused Y.M.C.A. officials to scratch their heads to provide accommodation for the men, who have been accepted with the local companies and are staying in Belleville until their units call them up. Last evening no less than six rooms in the local "Y" were taken up by these lads who come from as far west as Oshawa and other points to enlist and who are now awaiting their call to go into training camps.

Lott surprised this well known Hastings County veteran politician on the occasion of his 85th birthday last evening, when they gathered at his Sidney Township home to signally honour Mr. Lott and celebrate with him his birthday. Many prominent citizens of Belleville and the surrounding district were present to add their good wishes for a long life and generally felicitate the occasion. Mr. Lott was recipient of many beautiful gifts marking the occasion while the evening was spent in general reminiscing and toasts of good fortune to Mr. Lott upon reaching such an advanced age, while still enjoying good health and many friends.

Lone Armed Robber Obtains Dollar in Holdup Near Wicklow

At the point of a revolver a lone armed robber entered Downs' general store at Centreton, nine miles north of Wicklow off Highway No. 2 and was rewarded for his efforts when he obtained a lone dollar bill late last evening, Provincial Police here learned today.

The armed robber entered the store and ordered Mr. Downs to hold up his hands as "this is a stick up," the unmasked man said. Reaching into the store cash drawer the robber withdrew the only paper money inside, one dollar, but left a few cents in silver in his haste.

Provincial Constable L. Mennie, of Cobourg, investigated and was told by Mr. Downs that the robber was about 21 years of age, stood about 5 foot 8 inches and weighed in the neighborhood of 140 pounds. He had black hair and wore black trousers and a faded shirt. The robber escaped under the cover of darkness

FOUR ACCIDENTS ARE REPORTED

William Mack Sustains Lacerations in Crash on Tweed Highway

Four motor accidents occurred in Belleville and district yesterday with considerable property damage resulting in each incident, while only one person sustained personal injuries.

William Mack, 186 Front Street, sustained head lacerations and other minor bruises while a passenger in a motor car driven by Earl Harrow of this city on the Tweed road at Thrasher's Corners shortly after 10.36 p.m. last night.

Harrow was proceeding north and collided head-on with another automobile, which had stopped at the intersection and was driven by Gilbert Dexter of Corbyville. The front of both vehicles were badly damaged and Mack sustained his injuries as the result of the crash. Dexter had stopped his car before driving upon the highway, Provincial Constables D. Adair and Hubbell reported after investigation. Charges are pending.

Mid-afternoon yesterday a head-on collision between two automobiles being driven in opposite directions resulted in considerable damage on the 4th concession of Rawdon. The same two officers investigated and found, that Edgar McKeown and Harry Conley, both of Stirling, were the respective drivers. Here also charges will be preferred following further investigations.

A motor car being driven in a funeral procession on Highway No. 2 a short distance north of Belleville collided into the rear of a truck loaded with scrap iron early yesterday afternoon resulting in considerable damage to the lighter vehicle, which was attempting to pass the ladened truck. The motor car was driven by Maurice Hay of Campbellford, while the truck was being driven into Belleville by Alex Tait, of L'Amable. Sergeant Harry Thompson investigated.

On the Market Square last evening a new Ford sedan, driven by Richard Powell, Toronto, was backed out from the street curb just as a truck, driven by Percy Haines was passing. The rear of the car was damaged to some extent, but as the truck was travelling slowly at the time, the damage was slight, city police reported.

Skilled Mechanics And Farm Labor Urgently Needed

Toronto, July 24.—(CP)—A "serious shortage" in Ontario of farm labor and skilled mechanics was reported today by Labor Minister Normal Hipel who expects to confer tomorrow with Federal authorities at Ottawa regarding this situation.

Several factors were responsible for the shortage and Mr. Hipel mentioned the enlistment of young men from farms and factories. In addition farm crops were both late and heavy this year adding greatly to the need for farm labor.

"I have certain recommendations I will make at Ottawa, but I don't care to speak of them in advance", Mr. Hipel said. He plans to consult with Hon. Norman McLarty, Federal Labor Minister, and officials of the Ottawa Department.

Premier Hepburn and Attorney-General Gordon Conant will accompany Mr. Hipel to the capital where they will discuss home guard problems with the National Defence Department. According to published report here the province is ready to turn over the entire civil guard organization in Ontario to the Federal authorities.

Typhoid Outbreak Not Yet Traced

Toronto, July 24—(CP)—Source of a typhoid outbreak in a Northern Ontario road construction camp near Matheson has not yet been traced, Dr. B. T. McGhie, Deputy Health Minister, said today. An inspector of the Provincial Department is at the scene, continuing investigations while one man is dead of the disease and a second is under observation.

"In this hot weather it is difficult to get men in the bush to be careful," Dr. McGhie said. "They just drink from the nearest water hole. That is why it is so hard to find the possible source of this infection."

The victim was Edward Telford, 29, employed at the Anderson Lake camp of the McNamara Construction Company where 100 men are living. He was taken to hospital July 12 after falling ill and died Monday. A second man, Thomas Gordon, has been in hospital under observation for several days but is reported to be in no danger.

Under orders from Toronto every man in camp is being inoculated by Dr. C. Smylie of Matheson. As additional precaution, all nurses and staff at the small Matheson Hospital have also been inoculated

Reports from the north say officials are also working on the theory the disease originated from a human "carrier" and this angle is being investigated carefully.

(Contributed)

The funeral service of the late Mrs. Annie Wood was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. Jones in Stirling to St. Paul's United Church on Friday afternoon July 12th., conducted by Rev. A. M. Laverty, who spoke with sincere appreciation of her long and devoted Christian life.

Born in Huntingdon Township ninety years ago last November, the daughter of the late Wm. Collins and Mary George, she was the last surviving member of her family. Two sisters, Mary, Mrs. Esau Langman, and Ellen, Mrs. James R. Clarke, passed away many years ago. She was a half-sister of the late Mr. Hector Wood and Mr. John G. Wood, whose death occurred in March last.

Mrs. Wood was married first to Mr. John Arthurs and the many years of their home life in Stirling brought them many warm friendships in their association with the activites of the community and church life. In the Sunday School she was for many years teacher of the young men's Bible Class. Mr. Arthurs died in 1909 and some years later she was married to Mr. Joseph Wood of Ivanhoe where they were faithful and active members of Beulah Church. Hunger Brings Convict to Earth

Atlanta, July 24—(AP)— Hunger and guards' arguments prevailed after 19 hours and brought a 20-year-old convict to earth today from the top of a 100-foot water tower at the federal penitentiary, where he had taken refuge to avoid return to a Georgia prison camp.

Warden J. W. Sanford said Andrew Jackson Wynne apparently suffered nothing worse than sunburn and a fierce appetite from his stay begun at 2.30 p.m. EDT yesterday, continued in the afternoon's 94-degree heat and on through last night until about 9.30 this morning.

Sanford said the prisoner's climb apparently was prompted by the fact that his two-year federal auto theft sentence was ending today and he was to be returned to the Chatham County (Savannah) work camp to complete a four-to-five year burglary sentence interrupted by an escape in 1937.

Wynne ended his defiance voluntarily with a final yell and a few parting blows on the steel tank with a machinist's hammer which he had used to discourage attempts to remove him.

KIWANIANS MEET AT COUNTRY CLUB

Stunt Program Held After Principal Speaker Unable to Attend Luncheon

The first luncheon of the Belleville Kiwanis Club to be held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club for the summer season took place on Tuesday and from the appearance of the boys when they left the luncheon table and the remarks passed about the fine surroundings, the move will be a most acceptable one. A beautiful breeze blew in from the Bay of Quinte and the members in shirt sleeves enjoyed the outing immensely. It was thought that the attendance would fall off but Ross Stiver, chairman of attendance, told the gathering that the attendance for the luncheon was 80 per cent. one of the best in recent weeks. The club will return to their regular place of luncheon in the fall.

It was anticipated that S. W. Fraser, Trade Commissioner of Canada for the British West Indies and British Honduras would be the principal speaker but after arriving in the city earlier on Tuesday, he was called on an important mission elsewhere and had to leave before the luncheon. Jim Barclay, chairman of program, is never stumped and he rigged up a stunt of which the members could stand more. Jim made several members of the club tell the other members how he would run the other fellow's business if he was in charge and then he had two or three members give a thumbnail sketch of their life. Both stunts were very amusing and some decidedly fine ideas given that probably will be incorporated by the other fellow. It was a quick snappy luncheon and it is proposed that the luncheons will be all the same during the terrific hot weather.

Bill Anderson presided at the meeting with Harold Carruthers as song leader and Charlie Richardson as sergeant-at-arms. Congratulations were extended to Harold Carruthers on his recent marriage and the club wished him health and happiness for many years. It was funny but the two recently married members were sitting at the same table, probably comparing notes. Guests from Rosetown, Saskatchewan, Sarnia and other points were welcomed by the club.

Total Orders Placed For Shells Now $57,000,000

Ottawa, July 24 (C)—Total orders placed for shells and for the creation of shell manufacturing facilities in Canada now amount to some $57,000,000, Munitions Minister Howe announced today.

Of this sum approximately $12,000,000 covers cost of equipment and extensions to plants in order to create shell production facilities required.

Six different types of shells are now being manufactured in Canada, the Minister said.

During the past three months, 48 shell contracts have been placed by the department for the manufacture of various sizes of high explosive shells and their components. These orders went to 38 firms. Approximately 80 companies are engaged in the manufacture of shells, cases, and their components.

Aircraftsman Given Rank Flying Officer

The latest edition of the Canada Gazette carries the appointment of Aircraftsman George Bertram McGillivray to the rank of Flying Officer, Royal Canadian Air Force. "Bert" as he is familiarly known to his friends, was a former popular figure in mining circles in this district, and was at one time employed in an executive capacity with the Cordova Mines.

He is a Regina boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McGillivray, of 2176 Lorne Street, in that city. He received his early education in the public schools of Regina, later graduating from Regina Central Collegiate Institute.

Of fine natural physique, Bert indulged in athletics from the time he could toddle. A public and high school football and hockey star, he entered McGill University and for four years was outstanding performer on the intercollegiate hockey and gridiron squads. He captained the ice squad in 1932 and played with such intercollegiate luminaries as Nelson Crutchfield, Jack McGill, Gordon Farquaharson, and the famous McColl twins, stars of the football field.

After graduation he played with the Regina Aces and the noted Kimberley Dynamiters, ultimate world's champions. In 1936 he went to Europe and played with the Brussels, Belgium, team in the International Hockey League. Returning to Canada he coached the Regina Abbotts, junior champions of Saskatchewan.

He entered the mining business and became assistant employment manager at Kimberley, B.C., later coming east to Cordova Mines. When war was declared, Bert entered the R.C.A.F. as aircraftsman, and his remarkable aptitude and ability soon sent him to the front. He took special courses and graduated with honors.

CHEQUE ARTIST BUSY AT TWEED

Several Merchants and Shopkeepers Victimized by Sharper and Warrant for Arrest Issued

Warning was issued today to all merchants of the city and district to be on the lookout for a slick cheque artist, who at present is travelling in the vicinity and victimizing merchants and shopkeepers by the simple expedient of cashing cheques that bear all the earmarks of authenticity.

The gentleman in question has a book of cheques drawn on the Napanee branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. All the cheques drawn thus far have been made payable to one "R. Morgan." They are signed with the name "J. W. Anderson" and in some cases with "W. J. Anderson."

Beneath the signature, the ingenious gent has added a touch of officialdom. He apparently has a toy rubber stamp and he stamps the words "Sect. Treas. S.S. 12", beneath the signature. The cheques are absolutely worthless.

The slick one has a yen for innocent merchants and shopkeepers. Thus far he has victimised several in the Tweed district, and those in other parts of the county are warned to keep a careful lookout for the gentleman in question.

A warrant for his arrest is held by Chief of Police J. C. Hayes, and anyone having any knowledge of the man's whereabouts is requested to communicate with the Tweed official or any police authority.

The amount of the cheques offered for payment is usually '$12.33' and in some cases '$5.53.'

Grocer Fined For Selling Butter Not Up to Grade

Department of Agriculture officials are keeping a close check on the manufacture of dairy butter, it was stated in official circles here today. While there has been little difficulty encountered with producers maintaining the proper standards, occasionally one slips and the result is a conviction.

Department inspectors the other day prosecuted a retail grocer of Carleton Place for selling dairy butter, which contained less than 80 per cent butter fat and more than 16 per cent water. The man was convicted and paid a fine of ten dollars and costs.

Butter standards in this particular district are high and rank with the best in Ontario, one official stated. "But," he added, "there may be a tendency on the part of some producers to relax in their efforts, and anyone manufacturing butter below the required standards will be promptly prosecuted."

PREPARE MORE INSISTENTLY

London, July 24.—(CP Cable)—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the Overseas League today that the answer of the people of the British Commonwealth to the Hitler Peace bid was to prepare more insistently than ever to secure victory.

"The lion doesn't merely go out to defend its young—the cubs come home with great strength to defend the parent", the First Lord said.

U.S. WOMAN AIDS WAR ON DOPE RING

Woman Sees Evil in Narcotic Traffic and Gives Tips to Officers

SEEKS NO REWARD

San Francisco, July 24—(AP)—The full extent of the aid which an attractive, middle-aged American woman gave no-narcotics officers came to light today with an announcement that a breakup appeared imminent in an international smuggling ring, dumping $6,000,000 in illegal drugs into the United States annually.

In making known the scope of the ring's operations, which were disclosed with the arrest of a Japanese here last Saturday, Paul Madden, chief of the California division of narcotics enforcement, estimated narcotics seized in the last four months as a result of the woman's "tips" would have sold illicitly in excess of $600,000.

Madden said the Federal Narcotics and Customs Divisions, with the aid of Japanese authorities, had high hopes of apprehending "six major shippers in Japan who have been dumping an estimated 20 pounds ($500,000 worth) on the Pacific coast each month."

Tips Aid in Arrests

Madden said the woman came to him last Feb. 1 with the information that has led to the arrests and seizures in New York, Seattle, Tacoma and San Francisco.

"She's refined, comely, middle-aged and in wide travelling and observations, has learned to abhor the use and results of narcotics," he said.

"The woman led us—. Give her due credit; we owe her at least the kindness to keep her identity a secret, so that she does not become the victim of the men whose nefarious trade she is ruining."

She is now in Japan, he added.

Unlikely to Claim Rewards

Already, he said, she is entitled to $8,000 in reward money, and eventually probably could obtain up to $15,000, "but she apparently doesn't need it and I don't look for her to present a claim."

Eight persons have been arrested as members of the ring.

Madden described the four months' seizures of 280,000 grains of morphine and 87,000 grains of opium as constituting the largest confiscation from any single "ring" in recent history.

Some of those arrested already have been convicted and sentenced. Charges are pending against others, including Yoshitomo Wada, who pleaded guilty to smuggling after he and 17 pounds of cocaine were seized here last Saturday.

Dionne Quintuplets To Assist Campaign For More Tourist Travel

North Bay, Ont., July 24—(CP—Arrangements were made here today whereby the Dionne quintuplets will give a fillip to a campaign to encourage United States tourists travel in wartime Canada.

From their Callander nursery the quints will broadcast over the National Broadcasting Company network an invitation to U.S. residents to "come up and see them" and to enjoy the delights of other parts of Canada. Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician, will speak as well.

Sgt.-Major Cuthbertson Weds in Britain

Somewhere in England, July 24—(CP)—When Sgt.-Major Graham Cuthbertson, left his home in Victoria, B.C., nearly 10 months ago he expected to see plenty of action in the mud of France and Flanders with his famous Canadian Active Service Force Regiment in the 1st Division.

Fate, however, decreed otherwise. He was transferred to the division headquarter's staff, is now in the forward defensive zone of the home front—and cupid had done the rest.

Cuthbertson married Miss Teresa Jungman, younger daughter of Mrs. Richard Guinness, relative of the wealthy Irish family of brewers. The couple met at an entertainment given for a group of Canadians in the bride's London home.

French Peasants To be Educated to 'Social Importance'

Vichy, France, July 24 (AP) —A campaign to make the peasants France's favorite sons was initiated today by Pierre Caziot, Minister of Agriculture in the Petain government, who said agricultural reconstruction would be accomplished by showing the peasantry their "social importance."

Men of the soil, he declared, must have comfortable, well-lighted, airy homes and their "past impressions" of inferiority in the social scale must be banished.

Wife Sees Trawler Bearing Husband Home Blown Up by Mine

London, July 24—(CP)— Mrs. Tess Johnson waited happily on a quay to greet her husband and son-in-law who were coming home on the naval trawler Campina.

From the shore Mrs. Johnson could see her husband in the wheel-house of the trawler. She smiled at him and waved.

A moment later the craft hit an enemy mine. Johnson and his son-in-law were killed.

The trawler's loss was announced yesterday.

It Costs $2,500 But Swastikas Are Removed From California Store

Whittier, Calif., July 24 —(AP)—At a cost of $2,500 a Whittier business establishment has chiselled out from the front and side of its building 45 large brick swastikas. The crosses were regarded as Indian good-luck symbols when the building was constructed 24 years ago.

HOT WAVE RULES ACROSS ONTARIO WITHOUT CHANGE

Cooler Weather Seen as Possible by Friday Night

FOUR DROWNINGS

(By The Canadian Press)

It is hot throughout Ontario and it is going to remain hot for a day or two, the weatherman at the Dominion Observatory in Toronto says. There may be a change for the better on Friday, likely at night, but in the meantime the best that anyone can hope for is a local thunder shower to ease heat.

The lower lake region, sweltering in temperatures in the eighties is the coolest part of Ontario. Northern Ontario and western areas in the vicinity of London and Windsor are the really hot spots.

Local showers occurred during the night and today in Toronto, Galt, Brantford, Caledonia, Stratford and in certain northern districts around North Bay and Sudbury but they did little to reduce either the heat or the humidity.

Four drownings were reported from various parts of the province as bathing beaches and rivers were thronged with people seeking relief.

Large Barn Struck

At Caledonia a large barn was struck during a storm and the season's crop of hay as well as six pigs were destroyed on the farm of Robert Fleming.

Forest rangers in the North Bay area reported one forest fire after the severe electrical storm. They said about two acres of timber in Shelburne township, Temagami area were ablaze last night and fire fighters would go there by plane today.

The electrical storm disrupted power service throughout the entire Sudbury area for a short period.

Heat Wave Prolonged at Chicago

Chicago, July 24 (AP)—The mercury again nosed toward the top of the thermometer today, dispelling hopes for immediate relief from the most intense and prolonged North American heat wave of the year.

Thundershowers came to the middle Atlantic United States and some other regions yesterday to give temporary respite but abnormally hot weather persisted generally from the Rockies to the eastern seaboard.

The nation counted 68 deaths from heat prostrations and 179 drownings, Pennsylvania led heat deaths with 13, Michigan and Illinois had eight apiece, Minnesota seven, Ohio and Wisconsin six.

Fear For Corn Crops

Nebraska, in its second week of 100 degree weather, feared extensive damage to corn unless rains come quickly.

In the deep south the heat proved beneficial to many crops. Rains and floods caused crop damage in Louisiana, however.

A cloudburst inundated farmlands and caused considerable crop damage in a 25-mile strip in western New York. A violent rain and windstorm broke the heat wave in Washington, D.C., last night. The storm uprooted trees and caused a half-hour power shutdown in the downtown area.

Pierre, S.D., was the hottest spot on the weather map yesterday. The mercury rose to 115 there.

Chicago's 96 was its highest reading of the year. Workers digging Chicago's subway enjoyed 63 degree temperatures.

Sulphide Man Charged at Tweed

Andrew Masterson, Sulphide, was arrested today by Chief of Police J. C. Hayes, Tweed and charged with the theft of a bicycle. According to the police officer, Masterson was found in possession of the wheel which is alleged to have been stolen. He was brought to Hastings County jail and remanded until Thursday when he will be taken to Tweed to face charges.

The Slovak delegation will be headed by President Joseph Tiso.

BRITONS READY TO CUT LUXURIES

Only Criticism is That Budget is Not Stiff Enough

London, July 24—(CP)—Citizens prepared to toss more luxuries overboard and face the highest taxation of their lives.

Only criticism of Sir Kingsley Wood's new budget, calling for taxation of $1,063,550,000 in a year was that it was not stiff enough.

Briton's in moderate circumstances will hand 40 per cent of their pay to the government, pay added taxes for beer, tobacco and amusements, but they were pleased to note expert figures indicating their efforts are becoming effective and that the Royal Air Force's strength is approaching that of the Germans.

The press devoted considerable space to comment on the budget and The Times said it was "another interim budget." "It remains to be seen whether the dose is strong enough to achieve the Chancellor's economic object — diversion of purchasing power away from commodities," the newspaper said.

Registrars Notified To Be Ready For Work on August 19

Ottawa, July 24.—(CP)—Registrars across Canada are being instructed to be ready to take the National Registration on August 19, 20, and 21, Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, deputy minister of the National War Services Department, said today, but these dates are only provisional and will likely be changed.

Mr. Justice Davis said provision was being made so the dates could be changed easily, and that they had been issued to registrars only to get machinery in working order. He expected Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of War Services, would announce definite dates in the House of Commons on Friday.

Questionnaire is Announced Form

Ottawa, July 24.—(CP)— The questionnaire for the National Registration will remain in its announced form, a government source indicated today.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen appealed in the Senate last night that the government simplify the questionnaire but it was learned that most of the forms have been printed and it would not be practical to alter them now.

The questionnaire includes 18 questions for men and 19 for women with numerous subdivisions.

Chinese Guerrillas And Regulars Attack Japanese Forces

Hong Kong, July 24. —(CP)—Chinese guerrilas and regulars fought a pitched battle today with the Japanese forces which a month ago occupied a strip of mainland adjacent to the British colony of Hong Kong.

The Chinese attacked in force at dawn.

Observers on hilltops within British Territory saw the Chinese engage the Japanese force which was estimated at 900 Japanese and 3,000 Chinese mercenaries.

By mid-afternoon, the witnesses said, the superiority of Japanese artillery had forced the attackers to retreat, but the fighting continued 20 miles north of the centre of Hong Kong.

The Japanese forces were those which had moved in and blocked the colony's trade and communication with the interior of China.

BRITAIN PAYS MORE AND MORE TO SAVE LIBERTY

Britain's latest budget reveals the energy and determination the people of the Motherland are putting into the struggle to overthrow Hitlerism and bring back peace to the world with victory over the dark forces of nazism and fascism.

The basic rate on income is to be 42 1-2 per cent of the income and deductions have been reduced. Luxuries are to be taxed. The new sales tax is to be the feature of the first budget of Sir Kingsley Wood.

The cost which the war is taking in wealth and energy and in service of the people is the price of freedom. Victory at all costs and at any sacrifice is the only possible aim of a free nation and empire.

AUSTRALIAN ACHIEVEMENT

It is not to be wondered at that the Australians are proud of the service of their navy. Australia realizes what security means and has enlisted a large number of troops and has built up a fleet which is doing valiant service. She is throwing the full weight of all her resources of manpower and wealth and production into the service of the Commonwealth and of the Empire for Australia like the other Dominions has her life stream within the orbit of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The battle in the Mediterranean the other day was a great occasion for the people of the Antipodes. The Sydney had sunk an Italian warship and it was not forgotten that it was the Sydney's predecessor of the same name which brought an end to the German raider Emden in the first great war.

The event was celebrated in the Southern Dominion with all the zeal of which the loyal people of that country are capable.

Well might they celebrate what is an earnest of the victory that is to come and cement the security of that southern land and of her neighbor New Zealand and of all the other Dominions.

The British Dominions rejoice in the victory which comes to the arms and men of any of these nations of the Empire, for it was a proud day not only for Australia but for the sister Dominions and what Australia has done has cheered the other Dominions as they have cheered her by their loyalty and devotion to the Empire's cause.

INFLUENZA AND OTHER ILLNESSES IN CIVIL SERVICE

Need for a campaign against influenza which accounted for more than 29 per-cent of all incapacity, is stressed in the fifth annual report and statistical study of illness in the Civil Service of Canada, compiled by the Department of Pensions and National Health, covering the year 1938-39.

Prepared by Dr. F. S. Burke, chief of the department's Medical Investigation Division, the survey gives an authoritative report on the influenza epidemic during the winter of 1938-39. It shows that Civil Servants alone lost more than 32,000 work-days due to flu, and that absences from duty on account of the disease were almost twice as numerous as in the preceding year.

Due to the flu epidemic, there was reported an abrupt rise in the number of illnesses and days lost through sickness in the services. Not counting flu, the percentage of days lost was only 1.65 in 1938-39, compared with 1.71 in 1937-38, but, with flu added, sickness-days rose from 7.1 in 1937-38 to 7.6 in the year under review.

Second only to flu as a disabling cause, were accidents. Whereas 21.2 per-cent of all days lost were charged against flu, accidents cost the public service 11.3 per-cent of all days off through llness. In the case of accidents, however, improvement was indicated over the previous year when 12.9 per-cent of the total sickness-days was due to mishaps.

Analysing accidents, Dr. Burke found that they involved 1,214 employees and resulted in a loss of 21,629 working days. Accidental falls were outstanding in the totals and 73 and 15 female civil servants were involved in automobile accidents sufficiently serious to be reflected in the statistics. Employees of the Post Office Department were particularly prone to accident, but it was stated the figure for that department was not out of proportion to other such organizations employing many men in "outside work."

There was noted a substantial reduction in the time lost due to diseases of the nervous system, particularly under the heading of "functional nervous disorders." Dr. Burke attributes this improvement to treatment by experienced psychiatrists. He points out that female employees were three times as subject to nervous conditions as males. Similar observation has been made in previous reports.

Summarized, the survey indicates that 13,397 illnesses of Civil Servants were recorded during the year, including the inevitable "seven per-cent repeaters in the service." The average time lost throughout the entire service was 7.6 days.

Census surveys in recent years indicated that the average Canadian adult loses 5.5 days a year through illness. This figure, however, was believed to indicate only illnesses requiring medical attention, and not to contain odd days lost due to minor illnesses—as does the Civil Service Report, which class of absenteeism raised the total of the Civil Service by 1.7 days a year.

The slight variation of percentage of lost time over the five-year period studied is very interesting to note, and leads to the belief that 2.5 per-cent roughly constitutes an average for the Civil Service of Canada. Any variation in the percentage appears to be almost solely due to the amount of acute infectious disease prevalent in any one fiscal year.

"SHE WAS OUR OWN SHIP"

(Vancouver Province)

She was our own ship, named with a familiar place name that is dear to us all and she was manned with our men. Her commander was known among us, son of an honored citizen of this community. All the provinces of Canada had a share in the service and the honor that are now the memory of the lost Fraser and her lost men. There will be the tears of mothers and wives and sisters and sweethearts in the death of men who were very dear. And there will be pride as well, that the people of the Fraser kept the great sea tradition of the men of our speech and kindred.

Verse

'Good As Gold'

"I have for sale a bunch of accounts
That run from a dollar to larger amounts.
They've been on my books and are getting quite old;
Been running for years — BUT GOOD AS GOLD.

Here's one account made in 'twenty-six
For a load of cement and a pile of bricks. ....
Customer says he can't pay today
But will next year from his crop of hay.
If he does not pay when his hay is sold,
He will some day—SO IT'S GOOD AS GOLD.

Here's another account made in 'twenty-four,
For some millwork, sash, and one screen door.
He died last year and left no estate;
Think I still can get 'it but may have to wait.
He has some relatives, so I am told:
THEY MAY PASS THIS account —BUT IT'S GOOD AS GOLD.

I have two accounts made in 'twenty-five
Neither of these customers now alive.
One killed in an accident with his truck;
The other had sickness and more hard luck.
Although these men have long been cold,
Their accounts are good — YES, GOOD AS GOLD.

Most all my accounts will soon be due;
Have only one that is practically new,
Made in 'twenty-seven on January third.
But they'll all be paid as they gave their word
It would be a darn cold day when they paid their bills.
So, they all will pay—I know they will.
I'm waiting now for the weather to get cold
So they'll come in and pay — THEY'RE AS GOOD AS GOLD.

If you want to invest and take a chance
Of losing your shirt—AND MAYBE YOUR PANTS,
Just make me an offer and you might win
'Cause they're darn good accounts for the shape they're in.

Mr. Roosevelt's Noble Word

(Ottawa Journal)

In the English-speaking world today two men stand supreme as leaders, as forces for right, as masters of human speech. They are Winston Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Churchill is perhaps the greater orator; a master of the naked phrase, with power of terrible irony, and with the sweep of the historian. Roosevelt's is the gift of simple, noble English, with passages that speak of the humanities, which tell of understanding and goodness.

A fine example of Roosevelt's style and at the same time a revelation of the man's mind and character, was his speech of Thursday night accepting a third term nomination for the presidency. In its absence of vanity, in its understanding, in its clear vision of the hour, and above all in its humility, it was a noble, moving utterance.

Telling how after eight years of stress through succeeding waves of upheaval he had hoped for honorable retirement and planned for it, he said:

"These plans, like so many other plans, had been made in a world which now seems as distant as another planet.

"Today, all private plans, all private lives have been repealed by an over-riding public danger.

"In the face of that public danger all those who can be of service to the public have no choice but to offer themselves for service in those capacities for which they may be fitted.

"Those are the reasons why I have had to admit to myself, and now to state to you, that my conscience will not let me turn my back to a call to service."

Gladstone, recalled to the rigors of his Midlothian campaign in his 80th year, said grandly: "Though nature calls aloud for rest, I am buckling on my armor." The same spirit breathed through the words of Franklin Roosevelt. The spirit of the glory of democracy, of the devotion that is challenged by freedom.

And Roosevelt's description of the world we live in was among the most vivid and powerful we have seen.

"We face one of the great choices of history.

"It is not alone a choice of government by the people versus dictatorship.

"It is not alone a choice of freedom versus slavery.

"It is not alone a choice between moving forward or falling back.

"It is all of these rolled into one.

"It is the continuance of civilization as we know it versus the ultimate destruction of all we have held dear—religion against godlessness; the ideal of justice against the practice of force; moral decency versus the firing squad; courage to speak out, and to act, versus the false lullaby of appeasement."

But the finest passage in Roosevelt's speech, the most revealing of the man's great character, was his last.

"If such a draft should be made upon me, I say, in the utmost simplicity, I will, with God's help, continue to serve with the best of my ability and with the fullness of my strength."

Contrast this with the rancor, the tribal hate, the arrogance and insolence of the words of an Adolf Hitler! In that contrast we can see the meaning of this world conflict.

Napoleon And Hitler

(New York Times)

The fact that not since the campaigns of Napoleon have so many European governments been overturned and so many countries seized by a militant dictator as in the present extraordinary chapter of Nazi conquest has led to comparison of the two chapters of history. Except for the military and political domination which ensued on both occasions, however, contrasts are as striking as resemblances. Napoleon's conquests occurred largely where the people of the conquered country were in sympathy with his policies. He freed the Italian states from Austrian tyranny the people of Holland were pro-French in the beginning; the smaller independent states of the Germany as it then was were divided in sympathy. As the price of military victory Napoleon wrested territory from such larger states as Austria and Prussia, but he would usually leave the existing governments to continue functioning.

It is true, he created kingdoms out of some smaller states like Holland and Westphalia, over each of which he placed a brother of his own as ruler. But that was a matter of personal ambition, culminating in the disastrous attempt to install his brother Joseph on the Spanish throne. It is also true that, even in Austria and Prussia, he undertook in matters of policy to cease a hegemony of his own. This kind of domination went so far as, in the later years of his career, to require military service under his own command by citizens of the defeated countries. In his Russian campaign of 1812, the greater part of Napoleon's army of 600,000 was drawn from other countries than France. Even Prussia and Austria contributed 50,000 as the quota imposed on them after their defeat in the field.

Nothing like this has yet been visible in the Nazi campaigns; nevertheless, the Germans have a vastly larger problem on their hands in endeavoring to impose on conquered countries not only political restraint but their own social and economic ideology, which the people of countries like Norway, Denmark and Holland (not to mention France) detest. Napoleon was too wise to do this. Nor did Napoleon make a point of destruction and terrorism of the civilian population, such as was lately visited on Poland. To match the Nazi record in this regard, one must go back to the Thirty Years' War, and even so, one must remember that the particular horrors of that conflict were the work of undisciplined armies, whereas up-to-date "Schreckichkeit" is deliberately planned, threatened and carried out under orders.

Fifth Column Work Accomplished By Nazi Agents Posing As Maids

(Montreal Gazette)

Native Canadians, who for some years have been living in the British Isles or on the Continent and elderly English and Scottish women who have sought haven in the Dominion are arriving in Canada, bringing with them warnings against employing domestics who may pose as refugees from the Nazi regime or of other Europeans whose nationality seems uncertain unless they are absolutely sure that these women are really deserving and that their background leaves no shadow of doubt of their honorable intentions while here.

The reason for this warning, they say, is that much fifth column activity in the countries that have recently come under German domination has been done by domestics. Sometimes a domestic has been employed by a family for many years and holds with that family a position of affection and great trust and yet she has been found to be working hand-in-hand with the German government.

One returning Canadian told the story of an English woman who had had two 'Austrian" domestics in her home for two years. She was living in one of the countries that recently fell to the Germans. Not one member of that family doubted her oft-expressed antagonism to the Nazi regime yet just before that country was to fall, she startled the mistress who overheard her saying to the other maid. "Well, it won't be long before the Nazis get here, and then they'll show them!"

These recent arrivals from the British Isles and Europe say that they have on good authority that it is the policy of the Nazi government to have their spies obtain positions in homes, preferably those where the husband or the sons are holding important positions in the services. Here the maid has ample opportunity to hear the conversation while she is waiting on table, and sometimes she picks up information of military importance.

One woman in England, one of these visitors to Canada reported, who advertised for a domestic and had three Austrian "refugees" from the Nazi regime apply at once. Her husband held an important post in the services.

Another said that she heard on good authority that Nazi agents in France, posing as quite innocuous and Nazi-hating domestics listed the valuable possessions of the family, passed on the information they had procured on the amount of income coming in, as well as keeping their ears open for the tidbits of military information. The listing of the family possessions gave the German conquerors the chance to demand a specific pearl necklace, a diamond bracelet or a mink coat, she said, which the owner might have hidden

Another told the story of a German maid in a recently occupied country who disappeared a few days before the Nazis arrived. That city had strict black-out rules. The family happened to be away but a neighbor noticed a light burning in an upper window. It turned out that before the German maid departed she had turned on the light and pulled up the blind in an upper room. The light served as an excellent guide to German bombers off to raid England.

All who spoke on the topic said that Canadians should not be too confident they were not harboring Nazi spies acting as maids in their homes. These maids were clever, they said, and usually went out of their way to attack the Nazi regime and all it stands for. This attack naturally disarmed the family. Sometimes these maids called themselves Austrian or Czechoslovakian or Swiss, sometimes other nationalities. Every precaution should be taken, they said, in the selection of domestics and all possible done to see that a refugee is really that and not a spy masquerading as a refugee.

Former Premier Reynaud was among those who at Vichy refused, with other deputies, to vote for the new totalitarian constitution with Marshal Petain at its head. Early or Late Operation in Acute Gall Bladder Trouble

We were taught as students that in a case of acute gall bladder trouble it was better to wait until the acute stage passed before operating. This was in line with the common treatment of acute appendicitis because many cases of appendicitis recovered without operation.

Today surgeons are divided in their opinion as to whether operation should be performed immediately or after the acute attack of gall bladder symptoms has subsided. Those who advise delay point out that it is much easier and much safer to remove the gall bladder after the swelling has gone down than when it is swollen from obstruction of the little tube that carries away the bile from the gall bladder.

Apparently the difference of opinion among surgeons is due to what is considered "early" operation. Dr. George H. Stobie, Belleville, Ontario, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal states that many who oppose "early" operation consider cases "early" that have already been ill five days, because the records in large hospitals show that this is the average length of time that these patients have been sick before they entered hospital. And just as five days is considered a "late" case in appendicitis so five days of symptoms is a "late" case in acute gall bladder trouble. It should, therefore, not be considered an "early" case.

As blocking by a stone of the duct carrying the bile from gall bladder to small intestine is the cause of the acute gall bladder symptoms and of the damage done to the gall bladder itself, it would appear that early operation is advisable and the death rate at early operation is much lower than when operation is delayed.

The lesson for us all from the above is that when symptoms of acute gall bladder trouble occur—pain in upper right side of abdomen with rise in pulse and temperature, and tenderness over the gall bladder— the physician should be called in. By watching the pulse and temperature and counting the white corpuscles of the blood, he knows whether or not to send you to hospital. Should operation and hospital treatment be necessary, you will thus be an "early" case.

Adelaide, Australia—(CP)—American "pulp" magazines—"westerns"—have been barred from Australia to conserve exchange, so a big market for exchange of second-hand copies has sprung up.

Channel Islanders

(Hamilton Spectator)

Cruel and tragic was the plight of millions of people in the Low Countries and France when the Nazi hordes drove them from their homes to become wanderers on the roads, but there was nothing else for these hapless victims to do. The red hurricane of death and havoc was raging all about them, and they fled in terror, as was natural they should.

In the Channel Islands the evacuation was made in circumstances that were different, and, if anything, more pathetic—a beautiful pastoral scene had to be left before the mad Hun had touched and despoiled it. To leave one's home when it is no longer a home, but only a pile of wreckage or a flaming ruin, is anguish enough; but to have to flee it while it yet stands intact; while it is still part of oneself, with all those tender and inseparable associations not yet disturbed, is indeed poignant. Such sorrow is wordless and leaves only a heavy, dull grief in the heart.

That is what the people of the Channel Islands had to do. Those of them who have reached these shores tell of how, when Hitler's troops reached the French coast, the word came that the inhabitants of Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney and Sark must leave in a hurry. There was no time for the packing of those possessions dear to one; one person was limited to twenty-eight pounds of personal luggage, personal necessities which were hastily thrust into pillow-cases or small travelling bags. And what, apart from the fewest needs, can one compress into the limits of twenty-eight pounds? Of all the lovely things that may fill one's home, what is one to take in such circumstances? What of one's precious books, that mellow old clock which has ticked away so faithfully all these years, or one's favourite chair? For a woman the situation is much sadder. What of her shelves of fine linen, the china she has gathered over the years, the numerous things of beauty she has fashioned with her own hands? What of the pictures that hang on the walls? All these must be left behind. And so, too, must the dear old home, its friendly trees, its garden and flowers. All these speak with tongues of their own in those last few heartrending moments. All these have entwined themselves about those who have lived with and among them; and now they must part, perhaps for all time. There is a last lingering glance to drink in all this silent loveliness, a stab of grief, a stifled sob—then a dazed trip to the dock and out into a strange world.

Has war ever written a sadder chapter than this

Return of Rob't to Service

(Montreal Gazette)

Robert W. Service, Canadian poet and novelist, whose songs of the Klondike brought publicity to Canada's far north and universal fame to himself, is returning to Canada with his wife and daughter. He has been living in France for many years until driven out by the German attack. He lost his home in Brittany, his villa at Monte Carlo, even his car, which was left on the docks. He confesses that he was practically a recluse in France until caught in the tide of war. Now he is on his way to visit a brother in Vancouver, after which he will settle in Victoria with his wife, a Frenchwoman, and his daughter.

Service says he may be inspired to do some more writing there which is a happy intimation. A native of Preston, England, he came to Canada when in his early twenties. For a time he stayed in Victoria, then went to Vancouver and Kamloops, in which British Columbia town he was excited by the Klondike gold rush, and joined in the procession to the Yukon. He worked in a bank at White Horse, but found time amid the hurly-burly to write his songs and ballads of the Yukon, not to mention a novel, "The Trail of '98". These songs were after the style of Kipling and reflected the sterner aspects of life in the Klondike. Some of them were dramatic to a degree, became material for Hollywood movies, in fact. When the world war came in 1914, Service joined the Canadian Army Medical Corps and served through the conflict. His experiences impelled him to write his "Rhymes of a Red Cross Man", several of which reflect present conditions. One, "Young Fellow My Lad" has a good recruiting swing:

"Where are you going, young fellow my lad,
On this glittering morn of May?"
"I'm going to join the colors, dad;
They're looking for men, they say."

Another of the rhymes is equally appropriate, and that is "Carry On", which contains the lines:

It's easy to fight when everything's right,
And you're mad with the thrill and the glory;
It's easy to cheer when victory's near . . .

This poem of encouragement then proceeds with the lines:

It's a different song when everything's wrong,
When you're feeling infernally mortal;
When it's ten against one, and hope there is none,
Back up, little soldier, and chortle.

These rhymes were written in 1916 when the outlook for Britain was no less ominous, apparently, than it is today. Yet Britain and her dominions and colonies and Allies "carried on" till victory came after two more years of trial and struggle. They are even more determined now than then.

Miss Lois McAdam sang a patriotic number "There'll Always be an England". The accompanists for the program were Mrs. Percy Hubble and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver.

Mrs. Cyrus Summers gave a chapter from the study book "Shera of the Punjab". The offering was gathered by Misses Joan Johnson and Gracey Dunham and the envelopes amounted to about $3.00 for the W. M. S. and the loose collection $1.53 for the Mission Band and this was dedicated to the missionary cause. Mrs. Arthur Phillips and Mrs. Ross Hoard tendered the Mission Band and their leader a vote of thanks for their splendid programme.

The guests then repaired to the church lawn where sandwiches, cookies and lemonade were served and the youngsters enjoyed a social half hour. The Mission Band leader thanked the W. M. S. for hospitality. Among the guests was Mrs. Herb Smith and daughter, Eleanor Ann, also Miss Mae Sarles of Minto and the Misses Moran, Frankford.

CAMPBELLFORD MAN SAVED FROM DROWNING

Mr. A. Scanlan, 40-year-old resident of Campbellford, is alive today because Mrs. Herbert Prike, also of Campbellford, saw him fall into the Trent Canal Tuesday afternoon and had the presence of mind to act promptly in securing aid.

Scanlan was walking along the Canal wall and lost his balance, toppling into the canal. Mrs. Prike saw the mishap occur and telephoned the police who found Scanlan floating with the top of his head just floating above the water. He was only a few feet from the wall and police had little trouble in pulling him ashore.

Scanlan had been in the water about six minutes but after sixty minutes he responded to the resuscitation efforts of the police and Dr. Stuart, coroner for the district, with other residents, who also assisted.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up-and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Stagecoach War"

A huge herd of horses makes a horse lover's delight of Clarence E. Mulford's "Stagecoach War", latest of the "Hopalong" Cassidy outdoor adventure stories, which opens at the Capitol theatre next.

The horses are mainly mustangs, rounded up expressly for the production from the open range country of Idaho. There are also six blooded Morgans who do a chore as stagecoach tooling in one of the most exciting stagecoach races ever filmed.

The cast is headed by William Boyd as "Hopalong," with Russell Hayden, Britt Wood, Harvey Stephens, Julie Carter and "The King's Men" in strong supporting roles.

"Danger Flight"

Men who know about flying are responsible for Monogram's "Danger Flight," the second feature on the same program as "Stagecoach War".

Authenticity is the key-note of all the Tailspin Tommy pictures, of which "Danger Flight" is the fourth. In the first place, John Trent, star of the film, is a former transport pilot, with over 2000 flying hours.

Hal Forrest, who draws the Tailspin Tommy cartoon strip, upon which the entire series is based, is a World War ace, and Edwin C. Parsons, who co-authored the screenplay, was a member of the famous wartime LaFayette Escadrille. Parsons has written several books on his flying experiences during the last war.

Practical lessons in flying are incorporated into "Danger Flight," as well as thrills and excitement. It is the story of a boy who helped save many lives because he learned about planes and flying from constructing model airplanes.

Besides Trent, the cast includes Milburn Stone as Skeeter, Marjorie Reynolds as Betty Lou, Jason Robards, Tommy Baker, Julius Tannen and Dennis Moore.

To complete the bill is the second chapter of the new serial "Buck Rogers" and Canadian Universal news events.

AT THE BELLE

"The Ghost Breakers"

If advance reports can be credited, Paramount's new mystery thriller, "The Ghost Breakers," which again co-stars that incomparable team of Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard, and heads the new all-fun show at the Belle Theatre, now playing, transcends even its vastly popular predecessor, "The Cat and the Canary," in high entertainment values. The story tells of Paulette inheriting a castle on an island off Cuba, and the machinations of as desperate a set of villains as could be imagined, who try to prevent her for visiting her estate, and scare her into selling it. Bob Hope as a radio commentator who is always exposing underworld characters in their rackets, is catapulted into the picture, and goes to Cuba with Paulette. Starting with a murder and several other exciting and strange happenings on Paulette's floor in her hotel, the thrills continue aboard ship where more threats and warnings are received, and someone tries to kill Paulette—but Bob saves her. In the horrible, haunted castle—guarded by a weird old woman and her Zombie son—sliding panels, floating wraiths, mysterious moans and noises, provide a spine-tingling atmosphere building up to sensational climax that will come as a complete surprise to all who see the picture. Produced by Arthur Hornblow and directed by George Marshall, "The Ghost Breakers," features Richard Carlson, Paul Lukas, Anthony Quinn and Willie Best.

In addition to the above laugh crammed romantic comedy feature, more fun and entertainment are added with the exhibition of "Andy Clyde Gets Spring Chicken" and Blue Barron and his orchestra in a smart musical revue.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breafist and ma said to pop, Nora is off today, Willyum, so I wish you'd suggest something light and trivial for dinner, and for goodness sakes dont say liver and onions.

Naturelly not, we just had liver and onions not a week ago, or was that a month ago? pop said, and ma said, It was the day before yestiddy, if you're intristed in the exact time element.

O well, it's out of the question anyway, though I dont say he wouldn't like it, naturelly, pop said, and ma said, Who on earth are you talking about and in what connection?

Why, Herb Lewis, pop said, I was going to bring him up for dinner tonight, and although he's not fussy by any means, still liver and onions is a family dish and perhaps we ought to have something a little more gaudy, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum didn't I just get through telling you that the whole weight of the kitchen is on my shoulders today? This is no day for a guest, of all days, she said.

Well, I sort of owe it to old Lewis, I really dont see how I can get out of it, pop said. I'm not looking fairward to it with any great pleasure, believe me. Herb will proberly drag me out to the fights or some place after dinner and I'd much prefer making myself comfortable with my cigar and the newspaper. By gollies I almost wish now that we were having liver and onions tonight after all, because then I wouldn't have the nerve to bring him home, pop said and ma said, Then let me assure you if you bring him to this house that's exactly what will greet his eyes and nostrils in person.

Well in that case I'll have to put him off with some trumped up story, I suppose, pop said. I'll call you up later to make sure you haven't relented, because I hate to dissapoint old Lewis, he said.

And he left for his office looking like somebody feeling worse instead of better.

WEDDINGS

WHYTE—JOHNSON

St. George's Anglican church, Trenton, was the scene of a wedding on Saturday when Thelma Viola Johnson of Charles St., Trenton, daughter of Mrs. H. C. Johnson, became the bride of William David Whyte, son of Mrs. S. Whyte. Rev. Mr. Robinson officiated and Miss Dorothy Gaina played the wedding music. During the signing of the register Miss Nora McLellan sang. Standards of ferns and summer flowers decorated the church.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Maynard Johnson, and wore a gown of white taffeta made with full skirt, and sweetheart neckline. Her full-length veil fell from a halo of seed pearls and orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of roses, bouvardia and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids, Miss Minerva Whyte of Ottawa, sister of the groom, and Miss Ruby McCracken of Brighton, were gowned alike in princess frocks of orchid sheer over taffeta. They wore small matching flower hats and carried bouquets of roses. The flower girl, Carol Card cousin of the bride, wore a quaint frock of daffodil yellow taffeta made on princess lines with a wreath of matching flowers in her hair. She carried a nosegay of sweetpeas.

George Williamson of Toronto, was best man. The ushers were Kenneth Humpage of Toronto and V. P. Carswell of Trenton.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. Mrs. Johnson received wearing a gown of hyacinth blue sheer over taffeta with matching hat and corsage of roses. The groom's mother, who also received, was in delphinium blue printed sheer over taffeta with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of sweetpeas.

The couple left on a trip to Halifax, N.S., the bride travelling in a Queen Elizabeth blue redingote ensemble with white accessories. They will reside in Trenton.

Feet Betray Your Standing

Your feet — the way you hold them when you are sitting, the way you look when you walk and what you wear on them—tell the world more about your age and what sort of person you are than your coiffure or the most carefully applied makeup.

Shoes can be comfortable without being so sensible-looking that they detract from the charm of dress or suit above them. Wear low-heeled shoes by all means if you like, but see that they are smart, trim low-heeled shoes—not squat, dumpy ones. To wear with your best silk dresses, for occasions where no walking is required, have at least one pair with slightly higher heels and a not-so-sensible last.

Watch the stocking situation. It's a good idea to wear not-so-sheer ones for sports and during working hours, of course, but every woman needs filmy ones for dancing and dress-up occasions. They make ankles and legs seem younger as well as slimmer.

You put yourself in the I'm-too-old-to-care class the moment you think the time it takes to keep legs free from superfluous hair is time wasted. You just aren't at your perfectly groomed best unless your legs are smooth and free from hair.

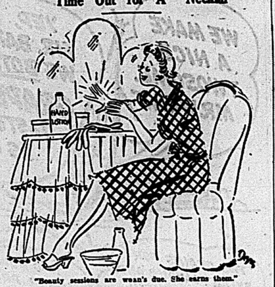
Time Out for A "Neckial"



"Beauty sessions are woman's due. She earns them."

By HELEN FOLLETT

Old pop Time is never meaner than when he grabs a woman by the neck and squeezes lines in it. The best way to thwart the old gent with the long white whiskers is to look after the health, keep the circulatory system on the gallop, get plenty of sleep and not harbor worry bugs. Sounds easy but it isn't—not always. Women don't think first of themselves; they think of their families, and some families demand a great deal of time, work and attention.

Beauty sessions are woman's due; she earns them. If she can spare a little time before packing her tired bones into bed, she should give herself a neckial as well as a five-minute facial. By using creams lavishly she can keep the surface smooth and by manipulation she can exercise the fibres and make them strong. It is when fibres go blooey and tissues soften that fiddle strings appear. Also necklace lines.

Up and Down

The proper movement is an up and down stroking from collar bones to chin. The sides of the neck must be included and, because necks are weather beaten by wind and sun, the back should get a good creamy drubbing.

Cold compresses are effective for toning tissues. Wring a small towel out of ice cold water, wrap around the neck, cover with a dry towel. Soon the flesh will be steaming hot, showing that the blood streams are dancing 'round.

Please lady, don't thin your eyebrows down to half a dozen marching fuzzers. That's old stuff. We are through with the masklike face, we're going to be sweet and human once again.

Some of the busy tweezers have discovered that there's not much material to tweeze. Having been yanked out by the roots for y'ars and y'ars the little shafts have gone off and died. If this has been your experience, friction the eyebrows with warm mineral oil. You want to save what you have left. You may need them.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Will you please write something about strict parents and how unfair they are to their daughters? I'm 16 years old and have been going out with a charming boy for the past five months. We are fellow-students in high school and care a good deal for each other.

"The other night we went to a movie and this boy suggested that we go to a club in a nearby town to dance. We danced, not realizing how fast the time slipped by, and did not come home until two o'clock.

"Mother and father were both sitting up, straight as broomsticks in the living-room, waiting for me. And did I get it! Everything short of spanking, and I was told never to see this boy again. I don't want to go to college, as my parents have planned for me. I want to get married and have a home of my own.

"Lots of girls in our class think nothing of staying out until two o'clock, and this was only the first time I ever did it and got talked to something awful. Please write something good and strong about strict parents.

"Florrie".

If you follow this column, my dear girl, I think you will realize I have frequently urged parents not to be too strict with their daughters. But like your mother and father, I think two a.m. is a pretty late hour for a girl of sixteen to stay out. And please don't get the impression that Miss Sweet Sixteen, staying out until two a.m., is on a short cut to marriage and a home of her own.

As the boy with whom you spent the evening is a fellow-student in high school, and you say nothing about graduation, each of you may still be in school for a couple of years. This young man will then have to prepare himself for a profession or trade. From the present time until then, it's probable he may have a number of girls, some of whom he will be able to persuade to remain out till two o'clock; the others, the kind a boy finally marries, he'll take home at a reasonable time, if they're not going to a party.

Not long ago, a scientific study was made of a very important fact, "When and where do men propose?" About one-fourth, it was discovered popped the question "in girl's homes". Another 25 per cent proposed in automobiles. But, to speak in the vernacular, "these did not take", that is, the proposal went no further and never resulted in marriage.

Another 25 per cent proposed during summer vacations, and the remainder in various places— on hikes, looking in shop windows, at exhibition rooms of furnished cottages, sitting on park benches, even buying supplies for the chafing dish supper.

Home is the best background for the genuine proposal which results in matrimony. The gay philanderer drops his phoney lovemaking when he discovers that a girl has a real home, background, parents— and don't forget the big brother. If my 16-year-old correspondent were to marry now and have this home of her own, she would probably bitterly resent the responsibilities of marriage in a year or two.

If a home is the aim and ambition of her life, she'd be off to a good start by learning now how to keep one going. She should take a course in domestic science which will teach her how to buy and how to make the best use of what she buys. A course in home decoration is advisable.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Radio Program Presents a Study in Mannerliness

In addition to its other delightful and informative qualities, "Information, Please" is a masterpiece in manner. My deep salutations to Mr. Clifton Fadiman, master of ceremonies, and to Mr. Milton Cross, master of announcing; for their apparent determination to pay proper attention to every detail of courtesy.

First, notice the dignified and proper use of names. Mr. Cross establishes this formality by his initial announcement: "Mr. Clifton Fairman, literary editor of The New Yorker magazine . . . Mr. Fadiman".

Then, throughout the program, Mr. Fadiman addresses the announcer, the experts and the guests with the same correctness: "Mr. Milton Cross" or "Mr. Cross", "Mr. Kieran", "Mr. Adams", "Mr' Levant". What a refreshing difference from the forced chumminess of other programes, such as "Take it, Bill", or "Folks, this is Jim Blank", or "Yes, Gabe". . Certainly "Information, Please has proved that it can be popular without stooping to the use of nicknames - or other inappropriately intimate names. Of course we have no doubt that the members of the cast of "Information, Please" call each other by their first names —— they are off the air, but they have the sound taste to use the title with the name while they are in the air. Surely this amenity detracts not a whit from the humor of friendliness of their entertaining half-hour!

Notice, too, Mr. Fadiman's ready use of "Thank you", followed by the name and often by some enthusiastic comment, when someone gives the correct answer "Thank you, Mr. Tunney. That was well answered".

Similarly the master of ceremonies voices his appreciation and hospitality to the evening's guest of honor: "We are grateful to you for coming this evening, Mr. Morley. We hope you'll consent to be with us again soon".

Mr. Fadiman also knows and abides by the rules that a widow should be addressed by her formal name. So, the other evening, he announced "Mrs. Martin Johnson" —not "Mrs. Osa Johnson", an incorrect form we hear over and over again on the radio.

Every other title is also given correctly: for example, "The Honorable Alfred E. Smith".

A study in politeness, too, is Mr. Fadiman's use of the word "gentlemen": "Now, gentlemen, here's a difficult question" . . . "Thank you very much, gentlemen" . . . "Very good, gentlemen". And, when there is a woman guest, Mr. Fadiman prefaces the first question with, for example, "Mrs. Pratt, and gentlemen, here is our first question".

This sound sense of good form and good taste is all very pleasing and is an ideal of mannerliness that has both charm and propriety. The program sets an example that could profitably be studied and followed by other radio programs.

Courtesy Tip

If you are offered a drink or a cigarette, and for any reason you do not wish to accept the offer, don't feel that you must make elaborate explanations. Don't be priggish or self-conscious. A gracious "No, thank you" is enough.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Saint's Double Trouble."

Leaping from the action-drenched pages of fiction's most amazing series of crime-adventure melodramas, the Saint, a dashing debonaire but deadly killer, opens next at the McCarthy Theatre in the most exciting screen story of his colorful career—"The Saint's Double Trouble."

Fourth in the highly popular series of films based on the novels by Leslie Charteris, the current drama again presents George Sanders as Simon Templar, known as The Saint, whose one-man crusade against crime violates the tenets of man-made laws.

Featured with Sanders are such fine players as Helene Whitney, Jonathan Hale, Bela Lugosi, Donald MacBride, John F. Hamilton and Thomas Ross. In addition to portraying the leading role, Sanders is also cast as a dangerous jewel thief who so resembled the lone wolf that he uses the amazing likeness to cloak his ruthless criminal activities.

When The Saint is falsely blamed for a murder committed by the gem smuggler, he boldly kidnaps Inspector Fernack, takes him to the scene of the crime and tries to show him proof that he is innocent. His efforts failing, the elusive Saint is obliged to effect an escape, with the parting threat that he will solve the mystery for the police within forty-eight hours.

From this point the elusive avenger pursues a dangerous trail marked by three killings. He tracks the smuggler leader to his waterfront den, poses as the gem thief himself, but is captured when the criminal foils his scheme. His miraculous escape, the capture of his sweetheart, her thrilling rescue by The Saint, and a legion of other nerve-gripping experiences follow in rapid-fire succession.

An unusual twist is seen in the trap the audacious Saint lays which brings about the police capture of the gangster who is mistaken for him. By a bold ruse he then helps his arch enemy escape from prison only to see him brought down in a hail of police bullets—just as he had planned!

Advance reports indicate that "The Saint's Double Trouble" is the most exciting film in the popular series, which already numbers "The Saint in New York," "The Saint Strikes Back" and "The Saint in London."

Charles Starrett

The cowboy star, Charles Starrett in "Spoilers of the Range" is also to be presented at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to "The Saint's Double Trouble" and two fine short subjects, "Dreams On Ice," a clever cartoon in technicolor and "Stars of Tomorrow," an interesting baseball sports subject.

There's Need For Playmates, Kindergartens

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

With fewer playmates among "privileged children" the need by them of kindergartens grows as also grows this need for under-privileged children. So my wife points out under the title "The Growing Need of Playmates." to quote:

"At the present rate, there'll be more lonely adults tomorrow than there were yesterday. Day by day there are fewer children and more grown-ups in our population; also more one-child families and more families with no children at all. Children of a given neighborhood, especially in the better economic areas, are having fewer playmates of their own age. They must spend more time with older children and adults.

Lonesome Children

"Now the child who lives almost exclusively with adults, even though he be understood and treated with sympathy and consideration, cannot have the opportunities to grow broadly and to learn to get along happily with the people who will be adults when he will be.

"Any person learns best to get along with others and to enjoy them, who has grown with others, constantly mingled with others—who has played with other three-year-olds when he was three, other five-year-olds when he was five, other eight-year-olds when he was eight, and so on. If, on the other hand, he has lacked the day-by-day companionship of his contemporaries, he has missed such lessons at social adaptation.

"How can he be expected then to make up these arrears? How can he be expected to show up well with others at eighteen or at thirty in the light of these earlier lags and losses?

Ideal Playmates

"No parent or adult can be an ideal playmate for the growing child. Even a child much older or much younger cannot be.

"We grown-ups may aid the young child in learning a few play skills useful to him in fun with others of his age. But for him to gain full value from these skills he must exercise them with other children about the same age he is. We can, of course, set the stage so he will have adequate materials and will have the opportunity to have normal playmates. . . .

"In the light of the foregoing we see a growing need of public kindergartens in order to afford playmates for these young children who rarely or never have playmates at home or in the home neighborhood. As we all know, of course, the strongest argument for kindergartens at public expense has been the care and protection and guidance of the child in the congested and underprivileged areas and for the help kindergarten may afford the working mother and the contribution to her home standards and home life.

Defeat Loneliness

"This reason for kindergartens is as strong as it has ever been. In addition to this reason for public kindergartens is the rapidly growing need for providing kindergartens (therefore playmates) for children in the residential areas where most families are small and children and playmates are few."

SWIFT-MOVING events on this day, with things progressing at lively tension, possibly in the launching of new and rather important projects. The creative energies will be under fine impetus for accomplishing definite and exalted ambitions, moderated by application, sound judgment and practical restraints, although impelled to rather dynamic impetuosity which might prove detrimental.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and exciting time, with much stirring over new projects or ambitions of a highly skillful and constructive quality. The energies are quickened to fine initiative, with these in prestige and standing cooperative.

A child born on this day should have splendid creative talents and energies with high ambitions and practical incentives, even though optimistic, with expansive and large visioned ideals.

HALLOWAY W. M. S.

The July meeting of the Halloway Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. G. H. Rose on Wednesday afternoon, July 17.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. E. Snider, who gave the Call to Worship. A poem on "Faith", was read by Miss Bessie McMullen and the Roll Call was answered with the key word "Faith". There were twelve in attendance and the offering amounted to 2.80. Plans were completed for the Red Cross social Tuesday night. Readings were given by Mrs. Ed. Emerson and Mrs. Coleman Townsend. Mrs. Wm. Cadman read an interesting story bringing out the duties of a community friendship secretary. Mrs. Don Rose favored with a piano solo and Mrs. G. H. Rose gave a selection "The Ten Commandments of Good Will". A hymn and prayer by Mrs. Snider closed the meeting. A lovely lunch was served on the lawn by the hostess.

Take Instant Measures to Prevent Infection When Child Scrapes Skin

However careful you are to watch your children at camp this summer, they are bound to suffer falls, minor cuts and bruises. Although these accidents may seem small at the time, if proper attention isn't given to these cuts and abrasions, complications may set in that make them serious.

In the summer you are usually away from your doctor; often you are away from any medical attention at all. Caring for these injuries devolves upon the mother or father or some member of the family. For this reason it is important that supplies be taken along on the holiday to take care of these emergencies.

First-aid kits are sold in all drug stores, and most of them are quite complete. If you feel you don't want to spend much money, then remember to bring along some iodine, rolls of bandages, sterile gauze and adhesive tape. These articles are about all you'll need.

A bruise is the least injury your child might get. This injury is painful, if severe, and it may be a bit unsightly, but unless it is unusually severe, there's no need to worry about it. If it happens to be on a knee or elbow or other joint cold compresses should be applied to reduce swelling.

If, however, in the course of getting the bruise, the child has scraped off the skin, then the injury should be attended to immediately. In the first place, infection can enter the area once the skin is broken; secondly, if every speck of dirt isn't cleaned out before the new skin heals, a permanent disfiguring mark may be left.

I knew a young girl whose great worry was a nasty, black scar on the calf of her leg. As a child, she scraped her leg in cinders, and the wound was bound up and allowed to heal without sufficient cleaning. The result was an irregular black scar that shows up unmistakably through the sheer silk stockings women wear today.

Don't worry if the cleaning process hurts the child a little. There may be cries and squirming but you will be wise if you make absolutely sure that the wound is clean. After cleansing apply iodine to the part, and then cover it with a dry bandage and leave it until it is healed.

Ordinary cuts can be treated in this same way. It must be remembered to be thorough in cleaning the wound. If the cut is deep, then a doctor should be consulted. The reason for this is that cuts often become contaminated by contact with the ground and there is danger of tetanus. As I have said, cleansing and the application of iodine is effective, but it is difficult for anyone but a doctor to cleanse a deep cut properly.

Another reason for calling a doctor is that in the case of a deep cut, he will be able to fix it up so the healing won't leave a scar. A few stitches by a doctor can often make the difference between a bad disfigurement and a perfect healing.

Dr. Gibbs Takes A Lesson From Ol' Man River

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● "WHAT A wonderful view!" exclaimed by old friend Dr. Adrian Gibbs to a downcast and surly-looking man who sat in his office "I selected this room on account of it.

"There it is basking in the beauty of the early summer day. That curving stretch of water in the valley is one of the greatest rivers in the world. My friend, it is longer and more tortuous and more important even than your intestinal tract. And it seems to be enjoying itself more than your intestines. True-sometimes it gets stopped or clogged up a little in the spring, just like your intestines, when it brings down all the debris of winter from the mountains and the plains. But it doesn't worry about it. It just lets things alone and by and by it breaks through those obstructions, goes mightily on its way to the sea—to become one with eternity.

"You and I are doing that, my friend. Long before we were, and long after we are gone, that river will be gathering far back in the mountains and flowing down to merge itself in the ocean. And it has such a good time while it's doing it! I think there is a lesson in that. It goes on lustily without regard to gossip or rumor or discouraging advice, even, as I say, when there is a little interruption in its steady flow. Why don't you do that — enjoy yourself a little while you're here?

"Lift Your Eyes"

"Then there's another thing about that view. See those hills over there. Fine hills! 'I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills.' Lift them up: not cast them towards your miserable belly.

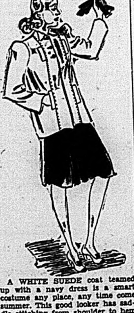
"See that animal over yonder outlined against the sky? I use that occasionally as an illustration for my medical students. They are always thinking of the unusual diagnosis to hang on a patient. Just as you have been. You've thought of having cancer, and then someone told you about lymphoma of the intestines and you've been worrying about that, and several other fancy suggestions have popped in your head from reading or overhearing your neighbors talk about what the doctor said to Bill at the clinic.

"Now you know the unusual things in this world fortunately are in the minority. You take that animal over there silhouetted against the sky. Must be five miles away. Can just barely see him move. You know it's alive all right, it's an animal but you can't distinguish details. Now suppose somebody asked you what it was. Would you say, 'It's a Royal Bengal Tiger'? Course it might be — escaped from a circus. But the chances are it is just a plain Missouri mule.

"Now that applies to your trouble. You have thought of its being everything except the common thing which is what it most certainly is. Your bowels haven't got cancer—they simply lack ambition. And that's your fault because instead of sending them pep messages over the telegraph system of your nerves, you are constantly sending them discouragements. You keep wiring them, 'You're no good. What's the use of trying?'

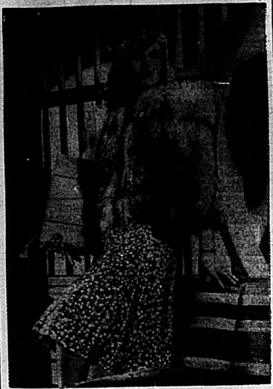
"Well, I guess that's all for today, my friend. If you needed any medicine I would give it to you."

White and Navy Winning Colors



A WHITE SUEDE coat teamed up with a navy dress is a smart costume any place, any time come summer. This good looker has saddle stitching from shoulder to hem in back and on either side of the front closing. Four slit pockets from there. Tiny pointed collar above three navy buttons. The blue skirt is slim with narrow inverted box pleats front and back. Nice with a sweater or a blouse.

A Fashion Favorite



By ALICE ALDEN

THE FUR jacket has become an integral part of the wardrobe and it is in vogue the year round. A gal chooses a jacket of red fox, or beige fox, or one of the beautiful grayed platina shades and builds her color scheme about it. Just now, the platina dyed fox jacket makes a perfect tie-up with the delicate floral prints that bloom in summer. This picture will give some idea of a sustained color scheme created around a fur jacket. The fur is platina dyed fox, mounted to show the beautiful shadings of the fur.

The paper taffeta frock is gray blue with a delicate pastel flower print. The pancake beret is of blue lace straw braid with navy blue. Bag and pumps pick up the flower shades of light beige, which together with silver gray tones make the floral print of the frock.

"Safety First" in Baby's Food

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

● IN THIS column today I have in mind especially the baby in congested city areas, the baby in rural places, and the baby who goes travelling.

Just because hot weather may increase digestive disturbance and intestinal troubles in babies and young children, the mother can afford to take special precautions.

Especially in rural places, the baby's drinking water should be boiled. It won't hurt him if the water is not cold.

Fruit and vegetables are safer when cooked, though cooking might destroy some of their vitamins. Anyway, we can be sure the fruit and vegetables are well washed; this also to remove poisons left by spraying.

Boil Baby's Milk

In city or country, a safe way is to boil the baby's milk. H. Kent Tenney, Jr., M. D., associate Professor of Pediatrics, University of Wisconsin Medical School, advises (in "Let's Talk About Your Baby"):

"About continuing the use of boiled milk: I believe it is a good plan to keep it up until the baby is about two years old. It is more easily digested and much safer than raw milk. Pasteurization probably makes the milk perfectly safe but does not affect its digestibility. The fear of the constipating effect of boiled milk would not influence my opinion even if it were true. And anyhow, a bit of constipation is a much safer thing to have around the house than a tendency to diarrhea.

"The very common use of boiled milk in the treatment of diarrhea is for the purpose of preventing the entrance of tough curds into an already irritated bowel and not for an specific constipation effect."

Concerning diarrhea, Dr. Tenney says:

"In line with this question of dietary restrictions, I want to say a few words about diarrhea, which, in spite of our efforts, is still a large contributor in infant mortality and morbidity. As I have told you before, diarrhea is a very untrustworthy neighbor to have around, and the younger the child the more treacherous it is. In other words, the potential dangers of a diarrhea at one year are far greater than at four years. Now, while there are many types and causes of diarrhea, and it is not worth while for you to learn all about them, still there are some things you should know so that if your child develops the condition you can make some dietary changes.

Watch Diet

"Regardless of the type of diarrhea, it is wise to reduce to a minimum the fat, sugar, and roughage in the diet. This can be readily done by using skimmed, thoroughly boiled milk, and omitting sugar, cereals and vegetables. This addition of a teaspoonful or so of unsweetened chocolate to the boiling milk is frequently effective, as is also the use of some of the protein powders such as Mead's Casec.

"But the really important thing to do is to replace the fluid that is being lost, by giving plenty of water. I told you a few minutes ago that when the baby had fever you could give him any kind of fruit juice, but in the case of diarrhea it is best to stick to plain water or very weak tea, as fruits are somewhat laxative.

"If his diarrhea is complicated by vomiting, the necessity for fluids is even greater. Here you must start with minute quantities, building up gradually as he demonstrates his ability to retain them. When it comes to the treatment of the type of vomiting that is not complicated by diarrhea, the system is much the same in regard to quantities, but here we use much sweetened fruit juice or at times just plain sugar."

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Our two-year-old child has the annoying habit of bumping his head against the head of the bed. My husband thinks she should be spanked for it.

A. My wife's husband agrees with him. Be on hand always when she is likely to engage in this head-bumping. Then bare her bottom and give her a few smacks. Permit no exceptions. Head-bumping and crib-shaking are nuisances which can and ought to be corrected early. Pain, intelligently applied, does the trick.

"I Spy"

By JANET GOFF

NEXT TIME I see a fashion technicolor film scened out-of-doors I'm going to look appreciative. Director Vyvyan Donner recently took models and crew miles from New York, to have the benefit of a little country church as background for a wedding, only to have it pour day after day. As one member of the crew put it, all hands returned after having shot the bankroll but not the film.

Given her own way in re-decorating her office, a business woman I know had one wall splashed in lemon, another in terra cotta and the other two in a slightly bluish-white, an altogether cool-looking interior. She also gave ivy a start in window boxes, training it on ordinary wire coat hangers.

GIVE YOUR ROAST AN EXTRA FLAVOUR

this new way

A FAMOUS Montreal cook sent us this tip on roasting. She advises mixing a tablespoonful of H. P. Sauce into about a cupful of water and suggests pouring this mixture into the bottom of the roast pan and using it to baste the meat occasionally while it is roasting. This cook tells us that this plan greatly improves the flavour of both roast and gravy.

For fried steaks, broiled meats, chops, hamburg steaks and other foods, including fish and fowl, add a little H. P. when serving. Thick, fruity H. P. Sauce brings out hidden flavour in foods. Try it with your next meal. A small amount is all that is needed to add a distinctly enjoyable and appetizing flavour.

All Set For A Dark Dress

By ALICE ALDEN

IT'S TIME for a tonic for that jaded summer wardrobe. Just about now, we notice that our little dark sheers, while still perfectly good, look rather wilted. What to do? The answer is, that we rush into our favorite shops and ask to look at neckwear.

We buy a few sets and then we're all set to give sheers another whirl until the autumn fashions crystalize.

Here is a beautiful collar and cuff set calculated to do things for any dark dress. The finest organdie, tucked and embellished with exquisite cutout embroidered and edged with Valenciennes lace. The exquisite dinner hat is a white felt tricorne with a black Chantilly lace veil.

Simplicity In A Casserole

A CASSEROLE dish always simplifies meal getting, and if you don't approve of eating sausage in the "good old summertime," you can substitute other chopped meat—beef, lamb or veal. The larger green apples would be very good used in the Russian apple dessert.

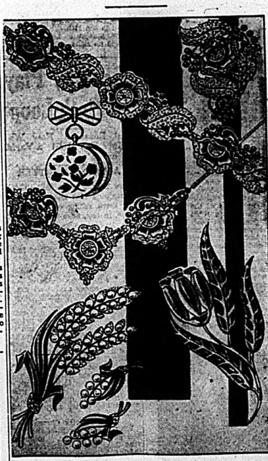
FLORAL ARRANGEMENTS



By PRUNELLA WOOD

IF YOU can get near the costume jewelry counters these days, you'll find such pieces as today's attracting most attention. Diamonds can't do much more for a gown than the set of pin, necklace and bracelet, top. Exquisite in detail and yet not gaudy, the flower is in shaded rose enamel nestling in rhinestones and fake ruby cabochons. Each blossom is hinged, permitting it to look full blown or be partially closed.

Between necklace and bracelet is sketched a watch-locket, a steal from the past. It holds two miniatures inside the enamel case with floral design. A pin money purchase.

Lily spray, bottom left hand corner, and matching earrings, combine pearls with rhinestones and enamelled leaves. Don't forget, when purchasing earrings, to suit them to your lobes as well as to your features. Some lobes won't accommodate some decorations.

Lower right hand corner, an enamelled tulip pin in shaded rose with aquamarine and ruby stones in the stamen. Silver edges the green leaves.

Shawls Are on Top

By ALICE ALDEN

THE MORE modern the gal, the more she likes to dip into the old family album for her fashion fads. Along with sailor hats, plumes, lockets, cameos and such, here's the good old shawl.

Maggy Rouff started it with her suit shawl and now it's shawls for everything, even for beach things. Yes, America has taken up the shawl and interpreted it for her own life. And these days, there's many an embroidered shawl being filched from the piano to serve as an evening wrap!

Here is a charming little shawl, ideal for summer roof, in town, or clubs in the country. It is in a charming bow-knot triangular version in a light weight wool knit with a deep self fringe. The color is wisteria, which makes it especially lovely with white.

Keeping Cool With Curtains

By ALICE DENHOFF

MANY homemakers realize that the best way to make a bedroom look cool, dainty and restful during the hot weather is to anchor clouds of colorful crisp curtains at the windows.

The newest curtains, taking a tip from lingerie fashions, are made of lovely transparent cottons — marquisettes, dotted nets, and crease-resistant voiles. This year, many smart new styles in glass curtains carry labels guaranteeing that shrinkage will never spoil their perfect fit.

These serviceable modern finishes put an end to the uneven hems and skimpy widths that used to be a trial to homemakers who liked their curtains spic and span. Nowadays, you can buy glass curtains that will fit almost every size window since the lengths come in three or more measurements.

Contrasting Colors

One pretty new style of curtain for summer is made of lovely fine voile with generous fullness and with eyelet embroidery flounces in a Victorian daisy pattern. These curtains come in snowy white, in flattering petal pink, in cool, shadowy blues or in cheerful, sunny daffodil yellow. One curtain in this new style has flounces as varied as the trimmings of this season's dresses. There are wide flounces which have contrasting colored pipings, solid embroidery in cherry patterns and applied motifs finished with fagotting.

Dressing table skirts and bed spreads are also shown to match the curtains, so that with no trouble at all you may have a neat, well groomed looking room with a carefully planned color scheme.

Summer decorating is more fun, too, when you are able to plan it in a jiffy with the knowledge that it costs very little and yet is thoroughly practical.

Stuffed Halibut Can Be A Tasty Change for You

By BETSY NEWMAN

WE USUALLY broil or fry halibut steaks, cooking them plain, dipped in flour or cornmeal or in a batter, but stuffed halibut is a nice change for the hearty main dish of a dinner. Don't serve potatoes with this, as a green vegetable and salad are enough unless the family is one which must have its potatoes. There are such, you know.

Today's Menu
Stuffed Halibut Steak
Buttered Beets Perfection Salad
Frozen Custard
Sour Cream Cookies
Coffee, Iced or Hot

• •

Stuffed Halibut Steak

2 thick slices halibut steak	1 tablespoon melted butter
6 thin slices salt pork	1 tablespoon chopped onion (optional)
1 cup fine bread crumbs
Salt, pepper

Remove bones from fish, wash and dry it. Lay one slice on a buttered baking pan. Mix bread crumbs with melted butter, onion, salt and pepper. Lay this dressing on top of the fish and put other slice on top. Cover with salt pork and bake in 375-degree oven 40 minutes. Serve with white sauce containing little chopped parsley.

• •

Perfection Salad

1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 1 cup boiling water, ¼ cup mild vinegar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ¼ cup sugar, ½ cup finely chopped cabbage, 1 cup finely cut celery, 1 pimento or green pepper, ½teaspoon salt

Soften gelatin in cold water, add boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved, then add sugar, vinegar, lemon juice and salt. When gelatin is dissolved, strain and when mixture begins to thicken add vegetables. Turn into mold which has first been dipped into cold water, and chill. Cut into slices or blocks and serve on lettuce or endive. Multiply these ingredients by 4 if you want a salad that will serve 25 people. For a delicious fruit salad use a combination of fruits instead of vegetables.

• •

Frozen Custard

1 egg, ¼ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, grated rind of lemon, 1 small can (2-3 cup) chilled evaporated milk or fresh cream

Beat egg, add sugar. Whip evaporated milk or cream very stiff, fold lemon juice and rind in and add to sugar mixture, folding latter in lightly. Pour at once into cold freezing tray. This makes 1 pint.

• •

Sour Cream Cookies

1 cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup sour cream or milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 eggs, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 5 or 6 cups flour to make a soft dough

Put butter in mixing bowl one-half hour before you make cookies to warm to room temperature, cream. Add sugar gradually, creaming thoroughly, then add beaten eggs. Sift flour, sift again with baking soda and nutmeg, and add to first mixture alternately with cream. Roll out and bake in 375 degree oven until brown.

• •

Cream Cheese Cookies

½ cup butter, 1 pkg. cream cheese, 2 cups flour, Filling, ½ cup hot water, ½ cup sugar, 1 cup dates or raisins cut fine, 8 marshmallows, quartered

Cream butter and cheese together thoroughly, add flour. Let chill in refrigerator over night. Roll out very thin and cut into 3-inch squares. Combine filling ingredients, put in pan over slow heat and cook slowly until thickened. Cool. Put spoonful of filling in center of each square and fold over. Bake 15 minutes at 400 F.

Household Hints

Water rings on varnished furniture often can be removed by rubbing them with a cloth dipped in camphor. Work quickly and wipe dry with a clean soft cloth. Rub with furniture polish applied on a soft cloth.

Never discard empty sugar and flour bags. Use them for various purposes, but one special use you will find very convenient. Use them as refrigerator containers for lettuce and other fresh vegetables.

Shell 'Oilers' Secure Edge In Intermediate 'A' Playoffs By Defeating Corbys by 6-4

Errors Figure Prominently in the Score With Corbys Being the Worst Offenders

NICE HURLING DUEL

Both Harris and Bawden Allowed Eight Hits With Bawden Whiffing Seven

Chalk up errors as the primary reason the Corbys A.C. dropped the first game of the Belleville intermediate O.A.S.A. playdowns to the Shell "Oilers" at Coleman Flats last evening, when the Bawden-led golden-sweatered Shell team scored their initial three runs as the direct result of Cory errors and then went on to win by a 6 to 4 score. The second game of the series will be played at the Flats this evening.

Con Harris and Johnnie Bawden hooked up in as tidy a pitchers' tussle as has been seen in local softball circles this season with each hurler allowing but eight hits. Harris was given air-tight protection in the outer garden, but his inner works teammates booted the ball for five miscues, each one counting materially into four of the Oilers' six runs. Bawden whiffed seven to Harris' one, but walked four as Harris passed only Sero via the four ball route.

Corbys Open Score

Corbys welcomed Bawden to score two in the first after J. Barriage walked, Simpson was safe on a fielder's choice and they both scored on Reid's timely double. Corbys left two in scoring position in the sixth, as Bawden was bearing down, but they scored two more to pull within one counter of the Oilers in the eighth, when Simpson and Moon singled and scored on St. Louis' mighty triple. Shell scored two in the third, Rowbotham getting a hit after Reynolds was safe on C. Barriage's error. Three successive Corby errors sent these two base runners across the plate with runs. Cole singled and scored on Amo's double in the fourth. Rowbotham and Bawden singled in the fifth as the Oilers scored two more as the result of two subsequent Corby errors. Sero singled and Cole doubled to cinch the game for the Oilers in the bottom half of the eighth.

Cy Barriage with three hits in five tries led the batters on the attack for Corbys, while Alfie Rowbotham and Art Cole were the only Oilers to get more than a single safe hit off Harris. J. Barriage and Amo, the opposing left fielders supplied the fielding sensations.

Peterborough Pair Take Bowling Honors At Western Tourney

London, Ont., July 24 —(CP)— Peterborough and Chatham rinks won main awards in the Western Ontario Bowling Association Tournament here which closed last night. The singles competition, scheduled for today, was cancelled through lack of entries.

The Liberty doubles was won last night by the Peterborough pair of J. Harrison and C. Renaud with four wins plus 30. P. Smith and J. McRae of Windsor finished second with three wins plus 38 and third place went to C. Snelgrove and J. McDougall of the London Rowing Club with three wins plus 25.

Earlier yesterday, the Free Press trophy was captured by a Chatham quartette composed of R. Rankin, P. Gilbert, W. Hanley and C. Merrilees. The Free Press competition was finished yesterday because of rain Monday night which soaked the greens of the London Rowing Club.

The Chatham rink finished with four wins plus 36. J. S. McDougall's London Rowing Club rink, defeated by Merrilees in the fourth game 16-9, was second with three plus 19 and C. R. Hillier's London Thistles were third with three plus 17.

At the annual meeting of the Association it was decided to carry on the annual competition on the London Rowing Club greens. The tourney will be arranged at the call of the president. All officers were re-elected with E. W. Lick of Woodstock remaining as president.

CORBINS ENTER PLAYOFFS 31-14 WIN OVER METS.

Sudden Death Game Played at Armouries Proves Just a Workout for Winners

TO MEET ZELLERS

Mollie Anderson Holds the Losers to Ten Hits Which Included a Homer by Cook

Scoring runs in every innings but the seventh, "Corbins" piled up a cricket score against the "Mets" on the Armouries lawn last evening in a sudden death game to determine which team would enter the playdowns in the Belleville Ladies' Softball League, they cuffed the offerings of two "Mets" pitchers to all corners of the lot to win 31-14. As a result the "Corbins" will enter a playoff series with the "Zellers" with the first game to be played tonight at the Armouries.

A ten-run scoring splurge in the third inning gave the "Corbins" lassies a lead which they never relinquished and they put the game beyond all doubt when in the next inning they crossed the plate six times, while they kept their opponents off the score sheet.

Molly Anderson pitched for the winners, holding the "Mets" lassies to ten hits, including a homer by Edith Cook with two aboard in the third, which put her team momentarily in the lead. E. Hall started for the losers on the mound but a barrage of hits in the third caused her replacement by Jean Muir who held the opposition in check until a batch of errors on the part of her teammates mounted the score against her team.

Ruby Mercer in right for the losers played well defensively, taking several fly balls that appeared labelled for hits. "Corbin" fielders came nobly to the support of their pitcher on several occasions with sparkling plays in the field.

Sylvia Reddick led the winners at the plate, getting three triples, a double and a single for her effort, while O. Wilson came a close second, with D. Blake and Betty Marsh and Nora Archer hitting for the circuit.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, July 24—(AP)—It has been 35 years since a major league pitcher has averaged as many strike-outs as Bobby Feller, slightly more than eight a game. . . . Can't say Mickey Heath didn't go down squawking on his last day as Milwaukee manager. Pinch hitting in a close game, he said such awful things about a third strike they chased him right out of the orchard. . . . Jack Dempsey has given old Bronko Nagurski ideas and he may try another year of football with Chicago Bears.

Today's guest star:

Banjo Smith, Columbia (S.C.) record: "I guess the old world is still on its feet as long as they can get $4,000,000 for a ball club hitting: Dahgren .247; Gordon .254; Henrich .244; Dickey .222; Crosetti .189; Rolfe .248; Keller .290; Selkirk .307 and DiMaggio .317.

Jack Kearns is lining up a series of barnstorming bouts through the southwest for Patrick Edward Comiskey, the young heavyweight who may be the man to knock out Joe Louis. . . . The Dodgers and Reds had a sell-out yesterday, but Larry MacPhail, who is always building for the future, made 'em make room for 5,000 young knot-holers. . . . Most of the lads will be good, paying customers in a few years. . . . Mike Jacobs made one of the smartest moves of his career when he named Nat Rogers to succeed Johnny Attell as match-maker for the 20th Century Sporting Club.

BRINGS FIVE HOME

Shown here is Irving Anderson, veteran ockey under contract to Jock Whitney, who rode five winners in seven chances at Empire City race track, July 17th. He scored on Madly in the second, Cuckoo-Man in the third, Counterglow in the fifth. Scrooge in the sixth and Mariagna in the seventh. He also rode Peep Show into third money. Abbott's Maid, which ran fifth in the first race failed to finish in the money.

ROCHESTER WINGS WIN TWIN BILL FROM THE CHIEFS

Widen Breach Between Selves and Bears Who Divide Doubleheader With Leafs

GIANTS IN TIE

Jersey City Splits Twin Bill With Royals While Bisons and Orioles Are Idle

(By the Associated Press)

Rochester Red Wings, international league pace-setters, lapse once in a while just like any other club in the circuit, but the difference between the Wings and the rest of the league lies in the speed with which they recover themselves and recoup their losses.

After dropping four straight between last Friday and Monday the Wings came back to take the next three engagements.

A clean sweep of last night's doubleheader with Syracuse enabled the Wings to widen the breach which separates them from second place Newark. The Bears split a twin-bill with Toronto.

Four home runs, two in each game, gave Rochester the margin of victory each time. Harry Davis and George Kurowski connected with a homer apiece in the opener, which Rochester won 5-2, and George Fallon and Bill Rabe each hit for the circuit to help the Wings to a 4-2 victory in the nightcap.

Squeeze Play Wins

Newark Bears dropped the seven-inning twilight game, 5-4, to the Leafs but came back with a 6-4 triumph under the lights. A squeeze bunt by Mickey Dejonghe in the final inning of the short game scored Bob Latshaw with the winning run. Johnny Pezzulo, who pitched the last two innings, received credit for the win. George Barley was raked for 12 hits in the second game but managed to keep them well enough scattered to chalk up his 11th victory of the season.

An even break in their doubleheader with Montreal allowed Jersey City Giants to climb back into a tie for fourth place with Baltimore Orioles, who were idle.

Bob Porter, Jersey City jinx of long standing, registered his fourth straight victory of the season over the J's, beating them 5-4 in the first game. Hugh East, Little Giant starter, gave up eight hits and all five Montreal runs and was charged with the loss, his fourth of the year.

Bill Harris, veteran Jersey City right hander, won the second game with a five-hitter, to beat Wayne Lamaster 2-1. Lamaster was as stingy with basehits as Harris, but the Jerseys bunched three of them in the third for both their runs.

A doubleheader between Buffalo and Baltimore was rained out.

Cincinnati Reds 'Good As In' After Winning Doubleheader From Closest Rivals, Brooklyn

Flurry of Fisticuffs in First Game Brings Suspension to Frey and Coscarart

YANKS ARE BEATEN

St. Louis Browns Knock Champions Off 9-5 While Senators Tame Tigers 6-3

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cincinnati Reds are at the stage sometimes called "as good as in" in the National League pennant fuss.

They took all the fight out of the fighting Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday in a doubledecker triumph that put them seven full games on top of the pile.

The Dodgers, who have had some sort of a run-in with about every club in the league except the tail-end Phillies and Boston Bees this year, erupted again in the 11-inning first game with a flurry of fisticuffs centering around Pete Coscarart of Brooklyn and Lonny Frey of Cincinnati.

But this time the greatest modern exponents of "fighting baseball" were up against something they couldn't lick. After Coscarart and Frey had been thumbed off the field, the Reds worked out a 4-3 victory in that game and then delivered a crushing 9-2 blow in the nightcap.

Although the Reds were 10 games in front on this date a year ago, they are in better shape now than then. A year ago they had won 53 games and lost 30—and had played only 11 of their 22 scheduled games with the troublesome St. Louis Cardinals.

Today the Reds have won 57 games, lost only 25 and have buttoned up Brooklyn to the satisfaction of everybody except the Dodgers. They have won 10 out of 17 games with the Dodgers, assured themselves of taking their second straight series, and after tonight's tussle will have but four more games to play with Brooklyn.

Secondary Hurlers Used

They triumphed yesterday with their "secondary" pitchers —Gene Thompson, Joe Beggs and Whitey Moore. Tonight they were ready to fire a real broadside with Bucky Walters, who has won 14 games, including five since his last defeat.

Thompson was spiked in the shuffle yesterday and had to withdraw in the eighth inning with the score tied. Beggs held the Dodgers scoreless for four frames and his mates won out with a double and a single in the 11th.

The American League puzzle showed no signs of solving itself. the pace-making Detroit Tigers were tamed 6-3 by Washington Senators, who outhit their foes 14-7 more than enough to offset home runs by Dick Bartell and Rudy York.

At night Al Milnar and Cleveland Indians shut out Philadelphia Athletics 1-0 to cut the gap between first and second places to half a game. It was the 13th victory for the Tribe's southpaw star, whose six-hit hurling was matched by Johnny Babich of the A's.

The other "contenders" were pushed farther into the background. The Chicago White Sox edged out Boston Red Sox 8-7 with Moose Solters going on a tear. He hit a home run, a double and two singles to drive in five runs and scored the winning counter himself.

New York Yankees folded 9-5 in a night game at St. Louis as Walt Judnich, whom the Yankees sold to the Browns last spring, hit two home runs. Ten of the game's 14 runs were tallied in the first two innings.

Carl Hubbell mastered Pittsburgh Pirates again under lights, doling out five hits as New York Giants won 9-1. His room mate, Mel Ott, hit a homer and two singles to bat in five runs and Burgess Whitehead hit five singles in five turns at bat as the Giants chipped 17 hits off three pitchers.

Rookie Ken Raffensberger scattered eight hits to lead Chicago Cubs to a 6-1 conquest of the Bees and the Cardinals cut loose a 14-hit attack against the Phillies to triumph 7-3.

Bonura, Player Waived Out Of Both Loops, Still in Majors

First Baseman Now With Cubs Has Had a Varied Career

ALWAYS A HITTER

New York, July 24 (AP)—There's no stopping that Zeke Bonura, he just keeps rolling on, waive after waive. In fact, Zeke is probably the only player to be waived out of both major leagues in one season, and still be in the majors.

The word "majors" is used in the common sense. From Zeke's uncommon sense standpoint the Cubs, the latest club to acquire the friendly first baseman who waves at every ball that comes near him, are in the minors. He'll probably have to do some long and short wave explaining to convince his new teammates he never referred to the National as a minor league, and besides, he was only kidding, anyway.

Zeke continues to be one of baseball's most unusual pieces of bric-a-bric. Time after time when it appeared that nobody wanted him as a gift and that he most certainly was about to dip to the minors, he has bobbed up on some club which was fresh out of first basemen, and was willing to try anything, even Zeke Bonura.

Zeke Refutes Charges

When Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox gave up on him, intimating that Zeke was a fifth column in the infield, Zeke pointed to his very good fielding average to refute charges he couldn't stop a clock with a hammer.

When Bill Terry gave up on him and tried to peddle him to any club for a small down payment, Zeke calmly asked for a raise, and held out long, and to a small extent, successfully, against a sharp salary cut.

Zeke always has been a power hitter. He knocked in more runs than any other Giant last year, and if he also hit into more double plays that wasn't his fault. He wouldn't have done it if there hadn't been someone on base.

It's always been his fielding, or alleged lack of it, that has been the despair of managers, and oddly enough his fielding average consistently has compared favorably with that of the best of them. Only once has it dropped below .990. He made only 11 errors in 1,295 chances last year.

Perhaps one of the most regrettable happenings in modern annals of sport is Jack Dempsey's alleged attempt at a comeback. Started as a gag, Dempsey's ring return is about the silliest development in sports since the golden age of the early 20's. Originally Jack may have launched his first fight at Atlanta as a lark, but the "screwball deal" proved quite a lucrative movement and may have prompted the Manassa Mauler to capitalize on his former popularity, but such capitalization is false and cannot survive. In a couple of brawls, that in no way resembled a boxing contest, Dempsey pushed over a couple of fourth-rate wrestling palookas, who perhaps never saw a pair of boxing gloves before. However, now we find Dempsey challenging Arturo Godoy, the Chilean heavy, although we believe the shrewd Al Weill, manager of Godoy, is the father of that thought. Actually if this bout comes to pass don't be surprised if Dempsey drops from sheer exhaustion along about the fourth round.

Actually Dempsey is 45 years of age right now and is not in as good physical condition as he would have you believe. It is not at all improbable that two punk wrestlers to have fallen before Dempsey this month, were nothing short of push-overs and set-ups. No doubt Dempsey's initial return to the ring was a gag to drum up business for his New York restaurant, but the returns were so prolific at Atlanta, that the lure of easy cash might have proven too great for even Dempsey. It would appear as though Dempsey and his backers, one Promoter Jim Downing, have stooped into the low brackets of wrestling and therefore it is safe in assuming that none of these Dempsey set-ups are going to spoil the goose that's laying the golden eggs. It is too bad that a man, who is regarded by many as the greatest heavyweight that ever lived, should suddenly find himself up to his neck in the cheap wrestling racket, something that must be contagious and which Dempsey may have contracted while refereeing these grunt and groan exhibitions.

Judging from last night's 31 to 14 beating the Corbin "lockmakers" gave the Mets, there wasn't much use having played the game at all, but in fairness to the Met. girls Manager Barney Smith showed good sportsmanship and agreed to gamble everything on last night's game. "It wasn't a gamble, I knew my girls could win," remarked Smith, but only after his nine had a substantial lead. Yesterday we criticized the executive of the ladies' loop in ordering last night's game, but it seems this was unfair criticism, especially towards General Chairman Ted Schawb, who had nothing to do with the mutual arrangements between the coaches. Schawb has laboured long and hard in the interests of local girls' softball and only today obtained permission to play the remainder of the league's games at the East Belleville playgrounds, as tonight's first league play-off between Vikings and the K-nines will be the last game played this season at the armouries.

The Shell "Oilers" can consider themselves lucky and thank the Corby's infield for winning the first game of the local intermediate play-offs 6-4 last night. Gerald Barriage's inner works collapsed on several occasions to boot the ball for five errors, all of which were directly accountable for four of the Oilers' six runs. Both Harris and Bawden were rather stingy with their hits, each allowing but eight, but Bawden had the Corby batters going after bad balls in the clutches and as the old ball saying goes — it's hard enough to hit good ones, without going after the bad ones." Personalities cropped up on several occasions to prove the boys are really serious in this series, which continues tonight at the Flats, while the Uptowns go to Point Anne for a city league semi-final. In all probability Eddie Schrieder will hurl for the Oilers tonight, while Lum Carson may pitch for Corbys, and a merry old battle can be looked for.

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club now boasts of a fine 45-foot steel flag pole, which along with a bronze plaque bearing the names of six deceased members of the club, was dedicated on Monday evening before 75 club members. The flag pole was donated as the result of private club subscriptions, but we understand that Fred Harper was the prime factor behind the gesture. Incidentally the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club is to be the scene of the zone finals for District No. 16 on Monday next when the district rinks, doubles and singles will all be played here. Game Chairman Cliff Argue tells us that teams from Kingston, Stirling, Madoc, Tweed, Deseronto and Belleville will compete, with the winners advancing to the district finals and hence into the provincial lawn bowling championships.

Over 40,000 rabid Brooklyn baseball fans jammed Ebbetts Field to see their beloved Dodgers drop two to the Cincinnati Reds yesterday. Although the Dodgers out-hit the Red Stockings in the first tilt, they also out-errored 'em, which accounted for their 4-3 loss. It was the largest crowd ever to wintness a ball game in Flatbush, but a sorrowful one as the Dodgers are now seven games behind the league leading Reds.

Sport Spice — Remember "Whizzer" White, the all-American halfback who came out of the west to star with the Pittsburg pros in 1938?....He paid $15,000 income tax on his football earnings that year, but today is back waiting on table at the University of Colorado, where he commenced his rise to heights...."The Whizzer" is taking a summer course at that seat of learning before entering Yale Law School this fall ....Rememer old Peter Maher, one of the last of the old bare knuckle fighters and who battled John L. Sullivan and Peter Jackson on memerable occasions?.... Well, Peter Maher at 71 years of age, took the final count yesterday in Baltimore.

PERMANENT HUTS

tricts to begin construction of huts on a scale unprecedented in Canada.

Large Substantial Buildings

The huts are large substantial buildings, generally 120 feet long and 24 feet wide and 17 feet high to the top of the pitched roof. When construction started in the various camps on July 1, the kitchens and ablution huts were already built but the soldiers were in tents.

It takes 1,000,000 feet of lumber to build huts sufficient to house a battalion of 1,000 of all ranks. To provide accommodation for 36,732, exclusive of kitchens, will use up during this month somewhat more than 30,000,000 feet of lumber.

"We are combing the country for suitable lumber", said an official today. "We shall have to transport considerable from British Columbia when we start a later program to provide winter quarters for the active militia".

As a result of the order of June 28, the following huts will be completed this month: Camp Borden, Ont., 349 accommodating 16,184; Petawawa, Ont., 165 accommodating 7,072; Valcartier, Que., 148 accommodating 6,120; Shilo, Man., 108, accommodating 4,760; Dundurn, Sask., 32, accommodating 1,600.

home grown and adds "more potatoes mean less bread and fewer ships to bring wheat from overseas."

Linked with the plea for economy on the kitchen front is the question of salvage. The report is current that saving waste will be compulsory and people will be penalized for dumping such material indiscriminately into the garbage pail.

Scouts, Guides, Institutes

The Ministry of Supply has mobilised every one of the 10,000 parishes in Britain to provide scrap metal. The scrap includes tins and metal refuse ordinarily thrown into quarries or gravel pits. Boy Scouts, Girl Guides and Women's Institutes were enlisted in the effort. Money from disposal of the waste goes to the Red Cross agricultural committee.

Supply Minister Herbert Morrison has received from an 80-year-old woman two heavy steel fenders and her treasured fire irons. One country church sent 10 tons of iron railings that used to surround it. Other trophies in the salvage drive include a six-ton gun from North Wales, three German guns from Esher, three from Arundel and a German tank from Portsmouth.

Students in Liverpool go from door to door as rag-and-bone merchants. Birmingham offers its garbage-men a bonus of one shilling three pence hundredweight for waste paper. Southgate, in North London, opened a "victory dump."

In less than a year the amount of waste salvaged has increased fivefold.

POWER OF R.A.F.

far fought may appear insignificant but pointed to their balance sheet of the first month of daily engagements and the start of the second.

Estimates of Losses

Reuters said since June 17, when Germany launched mass air attacks against Britain, the plane losses compiled from official records gave this score:

German planes shot down, 133; British 91.

The Nazi luftwaffe (air force) losses were given as 92 bombers, chiefly Heinkel 111's, Dornier 17's and Junkers 88's and 87's, and 41 fighters, Messerschmitt 109's and 110's.

Royal Air Force losses were given as 69 bombers and 22 fighters.

Thirteen of the R.A.F. bombers were lost in action in German-held parts of France since the armistice, nine in Scandinavia, and three in the latest attack on the German battleship Scharnhorst.

Crippled Nazi Machines

The R.A.F. total does not include ten other aircraft lost on patrol and a small number lost in cross-channel offensive patrols but Reuters commented:

"These additional losses are insignificant, however, by comparison with the number of Nazi aircraft so crippled in their raids on Britain that their safe return to home bases is very much in doubt, and of fighters defending Germany which have fallen to the concentrated fire of R.A.F. rear gunners, but whose fate cannot be finally determined."

The News Agency added that "the German total of 133 is further swelled by dozens of aircraft smashed to pieces or burst in persistent R.A.F. attacks on airfields in Germany or German-occupied territory, to which there has been no like Luftwaffe retaliation so far."

"All evidence, unofficial as well as official, supports the contention that the Luftwaffe neither took on work of the same dimensions" (as the R.A.F.) nor in any one direction equalled it," the Agency said.

British estimated that 400 German airmen were killed or captured from June 17 to July 17. Reuters said Germany could "stand this loss far less easily than the R.A.F." and observed this "neatly redressed injustice done to Britain when 400 German airmen taken prisoner in the Battle of France largely as a result of R.A.F. faction were released by the Petain Government."

Reuters said German planes cost only about two-thirds of what the British planes do.

"This may be short-sighted economy," it commented. "The results of German labor-saving, as of time-saving when it comes to training of so many of her pilots, have been noticeable and in the major clash between the Luftwaffe and R.A.F. may well prove to be conclusive."

SHINING WINDOWS

by Kathleen Norris

INSTALMENT 15.

It would be winter soon. Although the daytime hours were still hot and cloudless the house was cold at night, and the leaves were falling everywhere.

"Ben, let's go to the barn dance," Joyce suggested at a November breakfast table in the kitchen.

William Ballard had finished his breakfast and was melting something tarry and odorous on the stove. Lissy and Dodo were still curled up warmly in their beds upstairs, sound asleep in the late sunrise that was striking in shafts of crystal across the yard. But Ben had been routed out half an hour ago by his father for Michael was helping in the barns, and he was needed for the trip to town this morning, and Sally was leaning against the sink, facing the room, watching the others and occasionally putting in a word. Lastly Michael had come in and was seated at the end of the table, enormously enjoying what he said was his second breakfast, but what Joyce suspected was his first as well.

Ben received the suggestion coldly. "Let's not, and say we did."

"Come on, Ben. It'd be such fun!" fun!" Michael spoke briefly.

"You don't want to go to a barn dance," he said.

Joyce's dancing eyes were turned upon him.

"Oh, why not?"

"It isn't as much fun as it sounds."

"Well, I wouldn't expect it to be the Junior League," Joyce reminded him. "It's just girls and men dancing isn't it?"

"I know. But most of the nice ones don't go to it and a lot of others come in from everywhere—it gets to be rather a riot."

"I think it would be fun. I like to see the way they do things!" Joyce persisted stubbornly. In the end she talked Ben into taking her.

Supper at the ranch was at six, but before that on the night of the dance Joyce and Ben were ready to go. The barn dance began with a hearty meal at half-past five and the dancing would be well under way by seven.

"So that every one gets home early," Joyce suggested.

"Well—in a way—" Michael said. He would stay at home and play bridge.

Joyce wore Lissy's fur coat over her taffeta; she looked her loveliest.

"The village belle!" she called back to Michael as they started. Michael did not smile as he watched them go.

The winter day was closing down to dusk; there was a hard cold darkening sky overhead, and the taste of frost was in the air. Cars were twinkling in radiating lines toward the common destination that was the Jellicoes' new enormous hay barn; their lights fingered the roads and the trees, showed the plain little Jellicoe homestead and the windmill, swept up against the trees and the hills, were dimmed close to the great open doors.

From outside the place seemed but dimly lit, but once inside Joyce found herself in a pleasant bustle that was quite sufficiently lighted; two or three great locomotive lamps were swung from the clean high rafters; there were smaller lanterns everywhere, and a string of Japanese paper lanterns some dozen yards long was looped over the place that had been cleaned for dancing in the centre of the floor. Apron and ice cream cone and popcorn and gift booths were all separately and individually lighted.

Off the main enormous space was a wagon barn with four box stalls and in here Joyce found long tables upon which women were spreading eatables of every variety; the smell of the coffee was pleasant in the air. Every one was ravenous and every one was being put off until Mrs. Boggs got the punch ready. Joyce flung herself into the scene with her characteristic friendly energy; the older women liked her at once. A dimpled pink-cheeked plump girl with incredibly golden hair and the engaging name of Bootsy Florence instantly appropriated Ben, and Joyce saw that his first silly banter with Bootsy presently changed into something more real, and that he and Bootsy were drinking each other's health enthusiastically.

The punch circulated; Joyce didn't know where the time flew to, but she was eating her first delicious piece of cold fried chicken at eight o'clock, and only a few moments later, dancing, heard the whistle that meant that the prize dances were beginning at half-past nine.

She danced joyously, inexhaustibly, with one tall big farmer after another.

The radio and a loud-speaker supplied the music; the girls and men sang as they danced. Michael, Joyce reflected, had been right about one thing: there was a good many roughs here who did not belong to this neighborhood at all, and their girls were dreadful. The men pressed their faces against the girls' faces as they circled about the wide pine floor that was new and raw and yellow under the lights; as the evening wore on they disappeared couple by couple for long absences; they went out to sit in the cars and kiss and embrace each other. The air was hot in the barn; long draughts of the icy punch were absolutely indispensable. When one stepped out under the cold hard sky the night air felt deliciously fresh and sweet.

Two young men, Bill and Podge, were making the evening entertaining for Joyce. She never had seen either before tonight, but she could call them only Bill and Podge because they hilariously refused to give her other names. Both were big and good-lucking and rapid and violent dancers; both admired Joyce and when one was dancing with her the other waited. Between dances they rushed her about, got her sandwiches, cake or punch.

"Still—if you come to a thing like this, you might as well not be a stick!" Joyce told her excited thoughts. She was sure of herself, but somehow it made her a little uneasy to see that Ben and Bootsy were indulging in long disappearances and that when they did return to dance Ben was almost continually kissing Bootsy's temple, his face wearing meanwhile a look of fatuous adoration and content.

By midnight the crowd on the floor was thinning, but the eating went on with great vigor, and there were increasing demands for the icy sweet punch. They seemed to have done nothing in particular since seven o'clock, but here it was almost one—it was past one, going on toward two, and still somehow she didn't feel like going home.

"I think I ought to find Ben," she said presently.

"Don't worry, sister. Bootsy has him in hand!" Bill reassured her.

"That's exactly why I think I ought to find him," Joyce answered and so high were her spirits that they all found this very funny.

They went in search of Ben; he and Bootsy were not easy to find, and were finally run to earth cosily concealed in the back of Bootsy's car.

Joyce quite suddenly felt cold and tired and disgusted. The whole affair went shoddy; she hated herself and Ben, she hated even innocent Bill and Podge, and she heartily wished that she had never come to the barn dance.

"I'll take the car, Ben, and go home alone," she said, trying to speak gayly over a rising tide of anger.

"Take it!" Ben said, his jaw rubbing gently against the cuddled Bootsy's temple. Joyce turned in vexation to her attentive escort; the three walked together toward her own car.

"Some one'll bring him home—" she said hesitatingly.

Bill had disappeared; she was standing along with Podge in the weak cold moonlight outside the Jellicoes' barn. All about the place the quiet hills stood sentinel; the trees of the farmhouse were mere blots in the gloom.

Podge put his big arm about her; crushed his hard face against hers; his mustache was wet against her mouth.

"How about it, sister?" he said in a hoarse voice with a chuckle in it. "How about a good—nice—sweet—good night—kiss!"

One arm held her in a vice; the other was moving over her neck and shoulder. Joyce, choking and terrified, strained away from him.

"You let me go!" Joyce gasped. She freed both arms to fight him; suddenly she was free.

"That'll be about enough from you, Podge," Michael's voice had said quietly; Joyce heard the impact of his knuckles against the other man's jaw. Podge went down like a log against the frosted stubble of the field; Joyce, guided and hurried by Michael, got into Michael's shabby little open car. He put a blanket about her and they started for home without a word.

After a long time her breathing quieted and she said clearly and slowly, "That was my fault."

Michael made no comment upon this for a few minutes.

"You shouldn't have gone," he said briefly then.

"It was just a—a country party," Joyce presently submitted defensively. "They're all acting like that. I suppose he thought I was—that sort of girl. If the way Bootsy Florence is acting with Ben is any criterion—"

"Yes, I saw them too. Bootsy's going to tell her mother tomorrow that she's engaged to the Ballard boy."

Joyce experienced a moment of panic. All very funny at the barn dance, but matters might not be quite so droll later on.

"How long were you there, Michael?"

"About an hour. I came down after you. I thought you might have had about enough."

"Thank you," Joyce said drily, hating him. "I hope my two friends won't call on me some day this week," she added trying to turn the matter into a joke.

"They won't," Michael said decidedly. "I know both of them. Bill Harges is a harmless enough fool—he works up on the Rooker place. But Podge Harris has a wife and a baby—she was the girl in green who was working with the coffee machine. He's got a nerve to try to get away with what he does! His wife knows it, but I suppose she's in love with him!"

The deepest abysses of shame opened to receive Joyce's spirit. All the long way home she did not speak again because she was unable to speak again.

And when she was warm in her bed she still could not close her eyes. Fully one third of her night had been spent in wondering wretchedly how she could ever get up her courage to face Michael the next day, but as it happened her encounter with him took place without any apparent embarrassment on his side and with as little as she could possibly betray on hers. Joyce, not falling asleep until the cold winter light was fingering at her window, slept deep and late, and appeared in the warm bright busy kitchen only when luncheon preparations were under way.

Soldiers Overseas Send Letters Of Appreciation to Aiken's W.A.

The Women's Association of Aiken's Church met on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Murney Jeffrey, with sixteen members and seven visitors present.

The president Mrs. Selburn Westover, was in charge of the afternoon meeting which opened with the W.A. theme song.

The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. Wm. Bush and the reading of the Scripture by Mrs. Thos. Irvin.

The Roll Call was answered by Bible verses.

During the business period letters of appreciation were read from Corporal Masters, Bob English and Frank Bennett, who had received parcels from Aiken's W.A. while on overseas duty.

A letter was read from Mrs. Lee Grills expressing thanks for the plant that had been sent her while in the hospital.

Mrs. Usvan Perry was present and acknowledged appreciation for a plant and cards sent her. Readings were given, "As We go Through Life" by Mrs. W. H. Kells; "On His Blindness," Mrs. Ken Jones; "A Memory System," Mrs. Wilmot Bailey, and "Wishing" by Mrs. Wheeler.

The latter part of the program was devoted to Red Cross business. Members were asked to contribute a four-pound jar of jam. A reading, "Work to Win the War" was given by Mrs. Cyril McMullen, followed by a prayer for our country, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

During the forenoon, and following the program, the members were all engaged in knitting. Hot dinner was served by the hostess at the noon hour.

The following are letters from overseas:

To the Members of Aiken's W.A.

My Dear Friends,—As I have a few moments to spare I am taking this opportunity of writing you. I cannot find words to explain how glad I was to receive the parcel. I am sure you must have spent a lot of time and energy preparing it and all I can offer you in return is my humble thanks.

If any of you have the time to spare and would care to write me some time, I would certainly appreciate it, because a letter goes a long way in cheering one up, especially at a time like this.

I haven't seen very much of this country yet, but what I have seen of it, I think it's beautiful, but as far as I am concerned there is no place like dear old Canada.

My time is just about up now, so I'll have to bring this letter to a close and report for duty.

When you pray, please remember me, and all the other boys who are standing shoulder to shoulder during this hour of darkness, asking God to lead us safely through.

Again, I want to thank each and every one of you from the very bottom of my heart for what you have done for me.

You can rest assured that I will stand fast to help hold that which is so dear to us.

With all best wishes, I remain

Yours, truly,

BOB ENGLISH.

Aiken's W.A.

I am taking this method of showing you the appreciation I felt in receiving your parcel.

All the boys certainly miss the simple things that were so easy to get over home, but through your generosity we seem to get along very well.

Thanking you again for your parcel and wishing your society every success, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

CPL. ARNOLD MASTERS.

May 31.

To the Ladies of Aiken's Ladies' Aid:

I received the box on Tuesday, May 28th., and everything was in real good shape, but I'm sorry I can't say the same about it just now, but I wish to take this opportunity of thanking everyone who contributed toward it, as it was a real pleasant and satisfying surprise, and a couple of other fellows thought the very same about it too.

Thanking you one and all for your kindness.

I remain.

FRANK BENNETT.

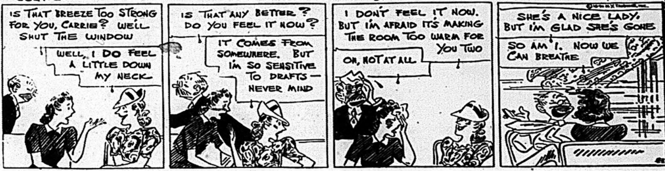
JULY. 24. '40 MR. AND MRS. FOES OF FRESH AIR. BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER.



IS THAT BREEZE TOO STRONG FOR YOU, CARRIE? WELL SHUT THE WINDOW
WELL, I DO FEEL A LITTLE DOWN MY NECK
IS THAT ANY BETTER? DO YOU FEEL IT NOW?
IT COMES FROM SOMEWHERE. BUT I'M SO SENSITIVE TO DRAFTS — NEVER MIND
I DON'T FEEL IT NOW. BUT I'M AFRAID IT'S MAKING THE ROOM TOO WARM FOR YOU TWO OH, NOT AT ALL
SHE'S A NICE LADY. BUT I'M GLAD SHE'S GONE
SO AM I. NOW WE CAN BREATHE

WELL, MR. BUDGE MUST BE OUT OF HIS MIND TO GO CAMPIN' WITH YOU! WHERE'RE YOU GONNA GET A TENT?
WHY, YOU'RE GONNA GET IT!
I? I CERTAINLY AM NOT! IF CYRUS BUDGE IS SIMPLE ENOUGH TO GO CAMPIN', HE CAN GET TH' TENT HIMSELF!
GRAN'MA SAYS YOU'LL HAVE TO GET TH' TENT!
BUT, GRAN'MA — HE SAYS HE WON'T GO IF THERE ISN'T ANY TENT!
